FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance :—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardiner sowed four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $400 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

THE EXAMINER ROAD RACES

Thanksgiving Day, Monday, Oct. 25th, 1909

SENIOR RACE

I am an amateur in good standing, and fulfil the required conditions in other ways and wish to be entered in the Examiner Senior Road Race on Thanksgiving Day.

Name_____

Address_____

JUNIOR RACE

I am an amateur in good standing and am under eighteen years of age. I wish to be entered in the Examiner Junior Road Race on Thanksgiving Day

Name _____

Address_____

Contestants are required to fill out the blanks in connection with whichever race they desire to enter and send in this coupon to the sporting editor of the Peterborough Examiner as soon as possible.

OFFICIALS SELECTED FOR THE THANKSGIVING DAY RACES

The officials for the Examiner road races have been decided upon and arrangements completed for the big Thanksgiving Day events, in which more than usual interest is being taken. The following officials have been arranged:

Senior Race—

Starter, Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Dela Fosse.

Clerk of the course—Mr. F. M. Timer—Mr. W. E. Wasson.

Junior Race—

Starter—Mr. C. G. Graham.

Timer and clerk of the course—Mr. W. O'Brien.

The senior race will start at Lakefield at 10.30 o'clock with the usual course, Lakefield to Peterborough. This year contestants must not use the sidewalks at all but must adhere to the road when the city limits are reached. The finish will be as usual in front of the Examiner office. Those who wish may go to Lakefield on the morning train at their own expense or may if they prefer go by bus which leaves the Examiner office for Lakefield at 8.30 o'clock.

The junior race starts 100 yards from the 5-mile post on the Lakefield road and finishes at the Examiner office. A bus will leave the Examiner office at 9.15 o'clock for the purpose of carrying the contestants to the starting point.

Peterborough, Oct. 20, 1909

Editor Examiner,

Dear Sir,—As the date of your race from Lakefield to Peterborough is near at hand I believe in view of the deplorable conditions with which the runners had to contend in last year's race, a few suggestions would, with your kind permission be very appropriate.

You will remember that in last year's race, from Smith street until the runners breasted the tapes, they were compelled to dodge buggies, bicycles and a mob of excited citizens who displayed no more common sense than a lot of school children.

I can readily understand the excitement that prevails at such a time but a man's sense of justice and of fair play should lead him to give the competitors an equal chance.

It was demonstrated last year beyond a doubt that to make your race a success and one over which there could be no wrangling as regards the outcome, it would be necessary to adopt a different system.

My suggestion is as follows:

Let a few mounted men patrol the course for three or four blocks from the finish and endeavour to keep the crowd from running back and forth across the track. My plan is one that could be very easily carried out and would mean very little if any additional cost and the result would do much towards giving the Examiner Road Race the standing in the Athletic world that it justly merits.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, and trusting that you can give my letter a small place in your valued paper,

I am, Sir,

One who is interested.

In regard to the above suggestion it may be said that Road Races are practically all similar. The people crowd for blocks around the finish and while they are desirous of giving the competitors a fair field for the last sprint they must of necessity, on account of their numbers and eagerness to see an exciting finish crowd the street. The Examiner appreciates the suggestions offered and the desire of the citizens to make the road race a success.

At the same time it is felt that the crowding at the finish can be prevented only by the people themselves. It is hoped that they will remember this fact and on Thanksgiving Day show their good intention by not completely closing up the street between Brock street and the finishing tape.

DOCTORS ADVISE MEDICATED AIR

It Cures Catarrh, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Throat Troubles, Hoarseness.

For diseases of the lungs, throat and nasal passages mountain air has always been deemed salutary because of its pureness and freedom from disease germs. The air of pine forests, laden with minute particles of volatile germ-destroying principles, has enjoyed an almost unexampled reputation in these diseases also.

A MARVELLOUS DISCOVERY.

After years of exhaustive study a chemist devised a means of supplying right at home a healing balsamic remedy that is even more effective in catarrhal diseases than the air of the pine woods. Of course, this remedy was copyrighted in every civilized country and was at once offered to the public under the name of "Catarrhozone." Its success has been phenomenal.

Just think of it! A healing, soothing substance capable of destroying these noxious organisms which excite and maintain disease. Capable, also, of allaying congestion and of stimulating the healing processes of nature, which are combined in that invaluable compound so well and so favorably known to the medical world as "Catarrhozone."

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

Catarrhozone is simply the concentrated qualities of the air of pine woods. If you breathe it you will derive more benefit in one hour than you could possibly get from the woods in a year.

This great advantage arises from the fact that, in addition to these healing emanations from pine, other ingredients distilled from the vegetable kingdom are so united as to give results that could not possibly be derived in the simple form in which nature supplies medicated air.

30,000 PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT.

For all diseases of the nose, ear, throat, bronchial tubes and air passages—for catarrh in every form—cure is certain with Catarrhozone, which is not a nostrum, but a high-class scientific treatment. Large size, sufficient for two months' use (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size 50c, at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

GOLF

The golf match yesterday in the semi-finals between Sam Ray and Robert Neill resulted in a win for the former. It was a closely contested game, and was won on the 20th hole.

"NOT GUILTY," WAS VERDICT RECEIVED

soners had been given very good character by respectable citizens. Character evidence, however, only bore much weight in certain cases, but when men are admittedly engaged in what has taken place, character was not of great value.

The prisoners were presumed to be innocent unless the prosecution succeeded in convincing the jury beyond all reasonable doubt that they were guilty. By reasonable doubt he did not mean a shadowy doubt. It was for the prosecution to prove that the prisoners were guilty and therefore if the jury had reasonable doubt as to the alleged assaut on Bollard or upon the cause of his death it was their duty to acquit them. Conviction could not be made a subject of conjecture.

Referring to the medical testimony the Chief Justice remarked that primarily it might be supposed that the two doctors who attended the patient before his death and who performed the post mortem were in a better position to testify correctly than those who had been basing their opinion on theories. However, the Chief Justice thought that the doctors who performed the post mortem should have opened every avenue of information in a matter of such importance and in this particular the post mortem was incomplete. Chief Justice Falconbride dealt with the cholera nostris theory advanced by the defence which Dr. Osler, an eminent authority stated was produced by errors in diet and which was a disease of the bowels.

Chief Justice Falconbride remarked that he had heard of cases on the football field in whihc a man was painfully hurt but in which he had finished out the match and played a hard game too. The doctors called by the defence, however, had been positive in their opinion that a man could not be injured as alleged and be able to immediately afterwards engage in two bouts of wrestling.

In conclusion the Chief Justice spoke briefly on the position of Harry Jopling, the younger prisoner. While it had not ben shown that he had injured Bollard in any manner it was the law that if the jury considered Fred Jopling guilty they must return a similar verdict against his brother. His Lordship pointed out that if such a verdict were returned he would differentiate a great deal between the two cases in the matter of sentence, but that was something with which the jury had not to deal. His Lordship then left the case in the hands of the jury, who retired.

A moment after Mr. O'Connell asked that His Lordship should discuss with the jury the possibility of poison through the abrasions on the skin spoken of and the jury was brought back to the court room while the Chief Justice explained that that if these abrasions had been caused during the friendly wrestling and that the jury considered that blood poisoning had set in from them, that would not be manslaughter, but would be a mere misadventure. His Lordship also referred to the apples that the deceased is said to have eaten on the Tuesday after but did not know that incident had much importance in the case. Court was adjourned at 12.45 o'clock until 2 o'clock so that the jury cannot return any verdict until that hour at least.

Indispensable in the family, a "Walpole" Hot Water Bottle, the greatest comforter in the home. It's patented, all one piece of Rubber. No seams. Can't leak. Druggists sell it.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Philomatheon Society of the Collegiate Institute was held yesterday afternoon in the assembly room. The officers elected were as follows:

President—Mr. A. Primeau.

Vice-President—Miss E. Reid.

Secretary—Miss Mazie Armstrong.

Treasurer.—Mr. E. Boseborough.

The other officers will be elected this evening and the work for the year will be outlined. With excellent facilities at their disposal and with the sympathy of the citizens always manifested in their efforts the P.C.I. students should achieve better results than their precedent societies. All their efforts will be looked upon with favour and it is hoped the officers will be ambitious in ther endeavours, and that they will attain to them.

Perhaps you prefer to have your wife warm her cold feet on your back, if so you don't need a WALPOLE Hot Water Bottle, made of one piece of Rubber, without seams and Guaranteed for two years. Sold by all druggists.

TEA ROOMS WERE A GREAT SUCCESS

Annual Meeting King's Daughters Held Yesterday.

The annual meeting of the King's Daughters of St. John's Church was held yesterday afternoon, when the reports for the year were presented, and adopted. Mrs. Hasen Ritchie presided and a large number of the ladies were present. The Treasurer's report showed that $350 had passed through the hands of the Society during the year, $250 having been realised from the tea rooms. The Society is doing a splendid work in relieving and giving assistance to the deserving poor. Tea rooms have been opened this year in Rich. Hall & Son's old store, Simcoe street. They are open from 4 to 6 o'clock, each day, but will be closed on Thanksgiving Day.

The officers were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. Ritchie.

Secretary—Miss Halliday.

Treasurer—Miss Margaret English.

COBALT ALLIANCE DENIES STATEMENT

Lord's Day Observers Did Not Discuss Milk Delivery.

Rev. W. G. Hanna, secretary of the Ontario Lord's Day Alliance, writes as follows:

Sir,—As a great wrong has been done to the Lord's Day Alliance through an item which appeared in the press last week, stating that the Alliance prevented the delivery of milk to Cobalt Hospital on the Lord's Day, you would confer a favour by permitting a brief statement of the facts of the case.

The Cobalt Nugget of recent date states, "The whole hitch over getting our milk delivered on Sunday rested with the express company," said J. W. Sherwin, secretary of the Red Cross Hospital Board, "Agent Simms read the Sunday observance law to mean that he could not deliver the milk to us on the Sabbath, though he consented to us taking the milk if we would send our own rig after it."

"He wrote Hon. W. J. Hanna, who wrote that the milk was absolutely necessary for hospital patients and therefore did not come within the license of the Lord's Day Alliance.

"The complaint did not come from the local Lord's Day Alliance people and therefore they are not at all to blame in the matter."

Dr. A. E. Munroe, the president of the Cobalt branch, who is much interested in the hospital there states: "There was no meeting or any deliberation of the officers of the branch, nor did he even know of the matter. till the report appeared in the papers. The report that the Lord's Day Alliance had anything to do with the case is absolutely and altogether untrue."

SHAMROCK COACH HAS PASSED AWAY

Moore was one of the faithful; he started to play with the team in the eighties and he stuck to them through thick and thin, through defeat and victory, right to the time of his death.

He had been ill for two months of typhoid fever with complications which were the cause of his death. Although his condition was hopeful last week, a second operation weakened him so that it was thought well to take him from the Western Hospital to his home. The end came shortly before noon to-day.

Moore had played in the celebrated match in 1892, on the M.A.A.A. Grounds, when Shamrocks defeated Capitals and his last championship match was in 1899. After that he became train-coach for the Shamrocks and his indefatigable efforts helped them to win the numerous championship battles they have since had to their credit.

He was married about four years ago, to Miss Margaret Burns of this city. The Shamrocks made this the occasion of showing him their appreciation of his work in their behalf and made him a splendid presentation at half time during one of their matches on the Mile End Grounds. He has no children.

For twenty-five years, Mr. Moore occupied a position in the Montreal Post Office where he has a host of friends.—Montreal Star.

NON-POISONOUS

Recommended by

Ontario Agricultural College

Guelph, Ontario

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call an we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertilizer, both in one.

MEN AS FRIENDS

Men prefer men to women for friends, because between them there is a sense of equality that is absent from all their relations with the opposite sex. Men, moreover, disliking the way women treat women, confide in each other with knowledge that their confidence is more likely to be respected than when they entrust their secrets to a woman.

The sense of honour among men, their antipathy to ght and agitation about trifles, provide a larger stock of the raw material of friendship between men than that with which nature has provided the opposite sex.

OBITUARY.

CHAS. J. CAVANAGH.

With unexpected suddenness came the death of Mr. Charles J. Cavanagh, who passed away at the Cavanagh House, Simcoe street, yesterday afternoon at a quarter past five. While the late Mr. Cavanagh had been in poor health for some time past, his condition showed marked improvement early this week, and he was able to be up and around. But yesterday afternoon, about two o'clock, he complained of being quite unwell, and went to bed. He gradually grew worse until the end came, as stated above.

The deceased was thirty-three years of age, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cavanagh. He was thirty-three years of age and had been a resident of Peterborough all his life. He had a wide circle of friends, who will learn with deep regret of his death. His mother and father and two brothers, Messrs. James and Roy of this city, are left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning at 9 o'clock from the hotel, Simcoe street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

JAMES BOURNE.

The death occurred on Tuesday evening at his late residence, 221 Rink street, of James Bourne. The deceased had been in poor health ever since the time that he was seriously injured at the Packing House two years ago. He was seventy-eight years of age, and was born in Kent, England. He came to America sixty years ago, and had been a resident of Peterborough for 46 years. He was a man highly esteemed and respected by all who knew him. He was a faithful member of All Saints' church. Three daughters are left to mourn his loss. They are Mrs. James Hubble, of Norwood, and Mrs. Jas. Edwards and Mrs. Lightheart, of this city.

The funeral will be held to-morrow at 2 o'clock from the family residence to All Saints' Church, and then to the Little Lake cemetery

HOW CIGARETTES ARE MADE FOR A SULTAN

"The Turkish Sultan," said a tobacconist, "has for generations smoked the finest cigarettes in the world. Cigarettes like his bought here would cost over one shilling apiece.

"In the royal palace there has been from time immemorial a small cigarette factory—a light, airy room, a bale of exquisite tobacco, one or two simple hand-cutting machines, half a dozen workmen of marvellous skill. Here the cigarettes of the Sultan are turned out. The best cigarette tobacco comes from Turkey and the best of that goes to the Sultan. A hundredweight of leaves is rejected before a pound sufficiently fine and flawless is found for royal use."

They are not "Catspaw" Rubber Heels unless they are made with a Canvas Friction Non-Slip ping. Take no chances, insist upon having "Catspaw." All dealers and repairers.

MRS. TURNER FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER ESCAPED VERDICT OF MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Jury Said to Have Disagreed and Compromised Rather Than Have Trial End in a Disagreement---Defence Offered No Evidence---Woman Slew Mrs. Annie Authors' Baby at Niagara Falls---Verdict of Murder Was Generally Expected.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—"Guilty of manslaughter."

This verdict was delivered after a little over two hours deliberation in the Criminal Assize Court at 9.40 last night. By it, Mrs. Mabel Turner is removed from the shadow of the gallows, but faces a life sentence for the killing of Mrs. Annie Authers' infant.

Amazement was written plain on the faces of the hundred or so hearers gathered in the court-room. Judge, counsel, and even the prisoner herself seemed scarcely able to credit their ears as the words fell from the lips of the foreman of the jury.

Mrs. Turner was led into the court-room when it was announced that a verdict had been reached. As the men who held her life in their hands filed into the room she seemed to brace herself in the dock and sat with a steady gaze fixed upon the foreman's face as he took his seat.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon your verdict?" asked the clerk.

"We have," replied the foreman.

"What is that verdict?"

The prisoner's face looked strained and old. Queer age-giving lines appeared which had not been there before and she nervously moistened her lips. Her steady, tired eyes grew misty, but did not falter.

The foreman spoke slowly, and with a marked hesitation after the first word.

"Guilty," he said.

At the word a look of abject terror shot over the woman's face, the mouth was twisted in what appeared a desperate effort to repress a cry and she was white to the lips.

After a pause that was but a hesitation in speech, the foreman went on "of manslaughter."

As the two words which called her back from death to life, the change was as striking as had been the despair that spread over her countenance at the first word. Her face became almost radiant in its expression of great joy.

The verdict of the jury was the subject of wide discussion, more especially among those who had watched the case throughout. Members of the legal fraternity present when it was delivered had a deal to say of it. "A verdict against capital punishment," was the way it was classed by one, and the view was very generally endorsed by many. None of the jurors would discuss the matter at all.

After a consultation with T. C. Robinette, K. C., and Mrs. Turner, W. A. Henderson, who has conducted the case for the prisoner, sprang a surprise at the opening of yesterday's afternoon session, when he announced that no evidence would be called for the defence.

It was learned about the corridors last night that up till a very short time before the verdict was returned three men stood out for a straight murder verdict, while the remaining nine, among whom was the foreman, stood for the verdict as returned. The basis of this was a possibility that the infant might have exasperated Mrs. Turner by crying and that she sought to quiet it by tying a rope or handkerchief about its neck, and also by the use of her hands upon it that she might have gone too far and killed it and that her subsequent actions were for the purpose of hiding the crime. To avoid a disagreement the three who had originally stood for murder compromised rather than have the trial end in a disagreement.

BLEW OPEN BANK SAFE

Teller Cadoret is Awakened at 1 a.m. by Noises and Going Down to Investigate is Shot at by Burglars—Chloroformed the Dog and Seem to Be Experts at Their Work—Took Five Shots to Open Safe.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Early yesterday morning, five unknown men broke into the Banque Nationale, at the Village of St. Aime, St. Hyacinthe County, blew open the safe and carried off $2,200. There was a wad of ten thousand the day before and this was evidently expected by the safe-crackers.

The manager, Alexander Cadorette, heard them, and ran down stairs and began shooting at the robbers, who returned the fire and hiked. They went to the station, and taking a hand car made off in the direction of St. Hyacinthe.

They seemed to be experts at their work and to be absolutely fearless. A large dog which kept guard at the bank was chloroformed, and then the attack on the safe was made. It required five shots to blow it open, but while some of the party worked the others kept guard. The police are trying to effect their capture. The opinion is expressed at detective headquarters that this gang is the same that has operated so actively throughout the province during the year.

Blythe's Trial To-day.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Walter Blythe was again put on trial for the murder of his wife at Agincourt, at the opening of the Criminal Assizes, before Mr. Justice Magee, at 10 o'clock this morning.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., who will conduct the defence, said yesterday that the case will be given to the jury before night, and that the defence will occupy a much shorter time than at the previous hearing, as he intends to call no medical evidence as to insanity, and the evidence of Blythe's little boy, who is now in England with his little sister, will also be missing.

A Generous Offer.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—Should the contemplated reorganization of the University of Manitoba result in state control of higher education, as has been recommended by the minority report of commission which has been investigating the entire question, the Manitoba College of Physicians and Surgeons is prepared to hand over the magnificent new medical college, together with all equipment and site, valued at $100,000, to the university, absolutely without reserve.

Canadian Companies Protest.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—A deputation, representing fire insurance companies in Canada, saw Hon. W. S. Fielding yesterday afternoon. They object to allowing unlicensed companies to do fire insurance business in Canada on a basis of fifteen per cent. tax on premiums, practically an export duty on premiums. The Canadian companies claim that it brings the unlicensed foreign companies into competition without being under the same obligations.

EXECUTION OF FERRER BROUGHT SPANISH AFFAIRS TO A CRISIS

Madrid, Oct. 22.—The Spanish Cabinet, which was formed Jan. 25, 1907, under the Premiership of Antonio Maura, resigned yesterday, as the result of the bitter attacks made against the Government by the former Premier Moret y Prendergast, representing a powerful opposition.

At a conference with King Alfonso, Premier Maura, told the King that in the face of Senor Moret's statement that the Opposition would refuse to discuss even the most urgent measures he had no option but to resign. He asked, however, the members of the majority to support the new Ministry.

Upon receipt of the resignation of the Premier and his Ministers, Moret y Prendergast undertook to form a new Ministry, himself assuming the post of Premier and Minister of the Interior. The new Ministers, who, took the oath of office last night, are as follows: Premier and Minister of the Interior, Moret y Prendergast; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Perez Caballero; Minister of Finance, Senor Alvarado; Minister of War, Lieut.-Gen. De Luque; Minister of Marine, Rear-Admiral Concas; Minister of Public Works, Senor Casset; Minister of Public Instruction, Senor Barroso; Minister of Justice, Martinez del Campo.

When the President of the Chamber of Deputies made the announcement of the Cabinet's resignation, it was received with such an ear-splitting uproar, that he was forced to adjourn the sitting.

The defunct Cabinet was conservative and succeeded in power the fall of no less than five Liberal Ministeries in the preceding 18 months. The religious issue had been the root of these dissensions, and the return to power of Senor Maura, leader of the Conservatives, and who had before held the Premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the Clericals, and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case, the Opposition finally uniting in opposition to the Government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco.

The execution of Ferrer brought matters to a crisis.

CONSERVATIVE CONFAB.

Reorganization Convention Will Be Held on Jan. 11.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Tuesday, January 11, is the date selected for the Ontario Conservative convention. This will be the 94th anniversary of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald.

J. S. Carstairs, secretary of the Liberal-Conservative Association for Ontario, was instructed to invite all the Conservative federal and provincial members, the Conservative and defeated candidates at the elections last year, the Conservatives Senators in Ontario, and to request each Dominion Riding Association and each Provincial Riding Association to appoint five delegates to represent them.

The aims of the convention will be confined wholly to organization purposes.

The following joint committee will be in charge of the arrangements:

Selected by Mr. R. L. Borden—Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Richard Blain, M.P.; Haughton Lennox, K.C., M.P.; W. R. Smythe, M.P.; Ed. Bristol, K.C., M.P.; Col. Sam Hughes, M.P.; Andrew Broder, M.P.; T. S. Sproule, M.D., M.P.; Major J. A. Currie, M.P.; Thomas J. Crothers, K.C., M.P.; Maj. Thomas Beattie, M.P.; W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P.; Jos. E. Armstrong, M.P.; Gus Porter, K.C., M.P.

Selected by Sir James Whitney—Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon. R. A. Pyne, Hon. A. J. Matheson, Hon. J. O. Reaume, M.P.P.; P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P.; A. H. Musgrove, M.P.P.; Alex. Ferguson, M.P.P.; E. E. Fraser, M.P.P.; T. W. McGarry, K.C., M.P.P.; H. Morel, K.C., M.P.P.; W. H. Hearst, K.C., M.P.P.; T. H. Lennox, K.C., M.P.P.

Did Ratz Buy Vacancy?

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 23.—Absalom Merner, son of the late Senator Samuel Merner, has begun an action against Senator Valentine Ratz, an ex-M.P., and a Liberal, for $1,400 for services alleged to have been rendered under an agreement made in July, 1908, between his father and Ratz, by which Merner was to resign and create a vacancy in the Senate into which Mr. Ratz could step. In consideration Ratz was to pay the plaintiff's father $1,400 on the first of May, 1909, and $1,000 a year thereafter as long as he or his wife, Mrs. Ellen Merner, lived. Hon. Samuel Merner died on August 11, 1909.

In his defence, Ratz denies that he was a party to any such agreement, and states that Merner's resignation was due to his insolvency. If there were any such agreement, it would be in effect for the sale of an office in the gift of the crown, and void as against public policy. It would also be void under the Ontario statutes, as being the sale of an office concerning the administration of justice. A Senator receives $2,500 a year and it is a life job.

Canadians In Trouble.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—A colony of Canadians in Cuba is having an unhappy time according to a report Trade Commissioner Kirkpatrick has made to the Department of Trade and Commerce. He reports that a number of Canadians have settled at a point in Cuba called Ocean Beach, which is being advertised by a company which calls itself Canadian. The results of the settlement there, Commissioner Kirkpatrick says, appear to give a profit to the company only. The Canadians who have settled there are being harassed by two municipalities, Mantua and Guane, each of which claims jurisdiction over the Ocean Beach district. One of the municipality is arresting and imprisoning the settlers for not paying taxes to it. The Canadian community is too poor to struggle with the conflicting authority, and is reported to be in great distress.

A Sugar Refinery.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 22.—F. C. Durant of New York and M. H. Day of Montreal and others associated with them will erect a sugar refinery in St. John to cost $3,000,000 and to employ at least 500 men. It will be a very large industry. Mr. Durant and Mr. Day have been here for several days interviewing the city government, the Board of Trade and others in reference to the matter. The city will grant a free site and exemption from taxes and water rates for a term of years.

HIS DAUGHTER'S FIRST STORY.

By DONALD ALLEN.

(Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.)

The Bounder Magazine was offering a $500 prize for the best love story, and when Colonel Sears, retired, happened to see the announcement at the village reading room he started right home to tell his daughter Phyllis. On the way he decided that her story should be a pathetic one. He so decided because he felt pathetic most of the time himself over being retired, over his half pay and over the fact that the army was going to the dogs without him.

Phyllis Sears was good looking, and she was smart. She had written and torn up two pieces of poetry, she had written and read numerous school compositions, and she had written one essay on the subject of intemperance.

Miss Phyllis fully realized that she was literary, but she would not have pursued the line except for the enthusiasm and encouragement of her father. She continued to be good looking and smart and literary to please him. The mother doted on the girl, but stood neutral in details.

The story was begun next day, and as fast as a page was written it was submitted to the father. He weighed every sentence. Once the tears were started from the eyes of the reader he insisted that there should be no respite.

When the story had reached five pages the colonel wrote a letter to the editor of the Bounder. He gave his war record in full and stated that his only daughter was writing a story to be submitted in the contest. Thus far, his word for it, it had proved a tremendous literary effort, fully equal to Ouida's best, and he could guarantee that the last half would be greater yet. He had cried over it, and the editor, the editor's wife and the pressmen, compositors and all others connected with the office would doubtless do the same.

By and by two or three things began to down on Phyllis. She found it difficult to keep up the tears. The story had gone all right to a certain point and then stuck. She was puzzled as to the end of it. She began to doubt and distrust her talent and finally ventured to say so to her father.

"Not take the prize!" the colonel exclaimed. "Why, girl, what has come over you? First, you are the daughter of a colonel who served his country for thirty years; next, you are good looking and smart; thirdly, your story is the only one to touch the editor's heart. Egad, if it doesn't I'll go down to the city and call him a ruffian! You'll win that prize in a canter."

"But if I should fail after all?" she asked.

"But you can't."

"And yet I may. You see, you have told most everybody, and if I don't take the prize I shall feel terribly humiliated. I shall want to go away for a year."

"Look here, daughter," said the colonel after a moment's thought. "I'll make you a promise. If you don't take that prize I promise to find a husband for you within a year. What do you say to that? You are sure of the prize, however, and will have to live and die an old maid."

And that evening as the colonel smoked his cigar on the veranda with a friend he whispered in confidence:

"Not a word to a living soul—not a word! There'll be thousands of stories sent in, but Phyllis' will take the cake. Bound to, sir—bound to. She's smart, and then she's the daughter of an old soldier. The first page made me hitch around on my chair, and the second brought tears to my eyes. It will be a story to set thousands weeping."

The story was finished at last, read and reread and then sent off. With it went another confidential letter from the colonel. He pointed out its many strong points to save the editor time, and he assured him that at least forty friends of his had pronounced it a gem and wanted ten copies of the issue in which it was printed. He also referred again to his war record.

There was a month of waiting. During this time the colonel never faltered. When Phyllis became despondent and discouraged he patted her on the head and replied:

"Why, the editor must have time to recover from his emotions after reading your story. Bound to win—bound to. Thirty years in the service of my country, and this is the first story my daughter has written. You may receive a $500 check at any moment. If it had been a common story, something to laugh at, a balderdash love story, but it was pathos, you see. Egad, but think of your old father weeping over a story!"

One day the pathetic manuscript was returned, and inclosed with it was a notice that such and such a story had won the prize. The colonel came home with the letter in his hand.

"But I was afraid it might fail," said Phyllis as she took it and went away to weep over it and wonder what everybody would say.

The colonel stalked into the library and sat down and wrote the editor a letter and told him that he was a man without sentiment, a numskull, a border ruffian and many other things and wound up with a lament that the days of the duello had passed away. That relieved him somewhat.

Ten days had passed and the little family were sitting on the veranda one afternoon when a gentlemanly looking man of thirty descended from an auto and introduced himself. His card showed that he was the editor of the Bounder. Phyllis blushed, and her father arose to begin an oration. It was to be a scorcher, but before he had got out a word the caller announced that he had come down to make an explanation. He was perfectly at ease, and his manner was frank.

In the first place, the pathetic story had exceeded the limit set by over a thousand words. The circular had specified American stories, and this was laid in London. Phyllis had to acknowledge that she had been careless and the colonel that he had not read the circular at all. Then the editor good naturedly pointed out the absence of any plot and other things open to criticism. When he had finished the colonel didn't know whether to ask him to take a glass of wine or to order him off the premises.

It was the daughter who settled that question, however. She frankly acknowledged her literary errors. After that there was a friendly talk on literary matters, and for an hour after the caller's departure the old warrior sat buried in a sort of reverie. When the daughter at last aroused him he said:

"Phyl, I made you a promise, you remember."

"Did you?" she innocently asked, though blushing at the same time.

"And I guess I've found him. Let me say that I'm not going to butt in and tangle things up any more. I'm not literary, and I'm going to drop pathos. I'm simply military, and I'm going to stick to that. Go ahead and paddle your own canoe after this."

And if the colonel had not been a wise father his son-in-law might not be sharing the house with him and his good wife today, and that son-in-law might not be the editor of the Bounder.

MR. HERMAN DYING OF STONE IN THE BLADDER

Gin Pills passed the Stone

513 James St., Hamilton.

"Four years ago I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in the back and loins, great pain and difficulty in urinating. The pain was greatest in the region of the bladder, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony, and I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor. Doctors could do nothing to help me. My wife read in the paper about Gin Pills and sent for a box.

From the very first I felt that Gin Pills were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent. In six weeks the Stone in the Bladder came away and the pain stopped entirely. I have had no return of the trouble and have not lost a day's work on account of it. I cannot express myself strong enough when I speak of what Gin Pills have done for me. When I remember how I suffered, and how now I am healthy and well and strong and able to do a full day's work, I feel I should speak and tell other sufferers of my experience and of the wonderful merits of Gin Pills."

JOHN HERMAN.

Going Berrying.

The pleasure of huckleberrying is partly in the season—the late summertime, from the middle of July to September. The poignant joys of early spring are passed and the exuberance of early summer, while the keen stimulus of fall has not yet come. Things are at poise. The haying is over. The meadows, shorn of their rich grass, lie tawny green under the sky, and the world seems bigger than before. It is not a time for dreams nor a time for exploits. It is a time for—for—well, berrying!

But you must choose your days carefully, as you do your fishing and hunting days. The berries "bite best" with a brisk west wind, though a south one is not to be despised, and a north one, rare at this season, gives a pleasant suggestion of fall, while the sun has still all the fervor of summer. Choose a sky that has clouds in it, too, for you will feel their movement even when you do not look up. Then take your pail and set out. Do not be in a hurry and do not promise to be back at any definite time. And, finally, go either alone or with just the right companion. I do not know any circumstances wherein the choice of a companion needs more care than in berrying. It may make or mar the whole adventure.—Atlantic.

The Weather.

For most of us the weather is still one of those minor unaccountable powers, too capricious to be either quite divine or quite devilish, whom our savage ancestors used no doubt to placate with offerings. We no longer do that, partly because we have learned to distinguish between religion and superstition, partly because we do not believe that the weather would care for any offerings of ours. But still we keep that primitive lingering idea of the weather as something with personality enough to make us angry with it, and we still get some satisfaction from telling it what we think of it. The poets pay their tribute to good weather and talk about the sun and the rain and the wind as if they had a wonderful and beautiful life of their own, and their poetry makes us love sun and rain and wind as if they were indeed living creatures. But there are many prosaic people who would despise such poetry for its unreality and yet who personify bad weather just as much as the poets personify good; to whom the rain, when they have no umbrella, is as much an enemy as the cloud was a friend to Shelley. We can all abuse bad weather so well that it is a pity we cannot learn to praise good weather better.—London Times.

Numbers Objected To.

A wag has remarked that no sooner does a man begin to rise in the world a little in Birmingham than he takes a house in the suburbs and christens it by some fanciful name, such as Mount Pleasant, Fair View, or Mount Prospect. He has a great contempt for such common things as numerals to denote the whereabouts of his residence.

And it was on that contempt that the young citizens operated.

In the dead of the night they quietly took the various gates off their hinges and changed them.

The result was that Mount Pleasant gate, which should have been 39 was lifted on to the hinges of Mount Paradise, which is 43, and instead of the proper Fair View gate being on 24, it found its way on to the hinges of 26, which (say) boasted of the name Trafalgar Lodge.

Then the fun began. The result has been little short of calamitous. One poor man was paying his court to one of the servants. He went to Oak Villa instead of Beech House, and on going to the back door was driven away with a poker.

A codfish was taken to another house, and delivered according to the name on the gate, which, unfortunately, happened to be one of the gates transferred. The idea at the house was that the master, who had just gone off on business for a few days, had ordered it, but as a matter of fact that codfish belonged to Mount Paradise, which famished in vain for this delicacy.

The confusion which exists, with letters going wrong, accounts misdelivered, and goods and callers going to houses where they are not understood or wanted, can be better imagined than described.

Winston Scored.

Mr. Winston Churchill, of pink pyjama fame, has a pretty wit, and on one occasion he made a neat little joke at the expense of a self-opinionated army officer. The incident occurred during a dinner in South Africa, and Mr. Churchill and the officer were seated side by side. Throughout the meal the latter was airing his views, until at last Mr. Churchill could stand it no longer.

"Do you know," he said, quietly, "I met a man to-day who would gladly forfeit ten pounds for the pleasure of being able to kick you!"

"To kick me, sir!" exclaimed the astonished soldier. "I must ask you to tell me his name at once!"

"Oh," replied Winston, "I'm not quite sure that I ought to do that."

"But I insist on knowing," demanded the other, angrily.

"Well, then, I suppose I must tell you. It was a poor young fellow in the hospital who has lost both his legs by the bursting of a shell."

A Good Alarm Clock.

Husband—Why don't you have the cook shut the kitchen door? One can smell the breakfast cooking all over the house. Wife—We leave it open on purpose. The smell is all that gets the family up.—Judge.

No Terminal Facilities.

"They say Harold Codlington has brain fever."

"Impossible! Could an angleworm have water on the knee?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Note How Long It Lasts

A cake of Taylor's Infants' Delight Soap wears down thin as a wafer. The last bit lathers freely and is just as healing, mild and soothing as when the bar was first unwrapped.

It is expensive for us to make the soap this way. It means expensive machines, for each bar of Infants' Delight is subjected to a pressure of 60,000 pounds—thirty tons—to make sure that every bit of moisture is removed. By this expensive means alone can we produce the solid, compact bar which, beside being the safest and most soothing soap for baby's bath, is also the most lasting soap you can procure.

Infants' Delight Soap

is a favorite with mothers everywhere. It goes a long way toward keeping the little ones sweet tempered and sunny.

The Baby of the Cabinet.

Although not in years, Mr. Herbert Samuel is the "baby" of the Cabinet, having been raised to the post of Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster only a few months ago.

For a member of the Jewish community to become a Cabinet Minister is a rare occurrence in this country; but, by his conspicuous abilities, and his services to his party, Mr. Samuel has well merited the honor.

His father was a Liverpool banker, and the boy was educated at University College School, afterwards going to Balliol College, Oxford, where he took the M.A. degree.

At Oxford he soon gained a political reputation, and twice contested Oxfordshire, but unsuccessfully. Only in 1902 did he succeed in getting into the House as member for Cleveland, and three years later he was appointed Under-Secretary for the Home Department, in which position he gained golden opinions for his work on the Children's Charter.

Mr. Samuel has an extraordinary grasp of figures and finance, and has helped Mr. Lloyd-George with the Budget. In the past he has been a great traveler, and the photographs he brought home with him from Central Africa were subsequently incorporated in a Government blue book.

London's Next Lord Mayor.

The Liverymen of the City of London meet on Michaelmas Day to elect the Lord Mayor for the next civic year. There are nine aldermen eligible for the high office, but as it is customary to elect the first one on the list it is practically certain that Sir John Knill, Bart., will be elected the chief citizen of the Empire. Sir John, like Sir Wyatt Truscott, has followed in his father's footsteps, for his father was the late Sir Stuart Knill, who was Lord Mayor sixteen years ago. It is without parallel that sons of previous Lord Mayors should be elected to the highest civic office in the State in successive years. Sir John first became an alderman in 1897, and was a sheriff in 1903-4. He is a splendid business man, and no better selection could be made as "uncrowned monarch" of the metropolis.

A Clever Authoress.

Among recent birthday celebrations have been those of Miss Helen Mathers, the clever authoress of "Comin' Through the Rye." In private life she is Mrs. Henry Reeves, wife of a distinguished surgeon. Miss Mathers once laughingly declared that her clever son was her "first success," though "Comin' Through the Rye" was published before her marriage, when she was only eighteen years old, and immediately became famous, in spite of some adverse criticism. Ruskin once told its authoress that wherever he went he found two books, the Bible and "Comin' Thro' the Rye."

Not Like Shakespeare.

"So you enjoyed my Hamlet?" said Stonnington Barnes.

"Yes," answered the woman who tries to be complimentary.

"I am glad of that. So many people nowadays do not enjoy Shakespeare."

"I know that. But the way you play it it doesn't seem the least bit like Shakespeare."

The Whistle Tankard.

A rare form of drinking vessel is in the possession of the corporation of Hull. This is a whistle tankard which belonged to Anthony Lambert, mayor of Hull in 1689. This fine specimen of old English silverware is fitted with a whistle, which comes into play when the tankard is empty and is evidently meant to be used as a signal for more liquor. It is said that only one other whistle tankard is to be found in England, so temperate is England now!—London Chronicle.

HE ENJOYS HIS MEALS NOW

For He Keeps a "Little Digester" Handy

Mr. Gleasco, of Toronto, wrote us on May 13th last:

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.,
509 Church St., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—

I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters". All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief, until I was persuaded to try "Little Digesters". Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat, because I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and sure cure for them.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. S. GLASSCO.

THE SLAYER OF MARAT

Charlotte Corday and the Act That Made Her Famous.

HER PLANS FOR THE MURDER

The Way They Were Worked Out and How They Were Put Into Execution. Her Own Tragic End and the Final Act of the Brutal Headsman.

Among the instances of fanatic zeal for country and people the act of Charlotte Corday, who was born at St. Saturnin, France, July 27, 1768, and who was beheaded at Paris July 17, 1793, stands out in tragic force.

Her childhood and early youth were full of privation, although she was of a noble family. She was educated at a convent in Caen and then went to live with an aunt in the same old town of Normandy.

She had a serene and lofty beauty, was tall and graceful, and her manner was full of dignity.

She spent all her leisure in reading, and her books were always those that related to heroism and devotion to country. When the revolution broke upon France, Charlotte eagerly took up the reading of politics and public questions. When the Girondists were obliged to fly from Paris they went to Caen and began to hold meetings and form plans for future operations in Paris.

The Girondists were the true republicans and got their name from Gironde, as it was the deputies from this district that had formed the Republican party in the national assembly. The massacres had terrified them, and they had tried to stop the violent measures in the reign of terror.

Charlotte felt a very madness of enthusiasm as she listened to the fiery eloquence of these men who denounced Marat. Danton and Robespierre escaped much of the censure due for their share in the frightful work of cruelty and death. It was upon Marat that the Girondists poured their eloquence, for it was he who had pursued and ordered the death of their leaders in Paris. In the depths of her heart a purpose was formed to save her people from this monster and at any cost to herself.

Into Charlotte's life a tender and respectful love had come to add its influence in these days of strange tumult and calm purpose. She and a young man named Franquelin had been writing each other, and she had given him her portrait and told him that he might at least love that. When this lover marched away to Paris with the Girondists and the neighboring volunteers, she bade him a calm farewell, for she knew she was going to save him.

After her execution Franquelin went home to his native village in Normandy. In the tender care of his mother he gradually failed, for his heart was broken the day his love perished. When he came to die he requested that Charlotte's portrait and letters be buried with him, and his grave holds them sacredly.

Charlotte began to prepare for her journey to Paris and the tragedy she had planned. Every effort was made to hide the appearance of a concealed purpose. When she arrived at Paris she at once set about her plans to find Marat. As a preparation she went to one of the shops of the Palais Royal and bought a dagger shaped knife, paying for it 60 cents. This she hid in the folds of her dress. Her plan had been to kill Marat in the very convention, where she thought the deed would be avenged by killing her on the spot.

But Marat no longer went to the convention. He was ill with a disease that was slowly killing him, and his body was in a state of disorder and irruption that gave him an agony of suffering. He was only comfortable when in the warm water of his bath. He lived on the first floor of a house in the Rue des Cordeliers, and connected with his home were all the affairs of his journalistic work and from here all his pamphlets and journals were sent out.

After writing two letters asking for an interview, in which she would give him some important news about suspected persons, she got no reply. Then she took her way to the house, insisted that she must see him, and when forbidden entrance by Marat's wife she still urged the importance of her errand. Marat heard the sound of their voices and shouted out for a reason of the noise that bothered him. When told that it was the woman who had twice written him he bade her come in. The wife, against her will, let her pass.

Marat was in his bath, wrapped in an ink striped sheet, and was writing on a board laid across the bath. Asking her errand, he took down all the details she gave him. When he had the name of each Girondist who was at work in Caen he told her that in a week they would be brought to the guillotine. Then as she stood beside the bath she plunged the knife into his heart, and he died with a cry to his wife to come to him.

Just before her execution she wrote to the Girondists at Caen that she anticipated happiness "with Brutus in the Elysian fields" after her death, and she also wrote tender and loving farewell letters to her relatives and friends.

When she had suffered death the executioner lifted up her head by the hair and struck it a brutal blow with his fist. Just at that moment a gleam of the sun so fell upon it that there was the effect of a blush upon the dead face.—Boston Globe.

OLD ANNE ROYALL.

She Was Once One of the Quaint Characters of Washington.

Old, queer, sharp tongued Anne Royall, traveler, editress and interviewer, was for many years a familiar figure in the streets of Washington, trotting indomitably about her business, very poor, very persistent, often troublesome, often rebuffed, but with qualities of honesty and courage to be respected.

There is given in the story of her life by Sarah Harvey Porter a delightful glimpse of her visit to ex-President Madison and his wife. The contrast between the gracious mature beauty of charming Dolly Madison, elegant in her rustling black silk, and the fussy little limping, shabby figure in antiquated skirts and ridiculous wadded bonnet, could scarcely have been embossed.

As usual, old Anne Royall had tramped to save carriage hire; as usual, her errand, probably none too welcome to her hosts, was to secure an interview and use a descriptive background. But Dolly Madison saw in the absurd, inquisitive, bespattered person before her neither the reporter nor the guy—only an aged and weary woman who was her guest. She hurried to bring her a glass of water, then quite simply stooped and rolled her loosened shoe laces and wiped the Virginia mud from the tired old feet.

It is small wonder that Mrs. Royall's clothes were queer. She was scarcely of a bent of mind frivolously to pursue the fashions had she had the time and money, but she had neither. Her paper, the Huntress, of which she was owner, editor and chief reporter, once published conspicuously on the editorial page a notice which is perhaps unique in journalism:

"No paper will be issued from this office this week. We really must take one week once in ten years to fix up our wardrobe, which is getting shabby. Our next issue will welcome congress."

WILD GEESE.

They Never Feed Without Throwing Out Scouts or Sentries.

Some of the common sayings concerning birds are stupidly wrong.

"You stupid goose!" is an expression constantly heard, yet the goose, whether wild or tame, is most sagacious. Wild geese, for instance, never feed without throwing out scouts or sentries. J. G. Millais describes how he saw a flock of geese feeding with sentries out and how after a time one of the sentries went up to a bird that was feeding and gave it a gentle peck on the back. The latter thereupon left its grazing and went off to take up guard, while the sentry took its turn to feed.

"Gentle as a dove" is such a common proverb that the dove has become the emblem of peace. Quite a mistake, for all the dove and pigeon tribe are great fighters, and in the breeding season the cock birds indulge in battles royal.

The foolish prejudice against all birds of prey includes that pretty little hawk the kestrel. Now, if the kestrel were known as the mouse falcon it is possible that keepers would not invariably shoot it on sight. The kestrel lives mainly on mice and wirewoums. It is quite innocent of killing partridges.

In a game preserving district in southern Scotland kestrels were practically exterminated a few years ago. What was the result? Over a tract of country of 1,200 square miles field mice increased in such myriads that the grazing was absolutely ruined. One sheep farmer lost 20,000 in one year.—Exchange.

Encouragement.

Artist—Yes, I keep pegging away. Sometimes I get discouraged and say to myself, "What's the use?" Friend—Don't give up, old man. You can't do worse than you're doing, you know.—Exchange.

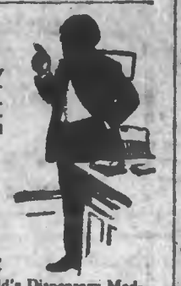
When You Think



Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps.

CHEVY CHASE.

The Old Rodgers Mansion and the Famous Washington Club.

Doubtless few of the many thousands of persons who have read of Chevy Chase have any idea of the interesting history attached to the clubhouse and surroundings. Part of the old colonial structure as it stands today was erected in 1747 and from that time until a few years ago remained in the Rodgers family. In the war of 1812, when the British were advancing on Washington, the army and navy records were taken from the White House and secreted in the cellar of the Rodgers mansion, where they were kept for several days.

The Rodgers family has been famous in the American navy, no fewer than seven having served as admirals. The estate consisted of something like 200 acres, and as the beautifying of the property was always a hobby of its owners it is not surprising that unusual taste should have been shown in laying it out. It is a fact that there are 105 varieties of trees and bushes to be found within a stone's throw of the clubhouse. Not far from the present fourth green there was once a sunken garden, but this is scarcely more than a memory now.

The Chevy Chase club took possession in 1888 and at first rented the property from the Rodgers estate, but later the club purchased 200 acres. Several horse shows have been conducted on the property, and some years back the regular old fashioned county fairs were popular there. The membership consists of persons prominent in Washington socially. It is only half an hour's ride from the treasury to the door of the clubhouse.—Exchange.

True Thrift.

"When visiting a certain town in the north of England," says a medical man, "I was told of an extraordinary incident wherein the main figure, an economical housewife, exhibited under trying circumstances a trait quite characteristic of her. It seems that she had by mistake taken a quantity of poison—mercurial poison—the antidote for which, as all should know, comprises the whites of eggs. When this antidote was being administered, the order for which the unfortunate lady had overheard, she managed to murmur, although almost unconscious: 'Mary, Mary! Save the yolks for the puddings!'"—London Tit-Bits.

Scientific.

"Mary Ellen, why is it you are always smashing your gold eyeglasses and the steel ones stick on your nose as though glued there?"

"Can't you guess why?"

"Not unless it's a sign that riches are fleeting and the poor you have always with you."

"Not at all. There is nothing allegorical about it. The reason is just scientific. It's my magnetic attraction, that's all."—New York Sun.

SHY LONDONERS.

A Trait That Brands Them as Unsociable and Abrupt.

What a complicated thing is the character of the Londoner! Out of pure shyness he becomes disagreeably abrupt; out of pure fear of intrusion he becomes unsociable. A number of unacquainted men in the same tramway car will never think of entering into conversation as they would anywhere else in the world. Silently they leave the car as they entered it. And yet it does not seem natural to me that they should not prefer to converse. But they are afraid to intrude; besides, they have not been "introduced."

"Proper" introduction is one of the characteristics of the Londoner. In Germany when a man enters a private room containing people he does not know or if he sits down at a table outside a restaurant—in fact, whenever he comes into touch with a stranger—he will make his bow and announce his name. He will introduce himself. Then both will chat like old acquaintances. But it is ten to one that neither of them caught the mumbled name of the other, nor did they care. To both of them their meeting has been an episode to be forgotten the very next second. And it not infrequently happens that a man will turn to some friend, asking: "Did you see me talk to that man? Who is he? He mentioned his name, but I did not quite catch it."

Now, in England to walk into a room where there is a private gathering and to go around from one to another introducing yourself would, as I see, be called bad manners. The Englishman wants to be introduced by a third person, and it seems that the third person will introduce the other two only if he thinks they would actually like to know each other. Then, however, the name is not only mumbled or mentioned, but grappled with. The two men at once impress that name upon their minds, associate the person with the name and forget neither the one nor the other. An introduction in London does not seem an episode to me to be over and done with the next second, but always the beginning of an actual friendship. And where friendship is not likely to ensue an introduction is left aside.—London Mail.

Ring Off, Please.

They were seated by the fireside, dreaming of the future, when they would be one, a winsome telephone girl and her fiance. The small talk finally drifted to the question as to who should light the fire in the morning. It was his opinion that it was the wife's place to get up and start the fire and let the poor, hardworking husband rest.

After this declaration there was silence most profound, but only for the space of about half a second; then the girl thrust out her finger encircled by a ring and murmured sweetly but firmly: "Ring off, please. You have connected with the wrong number."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE NEW VERB "TO FRIVOL."

It Has Been Coined Recently by the Gay and Rich.

The idle and joyous rich have coined a new term to express their routs and parties.

To frivol is the new verb, and it means anything from tea and toast to dinners and dances.

The dictionary is uncompromising in its definition of the adjective frivolous; also the nouns frivolity and frivolousness and the adverb frivolously, but when it comes to frivoling it is speechless.

"Trifling, of little weight, trivial and unimportant"—so it defines this harmless, inoffending little word. And to frivol—to tread the flowery path of dalliance through the joyous idle hours—when once it becomes a coined verb, in what harsh terms will the dictionary describe it?

But to me frivol is not a bad word. I feel in the humor to like its sound, for it seems to carry with it all the gayeties of life. It means to laugh, to dance and sing and shout, to idle gracefully and not maliciously. It means the lighter side of a workaday world. It is a summer word, a word for beaches and picnics. It suggests hammocks under the trees and rocking chairs on broad, cool piazzas. There is a blut of sailboats in it, of automobiles and the like. It is a little word, but its six letters cover all the pleasure land of vacations and holidays.

Rich people claim it as their own, but nobody knows how to frivol better than the hardworking wage earner once the opportunity offers itself. When all the wealth and fashion of Newport meet at a magnificent ball after a day spent in motoring, luncheons, teas, dinners and bridge, they say they have been frivoling. And so they have if they really enjoyed it. But frivoling and ennui do not go hand in hand. G. K. Chesterton says that only the superficial find life superficial, and he might have added that only the unfrivolous know how to frivol. And, untrue as it may sound, the idle rich are not really frivolous. They are too stale at the business to know how to practice it. The most frivolous person in the world is a working girl out on a holiday, except perhaps an Italian peasant on a feast day. People whose lives are one continuous relaxation never relax at all. Their nerves are kept on a strain until they are ready to snap, and that is why nervous prostration is a disease of the idle rich. The real secret of relaxation is known only to those who work hard six days in the week and frivol on the seventh.

USEFUL SHOE CHEST.

It Makes For Neatness in the Arrangement of Bedroom.

Nothing makes a room look more untidy than various boots and shoes standing about in the corners or under the dressing table or chairs. Sometimes, it is true, they are tucked away under the bed, but that, although out of sight, is still far from an ideal resting place. A boot box or chest is much the best for keeping them in and if made like the illustration is quite an artistic addition to the room.

It is an excellent imitation of a beaten copper or brass chest. To make the box get a good sized strong box and after taking off the lid and one of the long sides saw off the corners of the short sides to form the slope for the top lid. A shelf must now be inserted, as shown in the sketch. Part of the lid is replaced and screwed or nailed into position. The two doors or flaps open reverse ways, one upward and one down, the bottom one requiring a catch to fasten into the shelf when shut. The top door will fall naturally into its place and would only require a handle to lift it by. Now cover the whole outside with some embossed lincrusta or imitation stamped leather wall paper, a dull gold for brass or a copper one if preferred. Many beautiful shades can be had in these papers. A plain white one might be used and painted an oak color. The pattern of the paper would then make a good imitation of carving.

THE DEER'S HORNS.

They Present All the Phenomena of Animal and Vegetable Growth.

Why and how is the deer so peculiarly unlike any other of the bovine race, the horn differing so materially from all the horned cattle in its composition, growth, maturity and decline? It presents all the phenomena of animal and vegetable growth. It sprouts from the brain without any prolongation of the frontal bone. It rises and breaks through the sinews and takes root on the bone, growing the same as a vegetable. It is nourished by and secretes albumen upon the surface and disposes of the fibrin the same as an animal.

It is clothed with a skin and hairy coat very different from those on the rest of the body. This covering and hair possess a property unknown in other animal bodies—that of being a styptic to stanch its own blood when wounded. It carries marks of the age on the buck by putting out an extra branch each year, which shows an additional power each year to produce them. And this power does not exist in the female. So this difference is more distinctly marked than in any other class of animals. Again, the horn possesses properties unknown in any other animal matter. It is entirely inodorous, capable of resisting putrefaction and almost impervious to the effects of the atmosphere.

And still water at 300 degrees F. will dissolve these horns readily, even though they are not soluble in alcohol and resist the action of acids and alkalis. It is the only vegeto animal substance that we know of that does not perpetuate itself by procreation.

The male and the female are sustained by the same nutrition and elements, and only the male produces horns. This phenomenon is quite as much of a curiosity as the absence of the horn in the buck after shedding.—Exchange.

SAT IN THE SENATE.

An Outsider Who Innocently Made Himself at Home.

The American people once elected a tailor to the presidency, and doubtless many manipulators of the shears and goose have sat in the seats of the mighty by election, but only once did a tailor make himself at home on the floor of the United States senate when he had no constituency to represent.

The tailor was Hermann Moritz Riedel of Philadelphia, who visited Washington in April, 1868, to attend the exciting scenes during the impeachment proceedings against Andrew Johnson, a fellow craftsman. And this is the account of how he witnessed these proceedings as published in the Washington Republican of that day:

"A good looking Teutonic friend of ours a day or two since made an earnest appeal to our Muggins for a ticket to the senate to listen to what was going forward at the impeachment trial. Muggins, as is his wont, in the kindness of his soul consented to furnish Teuton with the talismanic pasteboard which effects the open sesame to the senate chamber and also assured our friend that he would accompany him to the gallery and find him an eligible seat. Muggins and Teuton started to work their way in, but Muggins was detained outside of the door for a few moments, and our German friend went on and passed the vigilant sentinels at the outer door and went directly to the entrance of the senate chamber and was admitted by the gentlemanly ushers under the belief probably that he was a member of congress and passed through the vestibule and took his seat in the first vacant chair and there remained during the entire session in the confident belief that he was entitled to the seat."

The descendants of Hermann Riedel are living in Washington now. The tailor, who was a "top notcher" at his trade, according to all accounts, died in 1877, having declined a pension after serving as a marine during the civil war.—Washington Post.

Firm Friends.

"Friendship, boys and girls," said a member of a provincial education committee, "is a thing to be cultivated and practiced by all of us. Read and ponder the stories of the great friendships of sacred and profane history. Take them for your models—David and Jonathan, Damon and Pythias and Scylla and Charybdis!"—London Telegraph.

BEING SICK IN CHINA.

What Happens When a Devil Jumps Down a Patient's Throat.

It is the custom for a Chinaman to visit the barber every week to have a general overhauling. First, the head and face are shaved; second, the ears are scraped and cleansed with a small brush made of duck's hair; third, the upper and lower eyelids are scraped with a dull edged knife, all granulations being smoothed away, and then an application is made with a duck's hair brush of salt solution.

This is the reason why you will find so much blindness in China. They take no antiseptic measures whatever.

Finally the patient's back is massaged, and after paying a fee of 3 cents and no tip he leaves the shop, feeling clean outside, but now must consult his regular physician.

After going through the usual examination, which is a form of military inspection, the doctor diagnoses the case and treats it unless a devil happens to jump down the patient's throat. If this has happened the doctor can do the patient no good until he promises to set off a hundred firecrackers and to make a daily visit to the joss house. This done, he receives the usual pills for those vacated by the devil.

These pills may consist of spotted rhinoceros horns, said to be a wonderful cure for intestinal troubles. The spotted rhinoceros horns come from southern China, and in the market at Singapore a single specimen will bring $25.

Tiger bones when ground to a powder and mixed with Chinese wine make a great blood tonic which is used by all classes of Chinese in northern China. The recipe is held by a firm in Shanghai that has become very wealthy by the sale of this tonic.

Old deer horns are boiled down to make the medicinal glue which binds the fifty ingredients composing the average Chinese pills. As in these you may get anything from a pinch of gunpowder to powdered cobra tail dust it is not the fault of Wong Yik Chee if just the right kind of specific escapes the patient.

Equal in medicinal efficacy to the above are three high grade tiger remedies, the eyeball, liver and blood. As may be imagined, tiger eyeball, the genuine article, can be prescribed for only the exceedingly wealthy Chinese. Similarly the liver, when dried and reduced to a powder, is worth its weight in gold all over China. Tiger blood, when evaporated to a solid at a temperature of 110 degrees and taken as a powder, is believed by Asiatics to transform a craven into a hero.—Medical Record.

The Political Millennium.

Two Kansas farmers, one of them a Republican and the other a Democrat, were quarreling over their political beliefs. The more they argued the further apart they drifted. Finally they called in a neighbor to settle the dispute. This neighbor was a man who seldom said anything, who went about his business, was a good citizen and substantial in every way.

"Well," he replied after both had stated their sides, "my son and I have been hauling wheat nearly forty years now. There are two roads leading to the mill. One is the valley road and the other leads over the hill. But never yet has the miller asked me which road we came. He always asks, 'Is the wheat good?'"—Kansas City Journal.

Making it Plain.

The following simple and explicit directions are posted up in a hotel on the Nordfjord:

"The fire escape! Directions for use. The one end of the rope is to be fixed at the hook in the window frame, the other is to turn out of the window. The plaited snotter, which is fixed at the log of wood, is to be put under your arms, whereupon you may safely let yourself slide down. You may regulate the hurry by keeping the rope under the leg. If more persons are to be saved you have to pull up the contrary end of the rope, fix this at the hook and go on so till nobody is left."—London Punch.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student. In fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a text book belonging to him the other day and found on the flyleaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.
—Philadelphia Record.

Disappointment.

Head Waiter—What's the matter with that dyspeptic looking old chap over there at the fourth table?

Assistant—He's got a grouch. He was getting all ready to make a kick about that cantaloupe, and he found it was a good one."—Chicago Tribune.

Do You Realise the Danger of a

POISONED FINGER

DEATH OFTEN LURKS IN A CUT.

YOU see this danger illustrated in the case of Mr. W. C. Edwards, a well-known Friendly Society leader, of Peter Street, Toronto. He cut one of his fingers with a piece of glass, and instead of applying Zam-Buk to prevent blood poison and to heal it, he neglected the cut, and blood poison followed. He says:—"The blood-poison from the finger spread up my hand and arm and caused me terrible agony. After two months' treatment the doctor said there was no cure, and amputation would have to take place if I intended to save my arm. I left that doctor and consulted another. After a few weeks' treatment, he also told me that operation would be necessary. He said the bone had become diseased and the finger would have to be opened so that the bone could be scraped. I went away to consider when I would have the operation performed and met a friend who advised me to try Zam-Buk.

"That night I bathed the wound and put on some Zam-Buk. I got a little sleep for the first time for many nights. In the morning the wound began to bleed instead of the foul discharging as in the past. This was a healthy sign so I went on with the Zam-Buk. Well, to cut a long story short, in a few days I put away the sling, and in a few weeks the finger was healed completely. To-day that finger is as sound as a bell and I owe it to Zam-Buk. I spent over $20 in doctors fees and when I think how Zam-Buk at such a trifling cost, saved me from amputation I am very grateful for the balm I can tell you."

Zam-Buk

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES.

Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, sprains, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, bad leg, diseased ankles, running sores, ringworm, cold-cracks, chapped hands, chilblains, and all other skin diseases and injuries. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, 3 for $1.25 or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse anything offered "just as good."

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.

ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.

AND SOME others prefered the Sherlock-Manning—each and every produce perfect tones but of different qualities.

WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

USE THE EXAMINER WANT COLUMNS

¶ If there is anything you want to buy or sell, the surest and speediest way of obtaining results is by placing a small advertisement in The Examiner, costing from ten cents up.

¶ If you want to get furnished or unfurnished rooms or have them to let, use The Examiner.

¶ Articles For Sale are almost always disposed of at a minimum cost without any further bother than the placing of the advertisement with us.

¶ Lost articles are found. It is not a chance you are taking, but almost a certainty that results will be obtained from every advertisement appearing in The Examiner.

¶ The reason for this is easy to arrive at. We have a sworn circulation of 2907 copies and practically covering all the reading public in this city and surrounding territory, is it any wonder that The Examiner is used ?

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS ARE FACTS REGARDING THE EXAMINER :

We have a sworn circulation of 2907 copies. The Examiner is read so largely because it publishes all the news all the time.

The advertiser uses the columns of The Examiner because it goes into the homes of its readers. Over ninety-five per cent. of the papers are delivered direct to the homes. It reaches about ALL the reading and buying public in Peterborough and district, and its results are such as to make an advertising contract with us an exceptionally profitable investment.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Fire destroyed a dozen buildings at Mapleton, Pa.; loss $200,000.

The Santa Fe Railway will substitute telephone for telegraph in despatching.

John Dorsey of Toronto, in third year of a five-year term at Kingston penitentiary, is dead.

In a freight wreck at Guynard, N.Y., Fireman R. W. Smith was killed and two men badly scalded.

Roosevelt and Col. Sir Percy Girouard, governor of British East Africa, met in African wilds this week.

The New York Tribune will reduce the price from three cents to one cent, without changing its present make-up.

John Robertson, aged 21, had his arm caught in a belt at Jenckes Machine Shop, St. Catharines, and had to have it amputated.

Theodore Rizzo was convicted at Utica, N.Y., of murdering two children on Sept. 12, and will be electrocuted. He confessed to his attorney, saying he was drunk at the time.

Field Marshal Lord Kitchener, inspector-general of the British forces in the Mediterranean, who has spent a week in Pekin, left yesterday to visit the Manchurian battlefields.

Capt. Ralph Pringle was sentenced at Port Huron to serve from 7 to 15 years in Jackson Prison, for shooting George Birrell McKinnon of Moorestown, Ont., in a saloon at St. Clair, on April 13 last.

J. Pierpont Morgan of New York has purchased for $4,000 the manuscripts of three of the late George Meredith's novels, "Diana of the Crossways," "Lord Ormont and His Aminta," and "The Amazing Marriage."

In a heavy thunderstorm which passed over Madoc last evening, during which Fred Vandervoort, farmer, about seven miles north of Madoc, was struck by lightning while standing in his barn door. He is reported to have been killed.

G. E. Potter, Toronto, and John Brougham, Ottawa, have been elected to the executive of the International Milk Dealers Association at the annual meeting in Milwaukee. Scientific pasteurization was recommended, also the appointment of competent inspectors by federal, state, and municipal authorities.

Scotch Teachers For West.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Dr. John Struthers, secretary of the Scotch Education Department, with headquarters in London, who has been visiting different Canadian centres, said yesterday, prior to his departure for home, that he was first impressed with the splendid liberality of Alberta and Saskatchewan towards their schools, and also with the Macdonald College at St. Anne, Que., which he pronounced the wonder of the generation.

He remarked, however, that a young girl out of the elementary schools and with only three months of a normal course would in the west command the splendid salary of $600 per annum. He thought that when trained teachers of Scotland heard of this, there will be a general movement towards western Canada.

Lever Returned; Is Jailed.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 22.—Arrested after being reported dead is the fate of John Baird, former brakeman here and at St. Thomas. About two weeks ago announcement came of Baird being killed in an accident at Chapleau. Miss Baughman, to whom Baird was betrothed, insisted from the first that there must be some mistake, but her anxiety was turned to joy when Baird returned Saturday. Yesterday, she was overwhelmed when the police took her sweetheart into custody on charge of theft by conversion.

Some time ago Baird purchased a valuable watch, but didn't settle according to agreement. It is charged that Baird pawned the watch in Grand Rapids.

Mapping Remanded.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—"Most contemptible and mean," was the comment of Magistrate Denison in the Police Court yesterday morning, when he remanded for sentence W. C. Manning, who, as the Canada Coal Co., was charged with defrauding over 300 people by the sale of coal which he had no hope of delivering, and to which he pleaded guilty. Restitution of $1,150 has been made and his friends will put him in an inebriate asylum.

Mayor and Clerk Charged.

Prince Albert, Sask., Oct. 23.—Mayor McDonald and County Clerk Davidson appeared yesterday in the Police Court, charged with perjury. H. C. Beatty, late secretary of the Board of Trade, who preferred the charge, had not counsel to go on, and asked for adjournment until next Tuesday. He was jeered and severely censured by the crowded court-room when he passed out.

No Heresy After All.

Johnstown, N.Y., Oct. 23.—The consideration by the Presbyterian synod of the State of New York of the heresy charges pending against the Presbytery of New York in connection with the ordination of Rev. Archibald Black, ended yesterday, when the judiciary committee reported, sustaining the presbytery.

$500 For Slander.

Chatham, Oct. 22.—Alliston McKay will have to pay Park Bros., $500 for slander based on statements which McKay made to the Mersea council regarding the dredge pumps which the plaintiffs manufacture. McKay had stated that the Parks should be prosecuted for misrepresentation.

Gladstone Has a Fire.

Gladstone, Man., Oct. 23.—A fire which broke out in Lorman's bakery destroyed the telephone office, Galloway Bros.' office, the Gladstone Jewelry Co., Connor's drug store and several other buildings. Loss about $30,000.

Exodus of Chinese.

New York, Oct. 22.—More than 250 Chinese left Chinatown for Vancouver on Wednesday, and since the Elsie Sigel murder, 3,000 have quit the city.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—The receipts for Wednesday and Thursday were large, over 150 carloads, but not having been able to get the returns from the G. T. Railway, we are unable to give our usual detailed statement.

Export Bulls.

A few export bulls sold from $3.75 to $4.50.

Butchers.

George Rowntree bought for the Harris Abattoir Co., as follows: Steers and heifers, at $4 to $5.10; cows, at $3.25 to $4.30; bulls, $2.25 to $4.25; feeding bulls, at $3.60 to $3.30; feeding steers, $4 to $4.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby, who bought over 400 stockers and feeders, reports a ready demand for all good quality steers, from 900 to 1050 lbs., but common light steers are slow sale and hard to cash at prices, if anything, a little lower than last week. Mr. Murby reports prices as follows: Best steers, 900 to 1050 lbs., at $4 to $4.50; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.50 to $3.85; good stockers, 600 to 700 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $3.25; common stockers, $3 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

The receipts of milkers and springers during the week were liberal, but more good quality cows would have sold. Prices have been generally higher as will be seen by many sales given below. To-day's sales were given as ranging from $35 to $70 each, good to choice cows, $45 to $65, while extra quality cows sold up to $70, but there were few of this class.

McDonald & Halligan sold 25 milkers at $40 for the lowest, and $60 for the highest, and there were 13 cows brought the latter price.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were moderate, with prices firm at $3 to $7.25 per cwt. McDonald & Halligan sold six calves brought in by S. H. Reynolds, at $7.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts large, prices easy. Sheep, ewes, $3.50 to $4.00; rams, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $5.25 to $5.60, with a few at $5.75.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris quoted prices unchanged at $7.75 for selects, fed and watered, and $7.50 f.o.b., cars, at country points.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 21.—Cattle—Receipts, 75 head; slow; prime steers, $6.75 to $7.

Sheep—Receipts, 23,000; market, irregular; sheep, $3 to $3.25; lambs, $5 to $7.35; yearlings, $5 to $6.25.

Pleaded Guilty For Girl.

New York, Oct. 23.—When Ralph H. S. Whitney came up for sentence on a forgery charge yesterday, his attorney surprised the court by declaring that his client belonged to a well-known Boston family, and had once been private secretary for President Taft. Nevertheless, Whitney was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and Grace Maidhoff was given three years for the same crime. Both had confessed.

Must Disinfect Hides.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Sweeping regulations designed to both facilitate importations of all hides of meat cattle and to safeguard native live stock by requiring certificates of disinfection signed by American consuls have been issued.

Pardon for Mrs. Robinson.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—It is asserted that the Minister of Justice will recommend to the Cabinet a pardon for Mrs. Robinson, under sentence at Sudbury to be hanged for murder.

Governments Should Help G.T.P.

London, Eng., Oct. 22.—At the semi-annual meeting of the board of directors of the Grand Trunk yesterday, the retiring president, Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson suggested that the Dominion and British Columbia Governments should endeavor to help solve the problem of securing labor for G.T.P. construction.

He objected to a Canadian advisory board; the financial management must be in London.

Objection was at first taken to allowing the retiring president a yearly pension of $7,500, but it was approved.

Capt. Kincaid Smith In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 23.—Capt. M. Kincaid Smith, the independent candidate who opposed Joseph Martin, and a third candidate at Stratford-on-Avon last spring, and who was defeated, arrived in Winnipeg yesterday. He said: "I believe in compulsory military training in Great Britain and hasarded my seat in the British House of Commons at the bye-election on this issue.

"The nations of the continent you must remember, only accepted their present more effective systems after a period of national disaster."

Two "Breaks" In Wisconsin.

Madeson, Wis., Oct. 22.—Bank robbers robbed the Reedsville State Bank early yesterday morning of $6,500, stole a horse and carriage and escaped.

Bandits who dynamited the Bank of Minocqua Wednesday, obtaining several thousand dollars, are at bay near Bradley. The gang literally blew the bank to pieces, firing seven charges of dynamite before the vault yielded. The door was blown across the street and money was scattered on the ground.

Suicides at Grave.

Montreal, Oct. 23.—Wandering to his daughter's grave in Mount Royal Cemetery, Constable McGuire of the West St. Catherine street police station, shot and killed himself.

While wandering through the cemetery he had met on employe trimming graves, and borrowed a pencil with which he scribbled a farewell note. He had grieved over the death of his daughter.

Merry Del Val Poisoned.

Rome, Oct. 22.—Papal Secretary Merry Del Val is recovering yesterday, from the effects, it is stated, of an overdose of an obesity cure, which threw him into violent convulsions Wednesday evening, and caused great excitement at the Vatican. Other rumors say that he was poisoned by Socialists in connection with the Ferrer agitation.

Factory Walls Blown Down.

Windsor, Oct. 23.—The strong wind blew down the east and west walls yesterday afternoon of the large factory building in course of erection for Postum Cereal Co. of Battle Creek, which has established a Canadian branch here.

The scaffold work had just been taken down yesterday morning to start the reinforced concrete floor. One laborer, Frank Harding, was injured by falling bricks. Another jumped from the second storey of the east wall and ran for dear life. He wasn't seen to stop. Loss about $1,500.

Hypnotized by Hazers.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 22.—For more than fourteen hours Burton White, son of Rev. Herbert J. White, of this city, lay in a hypnotized state last Saturday night, laughing most of the time, as a result of a hazing experiment performed by another student. He is still in a somewhat dazed state.

Long-Lost Son Heard From.

Woodstock, Oct. 23.—A letter was received yesterday by his parents from Wm. Bond, who left home ten years ago. The parents never heard from him, and it was thought that he had perished in the San Francisco earthquake. He writes that he is safe in British Columbia.

M. C. Dickson Promoted.

Woodstock, Oct. 23.—M. C. Dickson, for seven years local agent of the G.T.R., has resigned in order to accept promotion. His successor is A. R. Hueston, for the past five years in Wyoming. Dickson was for ten years the district passenger agent in Toronto.

"Divine Healer" Dead.

Hastings, Neb., Oct. 23.—Charles M. Sebletter, famous a few years ago as a "healer" who claimed to cure ills by divine power, who found dead yesterday. His death was due to old age. He was practically penniless and the body will go to the dissecting table.

BARN AND CONTENTS TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE CAUSED BY THE EXPLOSION OF A LANTERN

Ed. Feeley Was Throwing Down Hay From Loft Last Night—Flames Spread Rapidly and Only Team of Horses Was Saved—Barn Belonged to J. T. O'Connell of Peterborough.

REFLECTION SEEN HERE

By the explosion of a lantern in the hay mow of his barn last night while doing the evening 'chores', Edward Feeley lost the entire contents in the resulting blaze which totally destroyed the building, which was located on the Lakefield road five miles north of the city. Feeley had almost finished his work and had only to throw down the usual allowance of hay. He climbed to the mow and was engaged in this duty when his lantern suddenly exploded. The loose hay and straw was ignited immediately and Feeley after an effort to put out the blaze found himself powerless to stem its progress and with some difficulty made his way to the ladder. He was successful in leading out a team of horses, but otherwise saved practically nothing.

Seen From Peterborough.

The barn was quickly enveloped in flames, which lit up the heavens with a lurid glow that suggested the wiping out of Lakefield. The alarm was rung in from Auburn and the brigade ran up as far as the mills.

Feeley's loss will likely be heavy. The barn was stored with products of the field, including grain, hay, etc. His farm implements had also been stored away for the winter. Only a plow was saved and it happened to have been overlooked when the machinery was being put away. The barn was owned by J. T. O'Connell, of Peterborough. It is understood that it is covered by insurance. Mr. Feeley is reported to have had the contents partially covered.

WILD RICE SHIPPED TO UNITED STATES TO BE USED FOR SEED

Rice Lake Indians Have Monopoly of the Sale---Market for the Crop Extends All Over the Continent---Little of It Now Used for Food by Indians.

Examiner Special:

Harwood, Oct. 21.—It is generally known probably that the wild rice crop, from which Rice Lake gets its name, is by treaty the property of the Indian, and no white man may gather it. It is not so generally known perhaps that applications are received to rit from all parts of the continent. Mr. Charles Gilchrist, who for many years was Fisheries Overseer for Rice Lake and its tributaries, it is learned, has secured this ice seed, and has shipped this season seed to Georgia, Milwaukee, Wis., Illinois, Nebraska, Ohio Michigan and New York.

The wild rice does not mature evenly. On the same straw will be found ripe and green seeds and even blosoms. Primitive means are still used to harvest it. The Indians and squaws force their way in canoes through the rice beds, one paddles and the other bends the rice down with sticks and knocks it off into the canoe.

When the Indians desire to keep some of the wild rice for food they may be seen cleaning the grain in [illegible] which is to get rid of the husk an dthen toss it in the air to separate the grain from the chaff. The Indians, however, sell a large amount of the crop which they harvest.

Japanese Student Proves A Tartar To Would-Be-Hazers

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 22.—All Japanese are not easy marks, as fifteen boys of the freshmen class at the State University here can testify. This fall a real sport matriculated in the form of Tajiro Ogawa, a burly Japanese, who stands nearly six feet high. He is a giant in strength, too, and has been employed all summer in a railroad construction camp in Montana. He is thirty years old and has been in Seattle ten years.

This year he decided to enter the university to study, and as soon as the frahmen learned of this they planned to haze him. The plan failed. More than thirty-five of the young men of the university captured the Japanese Tuesday night and attempted to shackle him. He broke one lad's nose, blacked more eyes than he has fingers and toes, tore part of the scalp off Andrew Barker and severely injured eleven other boys. At least fifteen of the class were unable to resume their school work Wednesday morning, while the smiling face of Ogawa appeared as usual in the classroom.

The Passing Of An Esteemed Member Of Salvation Army

Still another of the old residents of Peterborough has crossed the Great Divide. Yesterday Afternoon at his residence on Lundys Lane, George John Greene passed away in his 85th year and Peterborough loses one of the most interesting of its older generation. If it were but for the fact that as regularly as Sunday morning came he would be seen at the same hour each week on his way to attend the Salvation Army services that alone would have attracted the attention of the residents of the south ward. In fair weather and foul up to a year ago he missed but few Sundays, if any, and used to take a luncheon, tied up in a red handkerchief. This enabled him to remain until evening when he would return before the night service. He was an esteemed member of the Army and a consistent and earnest worker. To the people of the south west of the city he was known as "Dad" a term expressing only respect.

The late Mr. Green was born in England and came to Peterborough about fifty years ago, and has worked here at his trade as cabinet maker. He was predeceased by his wife about twenty years ago. One sister, Mrs. James Stevens, of Toronto, survives him. The only relative in Peterborough is a nephew, Mr. William Stevens, High street, North Monaghan.

The funeral will be held under Salvation Army auspices from the late residence on Saturday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

Request For 20 Year Franchise Will Be Heard By Committee

The Manufacturers' Committee decided to take up in the near future the request of the Otonabee Power Co. for a franchise of the streets for 20 years for lighting, power and heating purposes. The communication was received some time ago, but the committee has been busy with other matters and had to defer its consideration. The company propose to unite dams Nos 4 and 5 and develop from the single dam on which it is estimated there will be an expenditure of $250,000. It is felt that the company's proposition will mean an additional amount of electric power developed near the city. Representatives of the company will be asked to meet the committee to present their request.

The Company also asks for permission to construct and operate branch lines from Cobourg to Peterborough from a point in Scarborough Township to Markham; Stouffville, or Uxbridge, Oshawa, northerly, via the eastern side of Lake Scugog to Lindsay and from Oshawa northerly to Lake Ontario.

Mr. L. K. Murton, of Oshawa, is the solicitor for the new company.

AUDITORIUM TO RE-OPEN

Manager Hurtubise's Fine Rink, Which Has Been Greatly Enlarged and Improved —Open To-night.

THE BAND TO BE PRESENT

The Auditorium Roller Rink on George street is having a grand re-opening this evening. Important improvements have been made, giving it increased floor space, by adding forty feet to the length of the old rink. The interior of the rink has been nicely decorated with flags and bunting, and 150 electric lights for attractive illumination have been put in. The floor is now in exceptionally fine shape, and with new dressing rooms it makes the rink one of the most attractive places of amusement in the city. The Band is to be in attendance this evening, and all attending should have a most enjoyable time. Gene Hurtubise in attendance, as manager, carries with it the assurance that the rink will be conducted in a satisfactory and up-to-date manner.

THE GRAND JURY ADVOCATES A PROPER PLACE FOR POOR PEOPLE

In Presentment to Chief Justice Falconbridge it is Pointed Out That Under Present Conditions They Must be Housed in Jail.

TWO LAMENTED DEATHS

To His Lordship, Chief Justice Falconbridge—

The Grand Jury beg to present to your Lordship the following:

We have, in accordance with your instructions carefully inspected the County Gaol, and find the same kept [illegible] and well managed by the Gaoler.

The mode of heating the Gaol and Court House, is antiquated and unsatisfactory, and we would suggest that steps be taken by the proper authorities to have the matter remedied and a modern system installed.

We have the same complaints to make as numerous preceding Grand Juries, that there are among the prisoners and necessarily associated with them, a number of old people who are in the gaol for no other reason than old age and poverty, and we strongly urge that steps should be taken by the City of Peterborough to provide for these people and not allow their latter days to be passed in such surroundings.

There is also in the gaol a person of unsound mind, necessarily associated with the other inmates. As there is no proper provision in the gaol for such persons, and proper care cannot be taken of any such in there, we think means should be taken to remedy such a state of affairs and a proper place provided for any such, in the interim until their removal to some of the Provincial Institutions for that purpose.

We have also taken advantage of this occasion to inspect the House of Refuge provided by the county, for its poor, near Lakefield. We are glad to be able to report a well conducted institution, where the inmates are bountifully and comfortably provided for and where they appear to be contented and satisfied.

This Grand Jury reports with great regret, since the last sittings of this court here, the loss by death to this county of the late County Court Judge, His Honour Charles A. Weller, and the Clerk of this County, the late John Moloney, both old and highly respected residents of this City and County and for a great number of years filling their respective positions with credit to themselves and advantage to the community.

TO FIX ASSESSMENT OF WM. HAMILTON CO. FOR THREE YEARS

Manufacturers' Committee Authorize Preparation of By-law for That Purpose--Assessment Will be $10,000---Company's Progress Since Commencing Operations in November, 1908.

The Manufacturers' Committee, at a meeting last night, decided to have a by-law prepared granting the request of the William Hamilton Co., Ltd., for a fixed assessment of $10,000 for there years. There were present Ald. Gillespie in the chair, and Mayor Rush. Ald. Hicks, Ald. Metheral and Ald. Duffus. The letter from the Company had been received some time ago by the Council, and referred to the committee. It was stated that the company began operations last November and were now employing 94 men. Orders on the books at present totalled $110,000. The monthly pay roll amounted to over $4,000.00. The Company pointed out the progress that had been made and the indications were that 150 men would be on the pay list in a short time. A motion was made by Ald. Hicks and Metheral that the Solicitor be asked to prepare the necessary by-law, granting the Company's request.

MISTAKEN FOR LUNATIC

Alarm in Surrey Leads to Serious Attack on an Irishman.

London, Oct. 20.—A lunatic hunt in the district of Walton Heath and Tadworth, Surrey, led to a violent attack on Tuesday night on a harmless pedestrian.

Michael Sinnett, a young Irishman, had been staying with a coachman relative at the Corner House, Tadworth. He was returning from Walton when he was suddenly confronted by five men, who mistook him for the wanderer. Michael, challenged as to his identity, refused to answer, and was attacked. In the result he was felled to the ground with a heavy stick, and was carried home in a semi-conscious condition. Meanwhile the men made good their escape.

Mr. Hugh Hughes, a Reigate gentleman, was cycling home a few hours later when he was stopped by the five men, who, however, did not attempt to molest him. Mr. Hughes asked them why they had with them a trembling boy carrying a bottle of milk. They told him that an escaped lunatic had been at large several nights, and had stopped and robbed children. They were determined to catch him if possible, and used the boy as a decoy.

Mr. Hughes, who frequently visits the Walton Health Golf Links, says he recognized two of the party as men who were often to be seen about the links.

WERE THEY LOST IN THE ST. LAWRENCE?

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Kingston, Oct. 22.—Two Wolfe Islanders, Daniel Kesley and Metzler Weaver, who are known as daring firemen, are thought to have been drowned while crossing the St. Lawrence River in the fierce southern gale, which swept over the waters yesterday afternoon. Their small boat was found upturned on Wolfe Island shore last night.

DEAD MAN IN A TREE

Extraordinary Discovery in a Field Recalls Tale of "Last Sir Massingberd"

London, Oct. 23.—From inquiries made it appears that the corpse of a man which was found wedged in the hollow trunk of an old oak tree in a field near Mold, Flintshire, on the previous night, has been identified as that of Mr. Griffith Hughes, landlord of the Ruthin Castle public-house, Mold. He was over fifty-years of age, and had lived at Bury, in Lancashire.

The discovery has caused a great sensation locally; but there is no explanation as to how the body came to be wedged in the tree. It seems from latest investigations that Mr. Hughes had had domestic troubles in recent years. In June last he came to Mold.

He frequently spoke about his boyhood days, and how he used to enter the hollow of this particular tree for owls' nests. It is surmised that he may have had a longing to see this tree again, and have dropped down the hollow trunk as he did when a lad. He was then perhaps unable to release himself, and died a lingering death from starvation. His shouts would not in any case have been heard, as the tree stands in the middle of a field. This theory was maintained at Thursday's inquest, when an open verdict was returned.

MOTHER AND SON BURNED IN HOME

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Kingston, Oct. 22.—Fears are expressed that Robert McIntyre and his mother were burned to death in a fire which consumed their dwelling at Calabogie last night. They cannot be found and a skull uncovered in the ruins suggests that they were suffocated before they could make their escape.

THE MAGIC OF EXAMINER ADS.

Some of the results of the Examiner Want Add columns are almost uncanny in the success they achieve. A few days ago a woman had two stoves for sale. She decided to advertise, and placed a little two line ad in the "For Sale" column. That evening before she received her issue of the Examiner for that day she had sold the two stoves to persons who had seen the paper before the evening mail, and decided to call early before others saw it. Two evenings ago a young lady lost a gold watch and fob. An "ad" in last night's Examiner found the watch this morning, at least it was instrumental in her receiving it. A short time ago a young lady lost a pearl pendant. As a last resource she tried an Examiner "Lost Ad" and the next evening the pendant was returned. These are only a few of the cases that might be cited and it is a credit to the honesty of many of the citizens that articles are returned to the rightful owners.

PRODIGIOUS POTATOES MARK THE YEAR 1909

Among the bountiful yields of this year's crops, the potato takes a prominant part. The Examiner has been called upon to record big potatoes of weights which were almost incredible. There has been considerably rivalry between different sections. So far the belt for the biggest potato is held by Mr. McGregor in the far north—Hale's Bridge—two pounds and nine ounces. Now, the South puts in its claim. Mr. S. A. Ote received from a Mr. Isaacs, who lives south of Rice Lake, a cargo of splendid tubers, and the first bag, opened at random, contained a beautiful blonde potato weighing 2 pounds, 7 ounces; a fair sample of the general run of the cargo.

MR. BORDEN MISTAKEN.

Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative party, has a large share of personal amiability, and when not perverted by interest, a considerable political fairness. But he sometimes is drawn into substituting imagination or inference for facts. The other day in Montreal Mr. Borden stated that notwithstanding the findings of the Cassell's Commission of investigation into the affairs of the Department of Marine and Fisheries nothing had been done to punish the guilty parties. Mr. Borden must have spoken without knowledge of the facts, which are that every man mentioned by Judge Cassels as unfaithful to his duty and, therefore, incompetent to serve the country in an official capacity, has been discharged by the government. Isn't Mr. Borden mistaken? Is not dismissal in disgrace from the public service and the imposition of a fine, represented by a cessation of a generous salary, a punishment? Judging by the clamour raised in Peterborough rejected aspirants to an office in the gift of a Conservative government it would seem that deprivation of office is a form of quasi capital punishment. From the Conservative point of view it would appear that deprivation of office is a severe form of punishment. This should be remembered when appraising the value of Mr. Borden's complaint. It should also be remembered that the unworthy and discharged officials were many of them appointed by a Conservative government and had been retained by the Liberal government, in conformity with its practical policy that public office is a public trust to be discharged in the interests of the country and not of a party. Therefore these men were retained until by judicial investigation they were found unworthy of further retention and incapable of giving further satisfactory service; then they were dismissed. Mr. Borden's mistaken statement coming from a gentleman regarded as truthful and fair, needs contradiction much more than similar statements proceeding from some of his lieutenants with wide experience in drawing the long bow.

Obituary

THE MAIL'S MAILISMS.

So long as the Mail and Empire is regarded and recognized as the chief political organ of the Conservative party so long will its statements, or rather misstatements, demand attention—and become worthy of refutation. A few days ago, in an article studded with similar misstatements, the Mail and Empire has the following remarkable paragraph:

> The transference of the Intercolonial Railway to a commission has not brought about a reform. The partizanship remains—the deficit is as large as ever.

This statement is remarkable, since it is a pure product of the organ's imagination. The Mail cannot and does not know what it is talking about. The Minister of Railways and Canals has not made his report to Parliament on the subject and nobody yet knows what has been accomplished. The Mail asserts that "partizanship remains." It again makes a statement concerning something it knows nothing about. It says that "the deficit is as large as ever." The Mail in this also is using its utter ignorance of the facts to furnish a basis of enlightenment to its readers. The fact of there being a deficit or a surplus on Intercolonial operation, cannot be known till the accounts are gone over and prepared for submission to Parliament. The Mail would act wisely if it suppressed comments founded on ignorance in reference to the management of the Intercolonial Railway. When the Minister of Railways and Canals makes his statement will be time enough to criticize it. In the meantime it is sufficient to say that the Mail knows nohting of the subject upon which it expresses these opinions. The people should give them no attention because when Hon. Mr. Graham makes his statement to the House, the ignorance of the Mail will be made manifest and the people will find that they did well to rely upon the integrity and ability of the Minister of Railways and Canals.

POPULAR MAJORITIES.

In the British general elections of 1906, excluding Ontario, the Liberals elected 373 members with a total popular vote of 2,919,499; that is these two parties with a combined majority of the popular vote of 339,333 were in a minority of 180 in a house of 586 members. We have no complaints that the people of the country were not fairly represented in the House of Commons; though we have had our Conservative journals making pathetic plaints and lugging heavy grievances over what they point out as analagous conditions in Canada. The British system of electing a parliament is by ridings, not by a plebiscite. This is a way that has stood the strees of centuries and though apparent despatches between the popular vote and actual representation may develop that is not to say that the existing system does not work out satisfactorily in practice.

WEALTH IN OUR FISH AND GAME

(Belleville Intelligencer.)

The public are slowly awakening to the vast importance of conserving the natural resources of this Province, and commencing to realise what wealth would accrue if wisely administered, yet little practical effort, so far, has been made to secure to the people the full fruits of what nature has so bountifully bestowed upon us. Not to dwell here upon the value of preserving and properly utilizing our forests and of afforesting the millions of acres which have been cut over and other land unfit for agricultural purposes,—or of dealing with the rich stores of mineral wealth that these may enrich our own people rather than foreigners,—or of developing the power we hold in our numerous lakes and rivers or securing for the present and future generations a supply of food fish in our great lakes, every citizen is interested directly or indirectly in these matters, and each stands to profit thereby if the community can be brought to see things in their proper light and so insist that they be dealt with in a prudent and effective manner.

Of the above sources of wealth the public are more or less aware, but there is still another which ought eventually to prove of immense value to the country of which but few are cognizant, it not being yet brought under general observation, that is our game fish and other game. Now it is not on acount of the value of these in themselves, indeed, they are of comparatively little intrinsic value, that attention ought urgently to be directed to their conservation, nor is it for the purpose of affording pleasure to a few persons of leisure in our own midst, this is worthy of some consideration, but it is not by any means of the most importance, for so far as the great body of our people are concerned, perhaps not more than one in a hundred cares one iota whether there be any game in either forest or stream. What is here insisted on is that it is on account of the economic value to the Province as a whole, not for the benefit of the few that active and effective measures ought to be instituted for their protection.

The matter of chief importance connected with our game fish and other game, is the attraction these have for foreign tourists and the amount of money left by them in the country each season. There seems to be little conception at present of what value this source of wealth will eventually become to the Province of Ontario if due precautions are taken in time to prevent our rivers, lakes and forests from being depleted. Every one knows of the valuable asset we have in the silvermines of Cobalt and Gowganda and the gold of Yukon, none need to be told of that, but few seem to be aware that in the attractions we possess in our rivers, lakes and forests lies latent a greater fund of wealth than all these combined. This will appear to most persons to be rather a broad assertion and somewhat startling, but nevertheless it can be shown to be a fact. Other provinces of the Dominion are awakening to the value of what they possess in this line, especially British Columbia, while Ontario still regards the subject only on the line of sport, or on the direct value in what the game will attract to the country. The Government of the State of Maine had for many years expended large sums in protecting and restocking their rivers and lakes with game fish, and to satisfy the people there that the expenditure was profitable and yielded a rich return, they took steps in 1907 to ascertain definitely how many persons entered the State that year attracted by what the fish and game offered. They found that above half a million persons, men women and children, had so entered. Thus, reckoning on the moderate sum of thirty dollars spent there by each person, it was found that fully fifteen million dollars were left by these pleasure-seekers in that State in one season alone, spent by them throughout the state and that in localities where most needed, and where it would do most in developing the country. Now the output of silver in Cobalt and gold in Yukon together for 1907 amounted to but fourteeen million six hundred thousand, and, moreover a great part of this went out of the country to foreigners who own the mines, the other remains in the country.

When we consider that Ontario is about five times the size of Maine and contains far greater attractions in its many thousands of beautiful lakes and rivers, with their invigorating air, all originally teeming with game fish and its woods with other game, and that it is more easy of access than Maine is to the wealthy millions to the south of us, and moreover, with the exception of Maine and the Adirondacks, there is no field whatever east of the Mississippi River to attract tourists at all comparable to what Ontario furnishes, it can be readily seen that we have conditions in Ontario to secure yearly an immense influx of wealth eventually far exceeding what now goes into Maine, and of greater value to us than all our gold and silver mines. Is it then not worth while? It is not only the amount of money brought into the country by tourists but it is money spent largely in remote parts where it will do most good while the whole Province profits thereby.

The people in the outlying districts and in the neighbourhood of our lakes and streams are becoming fully alive to the value of their surroundings in this respect, and are now crying aloud to have the waters and woods protected from depletion. But they are helpless. They see distinctly that the means for protection so far adopted are wholly ineffectual. The hundreds of local overseers, appointed at a trifling salary of $25 or $50 a year to have the game laws enforced, utterly fail to accomplish anything; these are mostly neighbours of the few law breakers, in their several sections and decline to offend them, or they regard their appointments simply as political favours to make votes.

Now, a certain number of expert officers throughout the province appointed at a living salary for the sole purpose of fish and game protection, these to be interchangeable at the direction of the various game wardens, would accomplish more than all the local overseers multiplied a thousand fold, for these really do no good, indeed, in many cases they rather hinder protection. The railway companies fully recognize the importance to themselves of this matter, and have stated that they would gladly aid those officers by free conveyance and otherwise.

Instead of imposing high licenses to keep out tourists, especially in respect to game fish, let the legal restrictions be thoroughly enforced, and the attractions, particularly of the fishing, which retains visitors the longer time, will be maintained in perpetuity.

While it is admitted that the Government has lately made improvement in measures for fish and game protection, yet it is to be sincerely hoped that the Royal Commission lately entrusted with the duty of inquiring into and reporting on this subject will so enlighten our legislators in its report that they will at once adopt much more effective measures to preserve this rich inheritance which Providence has so bountifully bestowed upon us, otherwise it may be lost to us for ever.

WARSAW NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Oct. 20.—Rev. P. N. Currie set forth the articles embodied in the proposed basis of union between the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches in Canada, on Sunday. The morning service contained a comprehensive summary of the negotiations leading up for the past twelve years to this movement, and reference to the system of doctrine as expressed in the 9 short articles. Mention was also made of the need of more Catholicity than at present exists between the various bodies of the church in Canada. In the evening Mr. Currie described the case of need at greater length, pointing out fully the advantages of the same at and the same time the things seem to stand in the way for the past few years. The discourses were well thought out and cleary and fitly expressed. Truly, we have in our village here an opportunity to test the actual practical value of this good scheme. It is to be hoped our press will print the documents in due time so that they may be widely read.

A pretty church wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian church here at noon on Wednesday, the 6th inst. The contracting parties were Mr. John Sinclair and Miss Ruby Parcels, both of the 10th line Dummer. The bridal party were attended at the solemn occasion by Mr. Albert and Miss Hannah Young, of Centre Dumer. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. P. W. Currie, pastor of the church, and the best wishes of the community will follow them in their new sphere.

Elaborate are the preparations being made by the ladies of the congregation of the Presbyterian church for the fowl dinner to be given in the town hall on the evening of Thanksgiving Day. An excellent program is being prepared and will be given in the church immediately following the supper.

Mr. Wesley Sherin, Lakefield, was in town on business Friday.

Mr. W. H. Kidd, of Indian River, spent Friday in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Payne, Lakefield, were guests of Mr and Mrs. Geo. Taylor on Friday.

Mrs. W. J. Davis returned to her home in Peterborough on Monday.

Mrs. Spencer, wife of the Rev. Canon Spencer, Mount Forest, accompanied her son, Rev. C. W. Spencer, to the village on Sunday.

Mr. Orville Reid, of the D. M. Ferry Company, formerly of Blythswood, Ont., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Selkirk for the week end.

Mr. Robt. Bullock, and Mr. Rich Batten were in Peterborough on Monday and Tuesday in the capacity of jurors at the fall assizes.

Miss E. M. Swann was in the city on Saturday.

Mr. C. A. Radcliffe who has been spending his holidays at his home, Eglinton, Ont., returned to town on Sunday.

Mr. E. J. Glenney spent Sunday in Peterborough.

"EATS"

See the big bell on the porch. It's a feature of the fine, half-million-dollar mansion on the Taft ranch in Texas, and when it rings you know that the "eats" are streaming on the table and that it's time for you to beat it to the house. And so President Taft, whether he's hunting or fishing, or golfing or just merely getting off gags during his four-day vacation on the ranch, will have to listen for that bell if he wants to get in on the division of chuck.

TAKE A COLD SERIOUSLY

The possibilities of every cold are dreadful to contemplate. Bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption, usually begin with a simple cold. Why not fight the cold from the start and ensure success by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It allays inflamation, keeps the cough free and loose and protects the bronchial tubes from danger.

BITTERNESS OF DEATH PAST IN THE SACKED KONGO— BUT SHALL HUMAN HYENAS SATISFY JUSTICE?

BY SIR A. CONAN DOYLE.

When a Belgian Commission was appointed to investigate Kongo matters after the publication of Mr. Casement's report of astounding atrocities, the soldiers kept many natives from appearing before the commission with their stories.

One aged chief was held back from the commission and was punished, by witnessing the killing of his wife, for trying to testify.

He brought with him, in the hope that he might lay before them the judges, 162 long twigs and 76 smaller ones to represent so many adults and children who had been killed by the A. B. I. R. company in the past few years.

"His account of the method by which these unfortunate people met their death will not bear printing. The wildest dreams of the inquisition were outdone. Women had been killed by having stakes thrust into them. When a horrified missionary asked the chief if this was personally known to him, his answer was, "They killed my daughter Nsinga in this manner; I found the stake in her.'

"Last year, or the year before," reported Mr. Harris, a missionary, "a young woman Imenga was tied to a forked tree and chopped in half with a hatchet, beginning at the left shoulder, chopping down through the chest, and abdomen and out at the side."

In spite of the fact that such evidence as this did not reach the commission the result of its research was that one man was punished. And this was Mr. Stannard, one of the accusing witnesses, who was sentenced to three months imprisonment and to pay $200.

He was convicted of criminal libel for saying that certain evidence from Lontulu, a chief, had been presented to the commission. Stannard could prove neither by the chief, who had been tortured and his whiskers pulled out, nor by the commission that the commission had received the evidence.

As a matter of fact, Chief Lontulu gave just the evidence Mr. Stannard says he did, and here are some of the questions and answers.

President Janssens, to Lontulu: Were the people of Monji given the corpses to eat?

Lontulu:—Yes. They cut them up and ate them.

Baron Nisoc: Did they flog you?

Lontulu: Repeatedly.

President Janssens: Did you see sentries kill your people? Did they kill many?

Lontulu: Yes, All my family is finished.

President Janssens: Are you sure that each of your twigs (110) represents one person killed?

Lontulu: Yes.

President: Were the sentries and those who helped given the dead bodies to eat?

Lontulu: Yes, they ate them. Those who took part in the fight cut them up and ate them.

Lontulu, after torture, and while Stannard was being prosecuted for criminal libel for repeating Lontulu's testimony, was forced to deny all that he had previously testified to.

Such was the manner in which the Belgian commission was able to blazen to the world a triumphant vindication of King Leopold and his Kongo administration!

Conditions in the Kongo today, though murder and mutilation have ceased, are not greatly improved according to testimony given by W. Cessie Murdoch, a traveller.

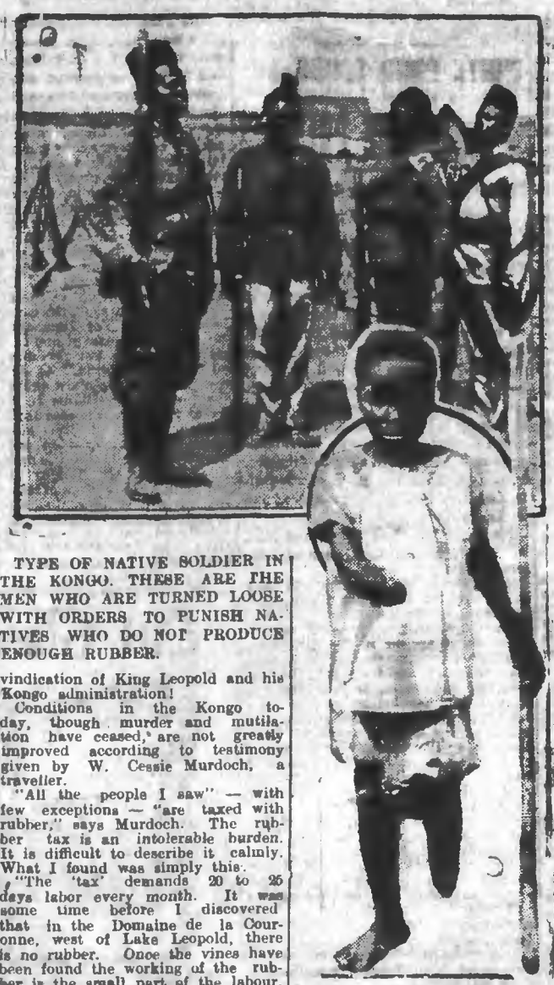
"All the people I saw" — with few exceptions — "are taxed with rubber," says Murdoch. The rubber tax is an intolerable burden. It is difficult to describe it calmly. What I found was simply this.

"The 'tax' demands 20 to 25 days labor every month. It was some time before I discovered that in the Domaine de la Couronne, west of Lake Leopold, there is no rubber. Once the vines have been found the working of the rubber is the small part of the labour. I have made a calculation of the distance the people have to walk, and I find that the average cannot be less than 300 miles. They will cover this distance in 10 or 12 days. The rest of the time is used in hunting for the vines and tapping them. I saw some men returning empty handed. They had been hunting for over eight days and had found nothing. What the poor wretches would do I cannot imagine. If they failed to produce the usual amount they would be put in prison.

Individual acts of atrocity have, for the most part ceased. The state agents seem to have come to the conclusion that it is a waste of cartridges to shoot down these people.

It will be seen that, so far as the people are concerned, the problem is solved, the bitterness of death is past. No European intervention can save them. In many places they have been utterly destroyed. But they were the wards of Europe, and surely Europe, if she is not utterly lost to shame, will have something to say as to their fate.

Sums of money, amounting to $35,000,000 have been traced to the king,



TYPE OF NATIVE SOLDIER IN THE KONGO. THESE ARE THE MEN WHO ARE TURNED LOOSE WITH ORDERS TO PUNISH NATIVES WHO DO NOT PRODUCE ENOUGH RUBBER.

WHEN THE KONGO BOY'S FATHER DID NOT PRODUCE ENOUGH RUBBER THEY CHOPPED OFF THE RIGHT HAND. WHEN THE FATHER FELL BEHIND A SECOND TIME, THEY CHOPPED OFF THE BOY'S FOOT.

and this money has been spent partly in buildings in Belgium, partly in land in the same country, partly in buildings on the Riviera, partly in the corruption of public men and of the European and American press, and finally in the expense of such a private life as has made King Leopold's name notorious throughout Europe. Of the guilty companies the poorest seems to pay 50 per cent. and the richest 75 per cent. per annum.

Surely there should be some punishment for those who by their injustice and violence have dragged Christianity and civilization in the dirt. Surely also there should be some compulsory compensation out of the swollen money bags of the 300 per cent. concessionaires for the widows and orphans, the maimed and the incapacitated. Justice cannot be satisfied with less.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 18.—Miss Marguerite Clarke, hitherto a musical comedy star, made her first appearance in the legitimate drama at the Princess Theatre last night, under the auspices of the Shuberts, using a comedy by Owen Davis, entitled "The Wishing Ring." Miss Clarke is well known here and her presence was the occasion of a capacity audience. Congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the States were showered upon the popular little comedienne.

In the programme Mr. Davis acknowledges the theme of the play from a short story by Dorothea Deakin, an English writer. At any rate he has written a classical bit of imagery, which abounds with human interest, and sufficient action to stamp "The Wishing Ring" as a success. Perhaps a more suitable actress for the part of "Sally" could not have been found than Miss Clarke. The story is that of an English parson and his daughter. Being in poor circumstances, "Sally" devotes most of her time to attending the sick parishoners. She gathers flowers for them out of the rose garden of Annesley Chase. During one of these incursions a wealthy young nobleman, who is temporarily living on the estate, catches her. She mistakes him for a gardener. He does not undeceive her. Later, the real gardener appears and the complications that arise are far from conventional. Mr. Davis designates his characters as Sally, "The Goddess Girl," who is an American travelling in England; the Parent, the Unfortunate One, the Punch and Judy Man, and so on. The comedy is in four acts, is full of quaint, childish philosophy, with a vein of human salt, which raises it out of the realms of phantasy.

One of the delightful things about the play is the thorough company the Shuberts have enlisted in support of the new dramatic star. It includes Robert Dempster, as the nobleman; Grace Goodhal, as the American; King Baggett, Cecil DeMille as the Parson; Robert Lee Hill, Katherine Manning, Agnes Everett, George E. Brown, George Girard, Louise Dempsey, Frederick Gibbs, Robert Tansey, Pearl Egan, Gladys Egan, and Harry Wilson. "The Wishing Ring" comes to the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, next Thursday, Oct. 28th.

"SWEET INNISFALLEN."

Bernard Daly's wonderful tenor voice and delightful acting made "Sweet Innisfallen" the Irish comedy drama, pres ented at the Grand Opera House Wednesday evening one of the most enjoyable offerings of the season and thoroughly pleased the large audience present. Mr. Daly is not stingy with his music and during the action of the play has many opportunities to display the remarkable range of his sweet voice. His singing was the outstanding feature of the production and earned him round after round of applause. Some of his numbers were "Sweet Rose of Killarney," "Hide and Seek," 'Sweet Innisfallen," "The Call of the Wind" and "The Wearing O' the Green."

"Sweet Innisfallen," Mr. Daly's vehicle, is a splendid comedy drama full af action and humorous situations and thoroughly pleased the audience. It was interpreted by a splendid company in which not a flaw could be found and they gave Mr. Daly excellent support.

The production was under the auspices of Division No. 1, A. O. H., who are to be congratulated upon giving the people of Peterborough such a treat.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

The following letter of information has been sent out to holders of Duluth-Superior Traction Company stock by Messrs. A. E. Ames & Co.

The Canadian markets have continued active and strong all through the summer months. This can be accounted for by ease of money and the great quantity seeking investment, and the general feeling that the business outlook on this continent is very favourable. With some stiffening in rates it is apparent that investors are going to be attracted by securities yielding a good return and steadily improving in intrinsic value. Stocks selling below par, paying moderate dividends and representing growing properties appeal to all classes of buyers.

Prominent among those of the class mentioned is the Common stock of the Duluth-Superior Traction Company, which bears four per cent. dividends, payable quarterly, and is now selling about 65. Since the public offering of this issue the shares have been active on both the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges, ranging between 63 1-2 and 66. The two months which have passed since the listing of the securities represents the digestive period. As is the case with all offerings of this class, a certain proportion of the applications—in this instance much smaller than usual—represented speculative interests. The period referred to practically eliminated such holdings. Good investment buying has been apparent in the stock, and should continue.

Lookig over the list of available securities we fail to find anything more attractive, from the standpoint of intrinsic merit and yield on the investment. The franchises of the Company are exceptionally good being exclusive, and having 23 years to run. The City of Duluth is growing rapidly, and its prospects for future growth are not, in our opinion, excelled by any other American city of equal size. The executive management of the Street Railway is in the same hands as the Twin City Rapid Transit Company, than which there is no higher standard. As for the stock itself, in comparison with other securities, reference to the following list will show its attractiveness:

Duluth-Superior Traction—Price 65; dividend paid, per cent., 4; yield on investment, 6.15.

Montreal Street Railway—Price 215; dividend paid, per cent., 10; yield on investment, 4.65.

Toronto Railway—Price, 135; dividend paid, per cent., 7; yield on investment, 5.60.

Twin City Rapid Transit — Price, 110; dividend paid, per cent., 5; yield on investment, 4.55.

We unhesitatingly recommend the shares, believing that they will prove a sound investment and show substantial appreciation in value. It is only on account of their comparative newness to the market that they are selling on such a high interest return basis. Familiarity with the position of the Company will convince investors that they are worth higher figures. It is not too much to expect that a price of 75, at which the return would still be over 5 per cent., will be reached within a comparatively short time, particularly when it is borne in mind that the 4 per cent. dividend rate need not be regarded as final, prospects for a higher rate being good, having regard to the momentum of growth now evident in the two cities.

Climbed the Ladder of Success, Finally Becoming Manager of Mammoth Show—Enacted Discipline From His Employees, All of Whom He Knew Personally

WAS BORN IN TORONTO

Hundreds of thousands of people in Canada, the United States and Mexico know the name of Martin Downs.

A score of years and more have gone since Martin Downs struck out from Toronto, where he had been born and raised. To Toronto he came home to die. During those twenty odd years he had passed through all the stages of the ever-changing life of the showman and had climbed to the top of the tree. From being a candy and song seller attached to the big circuses of other days, he became one of the great showmen of the world and owned a circus of his own.

"There was no better circus man in North America," is the tribute of a man who knew Martin Downs from his boyhood, had worked with him, and had seen him go up all the steps of the ladder. "He was good-hearted and kind. There was nothing he wouldn't do for his friends."

ALL HIS LIFE

Downs spent practically his whole life in the circus business. He began by getting various little selling privileges in the big shows that were on the road when he left his home in Toronto as a young man. He began to make money in a small way and saved it. Then he was found controlling circus concessions, employing others where he had been employed, and he made money. He was always with one circus or another, and he got to know the business as well as any showman ever knew it.

QUICK MOVER

"I've seen him," said an old friend of his to-day, "get into a town at two o'clock, give two shows and at eleven o'clock he would have the whole thing loaded and would be pulling out with thirty-five cars. He did what other men wouldn't try to do."

All the men who were in the show business got to know Martin Downs and liked him. Also they saw that he was making good. It was said that Downs could "put a show on and off the lot quicker than any other man in the circus business."

AS PART OWNER

It wasn't very long before he was in the circus business for himself, or with a part interest. There appeared the Sells and Downs circus, a little one of about a dozen cars—a circus is measured by the number of cars in its train. It is said to have been a good circus, with men at its head whose names became household words among the fun-loving public. But Downs always looked ahead to the time when he would be his own boss, and would have his own circus, owning every stick, every inch of canvas, and every one of the birds and animals and reptiles, everything. Only a few years ago he realized his ambition. The Cole Brothers circus was wandering around. Downs bought it.

WAS A BIG SHOW

Owned and managed by Martin Downs the Cole Brothers circus grew to be one of the world's big circuses, ranking just under the biggest of all. Circus men described it succinctly as "a big show." It is said to be worth to-day one hundred and fifty to two hundred thousand dollars.

Downs took his circus all over the continent, and beyond. His winter quarters were at Grove City, near the town of Erie, Pa., and from there he made his long summer excursions, taking with him his city of canvas and his strange company brought together from the far corners of the world. Hundreds of thousands of people men and women and children—and not the least the children—saw his big parades, sat under his tents, laughed at his clowns, marvelled at the skill of his gymnasts, looked their fill at his beasts, big and little, and spent their dimes in his side-shows.

KNOWN EVERYWHERE

Downs by this time had a continental reputation as a circus man. He was growing rich. He could have drawn a fortune annually as manager of one of the still bigger shows, but prefered to stay with his own. And all the time he was staunchly Canadian from the boots up.

A circus population is notorious for lack of refinement. Circus followers have the reputation of being a lawless lot. Downs impressed upon his six or seven hundred employees the advisability of obedience. The discipline of his circus was like the discipline of an army under arms. But there wasn't anything fierce about Martin Downs. He refused to allow drunkenness about his tents and he refused to allow free fights among his men. He knew them all, from the tent-pegger to the lion-tamer. If they wouldn't obey, he let them go.

Occasionally accidents would happen. Accidents do happen in a circus. They say that Martin Downs has quietly supported a scattered colony of dependents who lost their means of livelihood in circus mishaps.

"Wherever he went, he was ready to help," said an old circus man this morning. "He didn't value money, though he made lots of it. If he thought a man was all right he would help him along. If he hadn't a dollar he could get what he wanted, because men trusted him."

KICK PROVED FATAL

One day last April, when the show was leaving the winter quarters near Erie, Pa., a big circus waggon became stuck fast in a rut. The struggling horses broke one of the traces. Downs went in to fix the strap and one of the horses kicked him. He didn't think much about it, but the wound got worse and septic poisoning developed.

CAME HOME TO DIE

On Decoration Day the circus was in Buffalo. Downs was a sick man. He got the idea that he would like to come to Toronto. He thought that once in Canada he would soon get well, so they brought him over. The best nursing and medical attendance that money could buy were given him, but he grew worse. Two weeks ago, in a last effort to save his life, the doctors took off his leg. Yesterday he died.

His wife, his son and his old father survive him, and he leaves behind him a fortune. James Downs, the son, is like his father, a circus man, and managed the Cole Brothers' show this summer.

INTERESTING STORY OF LIFE IN SHANTY

Subject of Miss Agnes Sproule's Lecture on Sunday Afternoon at 4.15 in Opera House.

The story of the work of Miss Agnes Sproule, who will speak at the Grand Opera House on Sunday afternoon is of the most interesting character. During the past year she journeyed for 238 days. In that time she visited 65 places, interested herself in 47 camps, and addressed 98 public meetings, 51 of them in the bush. Her addresses to women numbered 42, while her interest in the children of the lumber shanty districts is shown in the fact that 133 addresses were given among them. Six thousand four hundred and twenty miles were covered by railway, six hundred and twenty-five by boat, four hundred and five by sleigh; three hundred and thirty-five by waggon or buggy, and she walked one hundred and forty-five miles.

The valorous part of Miss Sproule's work is that she manages to do that immense work throughout Northern Ontario mining and lumbering without the promise of a large reward. Notwithstanding the fact that Miss Sproule's work has been among the men of the camp and her addresses specially adapted to make audiences it has been arranged that her meeting in the Grand Opera House next Sunday will be open to women as well as men.

BOOMING THE LAKES

C. P. R. Intends to Extensively Advertise the Beauties of Kawarthadom.

Mr. J. J. Brignall, travelling passenger agent of the C. P. R., was in town yesterday interviewing the officers of the Otonabee Navigation Company in regard to improving the train and boat service next season. The details of the new service are practically completed, and will be a great improvement over the old.

The C. P. R. intend to advertise the Kawartha Lakes extensively next year, and are now engaged in preparing the folders and other literature.

CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

A convention of Christians will be held in the Assembly Hall, George street, four doors north of the Market Arcade, on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, preceded by a prayer meeting on Friday evening at 7.30.

Meetings on Saturday and Monday at 10.30 a.m., 2.30 and 7.30 p.m., for praise, prayer, and ministry of the Word of God.

Sunday, at 2.30 p.m., addresses to Christians; at 7 p.m., the Gospel will be preached.

NO DYSPEPSIA OR UNDIGESTED FOOD

Heartburn, Gas, Headache and All Stomach Distress Vanishes.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odours from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent. case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one can is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable thing as you could have in the house.

AN INCIDENT AT THE COLLEGIATE

One of the Football Squad Embarrassed During School Hours.

An incident occurred yesterday afternoon at the Collegiate Institute while a class was in progress in one of the forms that rather disturbed the work for a short time. While the teachers were changing their rooms between classes a little girl about four or five years old toddled into the room in question and undismayed by the amusement her presence caused. According to the story an Examiner reporter overheard several "Co-eds" telling a friend the little girl lived on McDonnel St. She looked around the room and finally made her way to the seat occupied by one of the rugby squad. To the amusement of the class he shared his seat with her and just then the teacher entered. She suggested that the little one go home, but before parting from the friend she had made the girl of four years kissed him a farewell. The popular wing man of the P. C. I. team blushed deeply, while the rest of the class enjoyed his discomfiture. The class resumed its work, but a certain young man has not yet heard the last of the affair.

WHITE GRUB FOUND ON THE POTATOES

Makes First Appearance Near Apsley—Farmers Think It May Multiply in Numbers.

Examiner Special.

Glen Alda, Oct. 21.—The wonderful yield of potatoes is the chief subject of conversation here just now. Mr. John Winters planted three bags of seed and dug two hundred and fifty bags. A white grub, eating the tubers in the ground, has been noticed in nearly all potato fields, not doing much damage this season, but another year it may prove very destructive. Mrs. and Mr. W. H. Snelgrove attended the Stein-Thompson wedding at Lasswade.

Mrs. and Mr. R. Hawley, and Mrs. A. Post attended the Norwood Fair last week.

Since the woods have changed their colour and the leaves are slowly drifting down, covering road and pathway with a soft and many hued carpet, snow flakes are in the air, crisp, frosty mornings tingle the blood; men from the north and the south, the east and the West, seem to hear the call of the wild lumbering camps, and hunting camps fill the hearts and minds of the lords of creation. Soon the woods will resound with the sound of axe and saw; while the baying of hounds, and the sharp crack of the rifle will startle many a poor deer from its restful browsing.

Mr. D. Gallan and Mr. Stone of Gilroy, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove on Saturday.

Mr. Purdie's gang are still lifting sunken logs out of Deer river, but the water is getting cold and operations will soon be suspended.

Miss Fee spent Sunday at Oak Cliff Lodge.

Mrs. Shan Hawley was the guest of her sister Mrs. John Trotter a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove spent last week in Apsley renewing acquaintances. Every one has a hearty handshake for William when he comes back.

When you go to the country take a tin of Davis 'Menthol Salve along. It is unequalled to relieve earache, sprains, burns, cuts and bruises. 25 cents.

MOVING PICTURES AT THE PRINCESS

The New Theatre Doing "A Land Office" Business—Attractions for Thanksgiving Day.

The Princess, Peterborough's latest place for cheap, clean amusement, has gone through the experimental stage, and is now an assured success. The patronage extended to the Princess is almost phenomenal. Mr. Stanley Coon, the proprietor, himself a skilful electrician and a moving picture operator of acknowledged ability, from his many years of practical experience, has given the public of Peterborough a show that is unique in its excellence. Mr. Coon is showing moving pictures that are absolutely without any flicker. By flicker is meant that jumping movement so common with most moving pictures and that is so hard on the eyesight of the audience. The pictures at the Princess are absolutely steady. For Thanksgiving Day Mr. Coon has secured one of the most perfect pictures yet produced, entitled "Lost in Siberia." As denoted by the name, this picture shows vividly the life and conditions in the country of the Czar. One sees thrilling and realistic scenes of the struggle between the down-trodden people, the Anarchists and the oligarchy that rules Russia. On Monday this thrilling picture, as well as others of equal interest will be presented, and as the anarchist picture proceeds it will be fully explained by a competent lecturer thus enabling the audience to understand the dramatic situations, as they are evolved.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH SEDGWICK.

The death occurred last night at his late residence, 498 Mark St., East City, of Mr. Joseph Sedgwick. He was 84 years of age and was born in Ireland. He had been in this country for forty years and until last February when he moved into town, he was a resident of Douro. He was a man well known and highly respected and was a member of St. Luke's church. His wife, five sons and two daughters are left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place on Saturday at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 498 Mark St., to St. Luke's church and thence to the Little Lake cemetery.

CONRAD MURPHY.

The death occurred this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Wm. McGregor, 17 Cricket Place, East City, of Conrad Murphy. He had been ailing for some time. He was seventy-eight years of age and was born in Ireland. The late Mr. Murphy was an old pensioner, of the British army, having seen service in the Crimean War. He had been a resident of Peterborough for a number of years and was well known and highly respected.

A wife, one son, Michael Murphy, of this city, and thre daughters, Mrs. Wm. McGregor and Mrs. E. Guerin, of this city, and Mr. Larocque, of Fort William, are left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning at 9 o'clock from 17 Cricket Place to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

OVER DRIVEN

Probable Explanation of Horse's Death on Nassau Road Last Night.

Last night's fire on the Lakefield road, about five miles north of the city cost one young man a horse and to-day he is very likely sorry for the drive he started on to see the fire. According to a report from Nasseau a horse dropped dead on the road not far from the power house while being driven north ostensibly to the fire. There were two young men in the buggy, and the opinion is that the horse had been driven too rapidly. It belonged to one of them, and this fact seems to place dicredit upon the theory that it was not rented. People only abuse that which is not their own, according to the cry of real estate agents, livery proprietors and others who have to deal with the public in some similar manner.

Don't forget to reserve your seats for the Thanksgiving attraction at the "Grand" Mme Blanche Marchesi and Bram Van der Berg Prices—1.50-1.00-75 and 50c Seats now on Sale

SKILLED MEN WANTED BY C.C.E.

Skilled workmen are constantly in demand at the Canadian General Electric Works just now, as an advertisement in the "Want Column" of the Examiner to-night will testify. It will be seen that the C. G. E. requires the services of a first-class blacksmith, two lathe hands, two shaper hands, and two brass finishers, thus offering employment to seven skilled men. Recognizing the efficiency of the Examiner's "Want" column the Canadian General Electric Company is advertising its needs in this paper, and the positions will likely be filled within a few hours of the publication of this issue.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Tuxedo Park, N.Y., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Bruce Price, a resident of Tuxedo Park, and widow of a New York architect, was killed in an automobile accident this afternoon on the road from Tuxedo to Arden. The car was going north on the Main road of the Harriman estate, near Arden Station, when the chauffeur pulled out to one side to pass a car ahead. The machine skidded into the brush on the side of the road, throwing Mrs. Price against a tree and killing her almost instantly.

BOY KILLED BY ELDERLY MAN

Gloversville, N.Y., Oct. 18.—A sixteen year old boy, named Ten Eck, was lodged in the Montgomery County jail at Fonda, last night, charged with having killed an elderly man, whose name is unknown on the farm of the boy's father. The lad said to have tantalized the man and in the struggle which ensued it is alleged that the boy struck the man over the head with a shotgun with sufficient force to crush his skull, causing his death before the arrival of a physician. The boy says he committed the act in self defence.

Curlers Begin The Year With Encouraging Prospects

Annual Meeting Held Last Night—Mr. W. G. Ferguson Elected President—Discussion of Membership an Important Matter—Mr. J. H. Ferguson's Services Appreciated.

BUSINESS OF THE MEETING

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club was held last night in the chambers of the Dominion Bank. If a prediction may be based upon the number of the members present, and the enthusiasm for the sport, which the coming season will surely produce, it is safe to say that the winter of 1909 and 1910 will be the best in the history of the club. Particularly noticeable among those who turned out last night were not a few comparatively new members, who are now as keenly interested as any of the veterans. With one of the finest rinks in Canada at their disposal, and with many experienced curlers and game sports on the membership roll Peterborough should maintain its reputation as a stronghold of Scotia's grand old game.

After the usual routine business had been disposed of the election of officers took place, resulting as follows:

Hon. Pres.—C. N. Brown.
President—W. G. Ferguson.
Vice-President—J. H. Connal.
Sec.-Treas.—J. H. Ferguson.
Asst. Sec.-Treas.—H. F. Foote.
Executive—J. E. A. Fitzgerald, T. Brightman, Dr. Eastwood, T. E. B. Yeats, and W. M. Long.

Representatives to Ontario Curling Association—W. G. Morrow and R. M. Waddell.

A strong membership committee was also appointed.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. C. N. Brown for the services he rendered as president during the past year. The Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. J. H. Ferguson, was also commended upon the manner in which he looked after the Club's business, and in recognition of his faithful work he was re-elected by a standing vote of acclamation. Mr. W. G. Ferguson's election was also unanimous.

Mr. R. M. Waddell gave a report of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association. Apart from the division of the districts, an account of which has already appeared in the press, he stated that it was decided that in the Tankard games there must be two degrees of frost inside the rink.

Finances Good.

Mr. J. H. Ferguson presented an encouraging financial report. The receipts for the year had been $1,872.55, and a small balance remains in the bank. The actual cost of lighting the rink during the season was $92.18.

The question of the Club's membership was one of the most important considerations of the meeting. There were 154 paid members last year and it is felt that this is not far below the limit. Mr. Waddell gave notice of motion in regard to an initiation fee being charged after a certain number had been reached. He did not wish the matter to be dealt with prematurely. Mr. R. Neil suggested that an envelope containing a post card, setting forth the usual member's contract as last year's fee of $8.00 be sent to each of the members of last season. If they were given a certain time in which to express their intention of joining the season it would be known at an early date who the members would be. Mr. R. Hicks stated that from his experience of two years he found that it was better to see the men personally. A card might be left on an office desk, and forgotten, and a personal visit would have to be finally made. This was acted on immediately and practically every member present signed for the coming year. Mr. Waddell's idea of an initiation fee and other matters in relation thereto will likely be taken up at a later meeting, when the membership of the club is definitely known.

The Approaching Season.

In regard to the future it may be stated that the curlers could hardly prepare for their season under more favourable conditions. The rink is in excellent condition, affording ample accommodation. It is comfortable and inviting and the players enter into the sport for the love of the game. There are many skilful players in Peterborough who will look forward to the coming district and Tankard games with pleasure, and the matches between the home rinks throughout the season are always sharply contested. On the whole the prospects for this winter are exceptionally bright, and it is hoped that they will be fully realised.

"Naughty For Women To Flirt; Women Worse Liars Than Men"

Flirting, which young women think so innocent a pastime, is grossly immoral," declared Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman in a recent lecture on Assorted Sins, at the Rand school No. 112 East Nineteenth street., New York.

"The woman who flirts is doing a fiendish work. I knew one beautiful girl, perfectly decent and cultured, who took great delight in urging men on. I could never understand how she found pleasure in it.

"'Oh, it's fun,' she answered, when I asked her why she did it. 'Fun to get a man so that he can't wait another minute before he embraces you. And then, not let him,' she added gleefully.

"There are thousands like her, who either don't realize or dont' care about the harm they do."

Mrs. Gilman spent over an hour reassorting the sins of the world according to their importance, but she found that there are so many she couldn't get half through with them. High on the list, along with flirting, she places lying.

"There is more lying among women than men," she asserted. "When it comes to business and politics, I sometimes think the men have it over the women. But socially the women are much worse. Most women would rather lie than hurt a person's feelings. Woman is not to blame for lying — she has been a subject creature so long. The habit of being a subject creatures makes for deceit.

"Lying comes from helplessness. We call the knights of old honourable because they didn't lie. But they didn't deserve the term. They were powerful and didn't have to. It was looked on as servile to lie."

Mrs. Gilman says that our sins must all be graded differently than they are in the Ten Commandments.

"Our notions of sins are out of date," she said. "We have looked on sin too long as disobedience to God, and the field of sins as a level one. But, on the contrary, it is very irregular. Some sins are barely sins. It is hard to tell where the line is to be drawn. They rise one above the other in importance and injury to society.

"Who ever made the last grading of sins, put them in the wrong boxes.

"One of the sins to which we have failed absolutely in giving sufficient importance is that of double standard of morality. There is no reason why one sex should have any different standards from the other. It is not ethical, and even biblical commands don't sanction it. It results from the patriarchal age—the age of the dominance of men over women—a most unnatural relation.

"Even in this country, in the twentieth century, we have the unwritten law. If a woman is unfaithful to her husband, he may kill her, and in many places get off scot free. But there are now some indications of a turning tide. I have read recently of women rising up and killing men. And juries are beginning to get their point of view.

"In morality we must adopt that standard that makes for the best percentage. Any standard of ethics that interferes with good percentage is wrong.

"But of all sins treason is the worst. We realize that to commit a crime against society is by far the worst. Yet we often fail to realize when we are committing a treason against society.

SECRET MINE OF DIAMONDS

London, Oct. 23.—It is announced from Berlin that a man amed Helm, under arrest there on a charge of diamond smuggling in Southwest Africa, committed suicide in his prison nfirmary on Monday.

His death puts the crowning interest of great mystery on stories of wonderful discoveries of diamonds in Southwest Africa. Helm leased extensive lands, and with the assistance of friends, secretly worked a mine there. The authorities knew nothing of the affair till it was reported to them by their European agents that Helm was back and disposing of many brilliants in European diamond centres. The same agents professed to have discovered that he smuggled a large number secreted in cement into Germany. When the Colonial Office instituted inquiries they found Helm had a deposit of £10,000 in German banks and about £3,000 worth of uncut diamonds still in his possession. But the authorities had not then sufficient evidence on which to take action.

Finally in July last Helm took a villa in a Berlin suburb, and settled down there with his wife and child. Detectives were watching him day and night, however, and a fortnight ago he was arrested on the Potsdamer Platz.

THE LINDSAY TEAM WORKING HARD FOR MONDAY'S GAME

Scugog Fourteen is Confident of a Victory Over the Peterborough Seconds in the Thanksgiving Day Fixture, Which Will be the Rugby Event of the Season

The Lindsay team expects to beat the Peterborough juniors on Monday according to the Warder, which says:

Frank Green, who is billed to play at half for the rugby team, will be out to-night and the half line will be able to work in some good, stiff practise. Greene is in Bobcaygeon now and is lighter in weight than last year, but fit as a fiddle. Plenty of paddling and other exercise has hardened him up.

Hall, a new tall man, shows a streak of speed in practise and has the weight to add strength to the line. He is a hard man to tackle and runs like a hare.

The team expects to win in Peterborough, although they are not over-confident. The Toronto teams will be strong, it is expected, but the mug won't travel from Lindsay without a furious fight.

"Get through this time, boys!"

Swish ! ! Biff ! ! !

The "something doing" sign was hung out prominently at rugby practise last night and two sides smashed into each other for over three quarters of an hour. The tricks were all gone through and repeated a couple of times. Bumps and bruises were flying coincident with hard bucking and tackling. The team is rounding into shape admirably.

The bucking was the feature of the practise last night, and Carew, Coulter, McHugh, Bigelow, MacKenzie and Murdie hit the line like demons. The two opposing sides went at each other in great style.

To-night the signals will be rehearsed and Frank Greene will be out on the half line.

Beecroft, an L.C.I. youth, was out on the "scrub" half line and showed himself to possess the catmarks of a comer. He can't catch well, but has speed and weight and is a clever dodger and hard to pull down.

EIGHT ENTRIES FOR SENIOR RACE JUNIOR LIST FILLING FAST

Twenty-two Youngsters are Already Entered and There Will be a Record Crowd of Starters—Charlie Thorpe, Second Man Last Year, is Entered in the Senior Event

Senior Entries.

1—Morris Montgomery, 223 Dublin street.
2—George Robinson, Otonabee A. C.
3—A. W. Spenceley, 317 Smith St.
5—Sidney Vaness, 285 Dalhousie St.
6—Morley MacDonald, Lakefield.
7—Geo. E. Brown, Victoria Harriers, Peterborough.
8—Chas. Thorpe, Victoria Harriers, Peterborough.

Junior Entries.

1—Oliver Taylor, 37 Jackson Ave.
2—Morley Gurney, Peterborough.
3—Chas. Hillier, Barnardo Ave.
4—Roy Jobe, 464 Albert St.
5—Willie Downer, 498 Parnell St.
6—Alf. Veeman, 151 Hart Avenue.
7.—Alfred Williams, 492 Albert St.
8—Victor E. Bullock, Lakefield.
9—Stanley Anderson, 192 Lock St.
10—Joseph O'Neill, Hastings.
11—John W. Downer, 496 Parnell street.
12—Teddie Heard, Fenelon Falls.
13—Willie Edwardes, Keene.
14—Joe Carley, Fenelon Falls.
15Vernon Runnels, Victoria Harriers, Peterborough.
16—Cecil Brown, 517 Weller St.
17—Douglas McDonald, 338 Rubidge street.
18—Herb. H. Webb, 344 Rubidge St.
19—Henry Drummond, McClellan St.
20—Daniel Phalen, 290 Smith street.
21—Garnet Tovey, 298 Boswell Ave.
22—Frank Leahy, Peterborough.

The above list contains the entries so far in for the Examiner Senior and Junior road races, which take place on Thanksgiving Day morning. The widening of the scope of the race has resulted in a number of outside entries, especially among the juniors, which will tend to make the events more interesting, and the results more uncertain than in other years. There may be some dark horses among those entered from out of town, and it is not outside the bounds of probability that some of the prizes may be carried out of Peterborough.

Last night's entries included that of Charles Thorpe of the Victoria Harriers, who is the logical favorite for the senior race. This will be his third appearance in the Examiner Senior race, he finishing fifth in 1907, and second last year, being beaten out in a nerve-racking finish by J. H. Adams. The latter is out of town this year and so is Ernie Wilson, who ran in all the other Examiner races, winning the event in 1907.

Garnet Tovey, who was second in the junior race last year, has entered again, and on his last year's showing will bear watching although with a large field no attempt can be made to select a winner.

Full announcements of the arrangements for the big events will be made in the Examiner to-morrow night. The senior bus will leave the Examiner office at 8.30 o'clock and the junior bus at 9.15 o'clock, and contestants are asked to bear in mind these hours.

It is not yet too late to send in entries.

PETERBOROUGH SENIORS PLAY IN TORONTO TO-MORROW

The Peterborough senior rugby team will journey to Toronto to-morrow to meet the T.A.A.C. team in their second game of the series. The game will take place at Diamond Park and the local team is confident of making a good showing against their old rivals. The practises this week have been well attended and the team is in pretty good shape, Richardson of the Collegiate Institute team will play centre half and although it is his first senior game, will no doubt give a good account of himself, as he is big and fast and kicks splendidly. The following team was selected after last night's practise to do battle with the T.A.A.C.:

Back—Craig.
Quarter—Campbell.
Scrimmage—Clarke, Ecclestone and Thornton.
Inside wings—Dickson and Turner.
Middle wings — O'Connor and Lundy.
Outside wings—Hall and Staunton.
Spares—Hickey and Gibson.

The above men are asked to be at the C.P.R. station at 7.45 o'clock to-morrow morning in order to leave on the 7.55 train for Toronto.

RUGBY

One of the best rugby offerings of the season will be the Junior O.R.F.U. game here on Thanksgiving Day afternoon when the Lindsay team, champions of the junior series last year, will clash with the Peterborough Seconds. The Lindsay team is a big, heavy aggregation, being heavier than Peterborough senior team, and they are confident that their weight and size will earn them the decision over Peterborough. In the matter of weight they will be all over the Peterborough team, but the followers of the game here figure that the speed and trickiness of the local youngsters will more than counterbalance the mass of the visitors. Be that as it may, the fact remains that a fast light, but well trained team will do battle for Peterborough and Lindsay will have to be on their toes all the time if they hope to hold off the Peterborough youngsters. The best of the Collegiate Institute team will be on the line-up and the team will be strong and well balanced. They have been practising industriously both afternoon and evening and with a practice to-morrow afternoon will be in the best of shape.

There should be a record attendance at Riverside Park on Monday afternoon in view of the fact that it is the only sporting event of the holiday afternoon. It will be a game well worth seeing and should draw a big crowd to the Park across the river.

BREEZY NOTES FROM LAKEFIELD TOWN

Special to The Examiner.

Lakefield, Oct. 20.—The annual athletic sports of the Grove School were held on the school grounds on Wednesday last. A large list of events were on the programme, all of which were closely contested by the many competitors. In spite of the day being cold and gloomy and cold, a number of spectators were present and watched the proceedings with great interest.

Mrs. Jackman spent Sunday at Young's Point visiting her daughter Mrs. Andy Wilson.

Mrs. Edmund Tate and Miss Gwyneth Tate spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Miss Thorne has returned to Bobcaygeon after spending a few days in Lakefield, the guest of Miss Beatrice Gordon.

The annual Thanksgiving services of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will be held on Sunday, Oct. 24th. Mrs. Goforth, returned missionary from Honan, China, will speak at both services. Mrs. Goforth will also address a meeting for ladies at four o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. F. H. Mytton, of Regina, arrived in the village on Saturday last to visit her sister, Mrs. E. R. Tate, at "Bendenis."

Miss Tully, who has been spending the past two months in Lakefield, returned to Toronto on Wednesday last.

Special services were held at St. John Baptist Church on Sunday last, it having been appointed by the Bishop as Children's Day throughout the whole diocese. The services were conducted by Rev. A. W. Mackenzie. Instead of Sunday School a service was held in the church at three o'clock in the afternoon, and Mr. Mackenzie's address to the little children was greatly enjoyed, not only by them, but by the older members of the church, who were present.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, of Peterborough, was the guest of Rev. A. W. Mackenzie at "The Grove" on Wednesday last.

Mrs. Fessenden and Miss Stevenson, of Peterborough, were visiting friends in Lakefield on Wednesday last.

The ladies of the Methodist Church will hold their annual Thanksgiving dinner in the basement of the church on Monday evening, Oct. 25th. Dinner will be served from five to eight o'clock and will be followed immediately by an entertainment for which a splendid programme is being prepared.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS

Examiner Special.

Indian River, Oct. 19.—The many friends here of Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, now of Edmonton, Alta., will be sorry, to hear of the death of his third oldest son, Joseph, which occurred about two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien and family moved from here four years ago last September.

Mr. Frank Devlin drew cheese on Tuesday last to the station, being the last half of September make.

A mild form of scarlet fever is settled, with one of the villagers.

A number from here attended the entertainment at Mr. P. Sullivan's, Otonabee, on Wednesday evening last and all report a jolly good time.

AN INSTITUTE LIBRARY

From Farm and Dairy.

One of the most active and progressive Women's Institutes is that of Warsaw, Peterboro Co., Ont. An attractive feature of this institute is its circulating library of over 200 books. In a letter from Mrs. Geo. Clements, Sec.-Treas. of this Institute received recently by Farm and Dairy, Mrs. Clements writes as follows: "We have about 200 books in our library, some good and expensive ones and others of not so much account. The case in which these books are held is walnut and will hold about 1000 books. Owing to the situation of our library, it has not been as much used as it might have been. We are having it changed and anticipate that it will be much more popular the coming winter than ever before."

"While the Warsaw Women's Institute was yet young it gave concerts and entertainments and made enough money to buy the book case and a few more books as we think the are needed. At our next meeting we intend purchasing more books yet. A librarian is appointed at our annual meeting, and she receives nothing thanks for her trouble in looking after the books. She is at her station as librarian for one hour every Saturday evening. We have a large record book containing a list of constitute members and each book in library is numbered also. When a member takes a book from the l the number of such book is c against her name. None but members of the Institute are allow take these boo

"The Warsaw Women's Ins has a small bank account and a prosperous condition. Wh we feel we would like to add books to our library we do so. T is no fee charged for taking the boo out. We give a concert every year t add to our funds."

This plan of circulating up-to-dat and standard books is certainly to be commended. Every Women's institute which has available funds co not better spend a portion of th than in the securing of a small rary to be used in the way describe above. One or two current maga sines added to such a library woul also add much to the interest among the members. There are many maga sines published of a general natu which should be most interesting a instructive to the members of any men's Institute." We should be to hear of other institutes which h worked along similar lines in an e ational manner.

WILL BARRIE DIVORCE PROVE HIS PLAY REAL?

Pretty Pauline Chase, If She's His Bride, Will Show to the World "What Every Woman Knows"—Remarkable Parallel Seen in Three Lives.

"THE PINK PYJAMA GIRL"

London, Oct. 22. — Everybody has heard of J. M. Barrie, the little well-known author who became a famous writer of plays. He wrote "The Little Minister," "Peter Pan," and lastly, "What Every Woman Knows."

Wealth flowed in Barrie, a humble Scotchman—wealth and popularity, and the worship of the crowd. His wife, too, shared in his fame.

Everybody remembers, too, blond, petite Pauline Chase, the pink pajama girl, in "The Liberty Belles," a dashing, frolicsome musical comedy that woke New York up a few years ago; Pauline Chase was rather obscure up to then, just as Barrie had been in his early career. As an actress she was a Broadway joke; as a singer and dancer, a great success.

Pauline Chase went to London to be a great actress. She met Barrie. She did become a great actress, starring in "Peter Pan." In a few short years she was the most photographed woman in England.

Her pictures were displayed more frequently than the Queen's.

"What Every Woman Knows" is Barrie's greatest play. There are two women in it—one gentle, tender, homely—the "Maggie" of the story. The other younger, proud, a peeress.

Maggie married a younger man, full of ambition, empty of pocket, John Shand. She spends her money to educate him, and he becomes a leader in politics and society. He runs for parliament and in his campaign meets the young peeress. Maggie's greatest pride is in the success of her young husband.

He—untutored and nothing in the world's eyes until Maggie makes him what he is—falls madly in love with the peeress.

Then comes Maggie's awakening.

She sees she has palled on her younger husband, and the thought hurts her. Her eyes fill with tears, her lips are pressed tightly together. But she doesn't quail. She tells her husband she will give him up—for it is for His good.

She has found out what every woman knows—that men love beauty and youth in woman even if it means breaking of the very home ties.

Beautiful Pauline Chase, Who May Wed Barrie When Playwright Gets a Divorce.

J. M. Barrie, whose mind created the story of this play, has sued Mrs. Barrie for a divorce. The court moves in the suit show that he planned his case with great deliberation.

Three days after the suit was filed news came from the Savage Club, where stage folk are welcomed here, that Barrie would marry Pauline Chase. Certain it is his wife will soon be a divorcee and Barrie will be free to wed whom he pleases.

Mrs. Barrie, in real life, has seen her husband rise from obscurity.

Maggie Shand, in Barrie's play, saw her husband rise from obscurity.

Mrs. Barrie, in real life, will give up her husband.

Barrie, the stories run, loves Pauline Chase, whose brilliancy in his plays helped him in his success.

John Shand, in Barrie's play, loved a peeress, whose brilliancy in society helped him in his success.

What was there in Barrie's mind that pointed the lines of his play as prophecies of his life's crisis?

"What Every Woman Knows" was written three years ago, when little Pauline Chase's star was just beginning to shine here.

Has Mrs. Barrie, who now is in seclusion under her husband's charges, read the play? And has she, too, drawn the strange truth from its fiction?

All London is talking of this remarkable coincidence. And if Barrie, divorced, should wed Pauline Chase, the world will see what every woman knows.

Will Stop At Nothing--Say Suffragettes

Miss Mary Gawthorpe and Beatrice Harraden Defend Militant Tactics--Claim Government is the Aggressor.

London, Oct. 23.—There was a large gathering of women at the Onward Hall, Deansgate, England, to hear Miss Beatrice Harraden, the novelist, and author of "Ships that Pass in the Night," read her play "Lady Geraldine's Speech." The audience, in which were a few men, was brought together by the Women's Social and Political Union.

Miss Mary Gawthorpe was in the chair, and made an introductory speech, in which she said she regretted to hear that at the recent White City meeting a man was hurt. But many women had been hurt and brutally ill-used in this fight, and where had the people been to say this must stop? She did not suggest that men should be hurt with impunity, but she did blame the responsible people—the Government who were responsible for the development of their militant tactics from earliest days. It was said that they ought not to go into the private lives of cabinet ministers. But as Christabel Pankhurst had said, bad law was worse than bad manners, and the worst that could be said was that they were disgraceful, that their manners were bad, that they were unwomanly. Some had been unwomanly in the ordinary acceptance of the term but surely nothing was finer than the sight of those women who in the last few weeks had determined to take their lives in their hands and place them on the altar of women's suffrage. The budget campaign was over officially, but until such time as the Government told them what they were going to do they would follow up the members of it.

Miss Harraden, before reading her play, explained its origin. "I wrote it," she said, "as a skit—a good-humoured one I hope—on our friends the anti-suffragists, and it occurred to me that I might try to present a picture of the comradeship amongst women, which is a very real thing, and one of the most delightful stimulating results of this long struggle of ours to obtain citizenship. It is an exceedingly important feature of the women's movement, and a force which has to be reckoned with and which has not been sufficiently recognized by those who would fain destroy us. It has been ministered to and nourished by our opponents, and I think we owe them a debt of immense gratitude for the benefit they have bestowed on us. It is spreading in all the countries, and before long that old-fashioned man—the woman who to please him belittled her own sex and the needs of her own sex—that type of woman will be as extinct as the hansom cab." (Hear, hear.)

"To Stop at Nothing."

At the end of the meeting questions were invited.

A woman in the audience, who announced that she was a suffragist, said, "I want to know how far it is true, as I have been told, that the militant tactics are to stop at nothing and to be irrespective of damage to property or injury to persons?"

Miss Gawthorpe: This lady wishes to know where our tactics are to stop. The Government decides every development in our tactics, and we would not have thrown a single stone in this fight if they had dealt with us as they do with those who have votes. But we say honestly and frankly we will stop at nothing. (Applause.)

The woman questioner said she was in sympathy with the movement, but thought they must draw the line at damaging property and injuring persons. They seemed to be alienating many who would otherwise not support them.

Miss Gawthorpe said it was the Government and not the militant suffragists who were the aggressors. Sympathizers with the cause who disagreed with their policy should join another suffrage society, and those who were against them should join the anti-suffragists.

A man member of the audience said if a stone were thrown by a suffragist and a person who was only a spectator were blinded by it, he did not think it would help the suffragist cause. He thought that sympathy would go to those opposed to the suffrage in such circumstances.

Miss Gawthorpe reminded the questioner that in this fight women had suffered much violence, and were undergoing a hunger strike. Their women would not stop at anything, and the Government knew it. "If one woman is killed in this agitation," she said, "the Government will never forget it." (Hear, hear.)

A vote of thanks was given to Miss Harraden, and before the meeting dispersed it was decided to send as a message to the women imprisoned at Birmingham the word 'Loyalty.' Miss Gawthorpe said she would find means of conveying the message.

"It gives me pleasure to recommend D. D. D. to sufferers from skin diseases. For three years I suffered intensely from a skin disease which I developed on the back of my neck. It grew continually and sometimes cast off scales. Neighbours 'advice, prescriptions, salves and expensive blood medicines were lavishly used.
At last I found relief in D. D. D., used according to directions. It required just one bottle to effect a cure. I am no longer tortured so I have no hesitancy in acknowledging to the world the worth and great virtue of D. D. D."

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

"Very excellent people, sire, and no man could ask for better. On every ship they have a hundred crossbowmen of Genoa, the best in the world, and their spearmen also are very handy men. They would throw great cantles of iron from the tops of the masts, and many of our people met their death through it. If we can bar their way in the Narrow Sea, then there will be much hope of honor for all of us."

"Your words are very welcome, Thomas," said the King, "and I make no doubt that they will show themselves to be very worthy of what we prepare for them. To you I give a ship, that you may have the handling of it. You also, my dear son, shall have a ship, that evermore honor may be thine."

"I thank you, my fair and sweet father," said the Prince, with joy flushing his handsome boyish face.

"The leading ship shall be mine. But you shall have one, Walter Manny, and you, Stafford, and you, Arundel, and you, Audley, and you, Sir Thomas Holland, and you, Brocas, and you, Berkeley, and you, Reginald. The rest shall be awarded at Winchelsea, whither we sail to-morrow. Nay, John, why do you pluck so at my sleeve?"

Chandos was leaning forward, with an anxious face. "Surely my honored lord, I have not served you so long and so faithfully that you should forget me now. Is there then no ship for me?"

The King smiled, but shook his head. "Nay, John, have I not given you two hundred archers and a hundred men-at-arms to take with you into Brittany? I trust that your ships will be lying in Saint-Malo Bay ere the Spaniards are abreast of Winchelsea. What more would you have, old war-dog? Wouldst be in two battles at once?"

"I would be at your side, my liege, when the lion banner is in the wind once more. I have ever been there. Why should you cast me now? I ask little, dear lord—a galley, a balinger, even a pinnace, so that I may only be there."

"Nay, John, you shall come. I cannot find it in my heart to say you nay. I will find you place in my own ship, that you may indeed be by my side."

Chandos stooped and kissed the King's hand. "My Squire?" he asked.

The King's brows knotted into a frown. "Nay, let him go to Brittany with the others," said he harshly. "I wonder, John, that you should bring back to my memory this youth whose pertness is too fresh that I should forget it. But some one must go to Brittany in your stead, for the matter presses and our people are hard put to it to hold their own." He cast his eyes over the assembly, and they rested upon the stern features of Sir Robert Knolles.

"Sir Robert," he said, "though you are young in years you are already old in war, and I have heard that you are as prudent in council as you are valiant in the field. To you I commit the charge of this venture to Brittany in place of Sir John Chandos, who will follow thither when our work has been done upon the waters. Three ships lie in Calais port and three hundred men are ready to your hand. Sir John will tell you what our mind is in the matter. And now, my friends and good comrades, you will haste you each to his own quarters, and you will make swiftly such preparations as are needful, for, as God is my aid, I will sail with you to Winchelsea to-morrow!"

Beckoning to Chandos, Manny and a few of his chosen leaders, the King led them away to an inner chamber, where they might discuss the plans for the future. At the same time the assembly broke up, the knights in silence and dignity, the squires in mirth and noise, but all joyful at heart for the thought of the great days which lay before them.

CHAPTER XVII.

Day had not yet dawned when Nigel was in the chamber of Chandos preparing him for his departure and listening to the last cheery words of advice and direction from his noble master. That same morning, before the sun was half-way up the heaven, the King's great nef Philippa, bearing within it the most of those present at his banquet the night before, set its huge sail, adorned with the lions and the lilies, and turned its brazen beak for England. Behind it went five smaller cogs crammed with squires, archers and men-at-arms.

Nigel and his companions lined the ramparts of the castle and waved their caps as the bluff, burly vessels, with drums beating and trumpet clanging, a hundred knightly pennons streaming from their decks and the red cross of England over all, rolled slowly out to the open sea. Then when they had watched them until they were hull down they turned, with hearts heavy at being left behind, to make ready for their own more distant venture.

It took them four days of hard work ere their preparations were complete, for many were the needs of a small force sailing to a strange country. Three ships had been left to them, the cog Thomas of Romney, the Grace Dieu of Hythe, and the Basilisk of Southampton, into each of which one hundred men were stowed, besides the thirty seamen who formed the crew. In the hold were forty horses, amongst them Pommers, much wearied by his long idleness, and homesick for the slopes of Surrey where his great limbs might find the work he craved. Then the food and the water, the bow-staves and the sheaves of arrows, the horseshoes, the nails, the hammers, the knives, the axes, the ropes the vats of hay, the green fodder and a score of other things was packed aboard. Always by the side of the ships stood the stern young knight Sir Robert, checking, testing, watching and controlling, saying little, for he was a man of few words, but with his eyes, his hands, and if need be his heavy dog-whip, wherever they were wanted.

The seamen of the Basilisk, being from a free port, had the old feud against the men of the Cinque Ports, who were looked upon by the other mariners of England as being unduly favored by the King. A ship of the West Country could scarce meet with one from the Narrow Seas without blood flowing. Hence sprang sudden broils on the quay side, when with yell and blow the Thomases and Grace Dieus, Saint Leonard on their lips and murder in their hearts, would fall upon the Basilisks. Then amid the whirl of cudgels and the clash of knives would spring the tiger figure of the young leader, lashing mercilessly to right and left like a tamer among his wolves, until he had beaten them howling back to their work. Upon the morning of the fourth day all was ready, and the ropes being cast off the three little ships were warped down the harbor by their own pinnaces until they were swallowed up in the swirling folds of a Channel mist.

Though small in numbers, it was no mean force which Edward had dispatched to succor the hard-pressed English garrisons in Brittany. There was scarce a man among them who was not an old soldier, and their leaders were men of note in council and in war. Knolles flew his flag of the black raven aboard the Basilisk. With him were Nigel and his own Squire John Hawthorn. Of his hundred men, forty were Yorkshire Dalesmen and forty were men of Lincoln, all noted archers, with old Wat of Carlisle, a grizzled veteran of border welfare, to lead them.

Already Aylward by his skill and strength had won his way to an under-officership amongst them, and shared with Long Ned Widdington, a huge North Countryman, the reputation of coming next to famous Wat Carlisle in all that makes an archer. The men-at-arms too were war-hardened soldiers, with Black Simon of Norwich, the same who had sailed from Winchelsea, to lead them. With his heart filled with hatred for the French who had slain all who were dear to him, he followed like a bloodhound over land and sea to any spot where he might glut his vengeance. Such also were the men who sailed in the other ships, Cheshire men from the Welsh borders in the cog Thomas, and Cumberland men, used to Scottish warfare, in the Grace Dieu.

Sir James Astley hung his shield of cinquefoil ermine over the quarter of the Thomas. Lord Thomas Percy, a cadet of Alnwick, famous already for the high spirit of that house which for ages was the bar upon the landward gate of England, showed his blue lion rampant as leader of the Grace Dieu. Such was the goodly company Saint-Malo bound, who warped from Calais Harbor to plunge into the thick reek of a Channel mist.

A slight breeze blew from the eastward, and the high-ended, round-bodied craft rolled slowly down the Channel. The mist rose a little at times, so that they had sight of each other dipping and rising upon a sleek, oily sea, but again it would sink down, settling over the top, shrouding the great yard, and finally frothing over the deck until even the water alongside had vanished from their view and they were afloat on a little raft in an ocean of vapor. A thin cold rain was falling and the archers were crowded under the shelter of the overhanging poop and forecastle, where some spent the hours at dice, some in sleep, and many in trimming their arrows or polishing their weapons.

At the farther end, seated on a barrel as a throne of honor, with trays and boxes of feathers around him, was Bartholomew the bowyer and fletcher, a fat, bald-headed man, whose task it was to see that every man's tackle was as it should be, and who had the privilege of selling such extras as they might need. A group of archers with their staves and quivers filed before him with complaints or requests, while half a dozen of the seniors gathered at his back and listened with grinning faces to his comments and rebukes.

"Canst not string it?" he was saying to a young bowman. "Then surely the string is overshort or the stave overlong. It could not by chance be the fault of thy own baby arms more fit to draw on thy hosen than to dress a warbow. Thou lazy lurdan, thus is it strung!" He seized the stave by the centre in his right hand, leaned the end on the inside of his right foot, and then, pulling the upper nock down with the left hand, slid the eye of the string easily into place. "Now I pray thee to unstring it again," handing it to the bowman.

The youth with an effort did so, but he was too slow in disengaging his fingers, and the string sliding down with a snap from the upper nock caught and pinched them sorely against the stave. A roar of laughter, like the clap of a wave, swept down the deck as the luckless bowman danced and wrung his hand.

"Serve thee well right, thou reddeless fool!" growled the old bowyer. "So fine a bow is wasted in such hands. How now, Samkin? I can teach you little of your trade, I trow. Here is a bow dressed as it should be; but it would, as you say, be the better for a white band to mark the true nocking point in the centre of this red wrapping of silk. Leave it and I will tend to it anon. And you, Wat! A fresh head on yonder stele? Lord, that a man should carry four trades under one hat, and be bowyer, fletcher, stringer and headmaker! Four men's work for old Bartholomew and one man's pay!"

"Nay, say no more about that," growled an old wizened bowman, with a brown-parchment skin and little beady eyes. "It is better in these days to mend a bow than to bend one. You who never looked a Frenchman in the face are pricked off for ninepence a day, and I, who have fought five stricken fields, can earn but fourpence."

"It is in my mind, John of Tuxford, that you have looked in the face more pots of mead than Frenchmen," said the old bowyer. "I am swinking from dawn to night, while you are guzzling in an ale-stake. How now, youngster? Overbowed? Put your bow in the tiller. It draws at sixty pounds—not a pennyweight too much for a man of your inches. Lay more body to it, lad, and it will come to you. If your bow be not stiff, how can you hope for a twenty-score flight. Feathers? Aye, plenty of the best. Here, peacock at a groat each. Surely a dandy archer like you, Tom Beverley, with gold earrings in your ears, would have no feathering but peacocks!"

"So the shaft fly straight, I care not of the feather," said the bowman, a tall young Yorkshireman, counting out pennies on the palm of his horny hand.

"Gray goose-feathers are but a farthing These on the left are a halfpenny, for they are of the wild goose, and the second feather of a fenny goose is worth more than the pinion of a tame one. These in the brass tray are dropped feathers, and a dropped feather is better than a plucked one. Buy a score of these, lad, and cut them saddle-backed or swine-backed, the one for a dead shaft and the other for a smooth flyer, and no man in the company will swing a better-fletched quiver over his shoulder."

It chanced that the opinion of the bowyer on this and other points differed from that of Long Ned of Widdington, a surly straw-bearded Yorkshireman, who had listened with a sneering face to his counsel. Now he broke in suddenly upon the bowyer's talk. "You would do better to sell bows than to try to teach others how to use them," said he; "for indeed, Bartholomew, that head of thine has no more sense within it than it has hairs without. If you had drawn string for as many months as I have years you would know that a straight-cut feather flies smoother than a swine-backed, and pity it is that these young bowmen have none to teach them better."

This attack upon his professional knowledge touched the old bowyer on the raw. His fat face became suffused with blood and his eyes glared with fury as he turned upon the archer. "Thou cannon-foot barrel of lies!" he cried. "All-hallows be my aid, and I will teach you to open your slabbing mouth against me! Pluck forth your sword and stand out on yonder deck, that we may see who is the man of us twain. May I never twirl a shaft over my thumb nail if I do not put Bartholomew's mark upon your thick head!"

A score of rough voices joined at once in the quarrel, some upholding the bowyer and others taking the part of the North Countryman. A red-headed Dalesman snatched up a sword, but was felled by a blow from the fist of his neighbor. Instantly, with a buzz like a swarm of angry hornets, the bowmen were out on the deck; but ere a blow was struck Knolles was amongst them with granite face and eyes of fire.

"Stand apart, I say! I will warrant you enough fighting to cool your blood ere you see England once more. Loring, Hawthorn, cut any man down who raises his hand. Have you aught to say, you fox-haired rascal?" He thrust his face within two inches of that of the red man who had first seized his sword. The fellow shrank back, cowed, from his fierce eyes. "Now stint your noise, all of you, and stretch your long ears. Trumpeter, blow once more!"

A bugle call had been sounded every quarter of an hour so as to keep in touch with the other two vessels who were invisible in the fog. Now the high clear note rang out once more, the call of a fierce sea-creature to its mates, but no answer came back from the thick wall which pent them in. Again and again they called, and again and again with bated breath they waited for an answer.

"Where is the shipman?" asked Knolles. "What is your name, fellow? Do you dare call yourself master-mariner?"

"My name is Nat Dennis, fair sir," said the gray-bearded old seaman. "It is thirty years since first I showed my cartel and blew trumpet for a crew at the water-gate of Southampton. If any man may call himself master-mariner, it is surely I."

"Where are our two ships?"

"Nay, sir, who can say in this fog?"

"Fellow, it was your place to hold them together."

"I have but the eyes God gave me, fair sir, and they cannot see through a cloud."

"Had it been fair, I, who am a soldier, could have kept them in company. Since it was foul, we looked to you, who are called a mariner, to do so. You have not done it. You have lost two of my ships ere the venture is begun."

"Nay, fair sir, I pray you to consider——"

"Enough words!" said Knolles sternly. "Words will not give me back my two hundred men. Unless I find them before I come to Saint-Malo, I swear by Saint Wilfrid of Ripon that it will be an evil day for you! Enough! Go forth and do what you may!"

For five hours with a light breeze behind them they lurched through the heavy fog, the cold rain still matting their beards and shining on their faces. Sometimes they could see a circle of tossing water for a bowshot or so in each direction, and then the wreaths would crawl in upon them once more and bank them thickly round. They had long ceased to blow the trumpet for their missing comrades, but had hopes when clear weather came to find them still in sight. By the shipman's reckoning they were now about midway between the two shores.

Nigel was leaning against the bulwarks, his thoughts away in the dingle at Cosford and out on the heather-clad slopes of Hindhead, when something struck his ear. It was a thin clear clang of metal, pealing out high above the dull murmur of the sea, the creak of the boom and the flap of the sail. He listened, and again it was borne to his ear.

"Hark, my lord!" said he to Sir Robert. "Is there not a sound in the fog?"

They both listened together with sidelong heads. Then it rang clearly forth once more, but this time in another direction. It had been on the bow; now it was on the quarter. Again is sounded, and again. Now it had moved to the other bow; now back to the quarter again! now it was near; and now so far that it was but a faint tinkle on the ear. By this time every man on board, seamen, archers and men-at-arms, were crowding the sides of the vessel. All round them there were noises in the darkness, and yet the wall of fog lay wet against their very faces. And the noises were such as were strange to their ears, always the same high musical clashing.

"In thirty years upon the waters I have never heard the like," said he. "The Devil is ever loose in a fog. Well is he named the Prince of Darkness."

A wave of panic passed over the vessel, and these rough and hardy men who feared no mortal foe shook with terror at the shadows of their own minds. They stared into the cloud with blanched faces and fixed eyes, as though each instant some fearsome shape might break in upon them. And as they stared there came a gust of wind. For a moment the fog-bank rose and a circle of ocean [illegible]

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Recommended As An Ideal Remedy

W. S. BOND, Esq.

Lloydtown, Ont., March 19th, 1909.
"For some years I have been greatly troubled with headaches and indigestion, brought on by stomach disorders, constipation and biliousness. I had tried many remedies with only indifferent success, until "Fruit-a-tives" came to my notice. Being a general storekeeper, I was selling a good many "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers and, remarking how pleased they were with the results obtained from using "Fruit-a-tives," I decided to try them and, I might say, the effects were almost magical. Headaches and biliousness disappeared and to-day I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers as 'An ideal remedy.'

"I might also add that about three years ago I was laid up with LUMBAGO AND SCIATICA—couldn't get out of bed or lift one foot over the other. A good treatment of "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of these pains and banished the Sciatica and Lumbago so that to-day I am as well as ever and can lift anything necessary."

Let Me Tell You Something

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is to blame for her own wretched condition.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in Canada and the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what these women say:

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles, and at last was almost helpless. I tried three doctors but they did me no good. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has made me well and strong. I hope all suffering women will just give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, for it is worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. Endlich, R. F. D. 7, Erie Pa.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

FIRE INSURANCE

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

CONDITIONS FOR BRITONS.

Commissioner F. A. McKenzie Talks on Imperial Trade.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, the commissioner sent out to Canada to report on existing conditions in this country with reference to promoting trade relations between Canada and Great Britain, has made some interesting discoveries.

Many British manufacturers, he writes to his journal in London, are convinced that it is useless to compete seriously for Canadian trade because the Americans have so great an advantage over us on account of their proximity and the similarity of taste and requirements in the Dominion and the Union.

This belief receives its best contradiction in the success of a number of British houses that have gone to work intelligently to push their manufactures in Canada. The advantage possessed by the Americans in being next door to the Ontario and the Western markets is undeniable, but it is not so great as many suppose. The British factory can deliver its goods as cheaply from its warehouses in Glasgow or Liverpool to Vancouver as can its competitor in New England. Vessels can load at Bristol or London and discharge their wares at Fort William on Lake Superior, the half-way city across the continent, without once disturbing freight on the way.

Some months ago a Birmingham firm making a special line of window-sashes set out to cultivate Canadian trade. The senior partner himself crossed the Atlantic and went to work with the utmost energy. He visited architects and gave them practical demonstration of the merits of his product. He interviewed builders, he button-holed hardware men, and finally he appointed a responsible firm his representative on the spot and fired them with some of his own enthusiasm. As a result one Birmingham firm has received orders from the Toronto district alone this season for £2,000 worth of goods.

The American-Canadian houses are securing practically all the trade to the exclusion of the British. The reason of this was very clearly shown to me by the manager of a large power plant. "You can rely on it," he said, "that very few more orders for electric plants will go to the old country until your manufacturers either hold full stocks here or start branch works. If you buy from a British house now you are under a serious disadvantage. Suppose, for instance, you want extra parts, 'spares,' or sundries. When you want 'spares,' usually you want them mighty quick, and something has to wait until you get them. If you must cable to England it means a delay of weeks.

"If anything goes seriously wrong in the British-built plant men are sent out from England to see what is the matter and put it right. The men come out on the understanding that if it is the makers' fault they pay, and if it is yours, you pay. The fault will probably be here, and we have both the delay and the expense of men coming from England. All this is avoided by employing the house on the spot. If the great British electric firms want Canadian trade let them start Canadian branches."

The hardware business affords in many lines great opportunities for the English maker. The activity in the Canadian building trade is very great and is increasing. The class of houses put up is steadily improving, and the demand for better-class goods is certain to become more and more marked. The people who once were content to follow some of the cruder American fashions are now in many cases showing a disposition to come back to British styles. In Toronto alone the building work this season will cost between £2,600,000 and £3,000,000.

AIR CARRIES HEALING MEDICINE

About the healing power of the air of the pine woods everybody knows, but to supply it in the form of medicine seemed almost beyond realization. After many years of careful study a scientific remedy, now known as Catarrhozone, has been produced, which enables the sufferer to breathe into his lungs all the healing properties of the balsamic pine woods air. This marvellous remedy has conquered catarrh. It unquestionably does cure it permanently.

CURE IS GUARANTEED.

You cannot fail to be cured by Catarrhozone, because it reaches and destroys the cause of the disease. You simply inhale the antiseptic vapor. It instantly spreads to every part of the breathing organs. The micro-organisms infecting the diseased tissues of your nose, throat, and lungs die instantly. There is nothing left to cause inflammation. Any spots that are raw and sore are quicly healed by Catarrhozone, and you soon are completely cured.

IT RELIEVES INSTANTLY!

It is impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without at once feeling better. Your head is cured of mucous discharge, your nostrils are cleansed of all putrid matter, the phlegm is removed from your throat. Every trace of catarrh is searched out of the system by Catarrhozone, which thoroughly disinfects and purifies every organ of the body.

Catarrhozone is the only natural remedy for catarrh. It cures by cleansing and purifying all diseased tissues, not by deadening the stomach with drugs.

MINISTERS AND DOCTORS USE "CATARRHOZONE."

It is a clean, simple, and satisfactory remedy that is endorsed by the clergy, and universally prescribed by the medical profession because it is scientific and absolutely certain to effect lasting cures.

Don't be misled into accepting a substitute for Catarrhozone, which alone can cure thoroughly. It is so powerfully healing that colds disappear in an hour, coughs in two hours, and even bronchitis, asthma, and chronic catarrh in a comparatively short time. Two months' treatment, $1.00. Small size, 50c.; all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ontario.

UP FROM THE RANKS.

English Soldiers Who Have Risen in Foreign Armies.

The recent news of the appointment of Sergeant Baldwin to the post of cavalry instructor to the Emperor of Morocco, at a salary of something like £1,500 a year, shows that the age of military romance is not yet dead. It is not so easy nowadays for the friendless and penniless soldier in our army to rise to a major-generalship, as did the late Sir Hector Macdonald, Luke O'Connor, V.C., W. McBean, V.C., and others; but there are, nevertheless, two General Officers still alive who were once private soldiers, namely, Sir Harry Finn, late Inspector-General of the Australian Forces, and Gilbert Hamilton. John Shipp, a poor boy and the son of a private, achieved the unique record of twice winning a commission from the ranks in our Army.

It is in foreign armies, however, that our talented Tommies reap the richest rewards. Take the case of the Earl of Stirling, who, overwhelmed with debt, emigrated to America, enlisted as a private, and rose to be a brigadier-general. By cleverly availing himself of the fluctuating conditions of the currency he was ultimately able to pay off a debt of £80,000 with but £1,000 in gold and silver! His case recalls that of one of the Earls of Lindsay, who had been a sergeant in our Army, and was the son of a private soldier!

Probably no British soldier achieved more success overseas than Trooper Ward, of the Yorkshire Yeomanry. He was deputed to take some horses to the Prince of Parma (a principality in the kingdom of Italy), and his scathing criticism of the Prince's stables led to his being appointed the latter's personal groom and attendant at a high salary. His sound sense was so much appreciated that he was consulted on every occasion, given high military rank, and presented with jewelled swords and other honors. He thoroughly reformed the army in a way that raised the envy of neighboring States, was sent to Vienna as Ambassador, and while there saved his country a war with Austria.

The ex-trooper finally revisited England as baron and commander-in-chief of the army of Parma, and was received by Lord Palmerston, who called him "one of the most remarkable men of the age." On his return he found that his Royal patron had been murdered, and he was himself forced to fly for his life to Austria, where he died.

It was ordained that another British private—James Hastie—should carry through similar important reforms in a foreign land. He accompanied his regiment, the 56th, to Mauritius in "Waterloo year," when he held the rank of sergeant. His bravery there—not fighting, but extinguishing a fire—earned him a commission, and he entered the Governor's service. Shortly afterwards Radama, King of Madagascar, sent two of his sons to Mauritius to learn English, and the ex-private was appointed their tutor. Consequently, he returned with them to Madagascar, became British Resident there, and gained enormous influence, his reforms including the abolition of the export slave trade. He also reorganized the army on the European model, and his death was made the occasion for a great demonstration by the Madagascans, the King writing of him: "Many may boast much, but none will do as much as he has done."

Plenty of Jaw.

Two cockney "ladies" were discussing each other publicly. One said something about the other's "jaw," or "jore." "Garn," answered her opponent, "you've got enough jaw for two sets of teeth, you 'ave."

ON A CAPITAL OF $1.25.

Wholesale Business Built Up In Ten Years by Two Women.

Two Philadelphia women of German descent here built up in less than ten years an extensive wholesale business as the result of an original investment in stocks that took a capital of exactly $1.25.

The stocks are not of the kind that are listed on exchanges or dealt in on the curb, but of the kind that women wear about their necks. One of the women was somewhat listlessly making a stock for her own adornment one day when she suddenly exclaimed:

"I wish I could make some money."

"Why not do for pay what you are now doing for amusement?" said a friend who sat by.

The idea took. The young women and a cousin bought $1.25 worth of material, made several stocks and had no difficulty in selling them.

That was the beginning of a business that has since occupied the whole time of both partners. For a while one of them who drew pretty well was the designer of the firm. As business grew it was more economical to employ a well paid designer who could give his whole time to that part of the work.

By this time the partners had begun to employ girls to do the actual making of the stocks. At first the work was done by a few girls in Philadelphia. The number of employees increased, and it became good business to establish branch houses, for by this time the trade of the partners was wholesale instead of retail. Houses were established in Baltimore, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, and the business went on growing.

By this time the two partners gave themselves wholly to the management of the business and the purchase of materials. They now go twice a year to Europe to study modes and buy materials, they have several well paid designers, and the persistance of the fashion of wearing stocks has kept the business constantly active and profitable.

Success also has given the partners confidence, and they feel that they are not at the mercy of the capricious Parisian milliners who set the modes of the world. If women quit wearing stocks the partners will take up something else.

Meanwhile the partners have had a busy and happy life, with an almost constantly increasing income and a broadening horizon. They have built for themselves a comfortable home in the upper part of Philadelphia, and they see almost every year a good deal of the European world. They had no more expectation of a business career ten years ago than a hundred thousand other girls in their native city.

The Wheel Problem.

The answer to this question seems simple enough, but probably nine persons out of ten, asked at random, would give the wrong reply. It would appear at first sight that the top and bottom must be moving at the same rate—that is, the speed of the carriage. But by a little thought it will be discovered that the bottom of the wheel is in fact, by the direction of its motion around its axis, moving backward, in an opposite direction to that which the carriage is advancing and is consequently stationary in space, while the point on top of the wheel is moving forward with the double velocity of its own motion around the axis and the speed at which the carriage moves.

"Mr. Burns of Battersea."

When Mr. John Burns became their President, the Local Government Board officials had a surprise in store for them. "Honest John" had all those who had been in the habit of coming late "on the carpet," and rated them soundly. In consequence, he soon earned the title of the "Autocrat of Whitehall."

Mr. Burns tells of himself that one night he was helping his mother home from Park Lane with a basket of laundry, at the bottom of which was some broken food for himself and his brothers. Near the Houses of Parliament he sat down on the basket, and, after a few minutes' thought, said:—

"Mother, if I have health and strength, no mother shall have to work as you have to, and no child do what I have to do."

The boy's first place was as a page; later he apprenticed himself to an engineering firm, and when he was through, went out to the West Coast of Africa.

As a labor organizer, he helped to carry through the great dock strike, using his influence to keep the 50,000 men involved from riot and violence. In 1887 he was arrested at a meeting in Trafalgar Square, and served three months' imprisonment. He has been M.P. for Battersea since 1892.

O.A.C. Overcrowded.

President George C. Creelman, of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, spent a whole morning recently with Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture, and C. C. James, Deputy Minister, with regard to remedying the overcrowded condition of the college. There is a waiting list at Macdonald Institute, and every class room is filled.

Fees for students outside of Canada have been raised from $40 to $100, and to Canadian students from $40 to $50. There are seventy students from the United States.

The president of the college regards the condition as serious, and is anxious that the Government should do something to relieve the situation at once.

Nearly Sold Out.

A countryman was enjoying his first visit to London. He strolled about the streets and gazed with wonder and admiration at the shop windows.

Soon he came to a lawyer's office, where, of course, there was nothing for sale. This surprised him, so he opened the door and walked in. In the room sat two clerks hard at work writing.

One of the clerks, thinking to get some fun out of the visitor, replied, "Fools."

"You must have had a quick sale, then, to have only two left," retorted the countryman.

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

The DAY of the DUEL

THE FINAL TEST

(A TRUE STORY)

"ARE YOU READY?" HE ASKED, FINALLY.

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"Hold on now, Tom," said Ashton soothingly. "Didn't you go for to get excited. He was with her, and I'll tell you about it if you'll keep cool."

The younger man released his hold and walked away a few steps, struggling to control himself. "Go on, Tom. I'm all right. Where were they?"

"Why, I was coming along by the Moore plantation along about nine o'clock, I reckon. That was while you was away in Louisville. I jess looked up at the house, casual like, and there was a blot of white against the bushes over under the sycamores. Squinting close, I saw a dark figure alongside it. Now, I thought it was kinder strange, 'cause that was where you used to set and spark Diana, on the bench there, and I didn't see what right any one at all had to be on that bench when you was away.

"Maybe you wouldn't have done it if you was in my place, Tom, but I wanted to make sure. Here was you, Tom White, miles away. And here was some one, maybe not Diana Moore, but some one, setting with a man. So I climbed over the fence and come up close."

"Well?" interrupted White impatiently, as the other paused.

"Well," resumed the other simply, "it was Diana, and the man with her was Barton Johnson."

"After what he's done, after what she knows of him! What were they saying, Steve? What else? Did they seem to be friendly?" asked White breathlessly.

"Yes," said Ashton judiciously. "I should say they was friendly. That's the trouble, Tom—they was altogether too friendly. I didn't hear much they said, but it was enough. And he was setting as close as he could get, with her head on his shoulder, and there you have it."

Ashton had disliked his task from the first, had gone through with it, driven by a sense of obligation, the outgrowth of an almost paternal fondness for White. He had feared an explosion, but none came. White's earlier excitement had passed. A sudden and strange [illegible] him. He fought a chair quietly and faced his old friend. Ashton, rendered quite as uneasy by this foreign reserve as he would have been by the storm he had feared, did not break the silence for some minutes. Then he sought clumsily to lend his aid.

"She's not worth it, Tom, and that's the truth. I never could see where Diana Moore held a hand to pull you with. I remember her when she was a little minx, pert and sassy, tossing her pigtails and a mighty sharp answer when she was crossed. Nothing was ever good enough for her more'n a minute. She'd smash a doll or a friendship when it pleased her. As hard and bright and shifty as a new steel spring—that's Diana."

White seemed not to have heard the words.

"Have I ever done anything but what's right by her, Steve?" he asked suddenly, and from the tone the elder man knew that, happily or not, wisely or unwisely, Thomas White had given his love past the power of friends to reclaim.

The Two Friends.

"No, Tom, no," he said sadly. "You can't reproach yourself in no way, whatever comes. You've always been fair and square, that I'll stand by." White [illegible] his eyes fixed vacantly at the empty fireplace, as if seeking the warm glow that once had filled it.

"I wonder if you understand what she meant to me, Steve? You remember how it was when I came here. I had no kin, no friend but yourself, and in spite of the way you stood by me it was a hard road—hard. Then I met her, and that gave me what my ambition had lacked—a definite object. When I came back with my medical degree you welcomed me. That was good, and it was good, too, to feel that I had made myself of some consequence in the town that first saw me as a barefoot vagabond.

"But the one thing I thought of was her welcome, the only thing I had thought of for years. And it was all I could have asked. You remember, Steve, within a month we were engaged. That was a year ago, and I have worked, haven't I, Steve?" The elder man nodded.

"I had almost enough for a home. We planned it together. Then I began to notice Johnson, not much at first but after a time I spoke to her about him. She resented it. I told her, just as I would have in his or any one's presence, that he was utterly discredited, notoriously unworthy—a man who ruined his family and [illegible] father died of shame for him. He had some hold over Moore in gaining entrance to the house. I don't know what.

"It was no quarrel, Steve. After a little she yielded. She gave me her promise, without reservation, that she would never see him again. Then I was called away on an important case. I have been successful, Steve, and I came back to claim her. And now I learn—what you have told me."

"What you going to do, Tom?" asked Ashton uneasily.

"I'll do what must be done, Steve. As I see it, all my life—all any man's life—is a series of tests, tests of fitness, of courage, of intelligence, of worthiness. An simple simile, perhaps, but so it seems to me. As we pass, as we grade, as we measure up to the standard, so we fix our value absolutely."

Ashton wondered at him. White since boyhood had been of a high strung, restless, rather fiery temperament. He could scarce recognize the ardent youth he had known in this grave, pale man who had come into being, within half an hour and talked gloomily of tests and standards. But so it was, he reflected, when a woman interfered.

"Whatever you mean, Tom," said the elder, shaking hands at parting, "I hope you think I have done right to tell you. I'm an old meddler, maybe, but 'twasn't for meddling I did it. I couldn't stand by and let any one play it low down on you, you that there's nothing too good for."

After the dinner hour, at his usual time, White made his way to the Moore plantation. Word of his arrival must have preceded him, he thought, for she was standing at the verge of the steps. The soft light from the wide doorway made a kindly setting for her dainty figure, clad in filmy stuff, erect and well poised. She welcomed him back with just the right degree of tenderness, hands outstretched. For a moment he forgot and drew her eagerly toward him. Her face was upturned to his, an eager little face, full of the fire of living, with lips and eyes that called.

Sharply he checked himself, held her back. She looked at him in wonder. He led her without a word down the steps and to the bench under the sycamores; then, when they were seated, spoke.

Confidences.

"I wonder if you would have told me of this yourself."

The deep intensity of his voice rather than his words gave her the clew to his meaning, and her mouth hardened. He dwelt with bitterness in his thoughts upon the fact that she had been ready to meet him on the old footing, to accord him the privileges that he had a right to, as if nothing had happened. "Did you think you could continue to play with me? And for how long?"

She laughed, recovering perfect command and nimbly adjusting herself to the situation. "Whatever else I think, I should say you had changed wonderfully in the last two weeks," she answered audaciously.

"Two weeks, and changed!" he repeated slowly. "Yes, you are right. And what of yourself, Diana? But one parried. He remembered now that it was never her way to be frank and direct.

"What is it, a game? I've never seen you this way, Tom, and I don't think I quite like it."

"It's no use, Diana. You know perfectly well what I mean. I shall not talk about myself, for that part lacks sufficient interest to me at present and can have none at all for you. But I have some remnants of a claim upon you. Have you considered this well? Are you going to be happy? Is he the man to best serve you and protect you?"

His earnestness overbore and swept aside the stinging response she had ready, forcing her to the open, away from subterfuge and frivolity.

"I shall have to be the judge as to what is best for me, Dr. White," she said.

"That would be true if you had fairly dismissed me and had dealt fairly with me. But I find you covering this new affair under our engagement. You seek to continue our relations and to deceive me. What can I think? Is the man honorable, sincere? I know that he is not. Then see how sinister you make it appear when for such a one you are willing to be mean and treacherous."

She rose quickly and started toward the steps. "That is quite enough, Dr. White," she gasped. "I do not care to listen to you." He caught her and she murmured a few words and White bowed. They faced him defiantly.

"Listen," he said. "If you love the man it is all right. I have nothing more to say. As for him, if he means well by you and acts as it now becomes necessary he should, that, also, will be none of my affair. But I shall watch." She broke from him with an exclamation and movement of repugnance and ran up the steps. He turned back toward his home.

A week later it was common report throughout the county that Diana Moore had broken her engagement to Dr. White and was to be married to Barton Johnson. Comment was not favorable. The young physician was known and respected as a man of ability and of greater promise. Johnson had led a life that left a crop of ugly stories along his track. It was not merely that he had been reckless or dissipated, for that the community was ever ready to look upon with a lenient eye. But forgery and theft, though legally cancelled, according to the rumors, by the sacrifice of the patrimonial estate, were more serious matters.

White went quietly about his duties. Ashton, who kept fatherly watch upon him, could discern no outward signs of stress or suffering. Only, the brilliant boy he had loved was gone, and in his stead was the repressed, grave eyed man who had looked into the cold fireplace. He no longer had White's full confidence, and he never inquired into the meaning of several long journeys taken by the physician during the next month. He grieved a little over this withdrawal, but made no protest.

"Will He Fight?"

The aged man sat over a pipe at his door one evening when he saw White walking rapidly toward him up the street. The physician had been absent for three days and evidently had just returned from a long and dusty journey. Ashton hailed him cheerfully and pushed forward a chair, into which the other sank. Ashton noted that he looked fatigued, with drawn, pale face and listless shoulders.

"Will he fight?" asked White suddenly.

"Perhaps he will and perhaps he won't," said Ashton. "But who is he?"

"Johnson."

"Seem to have heard somewhere that he was pretty likely at them games. Why?"

"Because I've found him out. He's married. I followed his trail back into Illinois. I've seen his wife. She's in an insane asylum, under her name. Her mind is not seriously affected. She showed me a picture of him and the wedding certificate. They were married in New York six years ago."

"What's that got to do with fighting?"

"I must. It's just another test, Steve, that's all, and I've got to meet it. I can't go sneaking to her father or to her with the story, can I? I can't strike him in the dark that way. No. I've got to do my best to rid her of him honorably, acting as her brother would if she had one."

"And what if he gets you?"

"Then my obligation to keep his secret is cancelled. I'll take care to have the truth known. Meanwhile, the clean way and the straight way and the only way for me is to kill him."

"All right, son," said Ashton. "I'm here."

It was not a difficult matter to bring to a head. White had been conscious of the hostile glances of Johnson when they passed in the street, aware that Diana must have repeated enough of his warning to awaken hatred in his successful rival. With Ashton at his elbow the physician waited for Johnson at the post office next morning. Few persons observed the little scene that followed. When Johnson entered the door White stepped up to him and, shouldering him to one side, glanced at him significantly. Johnson separated, saluting politely.

Ashton pleaded to be named as second, but White would not permit, fearing that his aged friend might be involved in any unpleasant results. He chose another young physician—Greenway—and gave him instructions as to the terms. Greenway met Johnson's second the same day and completed the arrangements. The men were to meet with double barrelled shotguns, loaded with ounce balls, at forty paces. Upon receiving the word, both were to advance, firing at will.

White, accompanied only by Ashton and Greenway, drove from town early the next morning unobserved. The ground chosen for the meeting was about five miles distant, on the bank of a small creek. The party was closely followed along the road by another vehicle, in which were Johnson, his second and a third man. White was astonished to find, when the others drove up, that the third man was Ezra Moore, Diana's father. He seemed to be rather pleased than annoyed at the presence of this unexpected witness.

Johnson, tall, handsome and perfectly at ease, exercised great care in inspecting the ground and in superintending the loading of the shotguns. His second won the toss for position and was about to choose one end of the field when Johnson checked him and indicated that he preferred the other. The second was a little surprised, but understood a moment later when Johnson quietly pointed out to him that the ground sloped a trifle and that his end was now the lower.

Death at Once.

When White took his place he appeared as composed and confident as his opponent, and the watchers could find nothing to choose between them. Neither betrayed the slightest nervousness and each handled his heavy weapon after the manner of a crack shot. Greenway stood between them, out of the line of fire, to give the word. He repeated the agreement, adding that dodging, retreating or moving from side to side would not be permitted.

"Are you ready?" he asked finally.

"Ready!" the adversaries answered in the same breath.

"Fire!" shouted Greenway.

Both brought their shotguns to shoulder. They stood a moment, each waiting for the other to fire. Then White began to walk forward slowly, still keeping [illegible] covered. When he had made five paces Johnson fired one barrel. White halted a moment while the smoke cleared, then renewed his advance. Suddenly he stopped short and pressed a trigger. Johnson's second barrel spoke scarcely the fraction of a second later. With the last echo of the double explosion the watchers saw White reel, drop his weapon and throw up his arms. He remained erect for an instant, then fell at full length.

Ashton rushed forward and gathered his friend in his arms. The physician was dead, shot through the body. Even in that tragic moment the aged man remembered that he had a mission to perform, and he pulled a letter from his pocket.

"Moore," he called, "here's a note for you. He said you were to have it if he died."

Moore came forward, surprised by this turn of the situation. He took the letter from Ashton and opened it. Ashton shot a look of hate at Johnson, who was walking slowly toward the group, while Moore read.

"See here, Johnson," said Moore sharply when he reached the signature, "what's this story? White wrote here that he found you had a wife living. Is that true?"

Johnson stared, then laughed immoderately. "Is that what made him fight? I wondered what screwed him up to it at this time. I suppose he found Sarah, then. Did he find her?"

"The letter says that your wife is in a certain asylum in Illinois and gives full particulars."

"I haven't a doubt of it," said Johnson, still laughing. "He must have gone to see her. It is a fact that she is Mrs. Johnson, Moore, but we were divorced three years ago. One of the poor creature's troubles was that she never could remember the divorce and that she still believed herself my wife. I have all the papers with me to prove it, Moore, and you need never let me step into your house again if I fail to convince you."

"All right," said Moore, "I'm glad you can clear it up."

LINCOLN'S ONLY DUEL.

IN Abraham Lincoln's one meeting on the field of honor no shot was fired, no one was hurt, and but a single blow was struck. That blow was aimed by the future President at a twig, which suffered accurate decapitation.

The affair is commonly referred to as "the famous Lincoln-Shields duel," a widely misleading phrase. The fact remains, however, that the great humanitarian was once drawn under the operations of the code and that he sallied forth with a deadly weapon ready to his hand, apparently with deadly intent. His opponent was to have been James Shields, then State Auditor of Illinois and later major general.

Shields was a peppery, swaggering little man who took himself with much seriousness, and was constantly the object of jokes, personal and political. Lincoln was then a member of the Legislature. He wrote a letter to a Springfield paper dated from "Lost Townships" and signed "Aunt Rebecca," in which he attacked a certain taxation provision. Incidentally he took a quiet rap at Shields.

Lincoln's broken engagement with Mary Todd was then in process of repair, and the young woman was mightily amused by the young legislator's contribution. She wielded a sharply satirical pen herself and is suspected of having had a hand in the original letter. Whatever her share in the first, she is commonly credited with the authorship of the second, in which "Aunt Rebecca" proposed to the Auditor, one of whose weaknesses was a pride in his gallantry. A few days later she also produced some doggerel verse celebrating the supposed marriage of "Aunt Rebecca" and Shields.

There was laughter in Springfield, but Shields was furious. He inquired at the office of the newspaper and Lincoln took the responsibility for the whole "Aunt Rebecca" series upon himself. Soon afterward Lincoln left Springfield and went to Tremont. While he was there two friends, H. H. Merryman and William Butler, drove into town and warned him that the Auditor was close behind, breathing vengeance. On arriving Shields sent a demand for retraction of all "offensive allusions." Lincoln took the stand that the Auditor should have first asked him formally whether he was the author of the articles, would not answer, and declared that a withdrawal of the demand or a challenge was the only possible course for Shields. Seconds were accordingly named, Merryman for Lincoln and General Whiteside for the Auditor. Lincoln's conditions were:

"First.—Weapons—Cavalry broadswords of the largest size, precisely equal in all respects, and such as are now used by the cavalry company at Jacksonville.

"Second.—Position—A plank ten feet long and from nine to twelve inches broad, to be firmly fixed on edge on the ground as the line between us, which neither is to pass his foot over on forfeit of his life. Next a line drawn on the ground on either side of said plank and parallel with it, each at the distance of the whole length of the plank and three feet additional from the plank, and the passing of his own such line by either party during the fight shall be deemed a surrender of the contest."

He also named time and place, and on September 22, 1842, Lincoln and Merryman drove into the town of Alton, on the Mississippi, with broadswords enough to equip a regiment rattling in the bottom of the buggy.

The suggestion that Shields, who "could walk under Lincoln's arm," should fight his lanky, long limbed adversary with a sword as tall as himself was sufficiently ludicrous. But the preparations went forward with all due ceremony. The one touch of humor which "Old Abe" added to the situation at this point was the remark that the place selected was singularly appropriate, since it was within easy distance of the penitentiary. Shields and Whitesides arrived, and all embarked on the little horse ferry, each second carrying a selection of the huge dragoon sabres under his arm.

Landing was effected on a low sandspit on the Missouri side, where the two principals sat on opposite logs while preliminaries were being arranged. The residents of Alton were extremely curious to view the proceedings. None of them was allowed to cross on the ferry, however, and the spectators were limited to those who rowed across in skiffs. A crowd remained on the levee, watching as best they might.

It was remarked that Lincoln was solemn and unmoved. He sat looking over the river, apparently oblivious of the preparations. Suddenly he reached over and picked up one of the sabres, drew it from its scabbard and felt its edge critically along the length. Then he arose slowly. The [illegible] watched him curiously, but his glance was turned upward. After a few seconds he found what he sought, fixed his eye on a certain twig that thrust itself ambitiously out from the foliage far over head and braced himself on his feet. The sword swung out and back, then whistled up in a wide circle, and the twig, neatly lopped, fell to the ground. After this little exhibition Lincoln gravely resumed his seat.

The demonstration of his opponent's terrific reach was probably soothing to the ardor of Shields, but unexpected intervention removed the necessity of submitting himself as a twig for pruning. Other friends of Lincoln at Carrollton had been notified of the affair and arrived in time to reopen peaceable negotiations. Honor was finally declared satisfied on both sides and the whole party climbed into the ferryboat once more.

The crowds on the Alton levee were in a great state of excitement as the boat drew near. A figure with stained clothing was seen lying in the bow. Others were stooping above it and one of them was fanning vigorously. Evidently there had been a sanguine ending to the duel, and bets were hazarded as to which had suffered. It was only when the boat drew up to the landing that the agitated spectators saw that the victim of the fray was a log carefully covered with a red shirt. Lincoln and Shields stepped ashore together, conversing amicably.

Lincoln has been quoted as saying that he would only have fought in self-defence, and that then he would have "cleft Shields from the crown of his head to the end of his backbone." Another unverified report more in keeping with his conduct throughout this incident was that he played Shields a game of "old sledge" to determine which should pay the expenses of the trip to Alton and that Shields lost.

BED IS MOST IMPORTANT.

The bed is acknowledged to be the most important article in the house by that law which declares that, no matter what a man's obligations to his debtors, his bed he may not be deprived of. A generous expenditure on that piece of furniture on which you spend a good third of a lifetime and on whose comfort your health so deeply depends is therefore more worth while than some women of limited incomes would seem to realize.

In choosing the mattress, to begin with, it is well to know that most hair mattresses for full sized beds weigh forty pounds. When the hair is shorter they are sometimes made to weigh forty-five pounds. The cost of the mattress varies according to the quality of the hair used and the amount. The best hair is the pure South American drawings—that is, long hairs, very curly and full of vitality, drawn from the tails and manes of South American horses, says Harper's Bazar.

The prepared cotton felt mattresses are both sanitary and comfortable. They cost about $15. They are infinitely better than the poor quality hair mattresses.

Cheaper than these and not comparing with them in value are those made of ordinary cotton felt, costing about $7.50, still better than a poor hair; cotton and wool at $5, African fiber with cotton top at $4.50 and, least desirable of all, the excelsior with cotton top and bottom at $2.50. Neither the fiber nor the excelsior is comfortable, and the excelsior soon breaks and mats down very unevenly.

In buying mattresses as well as box springs it is well to remember that imperial edges and fancy ticks, although attractive, add no real value to the mattress and increase the price considerably. Divided mattresses for double beds cost 50 cents more than the single mattresses.

The best pillows are made of live geese feathers. The softest are made of live geese feathers and down, but they are not the most practical. Pillows made from duck feathers are not so good and much less expensive.

THE EMANCIPATED BEE.

A Story With a Mighty Good Suffragette Moral.

A colony of bees is a demonstration of the capabilities of the weaker sex. They manage everything and see to everything, and the most ardent opposer of the suffrage must admit that the work is well done, that the hive is a model of cleanliness and order and—greatest wonder of all—the large family of many hundred members live happily together. There is no ill will against the drones. They are housed and fed until the winter shortage of food makes such philanthropy impossible. There is no choice in the matter of this extermination, and no favor is shown. It is a different matter to the swarming, which drives half the inmates out of the hive to seek a new home. But of all the incidents in the lives of the bees that which stands out with terrible insistence is the death of the queen when she has reared her brood—a death which seems a fitting termination to a life of royal despotism. It is not a violent death; no sting is inflicted to end her life, but a crowd of workers closes round her, and in this living prison she slowly dies.

There are other things about bees quite as wonderful as their rule of life. Their eyes reflect in a hundred facets many things which perhaps we cannot see, and those triple eyes set in the center of the forehead have, it may be, a powerful vision more wonderful still. Bees may hear sounds which are beyond our range of hearing with the same superabundance of a single sense.

These endowments are no part of their powers of work, for the eyes of the drones are yet larger and more powerful than the eyes of the workers—a necessary qualification, perhaps, for those who look on. Do they criticise the busy Marthas who toil around them, as is often the way of the idle? If so, the workers heed them not, but still go working on.

THE SILLY SEASON.

Mothers Worried About Daughters Meeting the Wrong Men.

More than one young woman's mother is making herself unnecessarily miserable this summer for fear the cherished daughter will want to marry the wrong sort of man. Her worry is as useless as it is out of place, if she could but realize it, for in a way no one is more competent to make the decision than the two young people involved.

This is, of course, a modern view and one that presupposes no such involved requirements as were wont to be laid down in the days when parents, on the assumption of the infallibility of their own wisdom, arranged matches according to their own ideas. Such times are happily nearly extinct in this country, for the young American woman feels it her inalienable right to take a portion of her destiny into her own hands.

Mothers have one right that none but writers of melodrama will deny them—that is, to insist on a daughter's waiting until she is old enough to marry. The maturity not of years, but of experience, is a safeguard without which few can risk that decision which is to the woman the destiny of the best two-thirds of her lifetime.

She must know herself, and she must know men. She must have some groundwork of comparison, some definite standard, on which to base her judgment, for every quality is relative, and the man who may seem to the seventeen-year-old a marvel of cleverness may bore her at twenty-three. Nor does the seventeen-year-old yet know her own tastes and temperament sufficiently to know whether any given person is congenial.

Till she has attained her full growth—mental, physical and spiritual—and come to realize her own needs, how can she tell anything about who can fulfill those needs?

Statistics show that twenty-five years ago girls married at the average age of nineteen. Owing possibly to the complexity of present day conditions this average has risen to about twenty-four years, and it ought to be even higher for the college girl, who practically stops living the life of experience during those years that she devotes to her books.

There is also the question of what one owes the nation, though this fortunately coincides with some of the qualities on which personal happiness depends. I refer to health and strength, for the fine physical specimen can make a way against all odds, besides having the one heritage that money cannot buy to hand down to the children.

Incidentally, as the scientists are every day pointing out to us, good health has a good deal to do with good brains and disposition. The value of this one vital qualification every mother owes it to her daughter to impress upon her, and if it were oftener done it is safe to say that there would be a very great deal less misery of all sorts.

A Convenient Zinc Table.

The housekeeper who has once known the convenience of a zinc table with a ledge around it in her kitchen will never again be without one, even if she must improvise it.

Such tables can be bought at comparatively small cost. Some of them have an undershelf, also zinc covered, where hot pans or dishes can be stood until one has time to wash them.

Any wooden kitchen table with strong legs can be covered by a tinner with a sheet of zinc for about $2. The metal fits the top of the table and is turned up all around in an inch high ledge.

Such a table saves many times its cost in preventing breaking, keeping water from "slopping" on the floor and being easily cleaned.

AUSTRALIAN DINGOS.

Treacherous and Destructive Animals That Can Feign Death.

There are some who believe, though the evidence seems against them, that certain of the wild dogs, like the Australian dingo—"yellow dog dingo, always hungry, dusty in the sun"—are reversions to the wild state of a race once tame, just as the pariah dogs of various countries have traveled half the road toward becoming wild animals again.

As one sees the dingo here in the gardens it looks not merely like a domesticated dog, but like a dog of a distinctly engaging and amicable kind. The dingo's character belies its gentle looks. "Quarrelsome, sly and treacherous," an Australian naturalist has called it. So sly is it that, according to Mr. Beddard in "The Cambridge Natural History," it feigns death "with such persistence that an individual has been known to be partly flayed before moving" and so treacherous that in the days when dingos were more commonly kept as pets by the colonists than, as a result of bitter experience, is the case today it was no unusual thing for the dog which had been brought up with every tenderness from puppyhood to turn suddenly on its master or mistress, or, what was more frequent, when left in temporary charge of an empty house to seize the opportunity to raid the sheepfold or the poultry runs.

On such occasions it "ravens" even as the wolf, killing not to satisfy its hunger, but in the unrestrainable fury of a brute instinct, so that, given time enough, it will not leave one fowl or one sheep alive. That it does not need much time, moreover, is shown by the statement of Thomas Ward that "one dingo in the course of a few hours has been known to destroy several score of sheep." For its fighting ability the same authority declares it to be a match for most domestic dogs of double its size.

When wild it hunts in packs, which are said sometimes to include as many as a hundred individuals, though from six to a dozen is the common number, and the only Australian animal which it is uncertain if the pack can ever pull down is (in spite of Mr. Kipling) the "old man" kangaroo.—London Times.

WOMEN IN TROUSERS.

Some Whose Work Compels Them to Dispense With Draperies.

The idea of a woman in trousers seems to be the most horrible that the modern civilized mind can conjure up, but there are parts of the world where women wear these garments as a matter of course, and the heavens have not yet fallen. They even contrive to look charming in them, too, as in one of the cantons of Switzerland, where the bifurcated garment is worn on dress occasions as well as for work. Not even at the altar are the trousers discarded. The bride wears white ones, with a white bodice and white flowers in her hair, and many a bride in a court train is less shy and sweet in spite of their trousers, which are necessitated by the work they do in the fields, these women do not ride astride, but use a sidesaddle just like the woman who is trammeled by skirts.

The trousers of Switzerland are loose, baggy affairs, sometimes almost as cumbersome as skirts, but the peasant maids of the Austrian Tyrol wear short, close fitting small clothes, which cannot impede their movements in any way and which are not particularly becoming. The socks do not meet the trousers and the knee is left bare, like a highlander's. The upper part of the costume has some feminine touches, and over the trousers is a short drapery, which may be the remains of a skirt. These women work in the fields and stables and are compelled by their life to dispense with superfluous draperies.

French and Belgian fisherwomen wear trousers. They wade through the water, pushing their nets before them, and the heavy waves would soon sweep them off their feet if they wore skirts. Even without them they are obliged to go out in little parties for mutual protection.

In China, where they do most things differently from the rest of the world, the women wear trousers and the men do not disdain skirts. The women also smoke. In Turkey, before Paris fashions invaded the harem, trousers were worn by the women, while the cigarette is an indispensable part of their lives.—New York Tribune.

George IV.'s Hoardings.

One of the most inveterate hoarders on record was George IV. Not only was he averse to destroying books and papers, but he preserved everything that could possibly be kept. When he died all the suits of clothes he had worn for twenty years were discovered and sold by public auction. His executors also found secreted in various desks, drawers and cupboards numerous purses and pocketbooks crammed full of money to the extent, it is said, of £20,000, together with more sentimental treasures in the form of locks of hair from the tresses of forgotten beauties of the court.—London Graphic.

ENDURANCE

In that memorable Marathon Race at the last Olympic Games, in London, Eng., OXO was served to practically every competitor. Many of the runners, including the winner and the third and fifth men, put their appreciation in writing.

In Great Britain, where everyone knows OXO, long distance walkers, runners and cyclists, football players and athletes generally train on OXO, and rely on it to keep them fit during their contests.

Lieut. Shackleton, returning from his sledge journeys toward the South Pole, cabled from Christchurch, New Zealand, on March 26th last:

"Found OXO excellent on sledge journeys and throughout the winter."

No more striking tribute was ever given by a great man to a great food. It speaks volumes for the superiority of OXO, which Lieut. Shackleton valued highly enough to take it with him in his grim struggle with death itself on perilous sledge journeys.

One of the constituents of OXO has the remarkable power of removing the effects of muscular fatigue, thus enabling a tired muscle to become active again.

Nothing can take the place of OXO—because nothing is so good. OXO is the concentrated excellence, both in nutrition and flavour, of prime, pedigreed beef, every ounce of which comes from OXO'S own Cattle.

For health, vitality and stamina follow the example of those who know, and drink OXO.

A CONVICT'S SHOE.

Novel Device Which Makes a Prisoner's Escape Impossible.

A shoe which will make impossible the escape of convicts while being transported from one point to another is described in Popular Mechanics.

The device consists of a heavy boot or shoe, with a perforated sole, to which is attached a second sole of steel plate, joined so that the whole will bend with the usual motion of the toes and foot. Riveted upright to this steel sole are sharp spikes, placed in such a position that they will enter the perforations of the leather sole, but kept from ordinarily doing so by cross bars with a series of steel springs on either side.

The whole contrivance is fastened to the prisoners foot by means of metal straps, held secure by a padlock. With the crossbars in position the prisoner can walk in the shoes as in ordinary ones, but once the convict is placed on a train or other conveyance the officer releases the crossbars and locks them in such position that they cannot be replaced between the spikes and perforations without a key. The only thing that now keeps the spikes from entering the perforations and gouging into the criminals foot is the springs. Those are of sufficient strength to protect him from harm so long as he is seated, but if he stands up and attempts to walk the weight of his body compresses them enough to make it impossible for him to stand the anguish of more than a step or two.

Atmospheric Centers.

M. Dealandres recently explained to the Paris Academy of Sciences how, according to the studies of Messrs Teisserenc de Bort and Hildebrandson, there exist in the earth's atmosphere "centers of action," which have a wide control over climatic conditions and make it possible to foretell the character of the weather long in advance. One of the most important of these centers is around Iceland and according as the atmospheric pressure there is high or low, mild or severe winters result in central Europe. The North cape is another similar center, and between these focuses a kind of compensation of action often exists, sometimes at intervals of six months. A warm summer at the North cape corresponds to a cold winter in Iceland and is followed by cold winds in central Europe and over the plains of Hungary. The cause of the phenomena, M. Hildebrandson thinks, is to be found in the variations of the north polar ice cap, which constitutes the great reservoir of cold for the northern hemisphere.

Hot Air as a Polisher.

The marvels of friction are infinite. The use of the sand blast for polishing metals is quite a recent invention, and now it is followed by that of a blast of simple hot air. It is the velocity that gives the polishing power. The articles to be treated are placed in a basket in a centrifugal machine driven at a very high speed, and heated air is blown from a pipe through the basket. A high polish is thus produced very rapidly. Nickel plated articles that have become tarnished are made bright in a few minutes. Wet metal, fresh from the bath, needs no preliminary drying, for the current of air dries and polishes at the same moment. It is only necessary to so pack the articles that the air reaches them on all sides.—Youth's Companion.

Capitalizing a Voice.

Floating a young lady's voice as a limited liability company sounds somewhat Gilbertian, yet it has actually been done in Australia. A syndicate with a capital of £1,000 in one pound shares has been formed to send a girl with a remarkable voice to be trained by Mme. Marchesi in Paris. She has entered into an engagement to give on her return a series of concerts in the principal Australian cities under the direction of the syndicate, whose members hope and expect in this way to get their capital back plus a substantial dividend.—London Chronicle.

Largest Decorative Painting.

"Another record has been broken," says the Paris correspondent of a German paper. "This time the size of a painting will stand for the new record. Until now it has been supposed that the Tintoretto 'Paradise' in the palace of the doges, in Venice, which covers a space equal to 154 square meters, was the largest work of that kind in existence. Maio-Nord's creation for the Paris courthouse will have a surface space of about 300 square meters and will undoubtedly be the largest decorative painting in the world."

UNCLE REMUS FUND.

Mrs. Wilson of Atlanta to Promote Interest in Snap Bean Farm.

Mrs. Arthur McDermott Wilson of Atlanta, who is now abroad with her husband, expects to begin active work when she returns for the Uncle Remus memorial fund, which has its headquarters in the Georgia capital. Mrs. Wilson, whom the women of Atlanta have chosen to lead them in the work of raising this fund, is one of the most prominent clubwomen of the south. She was at one time president of thirteen clubs and is now vice president of the United States Daughters of the Confederacy.

A Novel Bazaar.

Get at least ten persons to lend their houses or grounds. No matter if the distance between them is great. If rather far apart, enjoyment is greater. Also secure the free use of as many automobiles as you can get.

Each house is devoted to a different country and is treated accordingly. Only the lower rooms need be used, or, if preferred, pavilions or tents can be erected in the grounds.

The hostess should act as chairman for her special country, and there should be a corps of assistants for each country. As far as possible select the assistants with reference to their type. Thus the round faced, smiling blood should be assigned to Holland or Germany, no matter how much the chairman of Japan would like her help.

Each house or ground that represents a special country should be decorated typically of that land. The assistants should wear the costumes of the peasants. Any special foods or dishes that are peculiar to the people should be served, and the articles for sale should be such as are specially associated with the country. Thus Holland could be represented by some one who had a small pond or stream running through their grounds. There could be barges or small boats manned by Dutch sailors to take passengers for a ride—for a consideration. Near the shore could be a huge dairy arranged. the dairymaids arrayed in short skirts, flapping caps and sabots. A cow or two can be tethered to the outside of the dairy, and pretty milkmaids on fetching stools can fill the cup of buyers with fresh warm milk.

Use the pretty blue and white china with Dutch scenes painted on it. Have paper napkins, also Dutch, and sell dairy products, cheese, milk, cocoa, Dutch cake, schnitz, brown bread and potato salad. There could also be on sale sabots, tulips and other bulbs, either in bloom if the season be auspicious or some good varieties for planting in the autumn.

Perhaps one could get a jeweler to donate small pieces of Dutch silver to sell on commission, and small prints of Dutch pictures framed in narrow wooden or dark paper frames could be sold at a good profit.

Aim at novelty as far as possible in every nation. Thus, instead of having India typified by its foods and trinkets, there might be a tent or stage draped with oriental hangings and have nautch dances, readings of crystal balls, astrologers and other fortune telling stunts. There could be a snake charmer or juggler for further amusements, and through the audience could glide veiled maidens selling Indian sweetmeats, good luck charms and small idols.

VARSITY TO GUTTER.

The Pathos and Tragedy of Some Promising Careers.

The record—could one be kept—of the after-lives of the 2,000 'Varsity men who leave Oxford and Cambridge every year would be a document containing as much romance as a score of novels. Many of these men reach the highest positions life has to offer, many sink to its lowest depths.

At present, there is an Oxford M.A. acting as conductor of a suburban 'bus. No one but himself knows his real name, or his story. Passengers occasionally notice in his accent the tones of a cultured man, but to the eye he is, in dress and appearance, an ordinary 'bus conductor.

A few years ago, in a street near the docks, there stood daily a shabby man selling whelks. That man had been one of the highest Wranglers of his year at Cambridge. He got into trouble soon after leaving the 'Varsity, and was disowned by his family. For a time he acted as an assistant master in a grammar school. His disgrace followed him, and drove him from that employment. He could obtain no other, and before long the pressure of starvation had brought him down to the level of the outcast.

The writer, in his own undergraduate days, saw, one cold winter night, a miserable figure shivering outside the leading University hotel, just then brilliantly lighted, and full of noisy parties of undergraduates. The man was in the last stages of a fatal disease. He entered the hotel, and asked to see a member of one of the parties dining within. It was then that he told his wretched story, afterwards, in many particulars, confirmed. Twenty years before, he himself had been among the most rollicking of the careless undergraduates who used to make merry in that very hotel. On leaving the University he had lost his money and gone abroad, but had returned home to die.

The traveler who alights from a train at a certain lonely station on the West Australian goldfields will find a ramshackle cart waiting to convey him to the local "hotel." Its driver, with his ragged beard and sun-baked face, looks like a rather bad specimen of the "sun-downer." Fifteen years ago, however, he was a Cambridge "blood," who ran his racing stud at Newmarket and steeplechased at Coton. Racing ruined him; his friends cast him off. He got together enough money to emigrate to the goldfields, had bad luck there, and now drives the hotel 'bus.

Sometimes the lost 'Varsity man has become so from choice rather than compulsion. In a lonely part of the Rockies, wandering hunters sometimes see two desperate-looking figures in sun-tanned buckskin shirts of unskilled manufacture. They look like horse thieves. Really they are cultured English gentlemen, with an extensive knowledge of ancient Greek, who are merely living the life which happens to appeal to them more than any other. They left the 'Varsity with very little patrimony to support them, and, being unwilling to face the routine drudgery of a schoolmaster's life, they realized their small capital, went over to America, and there, in a lonely part of the great mountain chain, they built, with their own hands, a small hut. They support themselves entirely by their guns, and their only contact with their fellowmen is on the three occasions in the year when they take their single pack-horse, and make the 70-mile journey to the nearest town to replenish their stock of cartridges.

Father of the Territorials.

Undoubtedly, the greatest optimist of the Cabinet is Mr. Haldane, Secretary of State for War. He is also a great worker, and can do as much as any other two men.

Mr. Haldane is terribly learned, which may be gathered from the facts that he is a legal authority of the highest standing, that his recreation is philosophy, and his pet subject the scientific development of trade.

This sturdy Scot, who is the member for Haddingtonshire, is responsible for the Territorial Army, which is now so popular.

It will be remembered that some time ago Mr. Haldane startled the House of Commons by announcing that he was in the habit of carrying a walking-stick of solid cordite, and frequently left it in the members' cloak-room. Mr. Haldane is an expert on explosives, and knew—what all M.P.'s did not then know—that cordite is only dangerous when detonated by special chemical and mechanical devices.

Mr. Haldane is a great walker, as well as a great talker, having frequently done sixty to seventy miles in a day, just for the pleasure of it.

Will Be Huge Industry.

The announcement that Canada is destined to become an important factor in the cement industry of the world by being able to export to a number of different countries, was made a few days ago by J. N. Kilbourne, the managing director of the Lakefield Portland Cement Co.

Mr. Kilbourne stated that among the countries that Canada would be able to export to and meet the competition of the world were Mexico, the West Indies and South Africa, all of which have large growing markets for cement. The export business would be handled from the monster Vulcan and Lakefield plants at Longue Pointe, outside of Montreal, both of which are situated on deep water.

An Aristocratic Coal Merchant.

One of the largest coal-owners in this country is the Marquess of Londonderry, who has been disputing a statement made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer about the profits of coal-mining. Practically the whole of his huge income is derived from coal. As a landowner he draws royalties and wayleaves, and as railway shareholder he takes his percentage of the cost of sending the coal from the mines. Much of the product of his seams is brought to London in ships owned by himself, to be discharged at wharves which are his own property, and from there to be distributed in carts which bear his coronet. As a matter of fact, there is no profit in the business of marketing coal of which he does not obtain a share.

Prevents Falling Hair

A SCIENTIFIC ACHIEVEMENT

The world pays tribute to originality. Everyone wants the original. No matter what you are buying, one always seeks the original article, the real thing, the one that's genuine.

Newbro's Herpicide is the ORIGINAL remedy that kills the dandruff germ. The announcement of Profs. Unna and Sabouraud of the discovery of the dandruff germ presented a problem and that problem was "how to kill the germ." Herpicide solved it. Herpicide was the first, the real genuine germ destroyer.

THE OPINION OF A PROMINENT ATTORNEY

"I have been using Newbro's Herpicide for a number of Years. At first I used it for dandruff but since my troubles from that source have ceased I have continued for the pleasing effect it has upon the head. The use of Herpicide means a clean scalp, a good head of hair and a coat collar free from the appearance of grease. It is a luxurious hab't hard to break off when you have once become accustomed to it."

BRITISH TRADE IN CANADIAN APPLES

From Farm and Dairy.

It is beyond any peradventure of doubt that no other Canadian product —not even excepting the porcine and dairy products—has contributed to anything like the same ratio to create a good reputation and successful demand upon the English market for our many staple commodities, as the Canadian-grown apple, reports Mr. J. M. Mussen, Canadian Trade Commissioner, at Leeds, England. That it has been growing in favor on this market from the very inception of the trade is a well known fact, and it now behooves Canadian exporters to hold what it has taken many years to build up.

GOOD DEMAND THIS SEASON

Owing to the shortness of the fruit crop in England this year, which arose from several causes, chief among which being the cold winds that prevailed during the blossoming period, there is an unusually good demand for the imported apple. Fruit from our sister Dominions beyond the seas, notably Australia and Tasmania, where apple-orcharding, especially in the latter country, has become one of the chief sources of agriculture, does not reach this market until the middle of May on account of their seasons being the reverse of Canadian, consequently, Canadian apples come only in competition with those of the United States in this market, and as a shortage is reported in their crop, this should eventuate to the benefit of the Canadian grower and exporter.

Canadian apples are invariably given the premier place as the best-selling fruit on the market to-day on account of their flavor, size, and above all, their weight. Indeed, the latter consideration has been the means of inducing some firms to adopt the system of selling apples by weight, greatly to the disadvantage of the United States apple, as it is claimed that a barrel of the latter, on an average, will only be found to weigh 168 lbs. as against 182 lbs. of the Canadian barrel.

VARIETIES MOST FAVOURED

The Northern Spy, Baldwin and Kings, owing to their size, color and flavor, command the highest figures, and are the most sought after in this market. The Greening and Golden Russet come next, and are always in good demand at fair prices.

DESIRE FOR DIRECT IMPORTING

During the last few years there has arisen a desire, which is manifesting itself more and more year by year on the part of the fruit firms in the large inland centres, to obtain their apples direct from the actual growers in Canada. This has been made possible by the confidence created in the grading and packing of Canadian fruit. Nothing should be done on the part of exporter's fruit in the eyes of a new confidence, and nothing more disastrous could happen to the apple trade, which has taken years to build up, than to send over to this market apples improperly graded and badly packed. Bad packing on the part of a Canadian exporter, not only spoils the reputation of that particular exporter's fuit alone, but the whole of Canadian fruit in the eyes of a new importer on this side.

APPLE MEN SHOULD VISIT ENGLAND

It would well repay Canadian apple men to make a visit to this country in the 'off season' and make investigations on the spot; they would then come into contact with the sellers and learn infinitely more than they ever could by correspondence.

A good suggestion is also made that if a thin sheet of cardboard were to be inserted at the top and bottom of each barrel or box before fixing the tops, it would act as a means of keeping out the dust and grit which unfortunately enters the barrel during transit, and marks the apples by eating into the fruit causing them to become spotted.

OPENING FOR BOXED APPLES

Notwithstanding that the great percentage sold in this district must be packed in barrels, yet there are openings for supplying a limited demand for 'fancy' apples put up in boxes. Apples packed in this way are intended for supplying a high-class trade such as the demand for hotels, restaurants, and in the better-class suburbs. It is only the very choicest apples that should be consigned in this way, and the packing and general appearance of the box should be well in keeping with the purpose for which they are intended.

WOMEN GAMBLERS

What is the Casino's Gain is the Tradesman's Loss.

Enghien, Oct. 23.—Enghien, which besides a small lake boasts gaming tables, and has the advantage over Monte Carlo of being only twelve minutes from Paris, has never flourished as much as this year. The Casino net profits are expected to work out at about £400,000 for 1909.

This is very pleasant of course, for Enghien, but Paris, and in particular Parisian tradesmen object. Dressmakers, jewellers, furriers and milliners say that the number of their customers unpaid bills is in a direct rati to the takings of the Enghien tables.

Never did so few fashionable beauties settle their accounts as this year. These ladies are the mainstays of the gaming rooms, but they are, or are expected to be, also among the chief supporters of commerce de luxe.

They still order dresses, hats and jewelry enough, but they pay for them less than ever. Their tradesmen lay the blame upon Enghien. A woman with the real passion for the green tables in her blood and a ten-pound note in her purse, will probably not save it up to settle with her milliner.

A municipal councillor has proposed to start a casino with gaming tables in the Bois de Boulogne, also as being still nearer Paris, but tradesmen at this suggestion have sent up a howl of expostulation.

That would be the last straw, and at that rate no one would ever pay bills at all.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

TEMPERANCE FORCES COMPLETE ORGANIZATION.

A meeting of temperance workers from practically every polling division in Peterborough was held last Tuesday evening in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church. There was a quiet determination and aggressiveness manifested throughout the meeting last Tuesday, which showed how thoroughly in earnest those present were in their intention to drive the liquor traffic out of Peterborough. When leading citizens of Peterborough are willing to give their time to work for nothing in a cause of this kind, it may be taken as good evidence that victory for them is assured.

As the campaign progresses it is becoming evident that there are a large number of people who as yet have not taken any prominent part in the contest, but who are willing to do what they can to assist the carrying of local option. It is, therefore probable that a public mass meeting will be held some time soon which all those who are interested in the temperance cause will be invited to attend. They will be given an opportunity to make their views known that to assist in the contest It is anticipated that within a few weeks aggressive committees will be formed. There will be room on these committees for numerous workers and those who would like to assist are invited to do so.

Splendid Speakers for Peterborough.

One of the features of the local option campaign now under way in Peterborough is to be a series of meetings which will be addressed by well known men, not only from the city, but from other points in Canada and the United States as well. It is anticipated that these meetings will be addressed by some of the best known temperance speakers on the continent, including numerous men who have been through local option contests in other sections and who will be able to speak from experience as to the success of local prohibition. A special committee is in charge of the arrangements for these meetings. This committee is doing a splendid work.

Come Out in the Open.

The temperance workers in Peterborough want this question of local option to be discussed on its merits. If any ratepayers have any objections to local option, they are invited to make their views known. If the saloon interests believe that local option is going to be a bad thing for this city, they are urged to bring forward their best speakers in order that the issue may be discussed on its merits.

It is believed that the ratepayers of Peterborough are intelligent enough to recognize that if this question is not debated during the next few weeks, when there will be plenty of time for the arguments of both sides to be discussed, and if necessary sifted to the bottom, that arguments brought up in the dying hours of the campaign will be open to a good deal of suspicion. Like all other public matters, relating to the welfare of a city, this is one that should be discussed on its merits. The temperance workers desire to discuss it. A side which cannot be defended on the public platform and through the press, must be very weak.

Local Option Can Be Enforced.

Additional evidence of the fact that it will be possible to enforce prohibition in Peterborough after it is carried at the polls is furnished by the following letter received by the Peterborough temperance workers, from John Fleet, Acting City Marshall for the city of Fall River, Mass. Fall River is a larger city than Peterborough. If it is possible to enforce prohibition in large cities in the States, we should be able to enforce it in Peterborough. When people tell us that we cannot enforce prohibition in Peterborough they are practically telling us that we cannot enforce our laws in Canada as well as the people in the United States are able to enforce theirs. Do you care to admit this?

The following is the letter referred to:

"In reply to your letter, I will "state that prohibition is enforced "in Fall River. So far we have "found no difficulty to speak of in "enforcing the law. Former liquor "dealers are strictly out of busi-"ness. We have got no open bar "rooms where liquor is sold. We "have no kitchens or other places "where liquor is sold. In case an "attempt is made to sell liquor, "our officers quickly place them "under arrest and when brought be-"fore the court, they are sentenced.

"We find that express companies "and railroads carry liquor into "our city, as it is said to be ac-"cording to law. We find that the "express companies do carry li-"quor coming from other states "into this city and distribute it to "the consignee according to law. "Such work we cannot stop, as the "interstate laws or interstate com-"merce, if you will, is such that "liquor can be brought into cities "and towns of this Commonwealth "without interruption by railroad "and general express companies. "We have, at the present, several "cases pending before our District "Court, relative to express compan-"ies; while charges are made "against them for unlawfully trans-"porting intoxicating liquors for "hire and reward, for delivery in "Fall River, Fall River being a "city in which licenses of the first "five classes to sell intoxicating "liquors were not granted. These "will be taken up and tried in the "course of the next ten days."

Signed John Fleet, Acting City Marshal.

Do Not Be Fooled.

The liquor interests in Peterborough are trying to work a rather sharp game. There are a number of citizens who, while not in favour of the liquor traffic, do not like to vote for local option because they have a few friends or acquaintances in the business. These men, however, would not like to see the local option law defeated.

Friends of the liquor interests are said to be approaching these men and pointing out to them that as the local option law will be carried on a three-fifths majority of the votes cast, it will not they claim, affect the passing of the law if these people decline to vote. When they cannot get these citizens to promise to vote against local option, they try to get them to promise to stay away from the poll. Of course every person who refuses to vote in this way thereby helps the liquor interests and the representatives of the liquor interests are sharp enough to know it.

A vote that should be cast for local option but stays at home, is a vote lost for local option and, to all intents and purposes, is a vote gained by the liquor interests. The citizens of Peterboorugh therefore are urged not to give way to these arguments. Come out and help the cause. The more votes that are cast for local option, the greater will be the victory and the easier it will be to enforce the law after it is carried.

Peterborough Aroused.

The splendid audiences that greeted Dr. Crafts, of Washington, to hear his four addresses in Peterborough last Sunday show how interested the people of Peterborough are in the local option campaign now under way. The fact that the opera house was filled at the afternoon meeting, and people found it necessary to stand, shows the interest that is being taken in the question.

Dr. Crafts made many good points. One of them was in reference to people who claim that after local option is carried in Peterborough it will still be possible to secure some liquor and, therefore, people should not vote for the by-law. They claim that dives will be created where liquor can be secured on the sly.

Dr. Crafts pointed out in reply that we have laws against murder, against stealing and many other crimes, and yet these laws are broken to a certain extent. He pointed out that just as these laws are broken, it is probable that a prohibitory liquor law would be broken. As all laws, however, help to prevent crime, so a prohibitory law in Peterborough would restrict the sale of liquor and practically stop it altogether.

Present Laws Broken.

In addition to this we might point out that our present liquor laws are being broken constantly. Some of our local hotelkeepers have been fined during this year for selling liquor during prohibited hours, to minors, to people on the black list, and for other evasions of the law. Because the liquor law is now being enforced in Peterborough and because liquor is sometimes bought on the sly during prohibited hours, should we say that we should not have these laws? Everybody knows that these laws make the securing of liquor difficult during prohibited hours. They have been proved to be beneficial. So would a local option law be. Vote for it.

Temperance Notes.

It is reported that the representatives of the liquor interests are storing up a lot of arguments against local option, for use during the last few days of the campaign. It would seem as if they must be afraid that these arguments will not stand investigation or they would bring them out now in order that the public may have time to look into them.

The mass meeting in the Grand Opera House to-morrow afternoon will be addressed by a woman who has had a wide experience and who will be able to give some interesting information concerning the disastrous effect liquor has on working men, particularly those employed in the lumber shanties. All are welcome, both men and women.

Peterborough is the only center in which liquor can be sold for many miles around the city. The farmers around Peterborough have closed the saloons in nearly all the adjoining townships. Peterborough is the distributing point now for these townships. When we secure local option in Peterborough we will have driven liquor out of practically its last stronghold in the county. It will be a famous victory. Work for it.

Friends desiring to assist will find the treasurer at 396 Water St.

NEGROES AND WHITE GIRLS

Berlin, Oct. 23.—A few months ago missionaries in the German colonies discovered that a regular correspondence of an amatory character was being carried on between native youths and young girls in Germany.

This correspondence seems to have originated with educated blacks who had visited Germany, and there became friendly with morbidly-disposed damsels, the acquaintance being kept up by letter after their return home.

Then, one day, the husky swain would receive a word from his white admirer that she had a friend who would also gladly conduct a similar correspondence with a "black gentleman," and so, after the manner of snowballs, the exchange of sentimentalities spread from one couple to another with great rapidity.

When the facts first became known at Berlin they were received with a good deal of incredulity, but official investigation has absolutely confirmed their accuracy, and the Government has now issued through its newspaper a warning to parents and teachers to be on the look-out for this pernicious traffic among their daughters and pupils.

Inquiry has shown that in the majority of cases the initiative came from the female side, not only school girls, but young women in business, and even female students, having addressed themselves to natives with a wish to enter into correspondence with them.

The semi-official notice says: "Frequently delight in the romance of an exchange of letters with a negro, and, if possible, with a black prince, seems to have been the motive.

"The sending of photographs of the letter writers is nothing unusual. Of course, the senders never thought that their photgraphs would be hung up by negroes in their dwellings, along with all sorts of other pictures and that it produces a painful impression on the white observer when he sees the portrait of a German girl, evidently belonging to the better classes, in intimate companionship with a picture of a black beauty of unknown origin."

Something Better Now

There was a time when people were satisfied with any glasses with which they could read regardless of whether they were using one eye more than the other, knowing nothing of how the eyes were strained by wrong lens powers, and careless of the frame fitting the face. All this is changing now, a thorough examination by experienced men, lenses specially ground for each eye, and the neatest, most becoming mountings are now required by discriminating people who realize that nothing is too good for the eyes.

We make appointments for eye examination by our phones, Bell 1231, Mach. 7. It saves waiting your turn.

HAVE LANDED SINCE MAY

80,000 Immigrants, According to the Official Count—Average Passing Through Montreal is 3500 a Week.

QUALITY IS BETTER

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Oct. 23. — Immigration from the United Kingdom and other European countries still maintains an average of about three thousand five hundred a week. The Canadian Pacific officials estimate that since May 1, over 80,000 immigrants have landed in Canada—about 40 per cent. more than last year's figures represents, and more than the total has been since it was found necessary to impose restrictions insisting that new arrivals should have at least twenty dollars in their possession after all expenses incidental to the voyage and railway journey and making the strictest kind of medical examination compulsory.

While the volume of immigration is large the quality is better than it has ever been—the men and women measuring up better economically as well as physically. The percentage that proves a burden to the authorities later on is practically nil.

The heaviest immigration month was in May, when 18,000 landed here, but each of the succeeding months brought about 15,000 while September's record was 16,000. In the first fortnight in October the figures were 7,000 and this week the principal steamers are bringing from 500 to 800 each. Notwithstanding the continuity of a strong current of supply the demand for labour continues very great.

LEAPS FOR LIFE

Midnight Rescue From Beached Steamer in The Mersey.

London, Oct. 23.—An exciting scene occurred in the Mersey when twenty-four men were rescued from the Spanish steamer Segontian, which was beached at Tranmere on Friday after a collision with the steamer Tenasserim, of Glasgow.

There were eight of the crew and eighteen workmen repairing the vessel, when the steamer heeled over and began to slip into deep water. The men's cries for aid were responded to by the Custom's launch, but the crew had no time to secure their clothing.

In the collision on the previous day the lives of passengers and crews were endangered, and many men were only able to escape by a thrilling leap for life.

The Tenesserim, which belongs to Henderson & Co., had left the docks on her voyage to Calcutta with a valuable cargo of Manchester fine goods. She crashed into the Segontian, with the result that the latter's engine-room filled and she had to be beached.

WEDDING ENDS IN DESPERATE FIGHT

Munich, Oct. 23.—Fuller details are now to hand of the desperate affray which closed a wedding feast at a Batavia village, and which resulted in the death of four people and injuries to eighteen others.

A large number of guests had been invited to the wedding, and there was plenty of good cheer, to which full justice was done.

A quarrel arose between two of the guests, the friends of each took sides, and presently one-half of the company was violently attacking the other half. But space was limited, so the combatants adjourned to the front of the residence, and there knives were drawn and a regular battle waged.

The bride and groom, accompanied by a few of the more sober guests, watched the struggle from a balcony, but when the fight was at its height and knives and cudgels were being freely used, the supports of the balcony gave way and its occupants were precipitated into the midst of the frenzied disputants.

A terrible scene followed, men and women struggling fiercely for life, and when at length the place was cleared and the police had been summoned, it was found that four of the guests had been crushed or hacked to death, while fourteen others, including both the bride and the bridegroom, had been either injured through the fall from the balcony or stabbed.

BISHOP WILL BE HERE

Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., to Preach Here Sunday, October 31st.

His Lordship, the Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeny, D.D., Bishop of Toronto, will visit Peterborough a week from to-morrow. He will administer the rite of confirmation at All Saints and St. John's churches, and will address the congregation of St. Luke's in the afternoon.

ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

Graduates of Queen's University Met Rev. Prof. Laird, M.A., Last Evening—Decided to Form Alumni Association in Midland District.

MEETING TO BE HELD

Rev. Professor Laird, M.A., of Queen's University, met quite a number of the graduates of Queen's University at the Snowden House last evening and decided upon the organization of a Queen's Alumni Association for the Midland District.

A committee consisting of Rev. Jas. Wallace, M.A., B.D., of Lindsay, and Messrs. Richard Lees, M.A., and E. L. Goodwill, B.A., B.C.L., of this city, was appointed to look after the matter. It is the intention to have a meeting of all Queen's graduates, bene factors, and extra mural students in the Midland district, early in December, when it is expected several Queen's professors will give addresses. The object of the association is to keep the members in touch with the interests of the University.

There are about thirty-five graduates of Queen's in Peterborough.

MR. E. L. GOODWILL,
Member of Queen's Alumni Association Committee.

COMMITTEES OF THE P. C. I. SOCIETY

Philomaths Preparing for Their Year's Business.

A meeting of the executive of the Philomathean Society was held in the chemical laboratory of the P.C.I. last night at 4 o'clock for the purpose of electing members of the different committees of the executive.

The meeting was opened by an introductory speech by President Primeau. The business was transacted as follows:

Secretary—Miss Myra White, appointed on Motion of Arthur Rosborough seconded by Miss Maxie Armstrong.

Convener for recitations—Miss Beasie Reed, appointed on motion of Miss Denne, seconded by Arthur Roseboro.

Convener for dramatic — Miss M. Armstrong.

Convener for debate—Miss Denne.

Mr. Primeau then moved that the first meeting should be held two weeks from Monday evening. The motion was carried.

The President then called for suggestions for the first meeting, and as there was a hesitancy on the part of the members, he suggested that "the school term should begin with a play, pointing out at the same time advantages which would be gained by this.

Miss Bessie Reed then suggested that there should be one play and several dialogues throughout the terms, this motion was unanimously carried.

Mr. Primeau passed some complimentary remarks about the old Philomathean and the meeting was brought to a close.

As the meeting was supplied with music from an adjoining room, one of the members suggested that ear trumpets be supplied for future meetings.

PARK STREET CLUB

South End Athletic Club is Attracting the Boys and Young Men.

The P.A.C. Club Rooms on Park St. are now in first-class shape and the boys classes on Monday and Friday evenings, are getting larger all the time, over forty boys being on the floor last night.

The basketball nets are now up, and the windows covered so that basketball can be played. All young men who wish to join the club and especially those who desire to play basket ball, are requested to be on hand Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, as a team must be got in shape for the Y.M.C.A., and church basketball leagues. All will find a welcome.

HOME FROM THE WEST

Mr. Alfred S. Brown, Brother of Mr. Charles N. Brown, Has Been Absent From Peterborough 27 Years—Finds Great Progress.

PLEASED WITH ALBERTA

Mr. Alfred S. Brown, of Calgary, Alta., a former resident of Peterborough, and brother of Mr. C. N. Brown, is in Peterborough for a few days on a visit to his mother and family. Mr. Brown left this city over 27 years ago, for the West, where he has resided during that period. Mr. Brown was in the West prior to the Rebellion, and was one of Strathcona's Horse, during the South African war. Mr. Brown sees many changes in Peterborough during the period he has been absent, and is glad to see the advancement the city is making. The growing residential parts of the city and the manufacturing establishments are what an old resident observes on his return. Mr. Brown, like all Westerners, thinks there is no place like Sunny Alberta, the "California of Canada." Mr. Brown will leave for the West on Tuesday. His many friends in Peterborough have been glad to meet him on his visit, and hope that he will return again soon.

WEDDING BELLS

LAKE—CARR.

A pretty wedding was celebrated this morning at seven o'clock at the home of Mr. Edward Carr, 463 Gilmour street, when his daughter, Miss Agnes Irene, was united in marriage to Mr. James Russell Lake, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Keith, in the presence of the immediate friends of the young couple, who were unattended. After the ceremony a recherche dejeuner was served, and after receiving the congratulations of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lake left on the local for Toronto, and points west. On their return they will reside on Perry street. Miss Carr has been one of the foremost young ladies of Knox church being connected with practically every branch of the church work. She is also a valued member of the choir who, together with her other numerous friends extend the happiest returns of the occasion.

MR. RICH. LEES, M.A.,

CARTERS WANT HIGHER RATES

Say Their Present Charges Do Not Afford a Fair Living—Appeal to the Police Commissioners About It.

NO ACTION WAS TAKEN

F. J. Drake, J. P. Francis, Geo. Foley and a number of other names were inscribed at the bottom of a petition to the Police Commissioners asking for the permission to charge higher carting rates. In other words the local carters consider they are not making sufficient returns from their work under existing expenses. They contend that their charges have always been too small to make a decent living and the prices of hay, grain, etc., have greatly increased, therefore they should be allowed increase their charges. They want to ask 50 cents an hour for single horses and 75 cents where a team is used and the charges for half hour work to be proportionate. The Commissioners did not deal with the question.

Wednesday, first, the study will be a general outline of the whole epistle, dealing with the writer and those written to. The theme and doctrines, then, every Wednesday after, (D.V.) for thirteen weeks, each Chapter will be studied in detail. Speakers will be announced each week. A hearty invitation is extended to all Bible students to attend and take part in the conversational to follow each address.

THANKSGIVING

Massinger an almost forgotten poet, says:

He that't ungrateful has no crime
but one;
All other sins may pass for virtues
in him.

No negative expression of the duty and beauty of gratitude could be stronger. If, in our human relations, ingratitude is held a crime and the ungrateful or criminal, how deeper becomes the guilt of ingratitude to God, Who "visiteth the earth and blesseth it. Who maketh it very plenteous." We may think because we make unctuous acknowledgments of the Divine bounty, we have been grateful; if we aim no higher we have missed the mark. True gratitude is not an emotion only, it is a deed. Coleridge reminds us—"He prayeth best who loveth best." Gratitude translated into mere words instead of deeds is as "sounding brass." We are enjoined to bring forth fruits meet for repentance; we must do deeds meet for gratitude. It is not enough to express our gratitude in gluttony; we must in our way and capacity pass on the Divine bounty to others. If God were in the matter of material good, as forgetful of us as we are of our fellow man, we should have but a starved life. God, man, and his fellow man are all parts of a great chain of relationship and responsibility, whose integrity is only complete when each part bears its burden, and does its office in relation to another * * * Divine providence has this year been good to us, as a nation, as a city, as a community, as individuals. It is needless to make a tale of what we owe, for we owe every thing. If material prosperity constituted happiness, Canadians should be a happy people, for in every respect our year has been crowned with goodness. Our debt is not all thanksgiving, it is gratitude.

TURKEYS WERE FEW AND DEAR

Farmers Did Not Anticipate a Heavy Demand for the Holiday Board—Price Was Inclined to be High—Xmas Supply is Good.

VEGETABLES IN PLENTY

Thanksgiving Day will find but few turkeys adorning the dinner tables in Peterborough. That is judging from the number that was offered on the market this morning. A reporter paid a hurried visit after eleven o'clock and found five or six on sale. Ducks and geese were more plentiful but the farmers decided to keep the turkeys for Christmas when they will be full grown and more valuable. One of the largest weighed 20 pounds and the young woman asked only $2.75. Large geese sold as high as $1.45. The Christmas supply of turkeys will in all probability be as plentiful as usual according to the statements of a unmber of farmers interviewed this mornnig. It is too early yet to predict what the price will be, but if any reader is in doubt he can safely select his maximum guess rather than the minimum, for the farmers are not at all bashful in boosting the value of their goods.

BRINTONS WILL PLAY TORONTO SOCCER TEAM

There will be a grand football match on Monday afternoon, when the Brinton Carpet Works team try conclusions with the Toronto Carpet Co., one of the leading teams in the Intermediate League. A fast game is sure to be the result. The game will be played at Carpet Factory Meadow. Kick off at 3.30 p.m. In view of above game the Brinton obys will indulge in a practice game this afternoon.

P. C. Newhall and P. C. Meharry Each Get Raise of $50—Former Now Receives $700; Latter $650 a Year.

MEETNIG HELD YESTESDAY

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners held yesterday the question of an increase in the salaries of P. C. Meharry and P. C. Newhall was considered. It was moved by Police Magistrate Dumble, and seconded by Mayor Rush, that beginning with January 1st, 1910, P. C. Newhall receive $700, and from the same date that P. C. Meharry receive $650. This is an increase of $50 in the salary of each of these two officers. Judge Huycke acted as chairman at the meeting.

AWFUL DEATH

Young Man Drawn Into Machine for Straightening Old Tires—Body Badly Crushed.

Examiner Special.

Belleville, Oct. 23.— A terrible accident occurred in the plant of the Belleville Iron and Horseshoe Company some time between 5 and 6 o'clock last night, when a young man named Charles Burke, this city, seventeen years of age, was instantly killed by being drawn into the machine used for straightening old tires for the scrap mill. No one saw the accident, and when discovered Burke was dead. He was engaged in feding tires into the rollers, and the supposition is that he slipped and fell. His left arm was drawn into the rollers, crushing it into a pulp up to the shoulder. His chest was mangled, the side of his face cut, and his neck dislocated. Dr. Yeomans, Coroner, was soon on the spot and will consult the Crown Attorney as to whether an inquest is necessary. Deceased was a son of Thomas Burke of this city.

Control Your Fat

One can now take off and keep off extra fat at will. If you have an overfat abdomen or double chin you can clear it away completely without a minute's bother, exercising or dieting. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bed time of this mixture: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4½ oz. Peppermint Water any druggist has themand go on eating as best pleases you; don't worry about results.

The double chin and ponderous stomach will soon show signs of melting away. They will not sag in or wrinkle, however; just go down nice and smooth and even. That effect is due to the harmless natural action of the mixture.

This is explained as follows: Blame overfatness to the stomach. It is getting lazy. Instead of making energy and muscle from your food it is manufacturing fat. The above mixture corrects this defect and hence it makes you stronger and healthier at the same time it is taking off of you 12 to 16 ounces of useless fat a day. The reason it affects double chin, hips, etc., first is because the fat on them is softer and can not resist the remedy as long as that on the limbs. But eventually all the fat has to go if you keep up the treatment.

STUDENTS HOME AGAIN

HEAVY PASSENGER TRAFFIC

Last night's and to-day's trains brought home many happy visitors to spend Thanksgiving Day with fond parents and the vacant chair in many a household will again be occupied by the son or daughter, who left the parental roof to win a livelihood away from their native town. Among the crowds are the young students who are amplifying their elementary training by a College course. Three coaches were added to the C. P. R. local last night to accommodate the students attending the various halls of learning in the Queen City, and not a few were destined for Peterborough. They are home to visit parents, brothers, sisters, friends, and others, and to enjoy the first holiday of the term.

Thanksgiving Day is not as widely celebrated as a festive occasion, as is Christmas, but in many families it has a charm that is distinctive from other holdays of the year. It means the happiness of a family reunion, as there are many households in which the absent one returns on that day, being prevented from making a visit home during the Christmas season. The spirit of the day is not entertained as much as might be expected from the fact that it is the one day out of the 365 days that has specially been set apart as a holiday, during which the Creator's beneficence should be remembered.

FASHIONS FOR MEN

News comes to hand that Messrs. Curzon, the World's Custom Tailors, have completed their delivery of new season's fabrics for Fall and Winter, 1909, and that these are in the hands of their distributing agents, Messrs. The Might Directories, L'td., in Toronto, and Messrs. Henderson Bros., in Winnipeg. The collection of patterns surpasses anything that the firm have so far distributed and the cloths are eminently suited for Canadian wear. The new fashion booklet, which Messrs. Curzon have just produced, is really a little work of art, and shows all that is latest and best in both New York and English fashions. Clients may have their clothes tailored in either fashion, which ever they prefer, and the garments are always sent on approval, since any goods which do not meet with the approval of the customer may at once be returned and money refunded for same.

Altogether Messrs. Curzon certainly set themselves out to capture the Over Seas trade, and from the unique list of unsolicited testimonials which they publish it would appear that their efforts meet with no little measure of success. Their $5.74 suits have often been valued at $20.00.

Messrs. Cursons' distributing agents will send free patterns and fashion plates and brochure, free of all charge and carriage paid on receipt of a postcard.

OBITUARY

EDWIN H. PUE.

The death occurred at nine o'clock this morning at the residence of his father, lot 23, concession 4, Fraserville, of Edwin H. Pue. The deceased young man had been in failing health for some time. He was twenty-one years of age and was the youngest son of Mr. Wm. A. Pue. He was a highly esteemed young man and his death will be deeply regretted. He was well known in town, having attended the Collegiate Institute. He was a faithful member of Centreville Presbyterian church.

The funeral will take place on Monday at half past one from the family residence, to the Fraserville cemetery.

CLARA M. MILBURN.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Milburn, Smith, will sympathize with them in the loss they have sustained by the death of their infant daugter, Clara Mildred, who passed away last evening. The child was two months old.

The funeral took place this afternoon at four o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

PASSING REFERENCE TO EXTENT OF LUMBERING OPERATIONS IN PETERBOROUGH AND OTHER DISTRICTS

One of the country's foremost industries—lumbering—is now in full swing, having commenced about Sept. 1st, and throughout the long winter months the forests that fringe the northern settlements will resound with the ring of the axe, and the grating of the saw as they slowly cut through a standing timber. The season has practically just begun, and, in places, the camps have not yet their full complements. The lure of the woods has attracted men of practically every stamp. Some are lumbering because they have no other occupation; others have gone back to build up a failing health; some to save up a little money in the regions where hotels, theatres, etc., are not within easy reach and another class are swinging the axe because they did the same work last winter, and the winter before, and will likely find their way back to the "tall uncut" until they are too old and decrepit to even act as general utility men around the camp.

Many From Here.

Enquiry at the offices of the local companies shows that about four hundred men will be employed this winter in the northern townships of this county. The majority of these are now at work, and but few, if any, more will be engaged. Many of them were recruited in the vicinity of Peterborough, but itis learned that the surrounding counties contribute largely

The Cavendish Lumber Co., have four camps in operation in the Township of Cavendish. Their limits will require two years' more cutting before they are exhausted. It has been roughly estimated that there are 15 million feet to be taken out. The Company has about three hundred men divided between the four camps. An old lumberman told the Examiner that as a general rule there are about eighty men to a camp. Mr. E. P. Creswell is in charge of these men. The Peterborough Lumber Co. have about fifty men in their camp on Eel's Lake, and the McDonald Co. have the same number in their camp, which is located on Squaw River, in Galway county.

Good Wages.

The wages paid this year are better than ever before. Last season the best offerings were $22 and $23 a month, whereas the men this year are receiving as high as $28 a month, and the wages range from $20 to $28. Mr. George Chambers has secured a large number of men to go back to the north shore. They are for the Victoria Harbour Co., whose limits are on the White Fish river, two stations north of Sudbury. The best wages to these men is $32 a month. They have 16 shanties or camps and will cut a large amount of timber during the coming winter. Mr. T. Cavanagh has secured hundreds of men annually for eastern companies, and, to hire them, used to go as far as Sandy Bay, east of Quebec. This year he did not take up the work.

Lumber's Increased Value.

The value of lumber having greatly increased, the industry itself has become one of the greatest in the Dominion. It has always been one of the leading industries in Canada, but has, of late years, made great strides and an immense cut is expected during the winter. Except for the agricultural provinces of the west lumbering is carried on extensively from Ontario to the Atlantic Coast, and throughout British Columbia. Only those connected with the business appreciate the magnitude of the operations that are being carried on and realize the wealth that Canada possesses in its almost limitless forests. Pine is probably the most precious Canadian wood, from the fact that it is rapidly disappearing. In fact, steps are being taken toward reforestration, and it is learned that the preservation of the supply of pine is receiving attention in Government quarters.

In regard to the life in the lumber camps, a great deal could be written, but in his reference to the present season's work it will suffice to say that the conditions are considered very good. The camps are clean and sanitary, and the food is of the best. The old idea that salt pork was the staple meat no longer prevails for it is known that cattle are bought from the afrmers and fresh meat is no longer a luxury. Lumbering is an endless task. Beginning with the felling of the trees to the piling of the lumber in the companies' yards, a great labour has to be performed, and an interesting volume could be written by one of the men upon their experiences during a season, together with the details of the business until the lumber has been disposed of for building purposes.

CIVIC ADMINISTRATION.

Guelph is jumping at conclusions. After having made a success of management of certain public utilities by commission, it now proposes to apply for legislation abolishing the city council altogether and substituting a commission to govern the corporation. Isn't this reasoning from rather frail and incomplete premises? Guelph has had in respect of her public utilities satisfactory results from management by commission; but is that proof that the whole field of civic government could be covered by a commission with equal success? Peterborough has had satisfactory experience with the management of one public utility, the Waterworks, but is that sufficient proof that similar success would attend the administration of all our civic services by commission? To hasten gently in the matter of civic reform is wisdom. Our municipal system is of too long standing to be summarily brushed aside at one fell swoop. It is doubtless susceptible of improvement and has been undergoing "improvements" for forty years in the shape of amendments to the Municipal Act, cropping up with unvarying irregularity at every session of the legislature. Before one could prudently accept a sweeping proposition like that made by Guelph, much better reasons for such a course than have been given should be forthcoming. One step at a time—feeling our way would be wiser.

It is evident on very little consideration that some civic services lend themselves more readily than others to management by commission. For instance the management of our streets and allied services might well be undertaken by a commission. The persistently unfortunate experience of every civic corporation with municipal management of the streets creates a general readiness to consider the advisability of a change with a prospect of improvement. Ever since Peterborough outgrew the hamlet stage the people's money has been, to a large degree practically wasted upon our streets, and this is not due so much to individual incompetence or neglect as to the conditions. Take any enterprise, a railway, a large factory, and change the manager or foremen every year. The idea would be too absurd to be entertained a moment by any one with the slightest idea of business. It would be all the worse if each annual new manager or foreman should know as little about the work expected of him as his predecessor. Yet that is what is being done all over Ontario in the management of our streets. One year an alderman, say a "butcher or a baker, or a candlestick maker" is appointed head of the committee charged with the administration of streets. He may be a perfectly honest and well-meaning man, an expert in his trade or business, but with no more idea of the care and management—construction and maintenance—of the streets than a ploughboy would have of sailing an Allan Liner. This condition would not be so bad if a definite system of dealing with town or city streets were in operation. But, with no system, with new heads every year, with new ideas to be made every year the subject of experimentation at the expense of the ratepayers, what else can we expect than the flagrantly expensive failures that we witness year after year?

Out of a thousand Peterborough ratepayers that have been for a few years resident here, how many can be found who will say that, judged by results, we come within a mile of getting anything like approximate value for the money spent in street work? How many will be found to say that the system or un-system now and for years in practice, is anything but a most expensive failure? How many out of a thousand ratepayers will be found to dispute the proposition—that if the most prosperous business in Canada were conducted with the lack of system that attends the administration of the streets of the average town or city, that business would be run by the Sheriff before a year rolled around?

Would it not be worth while to try the experiment of resolving what is known as our Board of Works into a City Works Commission, or with some such title? A commission, if we were fortunate enough to get one like the Water Work Commission that would conduct their duties in line with business principles and without regard to civic politics, which cannot be excluded where there is a temptation to mix administration with reference to votes.

The object of the Examiner is to secure the city efficient service and value for the money spent on our streets. We don't get that now, or anything like it. No one will say that we get value for the thousands spent on our streets year after year. There is too much patchwork—without even a foundation for permanent work resulting. The drainage and grading of our streets, as a system, and as a part of a general and matured plan, are entirely wanting. Except as to our pavements the attempts at permanance are ludicrous. Gravel, unscreened, and mixed with miniature boulders, with an occasional load of sand, or other mud-making material, is dumped on our streets with inevitable results of a rough surface, which speedily develops holes—mud holes—in wet weather. Even our street material—broken stone—is a waste of time, labour and money, as far as permanently satisfactory results are concerned. Soft friable limestone is crushed with hard granite, and it takes little wisdom to see that a good durable and smooth surface is impossible from such an incongruous mixture. Limestone is an unsuitable material for streets, that have to bear heavy traffic. It is not much in advance, as street metal for permanent macadam, or ordinary lime as a base of concrete in building foot pavements.

In this connection the folly of the City Council and their subordination of civic interests to considerations of future support, is of recent demonstration. The Examiner is informed on what is considered good authority, that a gentleman submitted a proposal to the City Council involving a five-year contract to supply crushed Stony Lake granite for street macadam—uniformly hard and wear resisting—delivered at the wharf at the same price the unsuitable mixture of limestone, granite, and sandstone, now used, costs the city. It is said that negotiations, practically completed, or favourably entertained, were broken off—because, as is stated, certain local interests, representing perhaps a score of municipal votes, were opposed to the proposal so obviously in the city's interests, if the facts are as represented. Under similar circumstances a commission would have acted with regard to the city interest only, independently of private interests.

While it might not be wise to go as far as Guelph proposes to go, it seems that the placing of the administration of our streets under a commission similar to that having control of the water works, would be a good thing to do; at least the experiment would seem to be worth trying.

THE DEMAND OF JUSTICE.

The words of the Duke of Northumberland—"the provision of cottages is not an urgent matter, and it is much more important that owners should be safeguarded in the possession of their property," gives the cue to the cynical attitude of the British landholder towards his obligations to society and humanity. These words explain the attitude of the landholders towards a budget, which aims to make landholders pay through the tax-collector, for the increase of value to their holdings by the increase of population and industrial advance, without any effort on their part. This class not only makes money in this way at the expense of the industry and enterprise of others, but it makes money by miserably housing those who are compelled to live on its lands and in its houses to be near their work in industrial establishments and occupations. In this regard the report of the County Medical Officer to the Sanitation Committee of the Northumberland County Council constitutes an indictment of landholders, which deprives them of a right to a shred of sympathy over the fact of Lloyd-George making them pay taxes on the unearned increment, that is, the increased value of their land property produced by the toil and industry of others. The following refers to conditions in Newburn, on the outskirts of Newcastle, where the Duke of Northumberland is lord-paramount, and owner of most of the land upon which mine workers can look for a place whereon to lay their heads. The report states:

> "Many houses in different parts of this district are most unsanitary and on account of defective roofs, damp walls, bad floors, absence of or defective drainage, inadequate ventilation or insufficient accomodation, are unfit for human habitation; some are structurally dangerous, under the floors of two houses an old drain is laid from which rats gain access to the dwellings."

The Newburn Council, on the strength of this report, took measures to enforce improvement of these disgraceful and deadly conditions. With what result the report of the Medical Officer on July 9th, 1909, shows in this illuminating statement:

> "The only occasion on which the Newburn Council had to take legal proceedings to get their work carried out was when his Grace the Duke of Northumebrland refused to accept the standard set up by the Council."

The Court gave the Duke three months in which to make the demanded improvements. In order that Canadians may judge of the necessity of improvements, an extract from the Medical Officer's detailed report is one case may be given. This case is Walbottle, on the estate of his Grace, where is situated a coal mine, in which the men work, and from which the Duke receives $12,000 per year, in royalties, that is without turning a finger to earn it or produce its value, and where are situated the twenty-one houses owned by the Duke, in which the miners and their families live—or rather die by degrees. Regarding the condition of these structures, which it seems irony to call houses, much less homes, the Medical Health Officer says:

> Old Row, Walbottle, is a row of back-to-back houses, each having two rooms one downstairs and the other an unceiled attic, approached by a trap-ladder. They can only, by a stretch of language, be regarded as anything else than one-roomed, as the upstairs is entirely unfit for habitation:
> 1. At the top of the row has two rooms; it is both damp and dirty, and has seven inmates.
> 2. Is in a similar condition, but the upstairs is used, and the bed protected by old quilts and sacking from the weather; the walls are dilapitated. Roof rains in. Six inmates.
> 3. Has four inmates; floor and roof and walls bad.
> 4. Five inmates; use the attic upstairs, and have bed protected by sacking.
> 5. Eight inmates; same condition and is very dirty.
> 6. Five inmates; complains of the rain coming in.
> 7. Walls very bad; plaster off in many places. There are seven in the house.
> 8. Bad walls; floor of broken common brick; rain comes in, but remarkably clesen. Upstairs is used; beds protected by rugs. Five inmates.
> 9. Upstairs ceiled with sacking; traces of rain coming in all over the walls; it has a brick and quarle floor. Six inmates.
> 10. Has same conditions, but upstairs partitioned; there are 8 in the house.
> 11. This house and the one at the opposite side of the row constitute the best in the street, and they could, if made into one, be made habitable.
> 12. Close, foisty smell; walls damp; bad floor and roof; cannot useupstairs. Four inmates.
> 13 Cannot use upstairs; faults as before. Two inmates.
> 14. Has a cement floor, and, as far as a back-to-back house can be a success, this is one of the best, but there are nine inmates.
> 15. Has five inmates, the floor being flagged, and it rains in.
> 16. Has six inmates, floor brick and is nine inches below ground level. It is very damp.
> 17. Has cement floor, but "an awful bad upstairs." It is ceiled with old sacks to protect them from the weather. Seven in the house.
> 18. Brick and quarle floor, six inches below ground level; very damp and frosty; cannot use upstairs. Six inmates.
> 19. Upstairs ceiled with calico, and papered; floor in kitchen below ground level, and is very damp. Six in the house.
> 21. The north wall of the house is set into the bank-side and there are two steps down into the kitchen from the street level; quarled floor; very damp. Five inmates.

In the plenty and broadness of Canada it is almost impossible to conceive man, made in God's image, and women living, or rather existing, and infants being born and reared—in hovels in which oue would not house a cow or horse. Here we have nearly a hundred persons packed in, practically, a score of rooms open to the rains of Heaven—its very bounty turned to misery—and paying rent to a landlord whose business religion. whose sense of obligation to his fellow man, and whose humanity are expressed in the saying quoted above to the effect that the comfort of these miserable beings, the improvement of the dog kernels in which they are sheltered that they might contribute to the wealth and luxury of their oppressor—that "the provision of cottages is not an urgent matter" compared with "the safeguarding of owners in their property." The Duke of Northumberland is the owner of 180,000 acres in the country, and his princely income, five times greater than the amount it takes to adminster all the affairs of Peterborough for a year, is to a large extent sweated from the miserable bodies of hundreds like those housed in the wretched hovels at Walbottle. He is a type of the class that is crying out against the proposal of the Lloyd-George budget, to make landlords and land owners pay taxes on the increase in value of their holdings, through the toil, the industry, and the enterprise of others. Is it revolution or anarchy to demand that conditions of injustice that make men, women, and children live in suffering, in degraded misery, should be ameliorated, if not ended? The lauded classes could pay the national debt and yet have each many times greater income than the cost of living for a year of the hundred wretched souls housed in the Duke of Northumberland's residential shambles at Walbottle. No one attacks the right of the landowners to their property, but man, and the justice of God deny them the right to wax fat on the toil and misery of others, without contributing their share to the national revenue.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A paragraph appears in the Mail and Empire, boasting in effect that Cobalt blind pigs had contributed $11,000 in revenue in the shape of fines. This would hardly pay for the funerals that have resulted from the outbreak of typhoid in the mining town.

The verdict in favour of Sir Frederick Borden should, says the Kingston Standard (Conservative) put an end to the innuendoes and nasty talk indulged in, in respect to him and certainly should end all newspaper criticism in that direction. If Sir Frederick is to be criticized—and we think he can well be—it should be on his ineffectiveness as a responsible minister.

Was A Collar Maker---Is Now Proprietor Of Good Business

G. A. Goheen Used to Follow Former Trade While Partner Managed Grocery Store—Has a Modern Store on Rubidge Street and Has Built Up Large Trade.

SOME OF HIS METHODS

The Fall number of the Canadian Grocer contains an interesting account of G. A. Goheen's success as a grocer. His store is located on the south east corner of Rubidge and Dalhousie streets. The article is as follows:

Working at his trade as a joint maker for four years while joint proprietor of a grocery store; taking charge of the helm himself in 1905 and last year doing a business of $23,000 that in brief is the laconic history of the business career of Geo. A. Goheen, one of the leading merchants of Peterborough, Ont., up to the present time.

Taking Clerks Into His Confidence.

In 1901 Mr. Goheen began business in Peterborough and in partnership with C. S. Curran. The latter managed the business while Mr. Goheen worked at his trade—that of a collar maker, and a first-class one at that.

Four years later, in 1905, Mr. Curran retired from the business and Mr. Goheen forsook the needle and the collar and confined his energies to the business of which he had been an "associate," but not an "active member" for the four years previous.

He assumed the reins and by his industry and natural business abilities soon elevated his business to a higher plane. In one year's time, the large increase in trade made it necessary for the proprietor to secure larger premises. So plans were prepared and the contract let for the erection of the present establishment, 40 feet by 40 feet in dimensions. Mr. Goheen moved into the new store in October, 1906.

His place of business is some distance from the main centre although not by any means on the outskirts of the city. It is between the two in a splendid residental section. Not only does he handle groceries but many other lines, including flour and feed, tinware, boots and shoes, fruit, chinaware and confectionery.

Has Faith in His Clerks.

He began business with only one clerk and now he has a staff of five and sometimes one or two extra are necessary on Saturdays and other busy days. Mr. Goheen is a student of the clerk question. He treats his employes courteously and teaches them all about the stock he handles, and, in fact, takes them into his confidence in regard to invoices and business dealings. He believes that in order to give the best results, they should become acquainted as much as possible with the details of the business.

By his own example, he teaches his clerks the value of service. He makes it a point to see and speak to every customer who enters the store, while he is there. He wants to become personally acquainted with all who deal with him. Customers appreciate this consideration. When they see that a merchant takes an interest in them and tries to give them the best possible service, they take a greater interest in him and in his store. A lady very often has a favourite clerk with whom she always likes to deal, but nevertheless if the proprietor of the business acts as if she were not there he would likely resent the inattention and possibly decline to trade further with him.

Mr. Goheen's method is proof against this. He sees to it that no customer receives inattention and in this way provides a good sound means of "holding what he has" in addition to his methods of reaching out for more.

The Discount Counts Up.

Buying is said to be one of the furthest paramount features in the operation of a retail business. An unsuccessful buyer — one who pays more than he should or buys without taking advantage of the cash discounts—cannot very well make rapid headway.

Mr. Goheen makes it a point to save all he can from discounts. No account is allowed to run beyond the allotted time, so that with this practically "found" money, he has a sure and easy means of increasing his profits. When he began in 1901, the turn over was about $75 per week, an average of $3,800 per year; last year it was over $23,000, and the discounts helped considerably.

Mr. Goheen only deals in reliable goods—those with quality. He finds that by so doing his customers have little grounds for complaint and he has much greater satisfaction. He does a mixed cash and credit business, but in the latter case he looks carefully after the doubtful ones. This is where too many merchants lose. In their mad rush for trade practically every individual is given credit—but this principle is wrong.

In one day the Goheen staff has waited on as many as 400 customers. The cash register shows it and, by the way, Mr. Goheen claims to be the possessor of the only electrically operated cash register in Peterborough. His store equipment is up to date.

Taking these facts into consideration, is it any wonder the business has gone and is yet going forward? Mr. Goheen is contemplating adding still more room to his establishment in order to take in other lines and to extend his business still

GENERALLY SPEAKING

A correspondent informs us that the chairs that have been in use during the season at the band stand in Victoria Park, are still there, open to the onslaughts of the weather and the depredations of thieves. He has asked to have mention made of the fact in order that the authorities may have them removed to safe keeping. Thieves, by the bye is rather a hard word to use in connection with anything referring to Peterborough. From recent developments in the police court it appears that there are no thieves in Peterborough. When property is mysteriously spirited away, the valid excuse when it is found again, by the efforts of the police, is that it was borrowed and was meant to be returned. "Borrowing" is an euphemism that can as easily be worn to rags in Peterborough as in any other place. It costs just as much to replace a borrowed article that is not returned, as if one was making a purchase of such a thing for the first time and really, it is hard to see how one fares any worse when an article is deliberately stolen.

The members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians are to be congratulated on having been the means of bringing Bernard Daly and his excellent company to Peterborough. The play was a pretty one, clean and admirably acted, and the singing of Bernard Daly was a delight to all who heard him. His rendition of the Wearing of the Green was beautiful, and it did one good to see with what enthusiasm his numbers were received by the audience. It is to be hoped that he and his company will be again seen in Peterborough.

An Irish play is almost sure to have the elements of pathos and humour pretty evenly represented and this was the case in the presentation of "Fair Innisfallen." Mr. Daly besides being a splendid singer is a very capable actor, and depicted the finer points of human nature with marked talent. He was ably assisted by the other members of the cast. It was a great night for the lovers of the Emerald Isle.

Speaking of the Emerald Isle, we wonder how many of our readers know how that well known term for Ireland first came into existence. It was first applied to Ireland by Dr. William Drennan (1754-1820) in his poem, Erin in Glendalloch.

"When Erin first rose from the dark swelling flood,
God blessed the green island; He saw it was good.
The Emerald of Europe, it sparkled it shone,
In the ring of this world the most precious stone.

Arm of Erin, prove strong; but be gentle as brave,
And, uplifted to strike, still be ready to save;
Nor one feeling of vengeance presume to defile
The cause of the men of the Emerald Isle."

The allusion of course, is to the brilliant green of the herbage and foliage of Ireland."

It is a good thing that theatrical criticisms in these days are based on a more utilitarian method than in days gone by. Witness the following press account of Mrs. Sarah Siddons' first appearance in Dublin on May 30, 1784:

"On Saturday Mrs. Siddons, about whom all the world had been talking, exposed her beautiful adamantine, soft and lovely person for the first time at Smock Alley Theatre in the bewitching, melting and all-tearful character of "Isabella." . . . The house was crowded with hundreds more than it could hold, with thousands of admiring spectators that went away without a sight. This extraordinary phenomenon of tragic excellence! this star of Melpomene! this comet of the stage! this sun of the firmament of the Muses! this moon of blank verse! this queen and princess of tears! this Donnellan of the poisoned bowl! this empress of the pistol and dagger! this chaos of Shakespeare! this world of weeping clouds! this Juno of commanding aspects! this Terpsichore of the curtains and scenes! this Proserpine of fire and earthquake! this Katterfelto of wonders! exceeded expectation, went beyond belief and soared above all the natural powers of description. She was nature itself! She was the most exquisite work of art! She was the very daisy, primrose, tuberose, sweet-brier, furze-blossom, gilliflower, wall flower, cauliflower, auricula and rosemary! In short she was the bouquet of Parnassus!"

Do any of our readers know of anything to equal this in the realm of laudatory description?

In the way of eloquence and graphic power this may possibly equal it. A Cleveland paper thus described a suicide by hanging: "An owl hooted lonesomely; an old clock on the shelf ticked with terror; a dog howled; it was midnight outside; the wind sighed; a cat crouched on the cold hearth in fear; and a sound like the laugh of a maniac came from the garret." A Colorado paper once in an account of a fire told how "a column of smoke poured out of the roof of the adobe building corner of Fifth and G. streets like the signal smokes of the Utes from the mountain heights, when expecting the incursions of the Arapahoes, etc., how the fire was mastered by the gallant efforts of the firemen "and thus was a far-reaching conflagration checked like a worm in the bud that never told its love."

Last week we alluded to the history of dictionaries as being full of interest and promised to continue the subject this week. The best that can be done with the space at our command is to give a few instances from dictionaries of different eras to show the trend of thought and speech along which our present day dictionaries have arrived to so high a state of excellence.

Henry Cockeram's "English Dictionarie," 1632, is full of humour. It is really a dictionary of current vernacular and the author in his preface apologetically explained that he designed "Ladies and gentlewomen, young schollers, clarkes, merchants, etc., desirous of a refined and elegant speech would like an exposition of "vulgar words, mocke words, fustian termes ridiculously used in our language, so as to gather therefrom "the exact and ample word" which would fit them to shine. So he tells them that "rude" is vulgar and, that they should use either of the two words "rusticall" or "rumorigerous"; that "To Weede" is vulgar, the choice word being to "sarculate," "dirunceinate," or "averuncate"; that "to knock one's legs together" is vulgar and they should always say "to interfeere". John Wesley produced a little dictionary in 1723 which he modestly stated on the title page he considered to be the best English in the world because he could see no mistakes in it, but it was only two years later that Dr. Samuel Johnson published his great work and threw every other rival into the shade. Johnson's work is, of course, valueless in these days, as the etymology is absurd. The derivation of "curmudgeon" from "coeur mechant" which was sent to him from an unknown person he placed to the credit of "unknown correspondent," and a Dr. Ash who afterwards published a dictionary of his own, embodied it in his own work learnedly giving the derivation as from "coeur," "unknown" and mechant, "correspondent."

Mr. Kilbourn, well known in connection with the cement industry, and who is interested in at least four of the cement companies which are combining in the cement merger has been giving out some interesting facts in regard thereto. He says: "We have joined together for our own protection as well as to promote the wider use of cement. There are many ways in which we will save by the combination, and it will not be at the expense of the consumer. Through competition there has been a needless overlapping of supplies and this has been beneficial to the railway companies. This will now become one of our legitimate profits, for we will be able to regulate the distribution from now on and save greatly in freight to the company. We intend to protect the consumer from the broker; there will be no place for him with the readjustment of conditions."

Against such a statement there is nothing much to be said. This seems to be the day of combines, and so far, notwithstanding all that has been said and written against them, they appear to have worked beneficially rather than otherwise for the general public. As the Contract Record points out in a recent issue, it will be a distinct advantage to contractors in future to know exactly what price they can figure on for their cement, instead of having to trust to their good luck to hit the bull's eye at such an oscillating mark as cement quotations have proved for some time past. The Record further points out there is not much danger of the commodity being advanced beyond a certain price, owing to the easiness of access to the foreign markets.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.
I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—yes, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for [illegible], Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, irritations, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weakness peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to accept my offer, as it continues, it will only cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters. I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness, and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Pimples and Skin Eruptions always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN

Examiner Special.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 23.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 26 to 30, warm wave 25 to 29, cool wave 28 to Oct. 1. This is expected to bring several days of very rough weather including a cold wave, severe frosts, snows north and heavy rains south. Between 23 and 28 a severe tropical storm will organise on the Carribean sea. I am not able at this time to forecast the path of that tropical storm. Having telegraph connections with the West India Island the U.S. Weather Bureau will be able to give warnings of the movements of that storm near our southern coasts. But the tropical storm will cause a cold wave in the northwest that will move to the Atlantic coast.

First disturbance of November will reach Pacific coast about 3, cross Pacific slope by close of 4, great central valleys 5 to 7, eastern States and provinces 8. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 3, great central valleys 5, eastern States and Provinces 7. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 6, great central valleys 8, eastern States and Provinces 10.

This disturbance will bring a recovery from the cold weather and a great warm wave will cross the continent. This storm center and warm wave will keep well to north and a wave of low temperature will pass over the Southern States at the same time that the warm wave will be passing through Canada and the Northern States. General rains wil accompany this disturbance. November will bring about Normal temperatures and heavy rains. More detailed forecasts of November crop weather in next bulletin.

The great hurricane and continental cold wave and frosts of October 10 to 15 were predicted in these bulletins long before they came and their location and movements well described. I promised my readers that I would largely improve my forecasts and I have but the greatest improvements are yet to come. During the coming winter radical changes for the better will be made in methods of publication and in accuracy and detail of forecasts. The methods by which to secure these improvements have been found.

The great comet will put on its best dress and make its greatest display next May. If it does not run into some of the planets and cause a catastrophe the greatest comet will sometime become one of the planets of the solar system. I believe that all the planet,s all the satellites, small excentric planets between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, were comets with excentric orbits like this great comet. I am a thorough believer in a dynamic universe; that these bodies will continue to grow and increase in number forever. As I see it, every organised body of the universe, from the atoms to the greatest of the suns, is gathering and growing and this condensation of matter is the moving force; the life of nature. I believe the great centers of the clusters will be discovered and found to be vast dark bodies of refined matter, possessing immense magnetic forces.

THE WISE MOTHER DOCTORS BABY WISELY

Nowadays wise mothers do not dose their children with nauseous, griping, castor-oil or purgatives, nor do they give them poisonous opiates in the form of soothing medicines. Baby's Own Tablets take the place of these harsh and dangerous drugs, and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that the Tablets are absolutely safe, and will cure all stomach and bowel troubles, destroy worms, break up colds, and make teething easy. Mrs. Thos. Craft, Binscarth, Man., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation and teething troubles, and do not know of any other medicine that can equal them. They are always satisfactory in their results." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SHENSTONE'S STEWARDSHIP

Tells Buffalo Laymen What He Gives to the Church.

Buffalo, Oct. 19.—At the Baptist Laymen's Mission convention to-day J. N. Shenstone, of Toronto president of the Baptist Laymen's Missionary movement of Canada, spoke upon "The Stewardhsip of Life." He said that the evangelization of the entire world could be accomplished if every man would give to missionary work, the same thought, attention and energy that he gives to his private business.

Chairman Eddy asked Mr. Shenstone if he would tell how he arrived at his own stewardship. The speaker hesitated, and said that he had at first thought of 10 per cent., and then 25 per cent., and then the whole amount neede dfor living expenses. He said that while he had been heralded in some papers in this country as a wealthy man, the capitalists of the United States would laugh if he told them how much he really was worth. He concluded: "Finally I decided that henceforth I would not add to my estate. That meant that all the income which I received from what I had before should go to the church.

"Men, I have never had cause to regret it."

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Of Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M.A., Who Will Assist in the Coming Special Meetings in St. Paul's Church—A Scholar and Able Speaker.

The following is a graphical sketch of Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M. A., the missioner who is to assist in the approaching special meetings in St. Paul's Church, beginning Oct. 31st:

Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M.A., was born in the historic Highland parish of Kildonan in Manitoba—his father being one of the famous Selkirk settlers. Mr. MacBeth is a cousin of the Primate of all Canada, Archbishop Matheson, of Winnipeg who was also born in the Selkirk Colony. Mr. MacBeth was educated in Manitoba College and University, taking two medals during his course. On graduation in Arts, he entered on the study of law, taking the full course and practising as barrister and solicitor. During his law student days Mr. MacBeth volunteered as a private for service in the second Riel Rebellion and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. Mr. MacBeth then saw active service, was under fire, and has the medal and Saskatchewan clasp for action. An affliction in the home again turned Mr. MacBeth's mind to the ministry he having already thought much upon it, and giving up the law practice, he entered on the study of theology at Princeton, New Jersey, finishing in Winnipeg. After service in the prairie mission fields, he was called to Augustine Church, Winnipeg, where he was for eight years, when he accepted a call to First Presbyterian Church in Vancouver and remained there for over four years, when partly owing to the health of some of the family with which the moist winters did not agree, he accepted a call from the Strong Congregation at Paris. Marked advance has been made there, and recently the church, which seats one thousand two hundred, has been re-opened after extensive improvements. Mr. MacBeth's training as a lawyer and soldier as well as minister, and his residence in different parts of the country as well as his active participation in the life of the communities where he has resided, has given him much experience and a wide knowledge of men and things. He is the author of books on "The Selkirk Settlers in Real Life," with introduction by Lord Strathcona who was an intimate friend of his father's. Another volume by him, "The Making of the Canadian West" has gone through several editions, and is the only book written by one born in the country. Mr. MacBeth is also a writer of many magazines and other articles on devotional and other subjects. He has lectured on many topics and has addressed Canadian Clubs and other gatherings in many parts of Canada.

Death And Riot In Mayoralty Fight In Gary, The "Model City"

Gary, the Illinois town that was made to order, the city built by the steel trust, with its modern buildings and public and private conveniences, has proved anything but a model place. The latest disgrace, if it may be so called was a fatal riot in the first mayoralty contest. The following dispatch from Chicago explains it:

Chicago, Oct. 23.—One murder, two riots, scores of street fights between citizens and the severance of three business partnerships is the result of four days of intense political strife at Gary, Ind., attendant upon the election of the first mayor of the "steel city." The mutilated body of Roda Ivanich, one of the participants in the primary riot of Monday last, was found at daylight yesterday lying in the middle of one of Gary's principal streets. Two men are being held as suspects.

Following close upon th edisclosure of the Ivanich murder it was announced that three business firms had dissolved partnerships because of animosities growing out of the bitter mayoralty campaign.

Readers probably know the history ritory of Gary. In spite of efforts to make it a model city it is very much the reverse in more respects than one, and this latest affair is no surprise to those who read the papers.

CURIOSITIES OF HUMAN BODY

By W. R. C. Laison.

In the ancient world there were seven wonders. In the modern world there is but one—and that is the human body.

Regarded from a merely mechanical standpoint the human body is so infinitely complex, so exquisitely responsive, so strangely perfect that by comparison it dwarfs all other things known to man and stands alone as the wonder of the world.

In all mechanics and architecture, in all the machines and inventions of man, there is not to be discovered one single device that is not found in the human body. The arch, the lever, the inclined plane; a pump, a grist mill, a camera, a stringed instrument; hinges, pulleys, ball and socket joints—all these and a score of other man-made inventions are merely crude copies of the same devices found in his own body. The lungs, through their 600,000,000 tiny openings, have a surface equal to the floor of a room 40 feet square. The body contains 2,000 miles of tubing, through which half a barrel of fluid is constantly pouring. The blood travels 168 miles a day. Truly, we are "fearfully and wonderfully made."

"NAIAD" HOME

Capt. R. W. Carson Returns From Lake Simcoe—Going to Rice Lake.

Capt. Robert Carson, of the Government steamer "Naiad" arrived in the city last night after a long cruise in the northern waters, particularly Lake Simcoe. He passed through the Kirkfield lift lock on Wednesday night and the following day it was closed. The weather, he states, is much colder in that locality than here and a half inch of ice covered the water early in the week. The "Naiad" was the last boat through this year. Capt. Carson will leave for Rice Lake next week and the season will be practically closed by the middle of November.

COLD BROUGHT ON KIDNEY DISEASE

Brantford Lady Suffered Till Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. A. H. Thomson Had Heart Disease, Lumbago and Rheumatism, and Tells How She Was Restored to Health.

Brantford, Oct. 22.—Special—How Colds, LaGrippe and other minor ills settle on the Kidneys and develop Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Bright's Disease and other terribly dangerous ailments, and how any and all of them are cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is fully shown in the case of Mrs. A. H. Thomson, whose home is at 48 Albion Street, this city.

Mrs. Thomson was, some years ago, taken with Cold and La Grippe, and Straining, which affected her Kidneys, and the result was Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism, and Heart Disease, which caused both her and her friends grave anxiety.

She had suffered some years when she heard of cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought a box, which she used with such splendid results that she continued to take them till she was cured. Since then she has used Dodd's Kidney Pills in her own family and recommended them widely to her friends, all of whom have warm words of praise for the standard Canadian Kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Lumbago, and Bright's Disease are all Kidney Diseases or are caused by diseased kidneys. You can't have any of them if you keep your Kidneys sound and your blood pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the Kidneys sound. Sound Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood.

MORE POLICE PROTECTION ASKED FOR FIFTH WARD

A meeting of the Police Commissioners was held yesterday afternoon. There were present His Worship, D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, His Honour E. C. S. Huycke, County Judge, and His Honour Mayor Rush.

Judge Huycke was elected chairman.

A letter was read from the Merchants' Association asking that the night policemen and the night watchman employed by the merchants be supplied with watchman's clocks and dark lanterns. R. G. Kingan, President of the Association, was heard for a deputation that appeared in support of the application. Chief Rossel and Chief Howard were also heard

A report was read from Chief Rossel of the annual convention of the Chief Constables' Association of Canada held in July last in Niagara Falls.

T. A. S. Hay, City Engineer, wrote asking for further police protection in East Ward.

It was decided to authorize Chief Rossel to engage the necessary extra men for duty on Hallowe'en.

CURES BAD KIDNEYS AND ENDS BACKACHE

A Few Doses Will Clean and Regulate the Kidneys and Make You Feel Fine.

A real surprise awaits every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble who takes several doses of Pape's Diuretic. Misery in the back, sides or loins, sick headache, nervousness, rheumatism, pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelid, lack of energy, and all symptoms of out-of-order kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, offensive and discoloured water and other bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect kidney or urinary disorder, or feel any rheumatism, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

It is needless to feel miserable and worried, because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order kidneys and urinary system, distributing its cleansing, healing and strengthening influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Such scenes as the one pictured above have been very common since the opening of the sale, and on some mornings the sidewalk in front of the store has been so blocked that traffic was almost impossible. The picture shows one of these occasions. It will be noticed that there is but one representative of the stronger sex in sight, and he is evidently bent on getting out of the limelight as quickly as possible.

One would hesitate before saying that every woman in the crowd had her mind made up as to what she was going to buy. Doubtless very few have, but the lure of the bargain counter has proved too much for them—hence the crowd. Once inside it is safe to say that very few came out without buying something, many, doubtless buying something they little thought of when they left home.

The bargains offered have been such as to prove utterly irresistible to the ladies of Peterborough, and, until the sale is over, it may be expected that the above spectacle will be seen repeatedly. Man, mere man, will suffer doubtless a little in the matter of hasty dinners, while the house wife is helping to form the crowd that make such pictures as this possible, but he will have little opportunity to complain when his better half opens up her batteries of conversation, and goes into hysterics over the bargain she has secured, or laments broken-heartedly over the one she might have got had not Mrs. ——: "I always did detest that woman, anyway. She only bought it because I wanted it!"—succeeded in getting there first.

Never in the history of fruit growing has ten dollars been paid for a single specimen apple of a standard variety. Four or five dollars a barrel is considered a good price for a barrel of Spys. Yet when you figure up the cost of a barrel of Spys at ten dollars each the price will be over $2,000. This price, which will be paid right here in Ontario is quite unusual. In Oregon they sometimes receive as high as ten dollars a box for Winter Bananas apples, but even that price only figures out at thirty dollars a barrel. Even the choicest Canadian apples that are exported to Great Britain, and sometimes sold wholesale at three to four dollars a barrel, sell retail sometimes at five cents each in the fruit shops in London this would make an average of just over ten dollars a barrel. The fact that ten dollars is being offered for the best single specimen apple of Baldwin, Greening, Spy, King or McIntosh, and that five dollars is offered for the second best of the same varieties, or seventy-five dollars in all for the lot of ten apples is making the fruit growers in Ontario very keen over the Exhibition.

This amount of money is being offered by the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition, Toronto, where the apples will be on exhibition from Nov. 9th to 13th, 1909. Fruit growers who have some extra good specimens of any of these varieties should send their apples for competition. There are rules and conditions to govern the competition, which will be furnished by the Secretary, P. W. Hodgetts, Toronto. Last year this Exhibition was visited by persons from distant parts of Canada and the United States, and even England sent her expert apple men to see the largest Horticultural Exhibition ever held in Canada.

In addition to apples there will be one of the finest displays of prize fruits, vegetables and flowers ever shown, making a splendid advertisement of Canada's products.

From present indications this year's Exhibition will in many ways eclipse last year's splendid success. The railway companies, recognizing the importance of the Exhibition, have decided to give special rates. Local railway agents can supply the information.

Ex-Speaker Sutherland Takes Anglin's Place in the Exchequer Division of the Ontario High Court—Liberal Whip Takes Vacancy Made by the Death of Robert Reid on Trandcontinental Railway.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of Hon. R. F. Sutherland, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons, to be justice of the Exchequer Division of th Ontario High Court in succession to Justice Anglin of the Supreme Court.

W. S. Calvert, member for West Middlesex, and chief Liberal whip, has been appointed to the vacancy on the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, caused by the death of Robert Reid.

The writs for the bye-elections, which will be rendered necessary by the appointments, will be issued in the course of a few days.

At the general elections Mr. Sutherland had a large majority, but Mr. Calvert carried West Middlesex by a majority of only twelve, so that the contest in that constituency is liable to be close.

There will, it is said here, be a warm contest by three candidates for N. Essex, these being W. J. McKee, James Anderson, formerly of Ayr, and Barrister A. F. Healy, formerly of Strathroy.

Hon. Robert Franklin Sutherland, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons, was born at Newmarket, Ont., on April 5, 1859, the son of Donald Sutherland, Scotch, and Jane Boddy, his wife, Irish. He was educated at the public and high schools at Newmarket, the high school at Windsor, and at Toronto and Western Universities. He was married on Sept. 4, 1888, to Matty Bartlet, and was called to the Bar in 1886, and appointed King's counsel in 1896. He has been an alderman of the City of Windsor, president of Windsor St. Andrew's Society, and of the Windsor library board. He was first elected to the House of Commons at the general election of 1900, and was re-elected in 1904 and 1908. He was elected Speaker of the House of Commons Jan. 11, 1905. He is an elder of St. Andrew's Church, Windsor.

COULD NOT KEEP THIS SECRET

"Six months ago I was cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment," writes Mrs. G. A. Swayne, Copenhagen, Elgin Co., Ont. "I had been afflicted for over thirty years and tried all sorts of treatments in vain, so I was surprised and delighted to be cured. I don't care for publicity but would like to tell every one suffering from piles about Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Freight Service Subsidy.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. William Fielding, and Hon. Wm. Paterson were yesterday morning waited upon by a deputation which urged the Government to grant a subsidy of a quarter of a million dollars for three years in aid of a proposed line of freight steamers to ply to New Zealand and Australian ports from Montreal, Quebec, St. John and Halifax. The company proposes that its vessels will make six trips a year. The Imperial Export Co. of Toronto is behind the project.

It was pointed out that the bulk of Canadian exports to New Zealand and Australia at the present time go via New York. These exports, total four million per annum, and the shipping ring threatens to put up the rates. The company is ready to guarantee a minimum of five thousand tons of freight for each sailing vessel, and in the event of falling below these figures, would not claim the subsidy.

The delegation included R. H. Dana, Toronto; W. McMaster, Montreal; Mr. McNaughton, Sydney, N.S.; C. A. McCool, ex-M.P.; J. Near, Gu[illegible] H. B. Smith, Owen Sound; and [illegible] Guthrie, Ottawa.

Forgeries at Head of Lakes.

Port Arthur, Oct. 23.—Several Port Arthur and Fort William business men have been made victims of crude check forgeries this week, cashing checks for various amounts from $15 to $30 drawn on Imperial Bank forms in the name of the Vigers Shear Lumber Co. It is believed that at least a dozen were passed in the two cities. A special rubber stamp to use with signature was manufactured, but it was only a rough imitation of the proper one, and was incorrectly spelled. The forger is described as a young, tall, dark man.

Big British Columbia Timber Deal.

Port Hope, Oct. 23.—A big sale of Vancouver Island timber, involving half a million pounds, and 30,000 acres, has just been concluded by H. H. Jones of Victoria, B.C., once of Port Hope, and well-known in Toronto. He says the sale will revolutionise the coast export trade, as the mills will be on Esquimault Island, and in touch with a billion feet of timber. The same management will explore the Victoria and Barkley Sound Railway.

German Woman Murder Victim.

Islip, L.I., Oct. 23.—The police are satisfied that the victim of the murder mystery which has puzzled them since the skeleton of a woman was found in the woods near here early this week was Anna Latter Mueller, a bride of but a few months, and prior to her marriage a maid in the home of Isaac Seligman, the New York banker. She with her husband, Otto Mueller, an architect, have been unheard of by relatives for some time.

CONVICTS THWARTED

Elaborate Scheme to Overpower the Guards and Then Dynamite a Hole in the Jail Wall, Nipped in the Bud by Warden at Clinton Prison, Dannemora, N.Y.—Explosive Stolen Months Ago.

Albany, N.Y., Oct. 23.—Armed with a loaded revolver and two sticks of dynamite, held a dozen convicts in Clinton prison at Dannemora, planned to escape from that institution last night by overpowering or killing the prison guards and blowing out a portion of the prison wall with dynamite.

Information concerning the plot reached Warden Cole yesterday through a convict, and the conspirators locked up.

According to the story told Warden Cole who subsequently reported it to Supt. Collins of the state prison department, one of the gang of plotters, which numbered some of the most desperate characters in the prison, was to saw his way out of his cell last night and, armed with the revolver, compel the guard to unlock the cell doors in which the conspirators were confined. In the event of resistance on the part of the guard, he was to be overpowered, and if necessary, killed, to secure possession of the keys.

Once outside their cells, the convicts were to rush to the prison bathroom, which opens off the prison building proper, and extends beyond the back wall. A key to the bathroom had been made so as to furnish easy access. Gaining entrance to this room, the conspirators were to dynamite the walls and rush out under cover of darkness.

The revolver and dynamite sticks which figured in the plot, were found secreted in the clothing of Marquis Curtis, a Brooklyn convict serving a ten-year sentence for carrying burglars' tools. Curtis had been in the hospital for some time. Those suspected of being implicated include Edward Kelly, a Monroe County murderer, serving a life sentence; John Murphy, known as "Canada Blackie," doing a life term for murder in Schoharie County, and Harry Miller, a safe blower from New York.

The revolver, which was found on Curtis, belonged to W. D. Willets, a prison guard, and had been missing since last November, when it mysteriously disappeared.

Two months ago a gang of convicts were engaged in making a road near the prison. Dynamite was used for blasting, and the two sticks which Curtis was carrying were probably secured at that time.

Details of Car Merger.

"The new company's capital will be as follows: $3,500,000 of 6 per cent. bonds; $5,000,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock; $3,000,000 of common stock. The companies being secured, with their capital, are as follows: Rhodes-Curry, $1,850,000 preferred stock, $1,000,000 common stock; Canada Car Co., $1,000,000 preferred stock, $2,000,000 common stock; Dominion Car & Foundry, $3,510,900 common stock.

Liberals Meet Next June.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—At a meeting of a committee of the General Reform Association of Ontario, held yesterday, the arrangements for holding a convention of the Liberal party next June with reference to provincial issues were discussed. It is expected that 3,000 delegates will be present, each of the 106 ridings into which Ontario is divided being entitled to thirty. These delegates are to be selected at meetings held in the ridings called by the local associations.

F. G. Inwood, secretary of the general association, will have charge of the arrangements, and he has been instructed to send circulars to the local associations asking them to hold meetings to discuss important provincial subjects. All resolutions sent in will be dealt with by the committee on resolutions when the convention assembles. Individual delegates will also be permitted to offer resolutions.

Explosion In Hotel.

Quebec, Oct. 23.—The Chateau Frontenac was the scene of an explosion last night which, for twenty minutes, plunged the house into total darkness and caused a rumor of loss of life. Four men were seriously scalded, one G. Lauris of the Angus shops, Montreal, fatally, and Joseph MacMaster and S. G. McDermott of the same shops and J. J. Hatton, engineer in chief of the Canada. How the explosion occurred is a mystery. The injured men were employed on the installation of a heating system of the new wing.

Pension Resolution Illegal?

London, Oct. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It is argued here that the G.T.R. differentiation among its shareholders in sending out proxies for Thursday's meeting invalidated the pension resolution, and that steps should be taken to restrain the directors from putting it into effect. The Financial News says that to justify such procedure on the score of economy in the case of a great corporation like the G.T.R., as the vice-president endeavored to do, is little short of absurd.

Smallpox on Virginian.

Grosse Isle, Que., Oct. 23.—When the Allan Line steamer Virginian arrived here yesterday with 700 passengers on board en route for Montreal, it was discovered that a case of smallpox had developed in the steerage after the ship had left Rimouski.

It is believed that the saloon passengers will at least be sent forward to-day.

McBRIDE PERSISTS

Tatlow and Fulton Who Have Quit B. C. Cabinet Because of Grants to Railway, Say They Have Only One Quarrel With Government—Bowser Takes Over Both the Portfolios Pro Tem.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 23.—Premier McBride is expected to make a complete statement about the time he starts on a tour of the province regarding the resignation of his Finance and Land Ministers, Tatlow and Fulton, from the Cabinet. It is not generally believed that the retiring Ministers will take any active part against McBride in the campaign. Tatlow, it has been known for some time, has become somewhat weary of public life.

The fact that Fulton has been solicitor for the C.P.R. at Kamloops, had led to a rumor that the C.P.R. is behind the resignations, but no authority is given for it.

McBride will see the C.N.R. scheme through in its entirety, he says, in spite of the resignations. Hon. J. W. Bowser was sworn in as Minister of Finance and Agriculture and will hold that portfolio in conjunction with that of the Attorney-Generalship until after the elections.

Capt. Tatlow, announcing that he will not be a candidate at the coming elections, yesterday said: "I am in perfect accord with McBride with a single exception, the railway policy. I think the Canadian Northern has been granted too much, and especially should not have been given exemption from taxation. I will probably go to England to reside."

Mr. Fulton said: "The Canadian Northern was coming anyway. They had to build to the coast and aid, even in the Government guarantee of loans, was unnecessary. I have absolutely no other quarrel with the Government."

In Vancouver, the resignations were received by Conservatives with mixed feelings. There is no doubt Bowser and H. H. Watson will be on the Conservative ticket in Vancouver, and Watson will undoubtedly be given a Cabinet position.

Danish Cabinet Resigns.

Copenhagen, Oct. 23.—The Cabinet of which Count Holstein-Ledreborg is Premier, resigned yesterday, following a vote in the Chamber of Deputies, expressing want of confidence in the Government.

The Cabinet, which was formed on August 16, last, has been subjected to sharp criticism in the matter of the budget, which showed a large deficit.

New Insurance Company.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 23.—The Merchants and General Insurance Co. of Montreal will apply to Parliament for incorporation at the approaching session.

The Union Life Assurance Co. will ask to have extended its powers as to holding and dealing in real estate in Ontario.

From Coast to Coast for Trial.

Vancouver, Oct. 23.—W. L. Burgess, accused of being one of two men who, May 19, held up the office force of the Canadian Express Co. at Truro, N.S., and stole $16,000, started back to Nova Scotia last night in charge of W. H. Welsh, manager of the Canadian Detective Bureau here, who made the arrest.

Berlin and Gold Imports.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Inquiry among the big international bankers yesterday developed that all are incredulous regarding the reported German purchases of gold in London. Bankers say that it would be impossible to import gold with profit at the present rate of exchange.

Five Killed In Wreck.

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 23.—Five persons and possible more, were killed in a wreck on the Panhandle division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Collinsville, Ohio, yesterday, when a southbound passenger train ran into a freight train on an open siding.

As a Beautifier of the Skin Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment holds a unique position. It does not clog the pores as do unsanitary powders but positively promotes a healthful action of the skin and thereby makes it clear, soft, smooth and velvety.

It soothes irritation and inflammation, cures chafing, pimples and blackheads, and all kinds of skin eruptions, including the worst cases of eczema and salt rheum.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Stops itching promptly and heals the skin quickly. It is antiseptic and the healing of utmost value in preventing blood poisoning when applied to scalds, sores and wounds.

Girl Died After Operation.

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 23.—The inquest into the death of Susan Clark, the Napanee girl who died in the hospital here was resumed last night. The jury found that deceased came to her death from the effects of a criminal operation, performed by some person in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and recommended that, owing to the prevalence of crime of this nature, and the international aspect of this case, that the authorities of both countries adopt, in conjunction, more stringent methods to bring the guilty parties to justice.

No evidence was offered last night. Several Toronto witnesses were notified to be present, but they failed to appear. The absence of an ante-mortem statement by the girl precluded the possibility of any evidence that would convict any person under the laws of the State of New York, where the offence undoubtedly took place.

Opposed to a Navy.

Kingston, Oct. 23.—The Trades and Labor Council has placed itself on record as opposing the building of a Canadian navy.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

The Examiner road races on Monday, the biggest sporting event of the year in Peterborough, promises to be the most successful in the history of the event. Given the weather that has smiled on the contests since they were inaugurated there is every reason to expect that in point of interest this years' races will surpass anything yet held under the auspices of the Examiner. The greatest possible interest in the races is being taken by the public and the indications are that the biggest crowd that ever saw the finish of the contests will be on hand in the vicinity of the Examiner office on Monday morning. It is to be hoped, however, that the spectators will do everything in their power to see that the runners have a proper chance to finish and that the road is not blocked up as has been the case in other years. Special preparations are being made with the object of trying to remedy this state of affairs, but it is only by the co-operation of the public that the management can hope to succeed in their efforts. The spectators should remember, too, that the race is not over as soon as the first man has breasted the tape and that they must allow all the runners an opportunity to finish.

The races will be started simultaneously at 10.30 o'clock, the senior at Lakefield and the juniors 100 yards north of the five mile post. The youngsters will therefore likely finish a few minutes before 11 o'clock, while the grind of the seniors will be over around 11.25. Arrangements are being made to have the standing of the seniors bulletined in the orders at which they pass Nassau sb that the crowd will have an idea of how the runners are progressing. Souvenir programmes giving the names of the starters with their numbers will be distributed during the morning in order to give every one a chance to intelligently follow the results.

Everything is ready for the big events. The juniors will be taken out in busses leaving the Examiner office sharp at 9.15 o'clock on Monday morning and the starters are asked to be on hand at that hour in order not to delay the start of the race as it will take some time to distribute numbers and give instructions. The seniors may go to Lakefield on the morning train at their own expense or else be driven out in a bus which leaves the Examiner office at 8.30 a.m. It has been arranged to have busses follow both junior and senior races to carry back the clothes of the contestants as well as any runners who may find it necesary to drop out before the finish.

The contestants are warned that on no account must they take to the side walk when they reach the city limits. Anyone that does so will be disqualified. In other years there has been no ruling on this point and some runners have used the sidewalk while others have been afraid to do so and there has always been more or less confusion. However, the point is clear now and the runners are warned that the rule will be strictly adhered to.

"There is great speculation over the result of the senior race. While Charlie Thorpe of the Victoria Harriers who was second last year is the logical favourite it is felt that he will have very strong opposition and that it will be as usual a nip and tuck battle. Thorpe's team mates Brown and Knapp, are both in good shape and will bear watching, while those who remember the showing made by Al Spenceley in the first Examiner race will look for him to run a bang up race Monday. He has been out of the city since the first race but is fit and well and will likely shake some of the runners up before the ten mile grind is at an end. Nearly all the other runners have been in the race before and know just what it means. They are in shape and with the experience gained in other years will be right in line to put up a grand fight. Sidney Vaness is a starter about whom little is known and the same is true of the Lakefield boy, Morley Macdonald. At least a dozen men will face the starter in the senior event and it looks like the most keenly contested race yet.

And when it comes to speculation what about the junior race in which thirty youngsters will battle for the four prizes offered. But little can be had on the juniors, many of whom are running their first race and it will be anybody's race. On his showing last year Garnet Tovey of the Collegiate Institute should have a good chance to annex the gold watch for first place. He ran second to Cross last year and was close up at the finish out of the field of 26 entries. Nagle Phelan, who won most of the running events in the junior class at the Collegiate Institute sports should be a contender and among the outside entries it is said that Teddie Heard, of Fenelon Falls is a very classy youngster. A Peterborough man who saw him perform, says that the Cataract Village boy must be counted on all the way Victor Bullock, the Lakefield entry, was second in the field day of the Lakefield Public School and that entitles him to recognition and among the other outside entries, O'Neil, of Hastings, Edwards, of Keene and Ed. Carley, of Fenelon Falls, must be looked out for. In addition there is a vast horde of local "kids" about whom nothing is known, and it promises to be one grand race all the way. Last year 26 started and of this number no less than 22 finished.

Senior Entries.

Morris Montgomery, 223 Dublin St.
George Robinson, Otonabee A. C.
A. W. Spenceley, 317 Smith St.
Sidney Vaness, 285 Dalhousie St.

GREAT INTEREST BEING TAKEN IN MONDAY'S BIG RUGBY GAME FOOTBALL EVENT OF SEASON

Both Teams are Confident and it Will be a Battle Royal All the Way---Lindsay Has the Weight But the Locals Figure on Their Speed and Knowledge of the Game to Carry Them Through.

The only sporting event of Monday afternoon is the Junior O. R. F. U. Rugby game at Riverside Park, which brings together the Champion Lindsay team and the Peterborough O. R. F. U. juniors, in what promises to be one of the most interesting games of the season. The old rivalry that has always existed between Lindsay and Peterborough in baseball, hockey, and curling has spread to the rugby game, since the Scugog town has taken up the pastime and the same old keenness of play that has invariably been in evidence when the two meet, will be repeated at Riverside Park Monday. Lindsay is dead anxious to trim the Petes, and have been practising with terrific vim for the past two weeks, in order to get into shape for the match. On the other hand the Peterborough team is most anxious for the opportunity to go up against Lindsay, and the result should be a a battle brimful of excitement and one that no lover of Rugby can afford to miss.

The local team is putting the fine touches on this afternoon in a final practice at Riverside Park, and the fourteen will be in the pink of condition for the game, which is called for at 2.30 o'clock sharp. There has been the keenest possible competition for places on the line-up, and Coach Dr. MacPherson, who is picking the line-up, may be depended upon to select a fourteen that will give Lindsay the time of their lives. It will be one merry afternoon's sport, and doubtless one of the largest crowds in years will be on hand, as there is nothing else on the holiday afternoon.

Two Fishermen Drowned.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 23.—Daniel Keely and Matthew Weaver, fishermen, Wolfe Island, were drowned by the upsetting of a small boat in a squall in the American channel between Cape Vincent and Wolfe Island. Keely was 70 years old, and had fished in these waters thirty years. He leaves a wife, and three daughters. Weaver was 60 years old, and unmarried. When the storm came up people on the island saw the men take down the sail, then the boat upset.

A MAINSTAY FOR ALL MEN

All Breadwinners Who Find Health Declining Should Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Thousands of men throughout Canada are suffering to-day from a deplorable failure of strength without knowing that they are the victims of nervous exhaustion. The signs are plain. The sufferer cannot keep his mind on work, passes restless nights, turns against food and cannot digest it, feels exhausted after exertion while headaches and fits of dizziness often add to his misery. These symptoms denote that the nervous system is weakened and insufficiently nourished. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will promptly cure because they enrich the impure weak blood and thus give new strength and tone to the exhausted nerves. No other medicine can do this so promptly and so surely.

Mr. W. H. Hipson, East Pubnico, N.S., says: "For a number of years I was troubled with violent headaches. When these spells came on the pain was so severe that I feared I gould lose my senses. At the outset these headaches would come on about once a week. I doctored for the trouble and did everything possible to get relief, but without avail, and as the time went on the attacks grew both in frequency and severity. The pain was terrible and with each attack seemed to grow worse. The only relief I could get was from a hot mustard foot bath, and the application of hot water and ammonia to my head. I would then have to be led to bed where I had to remain until the attack passed away. At this time Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my notice and while I scarcely hoped they would cure me, I decided to try them. After taking a few boxes I found that the attacks wer not so severe, and I joyfully continued taking the Pills until I had used ten boxes when every symptom of the trouble had passed away, and I was in better health than I had ever enjoyed before. It is several years since my cure was effected, and as I have not had a headache since I feel that the cure is permanent. This is a plain statement of my case, but no words can tell what my sufferings really were and I believe that but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would have been in my grave, for I could not have stood the pain much longer and doctors did not do me any good."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Budget Revision Brought In.

London, Oct. 23.—David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, presented in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon the budget estimate as revised by him.

The new figures show a falling off from the original estimates aggregating $10,500,000, of which sum $4,000,000 may be accounted for by the decreased revenue on spirits since the new and higher taxes were levied against them.

To offset these decreases there are estimated increases of $2,250,000 included in which are unexpected windfalls in the shape of death duties totaling $6,500,000 more than was originally expected, and thus saving the Chancellor from the necessity of facing a serious deficit.

To meet a shortage of $1,250,000, Mr. Lloyd-George proposes to take $2,500,000 more out of the sinking fund.

Traveler Strangely Missing.

Belleville, Oct. 23.—Relatives and friends in this city of Bert Rapley, a commercial traveler, are much concerned over his disappearance.

He was in Napanee on Tuesday, and registered at the Campbell House. In the evening he wrote some letters in his room at the hotel, and left them on the table unsealed. Then he went out on the street, and has not been seen since. He was due in this city the next day, but failed to materialise.

He is about 30 years of age, tall and fair. His friends here cannot account for his disappearance, as he had no bad habits.

Dams on Ottawa River.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Crown Lands of Ontario, and Hon. Jules Allard, Minister of Public Works, Quebec, were in Ottawa yesterday to confer with Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, in respect to the plans for the conservation of the waters of the Ottawa river by the building of a series of dams. Where dams are built for the conservation of the water supply, provincial crown lands are liable to be flooded. The Provincial Governments are all equally interested in the scheme, which will mean much for the navigation and power interests along the waterway, and it is not at all likely that the Federal Government will be disposed to grant compensation for crown lands which may be flooded, more particularly as the Dominion Government is bearing the entire cost. It is understood that the conference was satisfactory.

In connection with the great sale of Pianos at the Nelson Music Company, Ware Rooms, 173 Simcoe Street, the Halpany Quartette A.F. of M. will give a musicale from 7.30 to 8.30 to night.

GRIEVING THE SPIRIT

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON THE RELIEF FROM SIN.

Text, "Grieve Not the Holy Spirit of God by Which You Were Sealed Unto the Day of Deliverance" (Ephesians iv, 30)—World Had to Learn the Lesson of Sin and Its Bitter Penalty Before Deliverance.

Sunday, Oct. 24.—Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle preached to-day from the text, "Grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by which you were sealed unto the day of deliverance" (Ephesians iv, 30). He said:

Most evidently our text is not addressed to the heathen, who know not God, nor to the masses of Christendom even, but merely to those who come to an intimate acquaintance with the Lord and who have received his holy Spirit as a seal, mark, evidence, proof, that they by and by will attain the fruition of their hopes—the completion of their redemption, their absolute deliverance from sin and death conditions. Most assuredly no one could grieve the holy Spirit who had not received it!

The expression, holy Spirit of God, is here used exactly in the same sense as if we were speaking to a dear earthly friend, whose sympathy, fellowship, favor we had learned to esteem very highly. Of such we might say in very similar language, If you do so and so, it would assuredly wound and grieve the spirit of your dearest friend. The intimation would be that you would no longer have his esteem and favor as before; that the reprehended conduct would cause more or less of a breach between you and your friend. It would not mean that his acquaintance would necessarily be cut forever, and that he would become your enemy, instead of your friend. It would mean, rather, that having been your friend he would esteem you no longer worthy of the same degree of fellowship and confidence as before. He would no longer treat you as a dear and intimate friend, and communicate to you his plans and arrangements along various lines. He might still speak as he passed by, and treat you in every way kindly, yet there would be a difference, a coolness, a separation, a cloud, between. If you esteemed the love of your friend, his fellowship, his interest in all of your affairs, you would assuredly be continually on guard to do nothing that might wound, offend, grieve him and alienate his sympathy and fellowship—especially if he were on a higher plane of wealth or honor or intelligence than yourself, and one, therefore, whose patronage, advice and counsel you needed and desired.

This, we take it, is the thought behind the Apostle's word "grieve" in our text. It is closely allied with the thought of offending our best friend, our Creator, our Heavenly Father. We are not to get the thought that the great Creator of the Universe could be actually caused sorrow, grief, repining, pain, by any conduct of ours. He is too great and we are too insignificant. Yet our Heavenly Father takes note of us as a world of mankind. He has provided for our relief from sin and its penalty, death. He is specially interested in those who have responded to his gracious proffers. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that reverence him" (Psalm ciii, 13). His pity extended beyond this—even to love, when we heartily accepted his favor and made full consecration of our little all to him. It was then that he was pleased to seal us, to give us the mark or stamp of sonship, to evidence to us that we have been begotten again to a New Nature, to immortality, to glory with himself—if so be that we continue faithful to our vow of consecration.

As a father he watches over the interests of this consecrated class. Although, as the Scriptures say, they are "few," he estimates them very highly and, amongst other precious names, gives to these sons of God the title of "jewels." The experiences of the present life are intended to polish these jewels—to prepare them for a heavenly setting in the Resurrection Morning. "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels" (Malachi iii, 17).

As the lapidary first washes the diamond which has been picked from the miry clay; as he then critically examines it to note its very best possibilities; as he then gives direction to the workmen respecting its cutting and subsequently respecting its polishing, we have the Divine illustration of how God's providence through the holy Spirit, the holy power of truth, overrules and governs in all the experiences of this consecrated "jewel" class. It is required of them that they exercise faith and learn to rejoice in tribulations, as well as in more pleasurable experiences, knowing that they are in God's hand, and that, if they are submissive to him, he will "work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" through the disappointments, the frictions, the sorrows, the tears, the anguish even, of earthly experiences—if these be endured for righteousness' sake.

Coming down to human comprehension, the Lord represents himself as pleased or displeased, rejoiced or grieved, after the manner of the most noble of the human family. Because of his generosity, his benevolence, his desire to do good unto all, and especially to the household of faith, and particularly to the fully consecrated, our Creator takes pleasure in working out of a great Plan of Salvation for humanity.

For six thousand years our loving Creator has permitted Adam's disobedience to bring upon his family a terrible reign of sin and death. God sympathizes with the "groaning creation" and has promised assistance—deliverance. But his Wisdom determines that the lesson of the sinfulness of sin and the bitterness of its fruit must first be thoroughly learned. Then the deliverance to righteousness and life may be the better appreciated and all danger of a reversion to sin be avoided, and an eternity of righteousness and blessing result.

Preparation for this great program has not been swift, nor is haste necessary. The lesson of sin and its bitter fruitage has come to the world during six thousand years, though no single member of the race needed or received so prolonged a lesson. The first step of recovery was accomplished by our Redeemer's sacrifice of himself. The second step has been in process since Pentecost (the calling and accepting of the antitypical Levites) specially amongst these of the antitypical priesthood, who now rejoicingly suffer with the great High Priest. They lay down their lives in his service, under the promise that in the First Resurrection they shall be with their Redeemer and share his glory and, as a "royal priesthood" under him, rule, instruct, and every way assist in uplifting the "groaning creation" during the Millennial Kingdom of the great Mediator, whose members they will be. This step in the Divine Plan is spoken of in the Scriptures as "The Mystery of God;" that the Church now being selected are "members" of The Christ. As soon as this "mystery hidden from ages" shall be completed and the Church be glorified, with her Lord, then our prayer and the prayer of our Redeemer will begin to have fulfilment—"Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

Not all who have named the name of Christ; not all who have turned away from sin; not all who have made full consecration of themselves even will attain to the glorious "things which God hath in reservation for them that love him." Only such of the consecrated as learn in the School of Christ the great lesson of supreme love to God and heart obedience to his will (outward obedience also to the extent of ability) only these will be accounted worthy to share in the Kingdom. It is these that are mentioned in our text as sealed by the holy Spirit of promise and waiting for the resurrection morning, the deliverance day, the day of attainment to the glorious things which God has in reservation for the faithful. As a loving parent watches the progress of his child in school, so the Heavenly Father is interested in our progress, and desirous that we shall make our calling and our election sure to the heavenly glories. Hence he pictures himself as pleased with our progress and as grieved when we fail to learn the necessary lessons. He has promised us a place with our Lord in his Millennial Kingdom Throne, but the promise is a conditional one. Our Redeemer expresses it thus: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my Throne." Thus we get a glimpse of God's special interest in each of his consecrated, spirit-begotten children. They have his love and favor and smile in proportion as they follow the Redeemer's footsteps. A failure to walk in this way grieves the Lord's spirit or figuratively brings his frown instead of his smile and tends to separate us from his love.

The child of God should seek to ever live in the sunshine of the Heavenly Father's favor. Whatever clouds arise between such and their very best earthly friends will be light afflictions indeed, if they still abide in fellowship with the Heavenly Father and the Son, through the holy Spirit—the spirit of love, the spirit of Truth, the spirit of obedience, the spirit of self-sacrifice. Indeed, if earthly friendships and earthly loves be entirely severed through faithfulness to the Lord, the loyal one may reach the place where he can "rejoice in tribulation also."

A seal is an authoritative mark. With a signature a seal implies that the contract of the document is no longer open, no longer a mere proposal, but an accomplished, finished agreement or bargain. In olden times, seals were usually impressed in wax while it was yet soft; the seal itself represented a coat of arms or something representing the personality of the one who used it. The pressure upon the soft wax was gradually increased and then held firmly until the wax had cooled, hardened, and permitted the removal of the seal, without injury to the impress which then was clearly revealed. This is the mental picture which our text brings before our minds. God our Creator, our Father, impresses upon our willing hearts by his holy Spirit his own character likeness, which is specially exemplified for us in the words and doings of our Redeemer and the apostles who walked in his steps of devotion to God and to righteousness and in self-sacrifice in the interest of others.

What a beautiful picture our text then gives us of the holy Spirit's operation upon our hearts, sealing us, marking us, continually deepening the impression, eventually transforming us, until, by the final change of the First Resurerection, the sealing processes shall have been accomplished. Then the glorious promises of God's Word having been fully realized, we shall be like our Lord on the spirit plane and sharers of his glory. Then we shall be granted the privileges of association with him in his Millennial Kingdom work for the uplifting, the restitution, the blessing, of Israel and all the families of the earth. But let us not forget that no one is sealed with the holy Spirit of promise, except he has turned from sin and accepted our Lord Jesus as his Redeemer and who has, additionally, consecrated unto death all his human rights and interests of every kind—to sacrifice the same as guided by the holy Spirit of the Lord.

God's holy Spirit, in effecting this sealing of our hearts, in making this impress of the Divine character upon us as New Creatures, uses various means. One of these is the Word of God, sometimes called "the sword of the Spirit." Its instructions, encouragements, warnings and promises constitute a power of God upon the hearts of those who love righteousness and hate iniquity and who are striving to serve the Lord with willing and self-sacrificing hearts. The Word of God may reach others and influence them more or less this way or that, but only upon this one special class does it exercise this sealing power. Another agency for the impressing of the Divine will, "the mind of Christ," the holy Spirit, upon our hearts is God's Providences. These, however, can be rightly understood only by those enlightened by the Word, the Bible, and can be rightly applied only by the meek, the humble, the trustful, who have made the consecration and are seeking to make their calling and election sure.

The holy Spirit uses these different means of developing in the consecrated ones the mind of Christ, the spirit of God, the holy Spirit; the sealing thus effected marks each individual as one of the Lord's "jewels," one of the Lord's "members," in preparation for a share with the Lord in the heavenly Kingdom. There is a blessing experienced in conjunction with the sealing itself—a joy, a peace, a rest of heart, which the world can neither give nor take away. However, these blessings of the present time are merely a foretaste or "earnest" of the great inheritance which is to be theirs with the completion of their experiences in the School of Christ. In the end of this age all of these faithful ones, "not many," "a little flock," will reach the end of the journey and, by the First Resurrection, be "changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," into the glorious likeness of the Redeemer. That wonderful moment will be in the early dawn of the Millennial Day, which is the Day of Redemption, the Day of Deliverance.

But while the Church will be the first to be blessed in that deliverance day, the Scriptures assure us that others also will be delivered — "the groaning creation." But the Church will be first every way, and then through it as the Body of Christ, the blessings of restitution opportunities will be extended to all others. That will be earth's great Deliverance Day or, as shown in the Jewish types, it will be the anti-typical Jubilee Year, in which the world will be released from its bondage to sin and death. As St. James declares (i., 18) the Church is "a kind of first-fruits unto God of His creatures." But the first-fruits will have a great pre-eminence, in that the First Resurrection will bring them spiritual perfection, as well as a share in the Millennial Kingdom. Theirs will be an instantaneous change, while the opportunities of the world will be that of gradual uplifting from sin and death conditions to the perfection of manhood, such as Adam enjoyed before he sinned, and in a world-wide Eden home.

The grieving of the holy Spirit, then, would signify that the sealing processes would discontinue; that the work would not be accomplished; that the Word and Providences of God would not prove effective in the heart which had grieved the Spirit. In other words, it is required that this work of sealing shall be fully with our consent (co-operation), else it cannot proceed. The Apostle intimates that self-will on our part, or a recurrence to the spirit of the world, would have this blighting effect. This is shown in the context preceding which should be fully studied.

It is not our wish to discourage anybody in any measure of well doing. On the contrary, we encourage all with the Scriptural assurance that not a single act of kindness done to one of the least of the Lord's disciples will fail of its reward—even a cup of cold water. It is our duty, however, to call attention, not only to the grandeur of the prize which the Lord has set before his Church, but also with equal persistency to call attention to the particular terms upon which it may be secured. It is not in vain that the Apostle wrote, "If ye do these things, ye shall never fall, for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." In the very same connection the Apostle calls our attention to some who have grieved the holy Spirit wherewith they were sealed unto the day of deliverance, saying: "But he that lacketh these things is blind and cannot see afar off (has lost his spiritual sight) and has forgotten that he was purged from his old sins" (II. Peter 1, 8, 9). So, then, dear brethren, let us give the more earnest heed to the Word of the Lord, lest we should let the blessed message and blessed influence slip.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MARLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering."—Mrs. GEORGE JORDY, Box 40, Marlton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Doctor's Big District.

There are few doctors who have a "parish" four hundred miles in length. Dr. Grenfell, of the Labrador, is probably the only medical man who can top this record, which is held by one of his associates, Dr. Hare, at present visiting in Montreal.

Dr. Hare's headquarters are the hospital at Harrington Harbor, which is about one hundred and thirty miles this side of Belle Isle on the north shore of the Gulf. From that centre he travels around his parish in a circuit of four hundred miles. During the winter he makes the tour of his "parishioners" twice, traveling sixteen hundred miles on dog sled, while his summer journeyings in his launch total up to twenty-five or twenty-eight hundred miles. From November to June Dr. Hare's "parish" is shut in, and its only communication with the outside world during that period is the monthly mail sled sent by the Canadian postoffice.

Dr. Hare is a bluff, hearty Englishman, who has seen life under many a guise, and he takes the hardships and thrilling experiences of his life in a philosophic spirit of modesty.

The Safest Place.

A British railway train is still the safest place on earth, as only one passenger in seventy millions is killed, and one in every 2,300,000 injured. This deduction is based upon a careful survey of the Board of Trade report on railway accidents during the year 1907. Last year the number of fires in trains amounted to 170, but it should be explained that many of these were of the most trifling description. It is a significant fact that of the number of fires reported, not a solitary one occurred either directly or indirectly through a lightning flash. It would appear that for some reason, railway trains are practically immune from the disastrous effects which usually mark the track of a violent thunderstorm.—Railway Magazine.

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eightieth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone inhaler next to life itself."

GRIEVING THE SPIRIT

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON THE RELIEF FROM SIN.

Text, "Grieve Not the Holy Spirit of God by Which You Were Sealed Unto the Day of Deliverance" (Ephesians iv, 30)—World Had to Learn the Lesson of Sin and Its Bitter Penalty Before Deliverance.

Sunday, Oct. 24.—Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle preached to-day from the text, "Grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by which you were sealed unto the day of deliverance" (Ephesians iv, 30). He said:

Most evidently our text is not addressed to the heathen, who know not God, nor to the masses of Christendom even, but merely to those who come to an intimate acquaintance with the Lord and who have received his holy Spirit as a seal, mark, evidence, proof, that they by and by will attain the fruition of their hopes—the completion of their redemption, their absolute deliverance from sin and death conditions. Most assuredly no one could grieve the holy Spirit who had not received it!

The expression, holy Spirit of God, is here used exactly in the same sense as if we were speaking to a dear earthly friend, whose sympathy, fellowship, favor we had learned to esteem very highly. Of such we might say in very similar language, If you do so and so, it would assuredly wound and grieve the spirit of your dearest friend. The intimation would be that you would no longer have his esteem and favor as before; that the reprehended conduct would cause more or less of a breach between you and your friend. It would not mean that his acquaintance would necessarily be cut forever, and that he would become your enemy, instead of your friend. It would mean, rather, that having been your friend he would esteem you no longer worthy of the same degree of fellowship and confidence as before. He would no longer treat you as a dear and intimate friend, and communicate to you his plans and arrangements along various lines. He might still speak as he passed by, and treat you in every way kindly, yet there would be a difference, a coolness, a separation, a cloud, between. If you esteemed the love of your friend, his fellowship, his interest in all of your affairs, you would assuredly be continually on guard to do nothing that might wound, offend, grieve him and alienate his sympathy and fellowship—especially if he were on a higher plane of wealth or honor or intelligence than yourself, and one, therefore, whose patronage, advice and counsel you needed and desired.

This, we take it, is the thought behind the Apostle's word "grieve" in our text. It is closely allied with the thought of offending our best friend, our Creator, our Heavenly Father. We are not to get the thought that the great Creator of the Universe could be actually caused sorrow, grief, repining, pain, by any conduct of ours. He is too great and we are too insignificant. Yet our Heavenly Father takes note of us as a world of mankind. He has provided for our relief from sin and its penalty, death. He is specially interested in those who have responded to his gracious proffers. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that reverence him" (Psalm ciii, 13). His pity extended beyond this—even to love, when we heartily accepted his favor and made full consecration of our little all to him. It was then that he was pleased to seal us, to give us the mark or stamp of sonship, to evidence to us that we have been begotten again to a New Nature, to immortality, to glory with himself—if so be that we continue faithful to our vow of consecration.

As a father he watches over the interests of this consecrated class. Although, as the Scriptures say, they are "few," he estimates them very highly and, amongst other precious names, gives to these sons of God the title of "jewels." The experiences of the present life are intended to polish these jewels—to prepare them for a heavenly setting in the Resurrection Morning. "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels" (Malachi iii, 17).

As the lapidary first washes the diamond which has been picked from the miry clay; as he then critically examines it to note its very best possibilities; as he then gives direction to the workmen respecting its cutting and subsequently respecting its polishing, we have the Divine illustration of how God's providence through the holy spirit, the holy power of God, overrules and governs in all the experiences of this consecrated "jewel" class. It is required of them that they exercise faith and learn to rejoice in tribulations, as well as in more pleasurable experiences, knowing that they are in God's hand, and that, if they are submissive to him, he will "work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" through the disappointments, the frictions, the sorrows, the tears, the anguish even, of earthly experiences—if these be endured for righteousness' sake.

Coming down to human comprehension, the Lord represents himself as pleased or displeased, rejoiced or grieved, after the manner of the most noble of the human family. Because of his generosity, his benevolence, his desire to do good unto all, and especially to the household of faith, and particularly to the fully consecrated, our Creator takes pleasure in working out of a great Plan of Salvation for humanity.

For six thousand years our loving Creator has permitted Adam's disobedience to bring upon his family a terrible reign of sin and death. God sympathizes with the "groaning creation" and has promised assistance—deliverance. But his Wisdom determines that the lesson of the sinfulness of sin and the bitterness of its fruit must first be thoroughly learned. Then the deliverance to righteousness and life may be the better appreciated and all danger of a reversion to sin be avoided, and an eternity of righteousness and blessing result.

Preparation for this great program has not been swift, nor is haste necessary. The lesson of sin and its bitter fruitage has come to the world during six thousand years, though no single member of the race needed or received so prolonged a lesson. The first step of recovery was accomplished by our Redeemer's sacrifice of himself. The second step has been in process since Pentecost (the calling and accepting of the antitypical Levites) specially amongst these of the antitypical priesthood, who now rejoicingly suffer with the great High Priest. They lay down their lives in his service, under the promise that in the First Resurrection they shall be with their Redeemer and share his glory and, as a "royal priesthood" under him, rule, instruct, and every way assist in uplifting the "groaning creation" during the Millennial Kingdom of the great Mediator, whose members they will be. This step in the Divine Plan is spoken of in the Scriptures as "The Mystery of God;" that the Church now being selected are "members" of The Christ. As soon as this "mystery hidden from ages" shall be completed and the Church be glorified, with her Lord, then our prayer and the prayer of our Redeemer will begin to have fulfilment—"Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

Not all who have named the name of Christ; not all who have turned away from sin; not all who have made full consecration of themselves even will attain to the glorious "things which God hath in reservation for them that love him." Only such of the consecrated as learn in the School of Christ the great lesson of supreme love to God and heart obedience to his will (outward obedience also to the extent of ability) only these will be accounted worthy to share in the Kingdom. It is these that are mentioned in our text as sealed by the holy Spirit of promise and waiting for the resurrection morning, the deliverance day, the day of attainment to the glorious things which God has in reservation for the faithful. As a loving parent watches the progress of his child in school, so the Heavenly Father is interested in our progress, and desirous that we shall make our calling and our election sure to the heavenly glories. Hence he pictures himself as pleased with our progress and as grieved when we fail to learn the necessary lessons. He has promised us a place with our Lord in his Millennial Kingdom Throne, but the promise is a conditional one. Our Redeemer expresses it thus: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my Throne." Thus we get a glimpse of God's special interest in each of his consecrated, spirit-begotten children. They have his love and favor and smile in proportion as they follow the Redeemer's footsteps. A failure to walk in this way grieves the Lord's spirit or figuratively brings his frown instead of his smile and tends to separate us from his love.

The child of God should seek to ever live in the sunshine of the Heavenly Father's favor. Whatever clouds arise between such and their very best earthly friends will be light afflictions indeed, if they still abide in fellowship with the Heavenly Father and the Son, through the holy Spirit—the spirit of love, the spirit of Truth, the spirit of obedience, the spirit of self-sacrifice. Indeed, if earthly friendships and earthly loves be entirely severed through faithfulness to the Lord, the loyal one may reach the place where he can "rejoice in tribulation also."

A seal is an authoritative mark. With a signature a seal implies that the contract of the document is no longer open, no longer a mere proposal, but an accomplished, finished agreement or bargain. In olden times, seals were usually impressed in wax while it was yet soft; the seal itself represented a coat of arms or something representing the personality of the one who used it. The pressure upon the soft wax was gradually increased and then held firmly until the wax had cooled, hardened, and permitted the removal of the seal, without injury to the impress which then was clearly revealed. This is the mental picture which our text brings before our minds. God our Creator, our Father, impresses upon our willing hearts by his holy Spirit his own character likeness, which is specially exemplified for us in the words and doings of our Redeemer and the apostles who walked in his steps of devotion to God and to righteousness and in self-sacrifice in the interest of others.

What a beautiful picture our text then gives us of the holy Spirit's operation upon our hearts, sealing us, marking us, continually deepening the impression, eventually transforming us, until, by the final change of the First Resurrection, the sealing processes shall have been accomplished. Then the glorious promises of God's Word having been fully realized, we shall be like our Lord on the spirit plane and sharers of his glory. Then we shall be granted the privileges of association with him in his Millennial Kingdom work for the uplifting, the restitution, the blessing, of Israel and all the families of the earth. But let us not forget that no one is sealed with the holy Spirit of promise, except he has turned from sin and accepted our Lord Jesus as his Redeemer and who has, additionally, consecrated unto death all his human rights and interests of every kind—to sacrifice the same as guided by the holy Spirit of the Lord.

God's holy Spirit, in effecting this sealing of our hearts, in making this impress of the Divine character upon us as New Creatures, uses various means. One of these is the Word of God, sometimes called "the sword of the Spirit." Its instructions, encouragements, warnings and promises constitute a power of God upon the hearts of those who love righteousness and hate iniquity and who are striving to serve the Lord with willing and self-sacrificing hearts. The Word of God may reach others and influence them more or less this way or that, but only upon this one special class does it exercise this sealing power. Another agency for the impressing of the Divine will, "the mind of Christ," the holy Spirit, upon our hearts is God's Providences. These, however, can be rightly understood only by those enlightened by the Word, the Bible, and can be rightly applied only by the meek, the humble, the trustful, who have made the consecration and are seeking to make their calling and election sure.

The holy Spirit uses these different means of developing in the consecrated ones the mind of Christ, the spirit of God, the holy Spirit; the sealing thus effected marks each individual as one of the Lord's "jewels," one of the Lord's "members," in preparation for a share with the Lord in the heavenly Kingdom. There is a blessing experienced in conjunction with the sealing itself—a joy, a peace, a rest of heart, which the world can neither give nor take away. However, these blessings of the present time are merely a foretaste or "earnest" of the great inheritance which is to be theirs with the completion of their experiences in the School of Christ. In the end of this age all of these faithful ones, "not many," "a little flock," will reach the end of the journey and, by the First Resurrection, be "changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," into the glorious likeness of the Redeemer. That wonderful moment will be in the early dawn of the Millennial Day, which is the Day of Redemption, the Day of Deliverance.

But while the Church will be the first to be blessed in that deliverance day, the Scriptures assure us that others also will be delivered — "the groaning creation." But the Church will be first every way, and then through it as the Body of Christ, the blessings of restitution opportunities will be extended to all others. That will be earth's great Deliverance Day or, as shown in the Jewish types, it will be the anti-typical Jubilee Year, in which the world will be released from its bondage to sin and death. As St. James declares (i., 18) the Church is "a kind of first-fruits unto God of His creatures." But the first-fruits will have a great pre-eminence, in that the First Resurrection will bring them spiritual perfection, as well as a share in the Millennial Kingdom. Theirs will be an instantaneous change, while the opportunities of the world will be that of gradual uplifting from sin and death conditions to the perfection of manhood, such as Adam enjoyed before he sinned, and in a world-wide Eden home.

The grieving of the holy Spirit, then, would signify that the sealing processes would discontinue; that the work would not be accomplished; that the Word and Providences of God would not prove effective in the heart which had grieved the Spirit. In other words, it is required that this work of sealing shall be fully with our consent (co-operation), else it cannot proceed. The Apostle intimates that self-will on our part, or a recurrence to the spirit of the world, would have this blighting effect. This is shown in the context preceding which should be fully studied.

It is not our wish to discourage anybody in any measure of well doing. On the contrary, we encourage all with the Scriptural assurance that not a single act of kindness done to one of the least of the Lord's disciples will fail of its reward—even a cup of cold water. It is our duty, however, to call attention, not only to the grandeur of the prize which the Lord has set before his Church, but also with equal persistency to call attention to the particular terms upon which it may be secured. It is not in vain that the Apostle wrote, "If ye do these things, ye shall never fall, for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." In the very same connection the Apostle calls our attention to some who have grieved the holy Spirit wherewith they were sealed unto the day of deliverance, saying: "But he that lacketh these things is blind and cannot see afar off (has lost his spiritual sight) and has forgotten that he was purged from his old sins" (II. Peter i, 8, 9). So, then, dear brethren, let us give the more earnest heed to the Word of the Lord, lest we should let the blessed message and blessed influence slip.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MARLTON, N.J.—"I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering."—Mrs. GEORGE JORDY, Box 40, Marlton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Doctor's Big District.

There are few doctors who have a "parish" four hundred miles in length. Dr. Grenfell, of the Labrador, is probably the only medical man who can top this record, which is held by one of his associates, Dr. Hare, at present visiting in Montreal.

Dr. Hare's headquarters are the hospital at Harrington Harbor, which is about one hundred and thirty miles this side of Belle Isle on the north shore of the Gulf. From that centre he travels around his parish in a circuit of four hundred miles. During the winter he makes the tour of his "parishioners" twice, traveling sixteen hundred miles on dog sled, while his summer journeyings in his launch total up to twenty-five or twenty-eight hundred miles. From November to June Dr. Hare's "parish" is shut in, and its only communication with the outside world during that period is the monthly mail sled sent by the Canadian postoffice.

Dr. Hare is a bluff, hearty Englishman, who has seen life under many a guise, and he takes the hardships and thrilling experiences of his life in a philosophic spirit of modesty.

The Safest Place.

A British railway train is still the safest place on earth, as only one passenger in seventy millions is killed, and one in every 2,300,000 injured. This deduction is based upon a careful survey of the Board of Trade report on railway accidents during the year 1907. Last year the number of fires in trains amounted to 170, but it should be explained that many of these were of the most trifling description. It is a significant fact that of the number of fires reported, not a solitary one occurred either directly or indirectly through a lightning flash. It would appear that for some reason, railway trains are practically immune from the disastrous effects which usually mark the track of a violent thunderstorm.—Railway Magazine.

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eightieth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone inhaler next to life itself."

WHEN SUSIE POUTED.

An Adventure That Introduced Her to the "Poke."

By JOSEPHINE REARDON.
(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

It was Miss Susie Cline's pouting day. Firstly, she had received a letter from a girl chum giving the news of a matrimonial engagement. It was written to make her feel bad.

Secondly, Miss Susie's Aunt Deborah, who was also her guardian, had charged her with carelessness in losing a piece of jewelry.

Thirdly, she had expected a girl friend to come and pass the summer with her, and that girl was going off on a yachting party to Norway instead.

The list could be strung out to tenthly without exhausting it. When things begin to go wrong with a good looking girl of eighteen, with a $20,000 estate coming to her at one and twenty, it's sure to be blue day. Miss Susie at first thought she would go to her room and have a good cry. Then she decided to sit on the veranda and let her eyes brim over with tears. The third decision was to go out into the orchard and climb a tree, but she had only started when she changed directions and wandered down the country highway without definite aim of object in view except to have her pout out. She had a stick in her hand as she walked, and the thistles and mayweeds lost their heads as she came within striking distance.

There are girls who look horrid when they pout and wish they had never been born, but Susie Cline was not one of them.

Half a mile down the road stood what was called the old bachelor's place. The five acres and cottage were the property of Mr. Wayne Ashley, twenty-five and unmarried. He lived in the city in the winter and in his country retreat in summer. He was called a recluse, and there was a story to the effect that he had loved and lost and was the enemy of all womankind. Had Mr. Ashley chosen to explain to the country folks he would have told them that certain flowers and vegetables were fads of his and he was out there to grow them and communicate results to certain horticultural and agricultural societies. In fact, he was the partner of a leading florist in the city, though his name and money were hidden under that of "Co." No woman had ever broken his heart or smashed his idols.

Miss Cline and Mr. Ashley had never met. If she referred to him it was as a "poke." He didn't refer to her at all. As the girl reached his place on this day her chin was in the air. Had she belonged to the other sex it would have been said that she had a chip on her shoulder.

In the "poke's" front yard grew a blue hollyhock, the result of one of his experiments. Miss Susie opened the gate and walked in for a closer look. Seeing no one about, she walked to the rear of the house to look at the vegetable garden. A feeling of defiance was mingled with her pouting. Any other day she would not have dared to open the gate. On this day she was ready to defy the old bachelor.

"U-r-r-r-r! Bark, bark!"

Miss Susie looked to her left, to see a big watchdog coming for her through the sugar beets. Ten feet away was a small tool house, with the door swinging open. Scarcely conscious of what she did, the girl made two or three jumps, reached the shelter and pulled the door to. Five seconds later the dog was leaping against it and uttering growls to chill her blood. She had just begun to beg and plead with the dog to go away and let her get back to the highway when she heard a voice saying:

"Good dog, Dick! Hold him there! It's dollars to cents that you've got a tramp for a prisoner!"

Miss Susie wanted to cry out that she was no tramp, but only a girl who had come out to pout; but she could not get the words out. The chip fell from her shoulder and her teeth chattered.

"Come out of that, you tramp!" called the man's voice after hushing the dog.

"Oh, you won't, eh? Well, we'll see about that. Watch him, Dick!"

The place was provided with a windmill and water tank and garden hose. There was a small unglazed window six feet from the ground in the end of the tool house. The "poke" attached the hose, turned on the water and thrust the nozzle through the opening. Susie screamed wildly. If it was a tramp in there he had a falsetto voice. The hose was pulled away, the door opened, and there—

Susie had sunk down in a heap—a limp, wet heap.

"Great Scott! But what is it?" he exclaimed as he stood there holding open the door.

"It's—it's me!" came faintly after a moment regardless of grammar.

"Why, Miss—Miss—but I didn't know you were in here! I thought it was a tramp or a cat. I shall never forgive myself. Why didn't you call out? Allow me, please."

Perhaps a girl crouching down in a toolshed with her arms over her head is a more handsome object than a girl standing outside after having had a dozen barrels of water swished over her. The peach basket hat—the linen dress—the chin that had been in the air—where had all the jauntiness disappeared to? And in addition to all the other wetness, tears were rolling down the girl's cheeks over her humiliation.

"So sorry—so sorry," the man kept repeating. "You—you are Miss Cline, I think? I am Mr. Ashley. I wouldn't have had it happen for thousands of dollars!"

All of a sudden Miss Susie dashed the tears from her eyes and began to laugh. Her pout was over with, and her sunshiny nature had asserted itself. And Mr. Ashley laughed. She was laughing over the situation, and he was laughing because she laughed.

"I am a trespasser, and I have been served right," said the girl. "Yes, I am Miss Cline. I know you will offer to see me home, but I thank you. I shall tell auntie that I fell into the creek. If you ever"—

"I never shall. If it were known that I set my dog on a girl and then tried to drown her, what would people say?"

"And if I don't tell auntie that I fell into the creek what'll she say?"

A wan, wet, lone, limpsy Susie, trying her best to walk with dignity, went out of the gate and up the road to tell Aunt Deborah how she was stooping over to look at the fish and tumbled into the creek.

That evening Mr. Wayne Ashley paid a call on the aunt and niece and formally made himself known. The accident at the creek was touched upon, but not pursued with any fervor.

Having found his way over to his neighbors, Mr. Ashley contracted the habit of calling frequently, and one day, when fall had come and he was ready to return to the city, Miss Susie said to her relative:

"Mr. Ashley has asked the privilege of corresponding with me."

"Yes?"

"And he says he may run down and call."

"Yes?"

"And—and"—

"And he wants to guard you in future from falling into creeks? Well Mr. Ashley can talk very interestingly on horticulture, and I shall be glad to listen to his remarks at any time," said Aunt Deborah.

Music of the Telegraph.

Every one has put his ear to a telegraph pole to hear the wires hum, and most people have assumed that the wind was entirely responsible for the sound. So it is in many cases, but often the note is heard when not the slightest movement of the air is perceptible. A French investigator tells us that the sound in this case is due to the expansion and contraction of the wires from variations of temperature. As the wires are not perfectly uniform, they rub against the insulators, making a slight noise, which is amplified by the post acting as a sounding board. Another investigator is sure the sounds are due to electric waves, but he fails to explain how ordinary telegraph wires should be able to serve as wave detectors and in what way the electric waves are transformed into sound waves. The other theory seems more probable.

Some curious stories are told of this telegraph wire music. In Siberia the bears think that it is the buzzing of bees and would tear down the poles to look for honey if the contractors did not pile great stones about them to prevent this. In France, on the south side of the forest of Fontainebleau, the telegraph sounds are regarded as presaging rain. This is because the south wind in this region brings rain and the forest shuts off the north wind. In some districts the noise is popularly supposed to be due to the passage of messages, but it is hardly necessary to say that there is no evidence to support this view.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Elopement Sanctioned.

This is the way they marry in Busoga, on the right bank of the Nile, at Ripan falls. The man goes to some dance, generally given in honor of some departed Busogan, and, having danced and feasted with his charmer, the happy pair elope and go to the bridegroom's home. This ends all ceremony, except that the brother of the bride visits them the next day and is received by the brother or some other relative of the bridegroom, who makes him a present of a cow or whatever else he can afford to give. This the girl's brother keeps until he gets married and pays it over to the brother of some other girl. Men already married carry away another wife in the same way and with like etiquette and payment, and sometimes a married woman is carried off, but this breach of custom is generally condoned as "a mistake" and atoned for by the payment of a cow.

Better Prospects.

Meanwhile it is evident that Canada will be altogether left behind in the race. As a matter of fact this Dominion may be said to stand in much the same situation as was occupied by the United States half a century ago. But when we compare our present facilities of ocean traffic with what they were at that date we may reasonably look for a larger expansion of our population within a corresponding period. It is to be considered, also, that with the gradual filling up of vacant areas in the United States there will be an increased reception of settlers from that country. They make good citizens and they are satisfied with our conditions when they get here.—Daily Province, Vancouver.

Labor Disputes.

The Department of Labor, Ottawa, reports that sixteen trade disputes were in progress during August.

THE MAID AT SWEET SIXTEEN

Winning, pensive, and sweet with delicate grace and charm in every movement, but that lovely color that once shone so really has gradually faded away. Her eyes are expressive but listless, that lightness of step and buoyancy of spirit which once were hers are gone.

This girl is in danger. Her system demands nourishment; her blood must be renewed. She needs Ferrozone—needs it badly—because it will bring back the nerve energy which rapid growth and study have exhausted. New strength and old-time vigor return with Ferrozone. The delicate maid is energized and given the endurance and vigor that means health.

SHE NEEDS FERROZONE

Parents, think it over. In Ferrozone there is wonderful power for strengthening and rebuilding. Every child needs it—every boy and girl will improve on it. Get a few boxes, 50c each, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers.

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.

ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.

WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

Novelty Suitings FOR Tailored Coats AND Gowns

Wide Wale Diagonal with Moire Trimming.

Stunning Model in Panne Zebeline.

Venetian Cloth with Braid Trimming.

BY MARJORIE.

IMPORTED suitings are very smart for autumn and winter and promise to have a large following. These are really more serviceable for the rough and constant wear given the average tailored coat suit and separate wrap than the smooth-finished cloths.

As I mentioned in another article, unfinished fabrics offer the best line of novelties; these are rendered soft and supple by the careful process of manufacture. Homespuns are much favored by the leading tailors and dressmakers in this country. These are shown in both hop-sack and basket weaves, in plain and two-toned effects, in solid and melange mixtures.

From Paris comes the word that coarse tweeds in black and white, dark blue and white checked in medium sized squares are in demand for both coats and wraps. Parisian tailors are also using mannish mixtures, "trouserings" they are called, showing a light, brown-grayish tone interwoven with lines or half-inch stripes of a rich dull green. Again a cross between a navy and a sapphire blue and maroon is blended.

There was a timid sprinkling of zibelines last winter, but the short-haired varieties are out in such goodly numbers that no one doubts their vogue. They are less heavy than formerly, and silky, soft and delightfully "drapy." From London I hear that mauve is to be much worn, in zibelines especially. Panne zibelines are stunning with tiny white flecks thrown upon the surface, appearing quite mystifying at a distance. A number of very dressy gowns and coat suits will be fashioned in this charming fabric.

For the more dressy coat suits and dresses and separate wraps broadcloth with a suede finish or a lustrous one are being extensively employed.

The newer weaves show a distinctly softened lustre and are extremely pliable. Hairline and shadow stripes give a variety to the plain cloths. Venetians have returned in greater numbers than heretofore and appear in every color. It is whispered that they are a strong rival to broadcloth. When of a good grade Venetian never looses its lustre nor roughens as broadcloths are apt to do. It shows a distinct twill and is tailored beautifully.

Cashmere cloth is a very new fabric slightly resembling zibeline, and made from cashemire wool, which is rare and correspondingly expensive. This novelty is available in both coatings and suiting weights, and is double fold and sells from $3.50 to $4 a yard.

STRIKING IN GRAY DIAGONAL.

The importance of color has been brought forth more conspicuously than in several seasons past. It is evident that rich, dark quiet street colors will prevail for street wear while the lighter and more perishable ones will be chosen for evening; a most practical idea that will not only be a great saving, but present a better dressed aggregation of women as a whole. The subdued pastel tints are most attractive.

The first model is a splendid example of this season's styles in tailored suits. The coat is semi-fitting closing under three fabric-covered buttons. The roll collar and large pockets are of lustrous moire silk.

The coralet princess skirt has a graduated panel effect extending through the centre and kilted panels at the side and back. The blouse is of gray chiffon a lighter shade than the cloth mounted over pale yellow silk, a double ruffle extends part way through the centre.

The large becoming hat of gray felt has a Marie Antoinette puff crown of moire silk and an immense aigrette is poised in the centre, held in place by a smoked pearl and jet cabochon.

STONE COLORED ZIBELINE.

Model two is a stunning coat dress in a new blue-gray color that proves becoming to both blondes and brunettes who have clear skins and some coloring.

This garment is put together in a number of sections showing inset panels of plaits. The upper part of this odd model resembles a three-quarter coat slashed at the sides set over a kilted skirt. The top is cut in a deep "V" supplemented by a yoke of tucked cream batiste. Small buttons and silk cords are the only trimmings.

The hat is a tall crowned affair of silk-beaver with a decidedly drooping brim. Two enormous puff rosettes of black satin are placed in quite an original manner on the hat, one to the side front the other to the side back, the sombreness somewhat relieved by two cabochon hat pins of jade. The furs are of black lynx.

This princess coat shows the very latest development in coats and one that is likewise followed in dressy coat suits. Here a lovely lustrous Venetian cloth is built quite like a princess dress with the fastening made invisible at the side.

WISTARIA VENETIAN CLOTH.

It is put together in three sections, the front and sides forming a line through the centre. These pieces are stitched to within fifteen inches of the hip line, displaying the plaited front of self-matching satin that is worn beneath.

Soutache braid and rat-tail form the elaborate decoration appearing across the top and at the base of each section. The military collar is faced with satin and the long close fitting sleeves are in three overlapping sections from elbow to wrist trimmed with buttons.

The hat is a graceful Cavalier edition in satin broadcloth with a wide, flaring brim, faced with black panne velvet. Shaded plumes are upcurled to the front and sides, one grasping over the brim.

Blythe Gets 18 Years.

Toronto, Oct. 26.—Walter Blythe escapes the gallows. With the verdict of manslaughter, brought in by the second jury to hold this man's life in their hands, and the sentence of Judge Magee, that he shall serve 18 years in Kingston Penitentiary, one of the most celebrated cases in Canadian criminal history finally closed on Saturday, and this man, whose fate has been on every tongue for nearly a year, goes from the limelight of a unique publicity to a long silence behind the gray walls at Kingston.

Three Boilers Explode.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 26.—An explosion of three boilers in the Pabst Brewing Co. yesterday morning resulted in the death of one employe, the injury of four others and property damage estimated at $250,000. The explosion was caused by the bursting of an 18-inch steam pipe.

Smoking Induced Cancer.

Windsor, Oct. 26.—Frederick Mailloux, a prominent French resident, and real estate dealer, died from cancer of the throat, supposed to be induced by excessive smoking. Blood-poisoning developed and he expired suddenly.

HE LOVES HER STILL.

Cable Says Barrie Wants to Re-marry Wife.

New York, Oct. 26.—The American prints the following London cable:

Having divorced his wife, J. M. Barrie, with the whimsicality often displayed in his stage creatures, wants her back again.

He wants his wife; he loves her; he is willing to have her come back to him. Indeed, he is offering her all sorts of inducements to return.

All England is literally astounded by the sudden change in the affairs of its most popular playwright. It doesn't know what to make of him, for he is going to most unusual lengths to win back the woman who, according to the testimony in the case, openly flouted him for a younger and handsomer man.

For days, it has become known, Barrie has been writing innumerable letters to his wife (she was Mary Ansell, an actress), humbling himself, begging her pardon for having instituted the suit, forgiving her proven misdemeanors and absolutely begging her to wed him again.

He has offered, it became known yesterday, to settle $200,000 upon her in a lump sum if she will again be his wife. In addition to that, he has offered to take her on a trip around the world. More than that, he has requested her to make her own demand for terms, and has declared that he will accede, no matter what she wants.

Mrs. Barrie thus far has been altogether unresponsive. Her affections are centered, friends assert, upon Gilbert Cannan, the young critic and dramatist, who was the co-respondent in the divorce suit. The friends do not believe that any appeal of Barrie's will win back his wife, no matter how heart-broken he may be.

Antigonish, N.S., Flooded.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 26.—For the past twenty-four hours, this province has been swept by a fierce wind and rain storm, which has wrought great havoc in the farming districts.

In the town of Antigonish, conditions are serious. The houses are partly buried in water and the residents have been forced to abandon the ground floors and seek refuge higher up. In some parts of the town, small houses have been lifted from their foundations and are floating about the streets. In the eastern end of the town the water is five feet deep. The railroad track is flooded several places, and a bad washout has taken place at Sylvan Valley, two miles from the town, where the roadbed was torn away.

In the country, thousands of bushels of potatoes and other vegetables have been destroyed.

Threw Rings Out Car Window.

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—J. E. Chilberg, president of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, is said to have accidentally thrown diamond rings worth several thousand dollars out of the car window while on his way from Portland to the Portola Exhibition last week. The diamonds belonged to Mrs. Chilberg. She had placed them in a glass of water and set them on a window sill. Then she and her husband went to breakfast.

Mr. Chilberg returned to the room first, and before closing the window, he threw the water out. When Mrs. Chilberg told him of the contents of the glass, he chartered an engine and directed the search along the roadway for the gems. They were not recovered.

Loans to Stop Emigration.

Stockholm, Oct. 26.—With a view to stemming the tide of emigration which threatens to deplete the country of agricultural laborers, a national subscription has been started to obtain funds for loans to laborers left unemployed after the recent big strike. The loans are intended to enable the purchase of small farms and will be made repayable within ten years. The fund will be administered by the Anti-Emigration Society of Sweden.

River Rose Sixty Feet.

Manila, Oct. 26.—Some storm records were broken in the recent typhoon which crossed Northern Luzon and the Benguet Mountains. Eighteen inches of rain fell in nine hours and twenty-six inches fell in the 24 hours the storm lasted.

The Bued River rose sixty feet. The wind guage at the observatory broke when the wind attained a velocity of ninety-five miles an hour.

Steloff Trial Starts.

Toronto, Oct. 26.—In the Criminal Assize Court this morning, before Judge Riddell, Palle Steloff, a Macedonian laborer, was put on trial for his life for the murder of a fellow-countryman in the house in which they lived together in Eastern avenue last spring. The trial is likely to be long and tedious, as none of the witnesses speak English.

Irish Land Bill Passed.

London, Oct. 26.—The House of Lords last night passed the third reading of the Irish land bill in greatly amended form.

The Earl of Crewe, Secretary for the Colonies, in behalf of the Government, had protested against the amendments and expressed doubt whether the House of Commons would accept them.

A Fight To a Finish.

London, Oct. 26.—Hamar Greenwood, M.P., as a guest at a dinner of the National Liberal Club, said for generations all questions of finance had been determined by the House of Commons. If the Lords interfered with the budget, the momentous issue whether people or the peers were to ..... would have to be fought to a finish.

Fire at Welland.

Welland, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Wm. Gothard's residence, together with most of the contents, was burned on Ross street early yesterday. The cause of fire is unknown.

YOUR BLOOD IS POISONED

If You Suffer From Headaches or Neuralgia.

Frequent attacks of Headaches or Neuralgia are Nature's warnings of Blood Poisoning. The pain is due simply to the tortured nerves, inflamed by the blood being overloaded with impurities, because of inactive bowels, kidneys or skin.

There is usually chronic Constipation and the foul matter, instead of passing from the body, is absorbed by the blood. The kidneys are not as strong as they should be and fail to filter from the the blood, the necessary amount of impure matter.

Instead of the skin throwing off one and a half pounds of waste matter every day, it becomes inactive and does only half its work, leaving three quarters of a pound of this waste to poison the body. Headache powders and pain killers simply numb the nerves and have no helpful action on the organs causing this poisoning of the blood. To cure Headaches and Neuralgia, the blood must be purified, which can be done only by making the kidneys, bowels and skin healthy and active.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, is the greatest blood purifying medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives", or "Fruit Liver Tablets", is a scientific cure for Headaches and Neuralgia, and never fails to cure because "Fruit-a-tives" stops the cause of these troubles.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Choice butchers sold up to $5.35, one load bringing that price. Good, $5 to $5.20; medium, $4.50 to $5; common, $3.75 to $4.25; cows, $3.50 to $4.25; canners, $1.50 to $2.25.

Feeders.

Loads of good feeders sold at $4 to $4.50 for steers, and bulls at $2.75 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number of milkers sold at from $35 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

A small delivery of veal calves, 17 in number, sold at $3 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Prices for sheep and lambs were steady but firm at following prices: Ewes, $3.50 to $3.90 per cwt.; rams, $2.50 to $3 per cwt.; lambs, $5 to $5.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

There were none on sale; dealers report prices unchanged, at $7.75 for selects fed and watered, and $7.50 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 23 were 2300 cattle, 2500 sheep and lambs, 1975 hogs and 500 calves.

The offerings on the market this morning consisted of 1400 cattle, 2225 sheep and lambs, 1280 hogs and 400 calves. A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling in the market for cattle, and prices scored an advance of ¼c per lb., notwithstanding the fact that the supply was somewhat larger than a week ago. The average quality of the stock was rather better than usual, which were mostly from Ontario points, there being only five carloads of northwest ranchers of the market. The attendance of buyers was large, and as the weather was cloudy and cool, the demand was active, and a brisk trade was done at the higher range of prices. There was considerable demand from packers for canners, of which the offerings were fairly large, but prices for these were also firmer. Choice steers sold at 5c to 5¼c; good at 4¾c to 4¾c; fair at 4c to 4¼c; medium at 3½c to 3¾c; good bulls at 3¾c to 4¼c per lb., and canners at $2.50 to $3, with cows at $1.65 to $1.75 per cwt.

Cables from Liverpool stated that the weather was wet, and trade in cattle slow. There was no change in the condition of the market, except that prices for cows, heifers and ranchers were ½c per lb. higher than a week ago, the latter selling at 10½c to 12c per lb.

In spite of the continued heavy receipts of lambs, a stronger feeling developed in the market, and prices showed an advance of ½c per lb. The demand from local and outside buyers is very active, but there is no business doing for export account, as prices in all the foreign markets have been ruling very low all season, for both sheep and lambs. An active trade was done in lambs at 5½c to 6c per lb. Sheep met with a fair sale, and prices were unchanged from a week ago, at 3¼c to 3½c per lb. There continued to be a good demand for calves, and, as supplies are small and limited, prices rule firm, at $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality. A firmer feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, and an advance of 10c per cwt. was paid in some cases. The supply was fairly large, for which the demand from packers was good, and an active trade was done in selected lots at $8.60 to $8.80 per cwt., weighed off cars. Cable advices from all the leading foreign markets on Canadian bacon were stronger, and noted an advance of 1s to 2s per cwt., on account of the continued scarcity.

Taking Care of Nicholas.

Racconigi, Oct 26.—Precautionary measures for the safety of Emperor Nicholas, will be doubled as he makes the journey homeward, though no real fear of an attack upon the party exists.

Emperor Nicholas left here on his return home at 3.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied to the station by King Victor Emmanuel, members of the court and Government officials. As upon the Emperor's arrival, a great display of troops was made and the crowd enlivened the scene with shouts of farewell.

King Victor Emmanuel and Emperor Nicholas surprised the populace by taking an announced motor car trip yesterday morning to the Royal Burial Church at Superba.

Russian Foreign Minister Iswolsky and Italian Foreign Minister told the newspapermen yesterday that the meeting between the Emperor and King had served to strengthen the bonds between Italy and Russia, and to strengthen the peace of the world.

Hunter Hangs Himself.

Lindsay, Oct. 26.—Joseph Hunter, the Babcaygeon hotelkeeper, awaiting trial for the murder of his wife, hanged himself during Sunday night in his cell in the county jail.

Friday night he retired early apparently in the best of spirits. About 7 o'clock Saturday morning his body was found hanging to the cell iron work. Hunter had torn a sheet of bed clothing into strips, fastened one end to the top bar of the cell and put a noose around his neck. He had tied his feet together with his braces and his hands with his necktie, and after using an upturned pail to stand on, had knocked it away and strangled.

Hunter, an hotelman, shot his wife to death one night last August. He had been drinking heavily for some time and had domestic quarrels. When brought up in the fall Assizes, his trial was traversed until spring to permit of evidence being secured by the defence to prove that he was an epileptic. He leaves one child.

Mrs. Turner Gets 15 Years.

Toronto, Oct. 26.—After he had criticised the action of the jury in bringing in a verdict of a lesser crime than murder for which the death sentence would have been inevitable, Judge Magee on Saturday night sentenced Mrs. Mabel Turner to serve 15 years in Kingston Penitentiary for strangling the infant of Mrs. Annie Authers, which she had adopted for $100. Mrs. Turner gives her age as 33 years, which will bring her out of the gray prison at the age of 47 years, or with good conduct allowance, two and a half years earlier.

Sentence was passed at 7.30, at the close of a curious scene, which many prominent lawyers say is without precedent in any Canadian court. When G. T. Blackstock, K.C., crown prosecutor, rose to move for sentence, he launched into a terrific denunciation of the jury.

Avenging Murder of Deputy.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 26.—Nicholas Yushkevitch-Krasskovsky, formerly a leader of the league of Russian people, and his alleged tool, a workman named Lerishkin, were convicted at Terioki, Finland, yesterday, of complicity in the murder of Deputy Herstenstein, and sentenced each to a minimum of six years' imprisonment.

Irish University Appointments.

Dublin, Oct. 26.—Among the appointments to the new National University of Ireland, are Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of the Gaelic League, as professor of Modern Irish, and Dr. Henebry, formerly of Washington, to the professorship of the Irish language in the University College of Cork.

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A London cable says that Province of Saskatchewan bonds have advanced from 100 1-2 to 101 1-2.

It was announced yesterday that John T. Molson had donated the sum of $10,000 to the Anglican Church of St. Thomas, that amount being the outstanding debt.

It is practically settled that A. H. McLean, Liberal M.P. for Lunenburg, N.S., will resign his seat in the Federal House and enter the Nova Scotia Cabinet as Attorney-General.

Two-year-old Fred Haberman, living with his parents at 26 Ontario place, Toronto, was so terribly scalded at 6 o'clock last night that slight hopes are held out for his recovery.

George Billinghurst, Toronto, went to Whitby to pursue the wily duck, in some way the hammer got tangled up with other tackle in the canoe and the charge went through his right arm.

An accident, causing the delay of No. 97, C.P.R. express, which arrived at Port Arthur last night, fourteen hours late, was five cars leaving the track 37 miles west of Chapleau, due to a spreading rail. Sam Hardy, engageman of Fort William, had his back badly hurt.

Some Odd Spelling.

Americans, says the London News, employ the word "Britisher," which they invented, in a contemptuous sense. It was a certain Philadelphia wit who is said to have asked his friends what a "Britisher" would mean to convey by the written word "ghoughpthelghteau." He had to explain to them that, according to the genius of the English language, it meant "potato." Thus: Gh—p, as in "hiccough;" ough—o, as in "dough;" phth—t, as in "phthisis;" eigh—i, as in "neighbor;" tte—t, as in "gazette," and eau—o, as in "beau." This was at least as puzzling as the livery stable keeper's bill which contained the two lines—

Unappreciated Efforts.

Unselfish goodness is seldom appreciated in this world of ours. There was that man in the electric car, for instance. Having rung up three fares in his efforts to stop the car for the lady that sat on the opposite side, he tossed after her the umbrella that belonged to the little gray whiskered man on his right. Neither the gray whiskered man nor the conductor liked the thoughtful Samaritan for his altruistic efforts.—Boston Transcript.

1909—Willie Edwards, Keene. Time, 28 mins., 30 secs. (new record)

E. N. McWILLIAMS,

A dusky, strong, galloping Indian boy from the shores of Chemong Lake with the cognomen of Albert S. Smoke, an added starter and a dark horse never even thought of as a winner, upset all the calculations of the talent in the Examiner Senior Road Race yesterday by loping home several blocks in front of Charlie Thorpe of the Victoria Harriers, who was thought to have the race sewed up. It was the easiest victory since the inauguration of the Examiner road race and the story of the contest is sufficiently told when it is stated that Smoke clung to the Victoria man until he was ready to leave him and then opened up a lead steadily and surely which Thorpe could not check for an instant. The two had the race to themselves as the rest of the field dropped back out of sight and were never contenders. Thorpe ran a good race, as good an attempt as he has made in his three times' efofr to lift the Examiner Trophy, but the Indian was too good. Smoke covered the course in 56 mins., 8 3-5 secs., only fifty-two seconds slower than the record made by Ernie Wilson in 1907, 2 mins. 46 2-5 secs. faster than the time of Adams, the winner last year. It was a splendid performance by the nineteen year Mississauga and the boy has a future in front of him if he is properly looked after.

Three times had an Indian tried to carry off the coveted trophy and failed; it remained for Smoke to vindicate the reputation of his race. Fred Simpson was third in 1907, Ben Howard chased Wilson home in 1907 and Hanlan Howard ran fourth to Adams, Thorpe and Wilson last year.

An outsider and dark horse also carried off the junior honours in the person of Willie Edwards, a lanky Keene youth who led home a field of 35 runners in 28 mins. 30 secs., knocking a full minute off the record made by Peter Wallace in 1907—Edwards, however, did not have the easy task that Smoke had in the senior, as he only won by a desperate sprint at the finish, beating off by little more than a yard Garnie Tovey, the local boy who was second yesterday, as he was a year ago. The junior race was a triangular battle between Edwards, Tovey and Teddie Heard, Len Nesbitt's Fenelon Falls youngster and the three had a merry fight all through the five mile course. Elmer Brown, winner of the Collegiate Institute senior cross country run and Victor Bullock, of Lakefield, were always threatening, but never could get up to the leaders after they had dropped back. Behind these five was a procession of runners strung out for nearly a mile at the finish. Al Ithings considered the Examiner road races were the most succesful under the auspices of this paper. The weather wasideal, bright sunshine and cool, with no wind or dust to bother the runners and with the roads in splendid shape with the exception of a few spots that were over-shadowed by trees. The disagreeable weather of last week with the roads ankle deep in mud and the lowering temperature of the skies on Sunday morning made the management tremble for the success of the events, but the sun came out soon on Monday and the roads dried rapidly and the conditions yesterday were all that could be desired.

The way in which the crowds at the finish were handled was another factor in the success of the day. In other years there has been great confusion at the finish because of the road being blocked with eager spectators. Yesterday, however, ropes were employed to good advantage and a wide plane was always kept open for the runners who finished without the less tobatruction. The crowd was fully as large as in other years, but was handled much better.

Long before the races had started the people began to gather in the vicinity of the Examiner office and soon the pavements were jammed with spectators eager to see the finish of the races. By the time the juniors were coming in traffic was practically blocked by many hundreds of people. The windows of the buildings on both sides of the street were thronged and many men and boys had a bird's eye view of the finish from the roofs and even from the top of electric light poles. All the way along George St. as far as Smith St. were there crowds and the greatest possible interest was taken in the races.

The senior race probably provided the biggest surprise since the Examiner's annual Thanksgiving Day event was instituted. It was the case of a dark horse, or the long shot romping home ahead of the field, beating out the favourites and winning by a wide margin. Of the ten men who answered to their names when Dr. McPherson called the toll at the ten mile post in Lakefield, Smoke was among the least promising. He was driven over from Chemong Village by Dan Whetung, Jr., and remained in the background until he saw the other contestants line up for the start. Nobobdy seemed to know anything about his ability, his condition, in fact he was an unknown quantity The other runners casually looked him over and then turned to Charlie Thorpe, who was generally picked as the winner. Smoke trailed along with the bunch while they clung together through the first mile and a half. Thorpe then began to draw away from the field and the Indian without apparently making any effort, loped after him. Five miles down they were half a mile out in front. Smoke during this part of the race was sometimes alongside Thorpe and again he would fall Back for variation and keep close to the leader's heels. Thorpe began at a warm pace doing the first mile in five minutes flat and although down towards town the mile posts were reeled off in slower time, it was not very often As Smoke showed no signs of fatigue it dawned upon the horde of cyclists and fans in buggies that the Indian might hold the pace to the finish. In all probability there was no one that thought he would distance the Victoria Harrier's pride.

Took the Lead.

Three miles from the finish, the Indian threw on the big belt and took the lead. Dannie Whetung's last instructions it was afterwards learned were "Follow Thorpe, Albert, stick to him like a burr until you get near three mile post and then throw on the gasoline," and Smoke obeyed instructions to the very letter. To the surprise of the followers, the Indian was fifty yards to windward before they realized it and Thorpe was following just ahead of the crowd of buggies and bicycles. As they drew near the end of the street car line he had increased his lead to what appeared to be one hundred yards and during the remaining mile down the city's streets he ran easily and strong gradually widening the gap until at the finish he was several blocks ahead of Thorpe.

The race was fought and won between Nassau and the new dam. Thorpe getting away from the start at a fast clip held it to the finish, apparently not varying to any marked degree. When the Indian started out alone below Nassau, Thorpe did not respond. He held his former pace, but could not spurt. Smoke did not make any additional sprint as he neared the tape but looked to be in good condition. Thorpe was also strong. When he drew near Brock St he cut loose a seventy-five yard dash to show that the jaunt had not worn him down.

Such was the struggle for first honours. It was fast all the way, being only three quarters of a minute behind the record. Both men put up a pluck fight and deserve every credit for the endurance and the gameness they showed. The contest for the other positions was interesting for six or seven miles. Montgomery, Brown, Robinson and Spencely were close together for miles. The ten men were bunched during the first mile and as the two leaders drew away Robinson and Brown fought it out for the next positions, Brown finishing third. Al Spencely was counted among the dangerous and ran easily and confidently for three or more miles when a "stitch" caught him and his efforts became weaker.

Smoke's Advantage.

Watching Thorpe and Smoke as they covered mile after mile the latter seemed to possess an easier stride than the Victoria Harrier man. He has not a particular style and does not impress one as a runner, but he delivers the goods in a manner that costs him a minimum effort. It was remarked that he was the most likely Indian that had ever competed in the Examiner Road Race.

Generalities Along the Way.

A stranger could have picked his way from Lakefield to the Examiner office yesterday by following the road that was dotted here and there by little groups of farmers. A big crowd saw the start in Lakefield and at every farm gate and cross road there were groups of people to see the runners pass by. At Nassau there was another small crowd and from that point the procession of buggies and bicycles was formed. From Auburn south the streets were practically lined with eager and patient citizens and from Central Park to the finish—well everyone knows the size of the crowd, for thanks to the fine weather Peterborough was out en masse. The runners were not interfered with to any extent and in fact were given the right of way.

1. Albert S. Smoke, Chemong.
2. Charles Thorpe.
3. Geo. Brown
4. George Robinson.
5. Al Spenceley.
6. Morley MacDonald, Lakefield.
7. Herb. Cooney.
8. Morris Montgomery.
9. Chas. Knapp.
10. T. Slighte.
11. Sidney Vaness.

The Junior Race.

There were thirty-five varieties of runners in the junior race, the youngsters ranging in age from eight years to deep seventeen, and the race was the best junior contest that has yet been held. Starter Chris. Graham and Clerk of the Course W. O'Brien, had a big time in marshalling the youngsters at the starting point, 100 yards north of the five mile post, but they succeeded in getting a satisfactory start, by lining up the starters in rows with the smallest boys in front.

The race was a hot one from the start. Edwards, the ultimate winner, went out at once, followed by Tovey and Heard of Fenelon Falls. Elmer Brown, Bullock, of Lakefield; Nagle Phelan, Cecil Armstrong, Vernon Runnells, and several others, hooked on to the three out in front, for a while, but found the pace too hot, and most of them dropped back rapidly, while behind them again the twenty or more youngsters of the rear guard were having all kinds of fights and changes of places among themselves. Out in front the three leaders had the hardest kind of a race. Each took his turn in leading and for the whole distance there was not much between them. Heard took the lead near the city, but was overhauled by the other pair, and could not pull down their lead, although he was always in threatening distance and ran a grand race. The other two raced almost together along Water street and then down George street to the finish. At Brock street

LOCAL BAND IN TORONTO

Salvation Army Musicians Were Honoured at the Congress in Toronto—Gave a Good Account of Themselves—A Busy Two Days.

A MASSED CONCERT

The band of the Peterborough crops of the Salvation Army was easily the best visiting band at the Sunday and Thanksgiving day services at the congress in Toronto, and it may be held by some that they were not far behind the best there. About thirty-five officers and bandsmen made up the local representation. On Sunday afternoon in Massey Hall a massed band concert was given, more than 300 musicians taking part. Solo numbers were given by the Peterborough, London and staff bands, the others playing in the ensembles. On Monday ther was a big Thanksgiving Day march out, ten bands being in line and between two and thre thousand people taking part. The honour of heading the procession was bestowed upon the silver band of Peterborough, and Bandmaster Gren's musicians were in fine form. After the procession service was held in the Temple and the music for the morning was played by the Peterborough band. In all the Sunday and Monday affairs the local corps band was signally honoured, and it will be a pleasure to all to know that they acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner. Last night they gave a musical festival in the Riverdale citadel to a packed house and their visit proved to be a round of success.

PRINCE ITO MURDERED

Japan's Foremost Statesman Was Killed by a Korean for Revenge—Bullets Struck Him in the Back—Assassin Was Arrested.

CAUSED GREAT EXCITEMENT

Special to The Examiner.

Harbin, Manchuria, Oct. 26.—Prince Hirc Bumi Ito, Premier of Japan, and also ex-Japanese President General of Korea, was assassinated here this afternon by a Korean. The assassin wa arrested and said he had killed Prince Ito avenge his his country. The venerable statesman, who had just arrived at Harbin, accompanied by the Russian Minister of Finance, Kokoveoff, was starting to inspect the Guard of Honour drawn up along the platform, when he was shot in the back. Several shots were fired in quick succession and Prince Ito fell where he stood, mortally wounded. Three of the Prince's companions were wounded, Japanese Consul General Karakan, General Manager Tanka, of the South Manchurian Railway, and Prince Ito's private secretary.

Sergt. Hughes, solo cornetist, who has just returned from Vancouver always popular with Peterborough audiences will play a specially selected solo at the 57th Regt. band concert in the Armouries next Friday evening. Silver collection. 1d-97

SOME POINTERS ON MEN WHO WON YESTERDAY'S RACES

Thorpe and the Indian Met Before in Lindsay Over a Year Ago When the Result Was Different---Edwards, the Junior Winner, Made His First Appearance at the Keene Fair This Year.

Albert Smoke, the winner of the Examiner senior race yesterday is nineteen years of age and is a full blooded Mississauga Indian belonging to the Chemong reserve. He made his first attempt at the running game on Labour Day, 1908, when he took part in the 10 mile race at Lindsay, finishing sixth. In front of him were Tom Longboat, Geo. Black, Percy Sellen of Toronto, Fred Simpson of Hiawatha and Charlie Thorpe who was second to the Indian yesterday. Smoke made his next appearance in the Harrier's meet at the Brock street rink where his form did not impress the talent and where he made a poor showing. Little has been heard of him all this year and his victory yesterday was a big surprise except to a few who had known what he was doing in his training. Smoke has done no running for a month but worked hard during the summer months to get into shape and the result was seen yesterday.

Thorpe the second man, is well known to the followers of the running game in Peterborough making his debut here in the Examiner race two years ago when he finished fifth. Last year he was only beaten out in the stretch by Adams and he was counted upon to win yesterday.

George Brown, the third man, like Thorpe is a member of the Victoria Harriers and little was known about his running up to yesterday. He ran a steady pace and bettered his place.

George Robinson, the fourth man was fifth in the Examiner Race last year and is a member of the Otonabee Athletic Club. He is a strong, steady runner but is handicapped by his lack of speed. In a longer race he would do better.

The junior winner, Willie Edwards, of Keene was a dark horse. His first public appearance was at the Keene Fair when he won the mile race but he was not considered a likely winner.

Garnet Tovey, the second man was second last year and on both occasions ran a splendid race only to be beaten out at the finish.

Teddie Heard of Fenelon Falls, the third man has won some races around the Cataract Village and looks like a comer.

Elmer Brown who won fourth place by a sprinting finish won the Collegiate Institute Cross Country run a few weeks ago.

BRINTON CARPET SOCCER TEAM WON FROM THE BRITANNIAS OF TORONTO

A football match took place yesterday afternoon betwen the employees of the Toronto Carpet Co., playing as the Britannias of Toronto, and the Brinton Football Club on the latter's ground. Brintons scored one goal in each half—the first by Nock and the second by Bellamy, the opponents not scoring. Brintons were the better team on the day's play. Jones in goal, Bishop as back and Moule and Williams in the forwards showing up the best. As the Britannias are one of the leading teams in the Intermediate League, it looks well for the Peterborough boys, also for the Midland League to send them back defeated. Mr. Pierce gave satisfaction as referee, and the match was witnessed by 200 spectators.

MADAME MARCHESI CONCERT

The Marchesi concert given in the Grand Opera House last night afforded a magnificent musical privilege to the citizens of Peterborough, which the few appreciated, and the many missed. Madame Marchesi is a singer with a perfect method and art. Her voice is not large as one would expect from her Junonian stature and amplitude of chest development. But it is sweet and clear, and made the most of. She sings with delightful ease, artistic feeling, and much dramatic temperament. However, her programme last night did not give much opportunity in this direction. None of her numbers were of heroic calibre, the nearest approach being the prison scene aria, from Il Trovatore, which lost much of its effect from lack of dramatic environment and atmosphere. Her most popularly acceptable work was in the four-ply group of "Children's Songs" that closed the list. Her production of these songs was delightfully dainty and piquant. She was repeatedly recalled during the evening. Madam Marchesi is a splendid exponent of the vocal school created by her grandfather Salvatore Marchesi, which taught the true art of breathing. She is a most accomplished vocalist, perhaps less influenced by inspiration than art, but her art is perfect. Herr Brahm Van den Berg, the pianist, won a triumph of his own. He is a great pianist. He met with instant favour and recalls compelled him to at least triplicate his programme numbers.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN HAZLITT

Passed Away at Her Late Residence, Dublin Street, Yesterday Morning.

On the morning of October twenty-fifth, 1909, at her residence, 102 Dublin St., Mrs. John Hazlett aged eighty-two years and three months, fell aslep. The late Mrs. Haslett was born in Belfast, Ireland, July 15th, 1827. When twelve years of age her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick, came to Canada, settling in Kingston, where she resided until her marriage with the late John Hazlett on July 25th, 1850. For fifty years Mrs. Hazlitt resided in Otonabee, seeing it transformed from a wilderness into a beautiful country. On the death of her husband on June 16th, she removed to Peterborough, residing on Harvey St. for ten years. Mrs. Hazlitt was one of the oldest members of St. Paul's church, removing from St. Andrew's when the late Rev. Mr. Roger with a band of faithful followers, erected what is now known at St. Paul's church. Her life was full of kind thoughts and gentle influences. When able she was always present at the services of the sanctuary. It was a great trial to her when she was no longer able to attend church. Her tired body is at rest, her spirit is with the Lord.

Mrs. Hazlitt is survived by one son, Thomas G., of Otonabee and seven daughters, namely, Mrs. Howson and Mrs. Dickson of Quill Lake; Mrs. Millar, of Oxbow; Mrs. Frank Sandercoen, of Smith; Mrs. John Lancashire, of Otonabee; Mrs. Roland Johnson, of Lakefield, and Miss Emmeline Hazlitt, of this city, and twenty-five grandchildren also one sister, Mrs. Murray, of Kingston, passed away on Oct. 24th a few hours before Mrs. Hazlitt. We extend our hearts sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them to the loving father.

Life's race was run,
Life's work well done,

CHANGING SENTIMENT.

Oliver Goldsmith's 'Deserted Village.'

Goldsmith in his "Deserted Village" spoke of a certain chapel where those who "went to scoff, remained to pray." So in life one often laughs at what he does not understand, and later, when he does understand his laugh turns to praise. There were some who doubted the merits of Newbro's "Herpicide," the scalp germicide and hair-dressing; but since they have tried it, they are now among its best friends and strongest endorsers. Herpicide kills the germ that eats the hair off at the root, and the hair then grows again. As a hair dressing it is incomparable, try it. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by Jury & McDermid, Druggists; also Payne's Drug Store. One Dollar bottles guaranteed.

Word received from the front of the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton announces that construction gangs all the way along from the Pembina River to Tete Jaune Cache are working, and that at the rate at which the work is progressing the line will undoubtedly be graded, and ready for steel by next fall. The bridge over the Pembina River is almost half completed and will likely be finished the end of next November.

HAY $19 A TON

Farmers Seem to Have Formed a Combine—Supply Has Been Cut Off.

Nineteen dollars a ton was the price farmers were demanding for hay on Saturday and this morning the same quotation prevailed. Thee is plenty of hay in the country, it is stated, but only a few farmers are drawing it in. As a result the supply is curtailed, hence the soaring price. The farmers' actions are looked upon with suspicion by buyers a tithe market. They feel that this is a form of holdup, a la sugar, oil or leather. However the farmers have the hay and will, if they live up to their reputation as a class sell it at the highest figure they can secure.

LAME BACK CAUSED BY DIRTY KIDNEYS

A Few Doses Will Clean and Regulate the Kidneys and Make You Feel Fine.

Out-of-order kidneys act fine and backache or bladder misery is relieved after a few doses of Pape's Diuretic.

Pains in the back, sides or loins, rheumatic twinges, debilitating headache nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, wornout feeling and many other symtoms of clogged, inactive kidneys simply vanish.

Frequent painful and uncontrollable urination due to a weak or irritable bladder is promptly overcome.

The moment you suspect any kidney, bladder or urinary disorder, or feel rheumatism coming, begin taking this harmless remedy, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

This unusual preparation goes direct to the out-of-order kidneys, bladder and urinary system, cleaning, healing and strengthening these organs and glands, and completes the cure before you realize it.

A few days' treatment with Pape's Diuretic means clean, active, healthy kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

DIRT AND DEGENERACY.

Toronto is becoming a great city. It is developing, if it has not developed, slums. A "Bible woman," speaking at the Convention of the Canadian Association of Charity and Correction, said:

"The unsanitary conditions in the Ward are particularly shocking. I saw garbage piled in the back yards as high as the windows."

And the speaker, continuing, pointed out that such conditions—in addition to breeding disease, would breed crime. She said:

"The police will have their hands full, as overcrowding breeds criminals. We meet children hardly in their teens who practice all kinds of vice. I know of boys who have taken their first step in vice under their mother's roof."

We must keep clean in matter, and that will help us to keep clean in mind. Dirt is a sign of moral degeneracy and an invitation to typhoid, diptheria, etc., also. It is a disgrace to a city like Toronto that it spends thousands upon parks and beautification of public places, but permits festering noisesomness in the heart of the city. If a city were without slums, it would deprive the lower criminal classes of a shelter where it may without let or hindrance hatch its plots against society. We in Peterborough have not reached the stage of slums; strangers visiting the city are struck with surprise on being told that we have no slum quarter. But, in one sense, we have the whole city lending itself to uncleanly conditions. We have no means of collecting and disposing of the accumulation of domestic garbage, which will accumulate in the best kept homes. The city provides sewers to take away part of the results, the fluids, of household operations. But some parts of the city are not served with sewers, and we should have means of removing garbage, and placing it where it will do no harm, as it is sure, sooner or later, to do, if left to accumulate. We have been somewhat free from epidemics of dirt diseases, but if we permit unsanitary conditions to prevail we shall not escape. The law of nature will exact its penalty. And with the outbreak of an epidemic of contagious or dirt disease, we shall, as we have done in the past, have to pay roundly in suffering and death, and cash for our neglect. If anything would justify a demand for the suppression of municipal councils it is the masterly chapter of blundering and ineptitude, compiled by our city council in the matter of an isolation hospital. If we have an outbreak of contagious disease, epidemic in extent, we are helpless, owing to the neglect of the city council, who have shown themselves, as far as action is concerned, invertebrate and recreant to duty.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA SITUATION.

The political situation in British Columbia is sufficiently acute to be regarded as a crisis. A despatch from Victoria says:

Public sentiment is strongly in favour of the Lieutenant-Governor calling upon Premier McBride to immediately make public the contract between the Government and Mackenzie & Mann. The charge is openly made by the Liberal press to-night that Premier McBride has grossly deceived the country as to the exact terms of the contract; that the Government has promised not only to guarantee the interest on the bonds for the construction of six hundred miles of road, but the principal as well, involving a charge against the Province of $21,500,000.

It is alleged that the real reason for the resignation of Messrs. Tatlow and Fulton is that they could not endorse the policy of placing such a huge responsibility on the Province. At this hour it appears probable that one of two things must happen—that Mr. McBride will either produce the contract or be dismissed; and in either event it will be bad for Mr. McBride. Mr. John Oliver, the Liberal leader, has consennted to run for Victoria.

PILES Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and guaranteed cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles. See testimonials in the press and ask your neighbors about it. You can use it and get your money back if not satisfied. 60c. at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

CANADIAN PLAYS THE GOOD SAMARITAN

wants to cure his friends

Mr. Everett L. Holland, a well-known Canadian, moved to the United States some time ago. The change of climate brought on a serious and painful illness, which three physicians said was Stone in the Kidneys, but were unable to relieve his terrible sufferings.

In his agony Mr. Holland thought of an old and reliable remedy which had a great reputation in his Canadian home—the famous Gin Pills.

He wrote to a former neighbor and secured a supply. On March 20th, last, Mr. Holland in a letter to the National Drug & Chemical Co., Toronto, said: "I am well."

He is now anxious to have Gin Pills put on sale in the United States in order to cure his new friends of Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

If you have any Kidney or Bladder Trouble take Gin Pills and we guarantee the cure or your money refunded.

Gin Pills are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. In order to show our faith in these pills, we will send you a free sample on request. National Drug & Chemical Co Dept. B Toronto. 8

A NEIGHBOUR'S OPINION.

The Detroit Free Press which has been considering Canada's determination to build "a navy" agrees that while it is an enormously expensive undertaking on which the Dominion has engaged," the wisdom of its decision "to construct within its own territory whatever contribution it makes to the Imperial navy and to keep it a unit by itself, under Canadian control, is already established. It thinks the establishment of shipyards will naturally follow, and that a great impetus will be given to other industries. It says:

All these advantages would be lost, if the Ottawa government had decided merely to give the London Government several millions for the construction in British yards of a battleship to form, under British command, Canada's representative in the Imperial fleets.

It may be believed that Canada's policy of keeping control of its war vessels after they are built is not less wise than its policy of building them under its own auspices within its own territory. It means that the aspirations of Canadian seamen for naval service and naval command can be gratified, that Canada will have at its disposal in time trained naval officers and trained naval crew.

CANADA AND THE BRITISH MANUFACTURER.

In a letter in the London Daily Mail, Mr. F. A. Mackenzie, undertakes to answer the question: "Why is it that, despite imperial ties and substantial tariff advantage, England is being beaten by America in the fight for Canadian trade?"

Mr. Mackensie recently made an investigating tour of the Dominion from one end to the other. He finds that the British manufacturer has been ousted not because of a lack of sentiment in favour of British products, or by the better goods of his rival, but by better business organization, better advertising and better selling methods. Everywhere in Canada, even in foreign quarters of the West, there is strong evidence of a preference for goods of British manufacture, and nothing but praise is heard for the quality of British goods; it is of British methods of trading that complaint is heard.

As a general rule British manufacturers put their energies into turning out a good article. They produce according to their standard patterns, often irrespective of the needs of smaller markets, and then they leave their products to sell themselves. Possibly they appoint an agent at Montreal and expect Canadian trade to come to them simply because they offer sound, honest wares. But, unfortunately for the British manufacturer, trade comes not always to the man who makes the best stocks, but to the firm which pushes them most persistently. The American puts even more energy into selling than in producing—he prides himself on his salesmanship.

The man who relies on a circular letter has no chance with the firm that gives personal attention to business.

Another cause of the backward condition of British trade in Canada is the determined refusal of many of the great manufacturers to follow the American lead and set up branches in the Dominion. For a long time British and American manufacturers supplied Canadian railways with locomotives. Acting on the policy of encouraging the manufacture of all their supplies in the Dominion, one of the companies aproached a leading locomotive house and asked it to start a branch in Ontario. A site was offered on specially advantageous terms, and two railways guaranteed contracts that would keep the works going at least five years at satisfactory prices, but the British firm hesitated and finally declined to take up the proposition, which was a safe and profitable one. The works have since been established but not under British direction, and to-day not a single locomotive for railway purposes is being ordered by Canada from the old country.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is hinted that Mr. C. M. Hayes, newly chosen President of the Grand Trunk Railway, will shortly be knighted. A headlight, in the form of a title, will not add to the efficiency of the recipient, but it would be an honour, and besides a recognition of the eminent services and ability of the new president, which would be well deserved and worthily worn.

As strikes go, their only value is a declaration of principle. As a rule they are disastrous money losers. It is estimated by the Halifax Herald that "already a million and a half has been lost as a consequence of the Cape Breton coal strike. The men have lost $537,000 in wages. The labour organization has lost $250,000 paid out for the relief of the suffering. The province has lost $73,500 in royalties. The public will lose $33,000 —the cost of soldiers to preserve the peace. The business men and the transportation companies have lost heavily, and the coal company has lost profits on the sale of nearly 600,000 tons of coal." And the principle upon which the strike is based does not appeal to Canadians. That a foreign labour organization can thus dislocate business in a Canadian industry cannot be in the interests of Canadians. We would resent undue intereference in our domestic political affairs by, even, the Mother Country. Then, why should we permit an outside labour organization to have so large and troublesome finger in our industrial pie?

YOU NEED FEAR IT NO LONGER

Manitoba Man Tells How His Urinary Troubles Vanished Before the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Hamrlik, Man., Oct. 25.—(Special)—Probably there is no disease to which man is heir that causes such a general dread as Gravel, or Stone in the Blader. The frightful pains it brings and the terrible operations it necessitates cause a shudder of apprehension whenever it is mentioned. But there is really no reason why any man or woman should fear Gravel. It is purely and simply a Kidney Disease, and as such can be either cured or guarded against by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Take the case of Mr. Calvin R. Snyder, well known here. He says:

"In the spring of 1907 I was almost laid up from a lame back and was also troubled with excessive urination. I got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and used them with satisfactory results. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best Kidney medicine I ever heard of."

If you follow Mr. Snyder's example and use Dodd's Kidney Pills for slight urinary disorders, you will never be troubled with Gravel, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

TWO SISTERS DIE

Within a Few Hours of Each Other.

A rather strange coincidence occurred in connection with the death of Mrs. John Hazlitt, who passed away at her residence, 102 Dublin St. yesterday morning. Just a few hours before she died the members of her family received word that her sister, Mrs. Wm. Robinson, had died in Kingston. It is a rare occurrence that two members of a family in different cities pass away almost at the same time.

LOCAL JUNIORS SCORE A BRILLIANT VICTORY OVER LAST YEAR'S JUNIOR O.R.F.U. CHAMPIONS

Lindsay Defeated Here Yesterday by 9 to 5 After One of the Hardest Fought and Best Played Games Seen Here in Years---No Score in the First Half and the Teams Were Even in the Middle of the Last Quarter---Goal From the Field by Fortye Gave Peterborough the Victory---Big Crowd Delighted With the Work of Peterborough Youngsters.

In one of the most exciting and hardest fought games seen here in some years, Peterborough's O. R. F. U. juniors defeated Lindsay, last year's champions in the O. R. F. U. fixture at Riverside Park yesterday by 9 points to 5, before a wildly excited crowd of four hundred enthusiasts. A goal from the field in the last few minutes of the play decided the issue after both teams had scored a touchdown, and after an hour's seesaw playing, in which both touch lines were frequently threatened. For the first half hour the teams battled without a single point being scored, the scene of the play for the most part being between the two quarter lines. Only once in the first half did the ball cross either line and on that occasion Byron Green saved for Lindsay on a pretty run. It was hard, close, bitterly fought Rugby all the way between two very evenly matched teams, as far as ability was concerned, although in the matter of weight the visitors had the advantage, both in the back field and on the wing line.

The showing made by the Peterborough team more than delighted the fans and the game was thoroughly enjoyed. For the most part much lighter and younger than the Lindsay fourteen, the Petes' youngsters went at their opponents with a snap and vim that delighted the crowd. The wing line ripped through Lindsay's heavy advance guard and pulled down the backs for losses frequently, while they nailed the Lindsay bucking most effectively and followed up and tackled in splendid style, and when Peterborough had the ball, held in good fashion. Behind the line the back division made few mistakes, catching splendidly and booting to great effect, while they handled the ball cleanly and their fumbles were few and far between. The whole team was aggressive, gingery and thoroughly pleased the talent.

Fortye, at full back, caught cleverly and returned Lindsay's kicks frequently for good gains, handling himself like a veteran. All three halves played fine Rugby, looking after the kicks in fine fashion, while Richardson did some splendid punting for Peterborough. Burritt's tackling and following up were features.

Geale, who was elected captain of the team before the contest, ran the fourteen in heady fashion, and did a whole lot of useful work, his bucking gaining ground on many occasions, while he passed cleanly, and did some beautiful tackling.

All the wing line worked like demons, and it would be unfair to specialize where all did so well. "Tick" Thornton turned out to help the youngsters, and was a tower of strength at inside wing, where he enjoyed himself immensely. The line was as game as they make them, and they held the far heavier Lindsay wings in amazing fashion.

Four of the juniors—Gibson, Richardson, Staunton, and Turner—had come through a gruelling game with the Seniors against T. A. A. C. in Toronto on Saturday, and their work was all the more creditable when that fact is taken into account.

For Lindsay Byron Green was the bright particular star, doing the greater part of the work for the Scugog team. He was a whole host in himself behind the line, catching, kicking and running in magnificent fashion. Without him Lindsay would have been given a far worse drubbing. Killen, at full back, gave him good support. On the wing line McGregor and Hall were always in the limelight by their grand tackling, while Hall's following up was the feature. The Lindsay line was much heavier than Peterborough but the big fellows lacked the speed.

Jos. C. Greenan of St. Michael's College, was referee, and Dr. MacPherson umpire. The Referee had several weird rulings, but his work was impartial.

The teams were as follows:

Lindsay—Back, Killen; halves, Sylvester, Green, Bigelow; quarter, Coulter; scrimmage, Coulter, Nesbitt, Simpson; inside wings, Murdie, Carew; middle wings, MacKenzie, McHugh; outside wings, Hall, McGregor.

Peterborough—Back, Fortye; halves, Gibson, Richardson, Burritt; quarter, Geale; scrimmage, Dennison, Giroux, Minorgan; inside wings, Thornton, Turner; middle wings, Wood, Quinlan; outside wings, Staunton, Conroy.

Peterborough won the toss and Green kicked off to Geale, who returned to Green and the Lindsay captain was downed in mid-field. On the first down Green hit the line for eight yards. Dennison was hurt in the play and there was a few minutes' delay. Lindsay tried a fake play on the next down, but Staunton broke through in fine style, tackling Bigelow, and when the latter fumbled, falling on the ball, Gibson gained three yards on a buck, on the next down Peterborough were offside and lost possession. The Peterborough wings were holding in great style, and Lindsay failed to gain on the next two downs, forcing Greene to kick. Fortye fumbled the punt, but recovered on his own thirty-five yard line. An end run by Burritt was nailed for a loss, and on the next down Richardson kicked to Bigelow, who was downed in his tracks at centre. Lindsay lost on an attempted trick play and Peterborough blocked Green's kick on the next down, Lindsay losing the ball. Peterborough lost possession on an offside, and Murdie bucked through through for five yards. The Peterborough line held and Green was forced to punt, his kick going into touch at Peterborough's thirty-five yard line. The Peterborough halves tried a combination run which Hall made ineffective by a fine tackle. Richardson failed to gain on a buck and on the next down kicked to Green who ran the ball back to Peterboorough's forty, making a fifteen yard sprint. On the first down Green kicked to Burritt, who was nailed at Peterborough's five-yard line. Gibson made a good gain on a line plunge, and then Lindsay grew too anxious, and were caught offside, losing ten yards. Gibson and Fortye, on a combination run skirted Lindsay's left end for nine yards, and Conroy went around the other end on the next down for three yards. It was still Peterborough's ball and they were forcing the play away from their line in fine style. Richardson kicked to Green, and the Peterborough wings, by great following up, nailed him at centre. Murdie got through the line on a buck, but Giroux floored him on a neat diving tackle. Peterborough held the visitors for downs, and on the first scrimmage Geale plunged through for a ten-yard gain. Fortye kicked to Green, who was dropped at centre. Lindsay tried a buck and then an end run, but both plays were stopped for a loss, and Green kicked into touch at Peterborough's thirty-five yard line, just as the whistle sounded for quarter time.

First quarter score, Peterborough 0, Lindsay 0.

A Lindsay wing man grabbed Geale's kick off, and was downed at centre. Lindsay tried a combination run, which Geale spoiled by a nice tackle. Peterborough's wings tore through and broke up another end run, and then spoiled a buck and it was Peterborough's ball at centre. Gibson failed to gain on a plunge, and Richardson was also thrown back for a loss; Fortye punted to Green, and when the latter fumbled, Quinlan fell on the ball at Lindsay's twenty-five yard line. Fortye made an unsuccessful attempt at a dron kick and Lindsay secured the ball. A buck failed to gain for Lindsay, and then the Scugog team lost possession on an offside at their twenty-five yard line. Geale bucked through for two yards and then Richardson kicked over the line to Green, who relieved nicely by Richardson, who returned from his own line, and Green was downed thirty yards out, as time was up.

Green kicked off to Geale, who returned to Bigelow, and the Lindsay half was dropped by Conroy with a neat tackle. Killen made ten yards on a dodging run, after getting a bad pass from Sylvester. Green punted to Gibson, who was tackled after running the ball back a few yards. Richardson kicked to Green and the latter could not shake off the Peterborough wings. Peterborough held Lindsay for downs, and then came the first score of the day. Richardson booted one over the Lindsay line, and Burritt, who was onside, followed up in fine style and secured the ball for a try, which was not converted. Score, Peterborough, 5; Lindsay, 0.

Green kicked to Richardson, who returned to Green and the latter booted the oval to Gibson, who was nailed. Richardson kicked to Bigelow, who returned to Richardson. Peterborough were caught offside and lost the ball. Green kicked to Gibson, who was tackled ten yards from his own line. Lindsay were offside twice and the play shifted to Peterborough's thirty-yard line. Fortye took an onside kick from Richardson and gained twenty yards, but Peterborough got offside and lost the ball. Green kicked to Fortye, who was tackled just outside his own line. Peterborough bucked twice for small gains and Geale was hurt in the second plunge, necessitating a delay for repairs.

Three-quarter time was called a second after.

Three-quarter time score, Peterborough 5, Lindsay 0.

Giroux's kickoff was caught by Green, and the Lindsay Captain made the longest punt of the day, the ball going over Richardson's head and being recovered by Fortye on Peterborough's twenty-yard line. Here a fumble pass gave Hall a chance to secure the ball, and he was nearly over the line before he was tackled. With the ball on their three-yard line, Peterborough held twice and then Green fooled them completely by a neatly placed onside kick across the field to Killen, who romped over the line, with no opposition, tying the score. The attempt at converting wos fooled, and the score was Peterborough 5, Lindsay 5.

With the teams on even footing the game grew wildly exciting, and both teams fought for victory with every ounce that was in them. Giroux's kick-off was fumbled by one of the Lindsay wings and Peterborough secured possession at Lindsay's fifty-yard line. An inside kick gained for Peterborough, but Lindsay stopped two bucks and Fortye kicked to Green who was tackled at his own twenty-five yard line. On the next down Burritt broke through and blocked Green's kick and Quinlan, picking up the ball, was tackled just a yard outside Lindsay's line, by Green. Referee Greenan called the play offside, but Peterborough broke through and stole the ball cleverly on the next scrimmage. With the ball at Lindsay's ten-yard line, the excitement was intense, Peterborough tried two bucks, which failed to gain and then the signal was given for a drop kick by Fortye. The Peterborough line held like a stone-wall and the pass was cleanly made, and Fortye, taking lots of time, kicked the ball squarely between the uprights, and Peterborough were ahead, 9 to 5.

Green kicked off to Fortye, who returned. On the first down Green again kicked to Fortye, who was downed at Peterborough's twenty-yard line. Lindsay lost ten yards on an offside, and then Richardson took an onside kick from Fortye for a gain of fifteen yards. Fortye kicked to Killen, who was downed at Peterborough's 40-yard line. On the first down Green booted to Gibson who caught the ball and was tackled at his own five-yard line. Peterborough gained on a buck and time was called before Lindsay had another opportunity to score.

PETERBOROUGH SENIORS DEFEATED BY THE T. A. A. C. IN TORONTO

With Practically a Junior Team Peterborough Held the Home Team to 6-4 at Half Time, But McCrimmon's Great Punting, Coupled With the Much Greater Weight and Experience of the Torontos, Proved Too Much in the End.

Peterborough seniors dropped their second game in the Senior O.R.F.U. series on Saturday afternoon, losing to the Toronto Amateur Athletic Club in Toronto by 31 points to 4, after a game that was hard fought all the way and that was decidedly even until well on in the second half, when the weight of the T.A.A.C., coupled with McCrimmon's great punting, turned the tide of battle decidedly against Peterborough. The Peterborough team had the lightest and least inexperienced team that has ever represented this city absentees making it necessary to use some of the juniors. Four of the team Staunton, Turner, Gibson and Richardson played their first senior rugby Saturday while it was only the second game for Hickey, Hall, Corkery and Cabill so that over half the team are just breaking into the game.

On the other hand T.A.A.C. had a very strong team against them, a fourteen of experienced and heavy men their average being at least 30 pounds per man more than Peterborough. Their team included McCrimmon and Firstbrook of the McMaster University team, Reg. De Gruchy, the former Upper Canada star and Crooks, Holden, Maguire and Sheriff who have long experience both with the Argonauts and T. A.A.C. Peterborough's outfit looked like a junior team alongside of that bunch, but in spite of the handicap of weight and experience the Petes went right at their oponents and had them badly scared for at least half the game. The T.A.A.C. had the benefit of the strong wind in the first quarter, but although they kept the play in Peterborough territory, they only succeeded in scoring five singles on kicks to the dead line. With the wind with them in the second quarter Peterborough reversed the situation and had T.A.A.C. fighting with their backs to the wall and scoring four points on kicks to the dead line until just before half time a run carried the play into Peterborough territory and McCrimmon kicked to the dead ball line for a single.

In the third quarter T.A.A.C. had the wind again and McCrimmon's long punts kept the ball hovering in the neighbourhood of Peterborough's line while T.A.A.C. ran their score up to 19 before the end of the quarter. The wind had dropped almost away when the fourth quarter came so that this important advantage was lost to Peterborough and enabled McCrimmon to punt almost as far as he had in the first and third quarters. The result was that T.A.A.C. pressed and as the Peterborough teams were worn down by the superior weight and strength of the visitors, were forced to play a defensive game all through the quarter and T.A.A.C. added to their score by a bad decision by Umpire McDonnell who gave T.A.A.C. the ball on Peterborough's line when McGuire had lost it in a buck, costing the Petes 6 points.

Richardson of the Collegiate Institute team was at centre half for Peterborough and played a splendid game, doing some fine kicking and being steady and cool all through the piece. Gibson, although handicapped by a sore hand, played a good game both at outside wing and on the half line where he was moved in the second half, Cahill going up. The other two men, Staunton and Turner, gave a good account of themselves although they were up against men, many pounds heavier. The back division did not catch as well as they did in the game against Parkdale. McCrimmon's fifty and sixty yard punts coming with a "screw" and sailing along on a strong breeze were a difficult proposition to a team that has little oportunity to practise outside, but only a couple of their fumbles were costly, as they generally managed to recover the ball. Allan Campbell worked hard to beat his old team mates and did some pretty tackling and bucking The wing line all showed up well and their tackling and following up was a great improvement over their work in the Parkdale game

McCrimmon came pretty near being the whole 57 varieties for T.A.A. C. The McMaster star booted the ball over the lot in spectacular fashion several times kicking from mid-field over the dead line and he had the Peterborough back division on the go all the time, The T.A.A. C. play centred around him and their repertoire consisted mainly of one thing, a kick by McCrimmon. The winners when they had the wind with them punted on every down and even against the wind McCrimmon was called upon often.

De Gruchy, on the half line, caught and kicked well and Meredith got in a couple of good runs near the end of the game. Crooks, Maguire, Holden and Sheriff were conspicuous on the wing line, Holden's bucking being a feature.

A notable aspect of the game was the total absence of any brilliant running by either team. Neither of the back divisions could get away partially because the tackling was accurate and partially because the footing was very slippery, especially around the "skinned" diamond of the ball grounds which the heavy rains had left in poor condition for football. The grounds are not very good at any time and there is practically no room for work behind the lines at either end.

The teams were as follows:

T.A.A.C.		Peterborough.
Meredith	Back	Craig
Grant	Halves	Corkery
McCrimmon	"	Richardson
DeGruchy	"	Cahill
Firstbrook	Quarter	Campbell
Arnot	Scrimmage	Hickey
Drummond	"	Clarke
Gzowiski	"	Ecclestone
Maguire	In Wing	Turner
Crooks	"	Dickson
Holden	Mid wing	Lundy
Sheriff	"	Staunton
McGriffin	Out wing	Gibson
Burkart	"	Hall

Referee, Jim McDonnell; umpire, N. F. Culverhouse.

First Quarter.

T.A.A.C won the toss, and Peterborough kicked off The Toronto team pressed all this quarter and scored 5 points on kicks to the deadline by McCrimmon and Meredith. Play was continued in Peterborough territory, but T.A.A.C. lost half a dozen chances of scoring by illegal scrimmaging, losing the ball time and again for failure to heel out properly. Score T.A.A.C. 5, Peterborough 0.

Second Quarter.

Peterborough had the wind in this quarter and put their opponents on the defensive. Richardson punted to the deadline for four points. Then T.A.A.C. worked the ball to the other to the other end of the field, and on a good run by Crooks McCrimmon booted over for another point for the local team, just at half-time. Score T.A.A.C. 6, Peterborough 4.

Third Quarter.

T.A.A.C. had all the best of the third quarter, kicking with the wind. McGuire, who was playing center scrimmage, on a scrimmage kick, went through for a try, which DeGruchy failed to convert over the fence for a point. DeGruchy followed suit a minute later, DeGruchy then went over for a try, which he converted himself, making the third quarter score: T.A.A.C. 19, Peterborough 4.

Fourth Quarter.

T.A.A.C. also outplayed Peterborough in the last quarter. DeGruchy and Meredith kicked over for a single points and then McGuire went over for a try after a great buck and run by Holden, who played fine football. Just before time Holden bucked over for another try. Neither touch-down was converted, though Meredith hit the post on the second attempt.

DARE YOU EAT HEARTILY?
Or Is Every Good Meal Followed By Discomfort?

So certain are we that "Little Digesters" will cure Indigestion every time—for every person—for YOU—that we will give you your money back without a word if they fail.

You can enjoy a good, hearty meal of wholesome food three times a day, if you take a tablet after each meal.

Read how "Little Digesters" cured Mr. Thody.

"For two years I suffered with Indigestion, and obtained no relief from anything I took, including several prescriptions from prominent physicians. Every meal was followed by acute pain until I feared to eat, consequently became run down for lack of nourishment. "Little Digesters" were recommended to me by a friend and I tried them with remarkable results, two boxes completely curing me. It is three months since I took any, and I have not suffered a pain, no matter how heartily I eat. I would certainly recommend them to anybody suffering with Indigestion." (Signed) R. THODY.

OBITUARY

JOHN F. BALLANTYNE

The death occurred yesterday morning at half past nine of a well known and highly respected resident of Peterborough in the person of Mr. John F. Ballantyne who passed away at his late residence, 549 Patterson street.

The late Mr. Ballantyne was seventy-one years of age, having been born in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1838. He came to Canada in 1875 and had for a number of years resided here. He was a man of many sterling qualities and held the esteem of all who knew him. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Harry Evans of this city.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at Two o'clock from the family residence, 549 Patterson street to the Little Lake Cemetery.

We have a little booklet about Ammunition that will interest any Sportsman using gun or rifle. We will send it together with a yarn by Edward Carve on "Bear Hunting" to anyone who will write for it.

Spaulding-Stratton Trophy Presented To The T.A.S. Club

First Baseball Cup Ever Won by Athletic Club—President McWilliams Officiated in Mr. A. H. Stratton's Absence — One of Most Successful At Homes.

PIPE TO J. DEANNARD

Probably the most enjoyable "At Home" ever held under the auspices of the Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. was that held last night. Everything combined to provide a pleasant evening and the ladies deserve great credit for the manner in which their arrangements were carried out. An incidental event was the presentation of the Spaulding-Stratton trophy to the T.A.S. baseball team. Mr. E. N. McWilliams, President of the Senior City League, who made the presentation stated that the donor, Mr. A. H. Stratton had gone to Chicago and had requested him to hand over the trophy.

Mr. McWilliams briefly reviewed the game of the past season and remarked that he believed that on their showing the T.A.S. team deserved to win. He was pleased with the gentlemanly manner in which the boys conducted themselves on the field and he felt that the season had accomplished a great deal to boom the game in Peterborough. He congratulated the team and its managers upon winning the trophy and hoped the T.A.S. would continue to take part in the city's sports.

Mr. Wm. O'Brien received the Silver Trophy for the Atheletic Club He thanked the President for his felicitous remarks and desired to thank Mr. A. H. Stratton for his efforts in securing the trophy.

Another event followed a little later when Mr. Jack Deanard was presented with a handsome pipe by the Athletic Club. Jack has been managing the boys during the summer and his services were recognized in this manner. The address was as follows:

Peterborough, Oct. 25, 1909

Mr. John Deanard,
Mgr. T.A.S.A.C.,
City.

Dear Sir,—We the officers and members of the Athletic section of the T.A.S. feel that we cannot allow the occasion of the presentation of the Stratton-Spaulding trophy to pass without expressing our appreciation of your kindness, and of your assistance in helping us to win the coveted silverware.

The Athletic section of this society is, indeed to be congratulated on having such a capable and industrious manager, and we trust that it will be our good fortune to receive your future assistance. In the past few years you have not only taken an active interest in Athletics but you have also enlisted the support and gained the encouragement of several other members of our society.

We therefore ask you to accept this pipe as a slight recognition of your services.

Signed on behalf of the T.A.S.A.C.
Wm. O'Brien, Sec.-treasurer.
Base Ball Club.

Mr. Deanard made a suitable reply and the "At Home" continued without further interruption.

STORY OF A BIG YIELD OF WHITE ROSE POTATOES

The potato is not regarded as a cereal but this year it has about become a serial—in the matter of a record of its achievements. The Examiner has had to chronicle a series of thumping big potatoes. The rivalry in the matter of size having become about exhausted, the rivalry of yield has begun. Dummer puts in its claim. Mr. H. A. Moore, reeve of the township, has grown in the north of the township potatoes of extraordinary fecundity. From one hill he took 73 individual potatoes, nearly all of cooking size. This is vouched for by Mr. J. J. Crowe, who counted the tubers, and adds that the largest would not weigh over a pound. The potatoes are an early variety, the White Rose. Mr. Moore must have fertile soil. He planted two bags of potatoes and gathered 93 bags.

This is of interest since it is claimed that the result is due to the mode of planting. Mr. Moore did not divide his potatoes by cutting, but planted them whole — one big potato in a hill, or two smaller ones.

Mr. J. J. Crowe had a similar experience. He planted a plot in two ways—one part with potatoes cut, or divided, the usual way, and the other planted with whole potatoes.

On precisely similar soil, with similar cultivaton and treatment, four rows planted with whole potatoes (1 large, or 2 small in the hill) yielded as much as seven rows planted with cut potatoes.

This is something worth discussing. It the yield of potatoes can be increased almost 50 per cent by planting them whole, the practice should be universal.

The Examiner would be glad to give farmers and other growers of potatoes space in which to relate their experiences and express their opinions on the subject. Everybody who "knows beans" thinks he knows how to plant potatoes, but it doesn't seem to always be the case, that he does.

LOOK OUT FOR PNEUMONIA

Your system is in a run-down condition. You catch cold. You think it will soon pass off. It doesn't. You neglect taking any special care of yourself. Bronchitis develops and then comes pneumonia and a fight for life. A fight which is too often unsuccessful. Why not take every cold seriously and cure it promptly by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

WONDERFUL JASPAR PARK.

The Commissioner of Dominion Parks, who has recently returned from Jasper Park and Pass in the Rocky Mountains on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is enthusiastic in his praises of the scenery in that district. The opening of this new wonderland by the construction of the railway will add another to the attractions of life in the Province of Alberta. Vigorous construction next summer will put the Grand Trunk Pacific steel into the new park and open its wonders to those who have the time, money, and inclination for an outing. Switzerland has made perhaps as much from its scenery as it could have made from agricultural had its surface been more level, and the Province of Alberta in the Jasper region has a Switzerland declared by competent judges to be quite as attractive as that to which the wealthy of Europe and the United States now flock, and built on a much larger scale.

BOUEDRY'S MILL AND PEA BUSINESS

A Busy Man With a Growing Trade—Mill Changes and Improvements.

The extensive premises occupied by Howdry's gristing and chopping mill and fancy pea business is the centre of a large amount of business than many people in Peterborough are aware of. Here are installed the powerful electric plants of Howdry's grist mill for the grinding of all kinds of grain and cattle feed, such as bran, shorts, pollards, oat chop, pea feed etc.

The mill has recently ben moved to the middle of the building, so that farmers can now drive into the yard and be away from the street ars with their horses. The powerful mill for cleaning the fancy peas occupies the south-west end of the building. It also is run by a powerful motor, which does its work with rapidity and ease. Hundreds of bags of fancy peas received from the farmers are stacked up in great piles to be sorted ready for shipment to France. Mr. Howdry is also a heavy dealer in Western flour and brings in large quantities by the car loads.

Messrs. S. Tamura, R. Hara, I. Wajasi, and T. Minami,, four Japanese gentlemen, composing part of the committee, sent out officially from Japan to study commercial and other conditions in the United States and Cañada, arrived in Montreal Tuesday morning, October 19th, and immediately proceeded with W. T. R. Preston, the Canadian Trade Commissioner to Japan, to Ottawa at 8.30 a.m., on the Grand Trunk Railway System. At Ottawa they were met by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and he gave them a luncheon and they dined with Japanese Consul-General in the evening. The party left Ottawa in Grand Trunk Railway private car "Violet," at 8.30 a.m., Thursday, October 21st, for St. Anne de Bellevue, for the purpose of inspecting the MacDonald Agricultural College, leaving Ste. Annes the same evening for Toronto, where they spent Friday and left for Montreal the same night via Grand Trunk for Montreal.

BEAUTIES OF THE YELLOWHEAD PASS

The scenic beauties of a vast mountainous region, stretching from North of the Yellowhead Pass to the watershed of the Saskatchewan, and from the foothills of the Rockies to their summit are to be preserved in perpetuity for the pleasure and delight of the people of Canada by the Federal Government.

This great national playground and pleasure and health resort is situated on the line of the Grand Trunk, comprising nearly 5,000 square miles. From the data that have been received at the offices of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, it is learned that the scenic grandeur of the mountains in the vicinity of Yellowhead Pass is sublimely beautiful, surpassing anything on the American continent. The engineers report that it is impossible to picture or portray the grandeur and stupendous magnificence of the natural wonders there. All is on a greater and a more beautiful scale than any other portion of the Rockies. Large rivers and beautiful lakelets are everywhere in evidence to refresh and charm the eye of the traveller from the time the Athabasca is encountered in the Pass Historic spots such as the ruins of Henry House and Jasper House will be carefully safeguarded, as soon as arrangements can be worked out which will include elaborate preparations for the developing of the Park, where nature has been so lavish.

Within a comparatively short distance from the Grand Trunk Pacific in this locality are found the great sulphur springs, which will be utilized and developed according to the plans of the engineers. There are three sets of springs, one of which has a good flow of water with a temperature of 116, and those with stronger flow have a temperature of over 125.

Something Better Now

There was a time when people were satisfied with any glasses with which they could read regardless of whether they were using one eye more than the other, knowing nothing of how the eyes were strained by wrong lens powers, and careless of the frame fitting the face. All this is changing now, a thorough examination by experienced men, lenses specially ground for each eye, and the neatest, most becoming mountings are now required by discriminating people who realize that othing is too good for the eyes.

We make appointment for eye examination by our phones, Bell 1221, Mach. 7. It saves waiting your turn.

Semi-Centennial Celebration Of The Fairmount Church

Fairmount, Oct. 26.—Last evening the Methodist congregation of Fairmount, completed the exercises of the semi-centenary celebration of the dedication of their church. It seemed opportune that such an important event should fall upon the date set aside by the Government as a day of Thanksgiving. Both circumstances seemed to blend to give added interest to the occasion.

After an elaborate supper, provided by the ladies of the church in the school room, a programme of more than usual attractiveness was provided by the Orpheus quartette, and Miss Hill, elocutionist of Peterborough. Her numbers were chosen with the discriminating taste and presented with the pleasing culture that ever wins an audience.

The pastor of the congregation, Rev. G. N. Clarry, B. A., who was the chairman of the evening, gave a brief historical sketch of the dedicatory services of half a century ago. The preacher on that occasion was the Rev. Wm. Scott, who also presented a pulpit bible in honour of the event which is still used in the services of the church.

A brief address was also given by Rev. M. E. Wilson, an old Cavan boy, who was the speaker at the services on Sunday. Mr. Wilson spoke of the past history of the church, recalling the names of honoured men who had built the church, and promoted its interest, but who had all passed to their reward. Reference was also made to the work of the future and the union of the Churches in Canada referred to. The Sabbath services were largely attended and of great interest. Mr. Wilson's text in the morning was "The Headstone of the Corner," and at the evening service "What Means These Stones." The sermons were greatly appreciated and the event will pass into the history of the congregation to be remembered as an incentive in all the labours of future years.

The Armouries will be comfortably heated for the 57th Regt. band concert next Friday evening. Silver collect id-97

GIVEN ONE MONTH

Harry Watters Asked to be Sent Back to Jail.

Harry Waters completed a term in gaol this morning for vagrancy, and came down to the police court and asked to be sent back again. Waters was sent up for a month. In the meantime City Relief Officer Miller is corresponding with the authorities at Ottawa in an effort to have Watters deported to England. Waters claims that he is in poor health and unable to work.

On October 15th, the last spike was driven on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, near the crossing of the Wabigon River, connecting Winnipeg with Lake Superior.

The grades on the completed line are lower than any other completed line to the head of the lakes, and are four-tenths of one per cent. for the grain haul, and five-tenths against it.

Towns are being stalked out along the line by the Ontario Government, who will supervise the sale of them. The road opens up a rich mining and timber country, as well as a magnificent scenic route.

The gigantic colonization scheme for Western Canada by the Robbins Limited Company is creating interest. Messrs. F. B. Robbins, J. R. Nelson and R. S. Perry returned from the West recently after having been over the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Their intention is to choose options on the land along the Grand Trunk Pacific, opening offices of the Company. They have home offices in London, Glasgow and Berlin and from the time emigrants leave the shores of their native land until they arrive in the new country and settle on some farm, they will be looked after. It is the intention of picking out for colonization the more thrifty of the agrarian class in the old land. Speaking of the West, Mr. Nelson said he was particularly struck with the wonderful progress which seemed to pervade the very air. Considering the age of roadbed of the Grand Trunk Pacific he considered the surface and alignments marvellous. The towns along its route were also progressive, particularly Wainwright, the terminal for the present passenger service.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

they were on even terms and both sprinted desperately for the finishing tape a short half block away. Edwards had the most left in him and breezed home a yard in advance of Tovey, one of the most exciting finishes in the history of the Examiner races. Hardly had the excited cheering of the crowd died away when Heard, the Fenelon Falls starter, came in sight and finished with a strong sprint that brought forth renewed cheering. Then came another nerve-racking finish. Elmer Brown, of the Collegiate Institute, and Victor Bullock of Lakefield, came in together, sprinting like hundred yards' men. From Brock street until a few feet from the finish they ran like a team, bus a yard away Brown, by a supreme effort, pushed himself six inches in front of the Lakefield boy, and they crossed the tape with half a foot separating the fourth and fifth men. Nagle Phelan, finishing with a sprint from Brock street, came next, followed by Harold Morrow and for the next fifteen minutes the kids were coming in. Some of the youngsters were only half the size of the winners, but nearly all of them finished with a sprint that brought forth applause and every junior that finished was cheered. Exactly thirty of the bunch negotiated the five miles and none of them looked the worse for the experience; in fact they hung around in their running suits until the finish of the senior race. The order in which the juniors was as follows:

1—Willie Edwards, Keene.
2—Garnet Tovey, Peterborough.
3—Teddie Heard, Fenelon Falls.
4—Elmer Brown, Collegiate Institute, Peterborough.
5—Victor E. Bullock, Lakefield.

Prince Rupert, B. C., Empire says: A prominent New Brunswick citizen who has just returned from a trip in the interior, says "but little is known on the outside of the vast acreage of timber and agricultural lands of the upper country in British Columbia," and predicted that within a few years that part of the country would have a population far exceeding even the dreams of those who have long known of the country's great resources.

Comparisons are interesting when distances of travel and time consumed are in the balance. In a new country like Canada the advancement of great transportation systems creates some amazing differences from old conditions. A case in point: On the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through to Prince Rupert, B.C., the time spent in reaching the East from Alaska and the great Northwest coast will be reduced by days. In travelling from Alaska to Chicago or the East by the G. T. P. route the passenger will be able to take train at Prince Rupert and be in Chicago on the same day that the steamship which he quitted at Prince Rupert arrives in Seattle, a saving of three days.

Steel Oven Heats Quicker— Saves Fuel

Make sure your new range has a steel oven, and "Pandora" nameplate on the door. Go, at once, to nearest McClary Agency and pick out size desired.

Pandora has a sheet steel oven, because steel is more sensitive to heat—absorbs it faster—than cast iron does. Pandora oven thus heats quicker—less time required to get oven ready for the baking—which also means less fuel-expense. ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

"Marguerite Clark"

Who is starring this season under the management of the Shuberts in

"The Wishing Ring"

Miss Clarke, as the average theatre-goer probably knows, is one of the best known stars of musical comedy. Her daintiness, demureness and almost child-like charm of manner caused the Shuberts to pick her out as one suitable for more ambitious things, with the result that Owen Davis, a Harvard graduate, has written a play for her.

Like all other Shubert Attractions "THE WISHING RING" is played by an all-star cast and handsomely staged.

JAPANESE STATESMAN SHOT DOWN AT HARBIN WHILE ON ERRAND OF PEACE

Prince Ito, Who Had Done Most to Save the National Privileges of Korea, Was Assassinated After Alighting on Station Platform—Representative of the Working Classes.

REVENGE THE MOTIVE

Tokio, Oct. 27.—Hirobumi Ito, a prince of Japan, but the greatest commoner in the empire, and for two years the uncrowned ruler of Korea, who above all stood between Korea and the degradation of immediate annexation, hoping to build up that country anew, was assassinated by Koreans yesterday just as he alighted from a special train at Harbin, Manchuria, to which place he went from Tokio in his capacity as president of the Privy Council on a mission of peace.

Prior to his departure, Prince Ito said to the Associated Press: "I am going on my own initiative, with the approval of my emperor, with the hope of securing a better understanding with China and of assuring the world that Japan's intentions in Manchuria are amicable to China and friendly to the commerce of all nations. When I return I hope to give positive evidence of this."

Undoubtedly Prince Ito intended to inaugurate and enforce a distinct policy in Manchuria, but the exact nature of this was not disclosed. Marquis Katsura, the Premier and Minister of Finance, after the assassination, said in an interview: "The death of Prince Ito will not change the policies of Japan. The pacific motives of Prince Ito will ever be maintained and the traditions left by him will be followed."

Smiling and bowing, the prince had turned towards Russian Finance Minister Kokovsoff, who was awaiting him on the station platform, a few paces distant, when suddenly came half a dozen revolver shots in quick succession. At the second report, Prince Ito staggered and a moment later fell, having then received three bullets, two of which entered the abdomen. He died in twenty minutes without recovering consciousness. He was 68 years of age.

Three other members of the party on the platform were also injured. They were Prince Ito's private secretary, Japanese Consul-General Kawakan, and General Manager Tanaka of the South Manchurian Railway, who had moved closer to the prince as the firing began.

The assassin stood defiantly in the crowd, revolver in hand, until arrested. He proved to be a Korean. With two companions of the same nationality, he boasted of a conspiracy, the object of which was the life of the former resident-general of Korea, and exclaimed dramatically: "I came to Harbin for the sole purpose of assassinating Prince Ito to avenge my country."

Prince Ito's career, he admitted that he had a personal grudge against the Japanese statesman, who, while resident-general in Korea, caused the execution of several of the murderer's friends.

The prince was born Sept. 2, 1841, the son of a gardener. As an orphan he was adopted into the family of Juso Ito, a Samurai of the lowest rank of the Choshu clan. Young Ito studied under the great master of the time, Yoshida Shuin, and developed brilliantly. In 1863 he undertook a pilgrimage to England in defiance of the laws of Japan, which forbade natives to go abroad under the penalty of death. He took part on the imperial side during the war which led to the restoration, and after the establishment of the present Meiji Government, began his official life as a judge of the Osaka court. He was then 27 years old. Later he became governor of Hiogo, and in 1869 was made vice-minister of the Central Government. The following year he visited America, commissioned to investigate the financial systems and on his return was appointed vice-minister of public affairs.

His rise was rapid, and in 1880 he was appointed Premier and Minister of the Imperial Household Department.

He was created a count in 1884 and prince at the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war, which he did his utmost to prevent. During this war Ito remained without a stated office, though often consulted and entrusted with important missions by the throne. He was four times Premier, resigning finally in 1901.

He was one of the few great Japanese who rose from the peasant class.

Prince Kirobumi Ito has been called the Bismarck of the Kingdom of the Rising Sun. The achievements with which his name has been chiefly associated in the minds of occidentals was the framing of the imperial constitution by virtue of which Japan took her place for the first time in the rank of modern civilized states.

FIRES OF ONE DAY

Ten Thousand Dollars' Worth of Damage Is Done to Grand Trunk Station—Kenora Opera House and Hilliard Hotel Are Heavy Sufferers — Blaze That Destroys Barns Are Mysterious.

Palmerston, Oct. 27.—The Grand Trunk Railway's frame station here was gutted by fire last night. The flames were noticed about 9.30, breaking out upstairs over the general waiting-room, and, although the alarm was given promptly, it was impossible to save the building. Six lines of hose were played upon the building, the waterworks system recently installed being worked up to high pressure. Most of the papers and books were saved from destruction. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $10,000. The baggage and express departments, which were in a building adjoining the station, were not damaged. Temporary accommodation will be provided for the railway officials in the Queen's Hotel and in railway coaches.

Hotel and Theatre Burned.

Kenora, Oct. 27.—The Hilliard House with the opera house adjoining, caught fire Monday night and is now a heap of ruins, the structure being almost wholly gutted.

Lumber Mills Damaged.

Montreal, Oct. 27.—Fire last evening broke out in the big Williamson & Crombie lumber mills at Kingsbury, Que., and caused between $10,000 and $15,000 damage before it was extinguished.

Barns Destroyed.

Strathroy, Oct. 27.—The barns and drive-sheds of Mrs. William Cauthorpe, on the 8th concession of Caradoc, were burned to the ground last night, together with the implements and the season's crops. The live stock and horses, with the exception of a calf, were all taken out in safety. Although the origin of the fire is a mystery, incendiarism is strongly suspected. Two weeks ago poison was found in the well, but was detected before any damage was done. The loss will be about $2,000.

Cheese Factory Burned.

Belleville, Oct. 27.—Fire Monday night destroyed the cheese factory and evaporator near Bednersville, in Prince Edward County, the property of ex-Mayer R. J. Graham, this city. The loss is estimated at $2,000, mostly covered by insurance.

During the electrical storm a large barn, drive house and vacant dwelling on the farm of J. D. Nuphin, 8th concession of Tyendinaga, were struck by lightning and all destroyed, with the season's crops. The loss is very heavy, with only $350 insurance in the Liverpool, London & Globe.

Farm Buildings Lost.

Elgin, Man., Oct. 27.—All the buildings, with the exception of the residence on the farm of T. Westerman, together with 2,000 bushels of wheat, were burned yesterday. Seven stacks of barley and oats are all that remain of the season's crop.

Requests Will Be Considered.

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday promised serious consideration to the requests for Government assistance for dry docks preferred by deputations from St. John, N.B., and Levis, Que. The docks will cost $2,500,000 and $3,500,000 respectively. It is proposed to also establish shipping yards at Levis, but not at St. John.

Loses Life In Nursing Friend.

Detroit, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Margaret Harrison, aged 67, of Dresden, Ont., visiting in Ford, Mich., died suddenly from pneumonia. She came to Ford to visit Mrs. George Tims, and finding her ill with pneumonia, nursed her until stricken herself. Mrs. Harrison died only a few hours before Mrs. Tims' body was taken away for burial.

34 DROWN IN A GALE

In Terrific Gale on Atlantic Coast Hestia Goes on Submerged Ledges Near Gannet Rock—Thirty Members of Crew and Four Boys Take to the Boats and Are Believed to Have Perished.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 27.—That the entire crew of the Donaldson Line steamer Hestia, with the exception of six men, or thirty in all with four boy passengers, have been lost beyond the shadow of a doubt is the firm belief the survivors, who were taken from the forward rigging of the steamer at three p.m. yesterday. The rescue was effected by the Seal Cove life-saving station with great risk to their own lives, as seas were running mountains high, covering every portion of the ship except the very top of the foremast, which threatened to go by the board with each wave.

Meagre information from the six survivors now on Grand Manan Island, N.B., contain story of terrible suffering and death.

At one a.m. Monday morning, while the Hestia was proceeding into the mouth of the bay, she struck with terrific force on submerged ledges five miles from Seal Cove and four miles north of Gannet Rock. The seas, which were very high, began to wash over her from stem to stern, and Capt. Newhall ordered the boats out. The first boat containing one of the four boy passengers and several of the crew, parted at the davit tackle and fell headlong into the sea. The crew on board heard the boy crying, "Mamma, save me." This boat righted and drifted away with one man in it, only to be swamped a moment later.

Another boat was lowered, with the captain, first officer and all the rest of the crew, except the six men rescued yesterday, who remained on board, and rowed away. This boat has not been heard from.

The survivors think no boat could live ten minutes in such a sea and gale.

After the captain's departure the remaining members of the crew built a raft and placed it in readiness for launching. A supply of water and food was lashed to it.

Through the hours of darkness and dawn the Hestia gradually settled by the stern. At daylight Mate Stewart hoisted the Union Jack, reversed, as a signal of distress, but the wreck is not in the line of transatlantic or other steamship navigation. It was late in the afternoon before the vessel's plight was discovered.

Against the gale, which threatened to upset them, nearly a score of fishing craft set out to the assistance of the wrecked steamer. One after another was forced to turn back. Finally the Seal Cove life-savers were successful.

The place where the Hestia was wrecked is one of the most dangerous on the coast. A sixty mile an hour gale was blowing and the rain falling in torrents. Just how the captain came to miscalculate will probably never be known, as all the officers of the ship, except the third officer, lost their lives. Freight is now floating from the ship's hatches. A tug left St. John last night for the scene of the wreck.

Is Central Ontario Railway Sold?

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Have Mackenzie & Mann purchased the Central Ontario Railway?

Is the C.N.R. planning a system of steam railways in Ontario outside of the trunk line now under construction?

If reports current on the street yesterday have any foundation, in fact, the Central Ontario line has already been acquired by the Canadian Northern, or is being negotiated for. When seen last evening, W. H. Moore, secretary of the Canadian Northern, said he knew nothing about the reported purchase.

THE THING THAT WAS BEST.

They Concluded It Was Above Even Music or Painting.

By VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ.
[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

He had not come to the little seaside place for idleness, although it was true, because he was tired and overworked, he had come for rest and recuperation. He had brought with him canvas and colors, and by permission of his landlady he was allowed to improvise a tiny studio in a building outside the boarding house.

She, too, because she was nervous and restless, had come for change and quiet. Like him, also, because she loved her art, the summer could not be enjoyed to the exclusion of that art. Hers was music. She had an exquisite voice and was studying for the operatic stage. The landlady considered them both an addition to her little seaside place.

To be a really great painter was the man's highest aim. To be a singer, in the same sense, was hers. And there was one other point of similarity—for the furtherance of their respective arts love and marriage had been quite laid by.

On the veranda of the cottage the ladies who knitted and embroidered called him hard names because he chose rather to be alone in the boat or strolling on the sands or cooped up in his six foot studio than to mingle with them. But this was before she came. The night that she arrived he did an unusual thing. He took a rocker on the veranda, and he kept it in the shade of the vines, whence he could see her face. Often, after that, he watched her furtively as he heard her practicing. Yet he evinced no interest in her voice.

His omission and his commission both were observed by her, and both were resented. If she was beautiful at all, she thought, she was a musician first and a beauty afterward. It gave her no pleasure to be admired for her appearance by one who had no appreciation of the music.

One day one of the ladies who knitted told her that Max Burgess had paid her a compliment.

"Yes?" asked Judith, with a delicate uplifting of her eyebrows. But it was with difficulty that she concealed her expectation.

The woman clicked her needle several times. "He said he would love to paint you as you looked when you sang," was her answer.

"Thanks!" returned Judith, flushing crimson and raising her dainty chin in the air. "I do not aspire to be an artist's model."

The next morning at breakfast Mr Burgess inquired if she would care to ... to his studio and look at some canvases. Now, if Max Burgess took little interest in her art, she, in turn took as little in his. She knew nothing of pictures. Nevertheless she went.

"You say nothing," he observed, with a strange, slow smile after she had made a survey of his work.

"I don't know good pictures from bad," answered she. "To me, personally, they are equally unappealing."

"Not seriously?" The smile had disappeared.

"Oh, seriously. You see," with a provokingly exquisite gesture of her slender hand, "it's much the same as your indifference to music. Fancy your liking music, for example, simply for its visible effect on a singer's face!" She was rapidly growing indignant.

He felt the justness of her rebuke, but the artist in him was awake.

"Ah, it is as a singer that I wish to paint you!" he cried. "You know, people forgive artists for personalities The other day, when you were singing that thing that made your color play and your eyes gleam, I veritably tingled for my brushes. Would you —perhaps—some time"—

"Decidedly not," answered she. "I could not dream of so degrading my art. You would like me to sing, to let my soul utter itself in my voice—so that you might get the effect on canvas." There was no mistaking the ringing scorn in her voice.

"Indeed, I am very sorry if I have offended you," said he.

After he had seen her to the house he came back into the studio. One after another, slowly and discontentedly, he examined his pictures. One after another he laid them down with a sense of disappointment and undefined longing.

"I wonder?" he questioned vaguely going to the window and looking toward the sea. "I wonder"—

But the sea rolled on and on, under the expanse of enigmatical sky, and gave him no answer.

One day, some weeks later, Judith was on the solitary little pier when Max Burgess came for his boat. That morning she had happened to hear him speaking to a servant. He was giving some orders about the packing of his effects. And now, as she stood on the hot sands, a reckless impulse came to her.

"Why are you leaving?" said she.

"My work here doesn't get on very well. I'm falling back, somehow." His eyes were on the horizon.

"Would you still care about painting me?"

"Would I care?" His eyes were no longer on the horizon. It must have been that which made the blood fly to her cheeks.

"Well," said she, "if you ask me to row out with you in your boat we might talk it over."

So they rowed out and presently they were far, far from shore. He must have been looking at her bands instead of the land, or he would have seen that they were getting into a very heavy sea; that each moment the skies were growing darker. Spray wet Judith's dark hair and gleamed there just for an appreciable fraction of a second like milky agates in the bed of a black stream.

"Isn't it glorious?" cried she, with sudden joy.

His eyes questioned her keenly. She challenged, and then he understood.

With an effort he brought the boat around and pulled for safety. His thin jersey showed the lines of his strong, supple body. The muscles of his arms and chest rose superbly. Judith watched him, fascinated. Then the rotten oar cracked.

She tore off a strip of her petticoat to bind it and make it strong enough for work.

He put an oilskin about her. Her hair brushed his face. He kissed it furtively, but she detected him. Wilfully she drew a damp curl forth from under the edge of the oilskin where he had tucked it—and then she laughed at the look in his eyes.

"Attend to the boat!" cried she. And the oilskin was new—rich yellow; the hood was scarlet lined, her hair was like midnight, and her face was a flower. Yet he, the artist, the lover of color, must needs attend to the boat!

When they were safe at last, when he was helping her ashore, he looked at her with a protecting tenderness she had never imagined him capable of.

"Ah," cried she, "if only you cared for my art!" She looked on at him His hand masterfully sought hers then:

"But there's something better, sweetheart—there's something better than even music or painting. Have we found it, do you think?"

"I think," she admitted, reflectively and demurely, while a smile was running riot over her piquant face—"I think we've found the thing that is best."

Origin of Seals.

The origin of seals is lost in the shades of antiquity. In Assyrian and Babylonian ruins seals still are found, and it is certain that their use passed from those countries to Greece and Rome, to all European countries and from England to America. Originally they were set in rings. The earliest references to them in Biblical history is found in Genesis xxxviii, where it is recorded that, pending certain negotiations between Judah and Tamar, the widow of his son, Tamar demanded a pledge and Judah gave her his signet and other belongings. And when Ahab, king of Israel, tried to buy Naboth's vineyard and couldn't his wife Jezebel "wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal." In the Book of Esther, chapter viii, it is written that King Ahasuerus said to Esther and Mordecai, "Write ye also for the Jews, as it liketh you, in the king's name and seal it with the king's ring, for the writing which is written in the king's name and sealed with his ring may no man reverse."

Seals doubtless were used long before the stirring events described in the quoted chapter of Genesis, but no one took the trouble to write about them. From the time of Jeremiah to William the Conqueror the pen was practically unknown to king, noble or peasant, so the seal was absolutely necessary.—Kansas City Star.

The Lure of Money.

James R. Keene, who won and lost fortunes and who played with millions of dollars as a child would play with a heap of sand, was once asked why, having wealth to satiety, he did not give up the game of money grabbing and seek peace, comfort and contentment.

The answer vouchsafed by Keene may be regarded as that which would be offered by many another man if the same question were put to him.

"Why do I want more money?" said Keene. "Why does a dog want another rabbit? Your dog will chase the millionth rabbit as though it were the first he had ever seen. He will strive and strain in the pursuit of it to the point of heartbreak. One might suppose his soul's life depended on the capture. And yet, should he overtake it, he will cast it aside when killed and begin quartering the ground to start another. To the last gasp of his breath that dog will chase his rabbit. When you tell me why that dog wants another rabbit I'll tell you why I want more money."—Harry Furniss in Strand Magazine.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION

If you have indigestion, your food ferments in the stomach and bowels. It does more; it decays, and the nutritious matter which should go to make new blood decays with it, and this leads to an impoverished condition of the blood, to nervousness, biliousness, constipation, sick headache, bad breath which disgusts your friends, and other disagreeable and unpleasant conditions.

And all this trouble is caused by the stomach not being strong enough and energetic enough to thoroughly mix the food with the digestive juices.

M-I-O-N-A is responsible for tens of thousands of cures. In fact, it is such a positive cure for indigestion and all stomach troubles that it is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to cure or money back. The price of a large box of Mi-o-na tablets is 50 cents, and they are sure to promptly relieve the worst case of indigestion or gastritis. Try them.

Taking After Father.

"It has its father's nose!"
"And its mother's eyes!"
"And Aunt Alice's mouth!"
"And Uncle Ebenezer's ears!"

Such, multiplied by about a hundred, were the criticisms leveled by kind friends against the Fitzboodle baby.

Then the unconcerned baby began to calmly chew his big toe.

"Ah!" murmured Mr. Fitzboodle. "Baby is certainly endowed with some of my wife's chief characteristics!"

"Not to mention you, Fritz Fitzboodle!" snapped his wife. "Baby never opens his mouth without putting his foot in it!"

Maternal Instinct.

We talk about "maternal instinct." There is no such thing. To be sure, there are things that have to do with young which females possess and males lack. The wasp lays its egg on the body of the caterpillar for the larva it will never see. The hen sits twenty-one days on any roundish, whitish object of the proper size. I have seen at a children's party every little girl leave the supper table on the advent of a baby and every little boy go stolidly on with his supper. But each kind of mother has its own bundle of instinctive reactions. There is no "maternal instinct" in the abstract.—McClure's Magazine.

Worrying About His Gas Bill.

"Madam, your husband has gastritis."

Vienna, W. Va.—"I feel that I owe the last ten years of my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Eleven years ago I was a walking shadow. I had been under the doctor's care but got no relief. My husband persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like a charm. It relieved all my pains and misery. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. EMMA WHEATON, Vienna, W. Va.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Persian Cities.

Teheran, Persia's capital, is one of the least interesting cities of that ancient land. The houses are mean, the streets narrow and dirty, and even the palace of the shah is far from being a thing of beauty. It has no history worth mentioning and is only redeemed by the birth of Haroun-al-Raschid in a neighboring village. Its importance comes from the presence of the court, but it undergoes a sad decadence in summer, when the unhealthful climate drives the greater part of the population to more sanitary places.

Ispahan, the former capital of Persia, is far different. That city was once girdled by a wall of twenty-four miles, and Shah Abbas in the sixteenth century loaded it with magnificence. It contains splendid mosques and ancient palaces which appeal to the imagination. But Ispahan, too, has fallen upon evil days.

"Houses, bazaars, mosques, palaces, whole streets," writes a traveler of a few years ago, "are to be seen in total abandonment, and one may ride for miles without meeting with a single living creature except perhaps a solitary jackal looking over a mail or a fox running to his hole."

The Smithy Settled It.

One of the candidates at an English election was announced to address a meeting in a Yorkshire village well known to horse dealers and breeders as the center of a district noted for its hackneys and roadsters. The candidate was an eloquent speaker, but for some reason or other he failed to make any great impression on the horse loving farmers. However, the local blacksmith came to the rescue by summing up the respective merits of the rival candidates in the following laconic little speech:

"Friends, this feller"—the candidate—"rides a 'oss. T'other feller rides a mortycar. You breeds 'osses, an' I shoes 'em, so wot is theer to argy about?"

In such a district and before such an audience the brief, businesslike speech of the blacksmith was not without effect, for it touched the pockets as well as the hearts of those present.—London Mail.

Poison in the Middle Ages.

In the middle ages so little was known of toxicology that all sudden and mysterious deaths were attributed to poison, but in the light of modern knowledge many of these, says the British Medical Journal, are now easily explained by such diseases as appendicitis and gastric ulcer. Even the Borgias can be absolved from many of the poisonings laid to their charge. Nevertheless from early times in Italy poison was a favorite means of "removing" an enemy. In England, France and Germany cruder methods of vengeance prevailed, and it was not until the sixteenth century that the Medici introduced poisoning into France. The fashion spread with terrible rapidity, and poison was employed in every rank of society to get rid of inconvenient persons. The art introduced into France by Catherine de' Medici and her followers took root so deeply as to blossom later into the black magic of Louis XIV.'s reign.

Monuments to Wellington.

Has any British national hero more monuments to his fame in London than Wellington? There is the Achilles statue by Westmacott in Hyde park, cast from cannons taken at Salamanca, Vittoria, Toulouse and Waterloo, at a cost of £10,000, defrayed by "the women of England." The equestrian statue by Boehm at Hyde park corner is the second equestrian statue erected in that locality. The former one, by Wyatt, costing some £36,000, was removed to Aldershot when the arch which it crowned was moved. Then there is the colossal equestrian statue by Chantrey at the west front of the Royal Exchange, the monument by Bell in the Guildhall, the monument by Stevens in St. Paul's, which was over twenty years in hand, and a stone statue by Milnes, erected in the Tower of London near the Waterloo barracks. —London Chronicle.

Flower Gardens of the Sea.

The sea has its flower gardens, but the blooms are not on plants as they are on the land. It is the animals of the sea that make the gardens, the corals of the tropical waters particularly making a display of floral beauty that fairly rivals the gorgeous coloring and delicate grace presented by land flowers. So closely do they resemble plant blooms that it is hard to believe that they are wholly animal in organization. A naturalist says that among the coral gardens there are fishes of curious forms and flashing colors darting about, just as the birds and butterflies dart about plant gardens on land.

Cleanliness Extra.

In describing his arrival at the town of Cuantla the author of "Mexican Trails" says: "The first thing to attract my eye was 'Grand Banos,' which in English means 'grand baths.' Now, after a day's ride a man craves a 'grand bano' more than all else, so I left the horse and entered. A large placard on the wall bore the following: "'A tub of water, 13 cents; with towel, 18 cents. The person who desires to change the water will pay 10 cents extra.'"

USUALLY ONE DOSE ENDS INDIGESTION

Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas and All Stomach Distress Vanishes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure Indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your case is no different — you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort all of any kind of food you eat.

Not What He Expected.

A doctor in a Yorkshire village lately gave up his house and was succeeded in it by a veterinary surgeon. Before he had been many weeks in his new home the "vet" was awakened in the early hours of a rather bleak spring morning. Opening the window, he heard a voice call out of the darkness: "Can you come with me at once, mister? She's very bad."

The surgeon dressed and found a trap waiting to take him to a farm two or three miles away from the village. On the way he asked a few questions about the case he was to attend.

"I'm afraid there's very little hope for her," said the farmer. "She's been ailing now, you see, for ten years, and she's getting pretty old as well."

Annoyed at being called out at such an hour to see an obviously not very valuable animal, the veterinary surgeon exclaimed, "Why on earth don't you shoot her?"

"What!" exclaimed the farmer. "Shoot my mother!"

Then the "vet" understood that it was the previous tenant who was wanted. —London Tit-Bits.

Work Day on a Mississippi Plantation.

The day begins on a plantation when it is yet night. The big bell rings between 4 and 5 o'clock for the "hands" to go to the fields. Mammy starts her small sable assistants around at the "big house" with early coffee about 6. Without this tiny cup of cafe noir your true creole gets up on the wrong side of the bed. He has no appetite for breakfast after a ride through the fields and still less for his generous noonday dinner. Supper is served at night, and the dishes are typically southern—the corn and batter breads, fried chickens and waffles and fig preserves, with "sillabub," that moonbeam mixture that makes modern ices and confections heavy by comparison, for dessert. Life on a plantation is not dull. There are visits to town and a constant stream of visitors from town. There are "sugar house" parties and hog killings, Christmas doings and Thanksgiving dinners, to say nothing of house parties and hunts.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

The Herring.

A peculiar feature in the herring trade is that an exceptionally large catch during one season has no effect whatever upon the next year's supply; also, large as is man's consumption of herrings, naturalists say the number killed by fishermen is quite insignificant as compared with the quantity destroyed every year by sharks, porpoises, cod, dogfish, ling and other fish, each of which must have its daily meal of from one to two score herrings, to say nothing of the sea birds, which practically live on surface feeding fishes. Herrings are not at all a modern article of diet. A vast commerce in them was carried on in northern Europe all through the dark and middle ages. The herring's chief food consists of minute organisms, which it strains from the water by its gills, but it also eats worms and at certain seasons its own young, sprats and sand eels.—Pearson's Weekly.

Rule of the Corset.

If Cleopatra wore corsets she may rank as a royal champion of them with Catherine de' Medici, who is credited with having introduced the busked corset in France from Italy. Male monarchs have been less friendly. Joseph II. of Austria tried to discourage the corset by making it part of the costume of a convicted woman of bad character. Napoleon, shaking his head over the tight lacing of his day, told Dr. Corvisart that he saw in it a sign of frivolous tastes and a menace of coming decadence. The restoration kings, Louis XVIII. and Charles X., were equally hostile. Formerly, said the latter, France had been full of Venuses, Dianas and Niobes, but now there were only wasps. The revolution alone temporarily put down the garment that has triumphantly defied kings.—London Spectator.

A Boomerang.

An amusing incident occurred when the house of lords was in committee on the reform bill of 1867. The clerk of the house intimated that an amendment had been handed in, the writing of which was so illegible that he was unable to say what it was about or who had written it. It was then discovered that Lord Lyttleton was the author, and it turned out to be a proposal disfranchising all persons who could not write.—Westminster Gazette.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in concentrated and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

THE WITCH'S HOUR

GAMES FOR YOUNG GIRLS' HALLOWE'EN PARTIES—ATTRACTIVE NOVELTIES IN FAVORS AND DECORATIONS

NOW approaches the witch's hour, when, hand in hand with jack-o'-lantern, she is prepared to scamper across the curtain for an interlude of frolic.

The black cat is with us again, and the bat, and the owl. The cauldron bubbles, the chestnuts burn upon the hearth, the Hallowe'en cake gives up its ghostly prophecy of wealth, matrimony or a life of single blessedness.

In a thousand boarding schools a thousand girls will creep down the cellar stairs holding a mirror and a candle as the hour strikes twelve, looking fearfully for the reflected face which is to tell them of the future, and in more than a thousand apartment houses—where there are no cellar stairs—young women will eat an apple before a mirror and hold a candle by whose light they expect to see that same prophetic vision.

If it weren't for jack o' lantern the celebration of Hallowe'en might be rather a gloomy affair, for looking into the future in darkened rooms and watching one's fellow chestnut hop away from one on the hearth are not always cheering diversions; but jack-o'-lantern, the king of the night, is the jolliest of presiding geniuses, and, besides, there is the Hallowe'en feast, a most tempting repast, to keep one's spirits from flagging in the midst of the general unloosing of the black arts.

HALLOWE'EN activities are always very popular with girls, and they are possible for every one, for the celebration of the night has one great advantage in the fact that its mystic rites and ceremonies can be just as well and happily performed by three or four persons as by a large number. Naturally the sort of Hallowe'en entertainment which is arranged for a small gathering is not satisfactory for a large one. It has usually been found that there is more fun to be had by going through the oldtime Hallowe'en rites quite seriously when the party is small, while for a large affair this sort of diversion is hardly sufficiently general, and instead there is dancing, possibly a Hallowe'en cotillion and a supper with quaint and grotesque favors.

Masquerade parties are also popular for Hallowe'en, especially in girls' boarding schools, and afford no end of fun if the masks are kept on until the close of the evening, so that the identity of the dancers cannot be positively known.

There are so many Hallowe'en symbols that whether an ordinary dance, a cotillon or a masquerade is being arranged there is abundance of picturesque material upon which one can draw for decorative materials, favors, costumes, &c. No Hallowe'en masque is complete without its witch, its jack-o'-lantern, black cat, owl and bat, all to be represented in some way or other by the men or girls taking part. Brownies are also Hallowe'en characters. Goblins and fairies of all kinds are suitable guests for a Hallowe'en frolic.

MOST successful was a Hallowe'en masquerade given at a girls' school last year. Fairyland was boldly raided for the characters, and every girl was asked to come as some one of "the little people," either as a historical character or as some particular sort of a sprite. The result was not only most amusing but beautiful as well, for there were elves and pixies, water sprites, fire fairies, cloud fairies, quaint gnomes, naughty brownies, sharp chinned witches, &c. Queen Mab, Oberon, Titania and Puck were all there, and there was a most charming dryad, who set up her tree in a corner—it was made of paper bark—and emerged at intervals through a cunningly concealed door.

The witches told wonderful fortunes for everybody, and a large witch, who occupied a central post, stirred a cauldron from which she continually distributed favors.

The gnomes and brownies roasted the chestnuts on the large hearth, and the fairies danced around their favorite teacher and presented her with three magical gifts—an Italian coral to keep off the evil eye, a good luck penny as a foundation for her fortune and a pair of rose colored glasses, through which she might always see the bright side of life.

These fairies were not the ordinary tarletan and spangled creatures that we have grown accustomed to bear designated by that name, but were, as far as possible, faithful reproductions of the little people of famous fiction, the creatures of the Irish woods and bogs, the Scotch Highlands and the German forests as they have been depicted by poets, painters and prose writers. It took some trouble to evolve the costumes, but not as much expense as might be thought on first consideration, for many of the costumes were made entirely of crêpe paper, and in all of them this material entered largely.

Black paper was most effective for the witch's costume and for that of the owl and black cat. Poor pussy had quite a difficult time—one of the smaller girls was chosen for this part—because the other guests at the frolic insisted on her going on all fours a large part of the time, which, in spite of her gymnastic training, was not altogether agreeable.

EQUALLY amusing is a dance where the guests all appear as fruits of the autumn. There must of course be some liberty permitted in this sort of character costuming, for while it is comparatively easy for a properly built young person to appear as an ear of corn, it is rather difficult for her or him to assume the exact proportions of a tomato. A lettuce girl, with full shaded green skirts of crinkled paper and some gracefully arranged lettuce leaves for bodice and headdress, is a most fascinating creature, and the grape costume, the autumn leaf costume, the pumpkin vine costume, &c., are all most attractive. It is usually considered wise for the girl to select fruit and vegetable costumes which are pretty and becoming, while the boys, with their customary gallantry, volunteer for the grotesque parts.

Squashes, radishes, potatoes and apples all fall to the lot of the boys. With the vegetable throng there should mingle a sufficient sprinkling of the traditional Hallowe'en characters. Nothing could be more amusing than the pairing off at such an assemblage. Miss Lettuce and jack-o'-lantern dancing together, followed by the witch and the tomato boy, the grape girl and the owl, picturesque Miss Autumn Leaf and a jolly brownie, make up a procession of quaint contrasts.

Pumpkin vines and autumn leaves are charming celebrations for large rooms in which Hallowe'en frolics are to be held, and there are also paper draperies stamped with appropriate designs which come especially for the walls and tables. Large witches' black cats and owls made of black paper are used here and there among the decorations or perched on chandeliers, lamp shades or over doorways. Jack-o'-lanterns, real or imitation, are the most popular lights for the festivities. If real they may be set on the table or hung in different quarters of the room. The imitation ones are in the form of lanterns, lamp shades and candle shades.

ALL the fruits, vegetables and nuts are used for Hallowe'en decorations. Branches from nut trees with the nuts still on are the motif of some of the draperies to be found in paper, and corn stalks, tree bark, &c., are all considered suitable. For favors there are a great number of fascination boxes, baskets and bundles containing bonbons, and there are ice cups also in a great variety of designs that are attractive and novel.

Among the favors which are to be filled with bonbons there are quaint little brown baskets with vegetables of different sorts on the lid, all sorts of fruits and vegetables, with many small pumpkins especially noticeable, witches riding broomsticks gayly attired in red and black, and brown witches' brooms, the broom part of which lifts off, disclosing the box. One of the most attractive designs for the ice cups is a small gilt wheelbarrow filled with vegetables of many colors, among which the ice cup itself is adroitly concealed.

There are also cups held up by three ears of corn or three radishes or any of the tall thin vegetables. There are very pretty place cards made with little vegetables tied up in one corner and some perfectly charming ones have endearing black kittens fastened up in the corner with a bit of yellow ribbon. One of the nicest and funniest favors is the lettuce and pumpkin boy, who has a lettuce body and a pumpkin head, all made of paper, and a curly green queue made of wire twisted with green paper.

Oldtime Hallowe'en rites include the mirror gazing, the burning of chestnuts, apple paring, carrying the candle and cutting the Hallowe'en cake. There are also bobbing for apples and the game of biting the apple, which, however, are not necessarily Hallowe'en sports.

Mirror gazing must take place at midnight. The person who is performing the rite must be quite alone in the room, which should be dark except for the candle she holds. She eats an apple and looks straight in the mirror as the clock strikes twelve. She is rewarded by seeing her future husband's face in the mirror.

The other method of practising Hallowe'en mirror gazing requires even more courage. The girl takes her candle and a small hand mirror and goes alone down the cellar steps. At the mystic hour she also sees her future husband's face.

BURNING or roasting chestnuts on the hearth is a tried old custom. The girl names a chestnut for herself and one for the young man she supposes may probably be her future fate. The nuts are then placed side by side on the hearth. If they burn quietly away together it is prophetic of a happy marriage. If they pop away from each other it is a sign that they will not be happy with each other. Whichever one pops away first is the least devoted.

Apple paring—one paring is rather difficult. An apple which has a smooth skin should be selected and a large one is best. It must be evenly pared, so that the skin holds together and is about the same width, and is about the same width. When finished the paring is taken by one end and tossed over the shoulder. As it falls on the floor it may form a letter. If so, this is the first letter of the Christian name of one's future husband or wife.

Carrying the candle should take place outside the house. This would of course be difficult in a city, but in the country or suburbs could easily be managed. Each guest is supplied with a candle, which is lighted, and they start around the house in two processions, the boys on one side, the girls on the other. If they get back to the point from which they started without having the candles go out they are sure to be married.

At small or informal Hallowe'en affairs the supper provided usually includes sandwiches, nuts, fruits, cider and the Hallowe'en cake. If the affair is more elaborate salads and ices may be added. Hallowe'en revels are apt to be late and the repast should be rather substantial. Salads made of apples or nuts are particularly suitable and the ices should be in the form of apples, pumpkins or nuts. For the more simple Hallowe'en banquet it is amusing to have plain cakes, ginger cake and cookies, cut in Hallowe'en shapes.

The Revived Jersey Waist.

THERE are indications of the revival of the Jersey waist, which came into vogue thirty years ago, shortly after the Jersey Lily (Mrs. Langtry), then in the zenith of her beauty, migrated from her native Isle of Jersey to London.

On account of the ease with which a Jersey waist was adjusted and the perfect freedom of movement which it afforded its wearer schoolgirls of the Langtry generation clung to it as a utility garment for several years after their elders had given it up. For the same reasons the young girls of the present generation will probably be first to welcome the Jersey waist in its revived form. One of the new models closely resembles the hip length sweaters which have roll finished edges, another is allover braid embroidered and a third has a sash of silk or satin ribbon. They are in silk and cashmere stockinette of black and all the fashionable autumn shades, and intended to take the place of silk or worsted tailored shirt waists.

New Hose Supporters.

AMONG the novelties in stock supporters that are made up in a heavy quality of satin and of silk elastic in delicate hues as well as in black and white is one which has a yoke shaped belt which curves sharply at the sides and lends a flat appearance to the hips. This belt is joined by an elastic band crossing the back and affording full play to the stocking supporter straps.

Another new hose supporter is equipped with loop fasteners whose frames are covered with a knitted fabric, which, by preventing the top of the stocking from coming directly into contact with the metal, greatly relieves the wear upon it, especially in the case of lisle and spun silk. The belt of this supporter is strengthened by a velvet piped edging and is so shaped that no matter how tautly the stockings are drawn up the band will not chafe the waist line.

Uses for the Rubber Bag.

IF you have an invalid in your family or an elderly person who suffers excessively from the heat you can contribute immensely to their comfort by keeping a rubber bag filled with cold water under their heads when they are resting, either in a bed or reclining in a chair. The water, just as it comes after letting the faucet stay open a little, is cold enough to be most refreshing, but on an excessively warm day it will become tepid after an hour or so. It is small trouble, however, to refill the bag and contribute in this way to the comfort of a sufferer. Mothers who feel the heat would often find an afternoon nap more refreshing if a thoughtful daughter brought a bag of cold water and tucked it under the head, that the temperature of the body might be pleasantly reduced while sleeping.

How to Make a Motoring Veil

EVERY one has a motoring veil, and many and varied are the kinds used. Few women or girls can be said to look really pretty in one of these veils, but there are many degrees of attractiveness about them, and still greater differences of convenience, which, after all, is the really important point. Some are merely long pieces of chiffon tied on in any way, and they frequently blow off in a high wind, so it is really worth while to make one properly.

An English motoring veil which is most satisfactory is made in the following way:—Buy two yards of chiffon or chiffon cloth and cut it in half lengthwise from one end to a point twenty inches from the other end. Hem it across the two pieces of the lower end and all around the short edges; the outer edges will, of course, be selvages. Then, where the slit stops, it must be closely buttonholed to prevent tearing further.

The upper end may be arranged in two ways. The simplest and easiest is to gather it up tightly, sewing the gathers together at the edges; then sew over the gathers a large flat button mould covered with the chiffon. A rather neater and flatter way to finish this top is with a small thick ring, but it is more trouble. In this case the chiffon must be turned over the ring like a hem and sewed down, and as the whole width of chiffon must be sewed on a small ring it is not very easy to do. The effect, however, is worth the trouble if one has some skill in sewing.

The veil is put on with this gathered centre near the front of the hat (or head if worn without a hat). The beginning of the slit comes at the back of the neck, and the two ends are drawn around the neck, knotted in front and allowed to hang down, or put around the neck a second time when a little extra warmth is needed.

Vegetale Embroidery.

A VERY pretty kind of fancy work is the végétale embroidery that is now one of the most fashionable styles of trimming for dresses. It is easy to do and goes very quickly. A girl with only a little time to spend on embroidery can very soon make a lovely trimming for her next new gown, be it one to wear to a dance or a cloth one for the street. For a little of the végétale embroidery can be used on almost any kind of gown.

It is made either in straight strips like an insertion or in the brassière shape. A young girl's evening gown in some soft white material, with a brassière of végétale embroidery in white and gold, is so charming that it will pay any girl to do the embroidery. But if she doesn't want to do quite so much work one little strip of it will add tremendously to the beauty of the dress.

The work is done on net with very heavy silk. When the gold effect is wanted either the gold tinsel thread may be used or a gold colored silk. The latter gives about as good an effect and is softer. The patterns used are either conventionalized flowers or geometrical figures, and they may be either stamped on the net or on a heavy muslin or cardboard, over which the net is closely basted. It is rather easier to do it with the net basted on some stiff material, for that keeps it from pulling up with the embroidery stitches, but it must be firmly fastened before the embroidery is begun. Even if one prefers to have the pattern stamped on the net it is better not to try to do the embroidery with the stiff backing.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

A HABIT of punctuality will do more to win popularity and will bring in its path more fun and pleasure than any other one characteristic. Once a girl is known to be unpunctual she will be left out of many a spree arranged on the spur of the moment and requiring an instantaneous start. "Oh, no, there is no use in asking Anna, she would always keep us waiting and make us miss seeing so much"—how often one hears that in connection with a contemplated trip. The sad part of it, too, is that if only poor Anna heard it she would undoubtedly promise to be very good and be ready well on time for everything if only she might be allowed to go. But her habits are well known and all feel they cannot risk spoiling the pleasure of an entire party just for her, so some one else is asked instead, some one who, perhaps, for many reasons will not make so congenial a companion, but who nevertheless has long ago discovered that one of the most selfish beings in existence is an unpunctual person and who has in consequence herself formed the habit of always being on time.

And continued unpunctuality does resolve itself into just that—selfishness. The girl who is willing to keep a whole luncheon party waiting hungrily and her hostess nervously while she calmly drinks at home, or does not stop what she has been doing in time to dress herself and get to her entertainment, is certainly thinking of herself before any one else.

It is far better to waste a little time in waiting for an appointment than to keep another waiting who perhaps can ill afford the extra moments in a busy day. And then think of the possibilities of trouble that can be caused by one girl being somewhat late, say, for some morning appointment, be it only at the dressmaker's. Because she is just a little behind time the next appointment must be put back somewhat, and perhaps the next person to be fitted is a business woman to whom time means actual money, or who has an important meeting herself immediately. She in turn must keep others waiting; those others again have their day disarranged, and so on indefinitely until the proverbial pebble thrown into a pond sending out its ripples to the shore is but a small thing in comparison.

Then there are the sick people to whom five or ten minutes' waiting means an interminable time and perhaps will bring on a serious attack of nervousness. It is far, far better not to set any exact time for a call with an invalid than to state positively an hour that it is impossible to keep.

That the ever increasing unpunctuality among American girls and women is to be attributed to the too busy, too full life which they lead is true, but for this very reason a girl cannot commence too young to make up her mind firmly that she at least shall be known as reliable and able to carry out all that she may promise to do at a given time. It will probably mean giving up some few pleasures that others may not be inconvenienced, but more than anything else it means starting in time to get ready. Whether it be for school or to meet a girl friend and take a walk, or for a dinner party, some one is sure to be inconvenienced if one is only a few moments tardy, while a difference of five or ten minutes at the other end in commencing to get ready is all that is necessary to avert this. Five minutes' extra sleep in the morning is of no benefit certainly, yet one person late and hurried at the breakfast table can upset the day for an entire household, family and servants alike. Five minutes more to read an exciting book or to giggle with a dear chum can well be sacrificed rather than have a large party kept waiting to start for the play—waiting for one girl to appear who has no excuse save that she did not start on time.

Nothing is easier than to form the habit of trying to do more in one day than could be accomplished by the owner of a pair of seven league boots, and the only way of overcoming this habit is by keeping a strict and constant watch on the time and cutting short here and there wherever possible. Soon it will be easier to plan the day and put into it all the same amount of work and pleasure as before, but at more possible intervals. It is a splendid thing for a girl's life to be a full one—full of pleasure and work combined—for there is no life so happy as a busy one; but even a busy life can be a selfish one if others cannot be taken sufficiently into consideration in the day's scheme that they shall never be forced to lose any of their time by one's own tardiness.

The girl who hopes for popularity among her brothers and her brothers' friends had best acquire quickly the habit of punctuality. There is, perhaps, nothing which so irritates the opposite sex as to be kept waiting, and to be forced to sit idle waiting for a woman who "all day long has nothing in the world to do" is unpardonable. They may keep us waiting, of course, these bits of creation, but that is a different matter, and the girl who puts the right value on a good time will do well to learn early how to please these fordly beings. And, viewed from their standpoint, girls never can be busy, so it is no wonder that big brothers fusses and fumes and gets every one about into a high state of nervousness that is not going to wear off at once, while upstairs little sister is struggling hurriedly to put on her hat or veil, which she did not commence to do in time.

ADVERTISE IN "THE EXAMINER"

STEFOFF BEFORE JURY.

Macedonian on Trial For Murder In Toronto.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Slowly, through all the tedious obstacles of a strange tongue, G. T. Blackstock, K.C., crown prosecutor, is laboring before Mr. Justice Riddell in the Assizes to establish the guilt of Pavali Stefoff of the murder of Evan Simoff at 16 Eastern avenue April 21 last.

The case opened yesterday morning and the court sat until 7.15 last night. During this time nearly a dozen witnesses, most of whose evidence was unimportant, were heard.

Little interest is being attracted by the case and the court-room is almost deserted of spectators, in marked contrast to the crowds which swarmed about the doors eager to gain admittance to the sensational Blythe and Turner trials of last week.

The evidence of Dr. Gideon Silverthorn, who was the last witness examined by Mr. Blackstock last night and who will be cross-examined by John Godfrey, who is conducting the defence, was perhaps the most interesting given thus far. The doctor swore that, as the result of lengthy and intricate scientific tests, he was prepared to swear that there were stains of human blood on the boots and about the bottom of the trousers worn by Stefoff when arrested on the day of the murder. Other stains he identified as blood, but could not say positively that they were human blood.

Strangest of all, he found that while the stain of the hatchet with which the murder is believed to have been committed was plainly human blood, he could find no trace of human blood in that upon the handle. Nor was there any blood upon any of the money found on the prisoner and believed to have been taken by him from the body of the murdered man.

Heirs to Fortune.

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—As the result of a romantic elopement nearly one hundred years ago in England, several resident of Ottawa and vicinity expect to share in the "Talbot millions." They are J. Bleeks, and Mrs. J. Andrews of Ottawa, Mrs. Gideon Taylor, Aylmer; W. H. Bleeks, Carp; Tolbert Bleeks, Chicago; W. W. Mann, Stittsville; and several others, who expect to receive about $85,000 each.

About 1820, Lady Anne Talbot, daughter of a wealthy nobleman of England, fell in love with George Healey. Her father was strenuously opposed, but she eloped and married —one son and one daughter being born to the couple. While comparatively young, she died and Healey came to Canada, and settled near Ottawa. The son, William Healey, was for many years a resident of Goulbourn, and the daughter became Mrs. William Mann. They were the grandparents of the present claimants to the fortune, excepting Mrs. Gideon Taylor, a daughter of the late William Healey.

Upon the death of Lady Anne Talbot's father, the estate passed into the hands of a son, who died intestate, and the property reverted to the children of Lady Anne, but at that time they could not be located.

Ten Years For "Black Handers."

Hamilton, Oct. 27.—Ten years in Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence handed out yesterday by Judge Snider to the three "black hand" Italians, Sam Wolfe, Camelo Colombo and Ernest Speranzo. The evidence showed that they had written a letter threatening to kill Salvatore Sansone, a well-to-do Italian wholesale fruit dealer, and all his family if he did not hand over $1,000. Sanzone appeared to be a nervous wreck when he went into the box to testify against the trio and morphia had to be administered to him. The letter was written in a house on Cannon street, and was posted at Niagara Falls. It was arranged that they were to meet Sanzone on the Dundas road to get the money. When Sansone went in his rig to hand over the money, he was accompanied by three detectives, who were hidden under a tarpaulin. Sanzone handed over the package, containing $20 and some newspapers, the three detectives jumped out and captured the trio.

Ship Owners Federate.

London, Oct. 27.—The big ship owners union is to resist unreasonable attacks by trade unions and similar bodies formed in London under the title of the international shipping federation. Delegates of the ship-owners' federations of Great Britain, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Denmark and Sweden, met in London last week and formed a council representing the different countries. It is understood that the French and Norwegian federations will join after certain formalities have been carried out, and that it is intended ultimately to embrace the ship owners of the whole world.

Salvation Army and Western Scheme.

London, Oct. 27.—Col. Lambe says his report to General Booth is distinctly favorable to Calgary as a centre for colonization. Asked as to financing of his scheme, Col. Lambe replied: "It is purely a business arrangement on the part of the C.P.R. They met us handsomely, and although there is no philanthrophy in their action for the increase in trade will bring them better revenue."

The National W.C.T.U. in conference at Omaha, Neb., passed a resolution favoring woman's suffrage. The six general officers were re-elected yesterday.

Dudley McArthur, the 12-year-old son of Peter McArthur, 568 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, formerly of Glengarry, was fatally injured by an automobile in that city.

James, the twelve-year-old son of Frank Roberts of St. Thomas, is dead from lockjaw, following burns to his hands received by grasping a live wire while climbing a tree.

Howard Grant of Cornwall, had to throw himself on the pilot of a freight engine running at twenty miles an hour which overtook him while he was walking the tracks. He was unhurt.

Samuel Emerica of Chicago, a sailor on the Ogdensburg steamer, W. A. Haskell, while locked up at St. Catharines to sober up, gave the police an exciting time, by trying to batter his brains out on the bars of the cell and later by taking poison in an effort to commit suicide.

Subpoena at Awkward Time.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 27.—Premier McBride, Hon. Mr. Tatlow and other members of the Government were summoned yesterday by The World Newspaper Co. as witnesses in a suit in which the newspaper is defendant to R. F. Green, who asks damages for alleged libel. The matter has been delayed for several years and politicians are having a big joke about it, the suit being revived for Nov. 10, which will be right in the midst of the Premier's political tour through the upper country.

Mayor C. S. Douglas announced yesterday that he would go before the Conservative convention for nomination Friday evening. He was three years a member of the Manitoba Legislature.

Douglas will in any event be a candidate to succeed himself for the mayor's chair in January next.

New York Elections.

New York, Oct. 27.—The unique situation of a mayoralty candidate suing for libel, a newspaper which is his chief supporter in his campaign, was one of the political developments in New York.

Wm. J. Gaynor, Democratic candidate for mayor, has brought suit against The Press Publishing Co., publishers of The New York World, for $100,000 damages, for alleged libellous statements in an article in The Evening World, by Arthur Brisbane, editorial writer for Hearst's newspapers, who has been presenting the Hearst side of the campaign in a series of articles under his signature.

The Evening World opened its columns at the beginning of the campaign to the principal supporters of the various candidates.

Bedfort Remanded a Week.

London, Oct. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Bedfort, who says he killed Ethel Kinrade, yesterday appeared in the Bow street court, and was remanded for eight days more, awaiting word from Canada.

Bedfort's brother-in-law was present in court, and said that although Bedfort had visited him in August last and remained two weeks, Bedfort now pretends not to have known him as his brother-in-law.

Short Cut Across Line.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 27.—The Detroit News publishes a despatch from St. Clair, Mich., that the Michigan Central has in contemplation the establishment of a car ferry service between that place and Courtright, Ont., to give shorter connection with St. Thomas for freight in that district.

Charles M. Hays wires from Montreal that the Grand Trunk is negotiating terms for using the Michigan Central tunnel here.

P. J. M. Hally, corporation counsel of Detroit, has evolved a plan of renting to the Detroit United at $300 a day the streets whereon the franchises have expired or will expire.

Little Boy Wanderer.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Harold Ellis, aged five, of Columbus, Ont., was found wandering along East Queen street yesterday afternoon by Mrs. White of 17 De Grassi street. He said he came to Toronto with his grandmother and was separated from her while passing through the crowds at the Union Station. Her name, he said, was Mrs. Nicholls.

Mrs. White took him home with her. If the boy's relatives are not located soon he will be taken to the Children's Shelter.

Storm Damage Heavy.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 27.—The storm of Monday has abated and winter weather prevails in this province. Many are homeless, and in the County of Antigonish the storm has left ruin and destruction. The railroad is one mass of washouts, ranging from 10 to 200 feet in length. All trains were cancelled yesterday.

So dangerous are many highways and bridges that it is impossible for country people to reach town.

90th Won Eaton Cup.

Winnipeg, Oct. 27.—The Eaton Cup for active service competition in the Winnipeg garrison, presented by Mr. J. C. Eaton of Toronto, was won by A Company, 90th Regiment, with the regulars in second place. The teams march six miles from the city to the rifle ranges, fire a number of rounds under skirmishing conditions and return to the city.

IS CHARGED WITH THEFT

Angus McDonald Alleged to Have Stolen Thirty-eight Dollars and a Gold Watch From Wm. P. Whitney on Evening of Thanksgiving Day.

HE WAS REMANDED

Angus McDonald was placed under arrest last evening and appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning, charged with assaulting and robbing William P. Whitney of thirty-eight dollars and a gold watch and chain. The theft is alleged to have been committed on the night of Thanksgiving Day, in an hotel yard.

In Court to-day McDonald pleaded not guilty, and at the request of Chief Bonsel, was remanded until Tuesday next. Chief Bonsel also asked to have the prisoner blacklisted. McDonald desired this to be done and His Worship gave the order.

"VAG" ALLOWED TO GO

Is Walking to Montreal—Came From Toronto.

Daniel McCarthy was arrested last night and appeared before Magistrate Dumble in the police court this morning.

"You are charged with being a vagrant," said His Worship to McCarthy as he stood up to answer to his name. He was black and dirty as if he had ben in a coal mine.

"I came from Toronto and am on my way to Montreal," he replied, in answer to the charge.

He stated that he had walked here and intended continuing on foot to Montreal. His Worship told him that the first time the opportunity arose, to have a good bath. He allowed him to go.

DEPENDABLE MEDICINES

So much comment and criticism of medicines has been caused since the creation of the pure Food and Drugs Law that one hardly knows what to depend upon.

There are, however, dependable medicines such as the Cod Liver and Iron preparation called VINOL, which is not a patent medicine in any sense of the word because it is openly stated on every bottle what it contains, and this combination of two-world famed tonics can be relied upon by every weak, run-down or aged person to restore health and strength. MEET TO-NIGHT

West End Athletic Club Will Consider Number of Questions.

A meeting of the West End Athletic Club will be held this evening in the Oriental Hotel at 8 o'clock. The members intend to put the Club on a sounder basis and a general discussion of the plans for the coming winter will no doubt be a feature of the meeting. All those interested are asked to be present as a number of other important matters are to be brought up.

GOING WEST

Edward Graham to Farm After Long Service on G. T. R.

Mr. Edward Graham, formerly of Peterborough, and recently of Belleville, an employee of the G.T.R. for 26 years, has resigned his position and is going west to farm. He has recently been employed on the Belleville line, but up to five years ago he was on the Lakefield division: Mr. Graham has had a long experience on the railway and has made many friends. He will take up farming at Caroll, Man., and his many friends wish him every success.

PROMINENT CIVIC OFFICIALS OF TORONTO VISITED C. G. E. WORKS

Mayor Oliver and Party, Numbering About Forty, Invited by C. G. E. Co. to Examine Works Here---Were Received by Mayor Rush and Aldermen---Lunched at Oriental.

Peterborough was honoured to-day by the visit of some of Toronto's most prominent civic officials who accepted the invitation of the C. G. E. Co. to examine the plant in this city. Mayor Oliver, members of the Board of Control, Aldermen and other gentlemen who hold important positions in the administration of the Queen City's affairs were present and altogether the party numbered about forty. They arrived on the morning C.P.R. express and were met at the station by Mayor Rush and members of the City Council and Hon. J. R. Stratton. The visitors were driven to the Lift Lock and were shown this hydraulic mechanism in operation. The canal is in excellent condition and doubtless elicited many expressions of admiration. The party returned to the city and had luncheon at the Oriental Hotel, and this afternoon visited the C. G. E. works. During luncheon Mayor Rush proposed the health of the City Council of Toronto and the toast was heartily honoured.

Among those who made the trip were Mayor Oliver, Controllers Hocken, Harrison and Ward, City Treasurer R. T. Coady, City Engineer C. H. Rust, Assessment Commissioner J. C. Forman, Property Commissioner R. C. Harris, George B. Wilson, secretary to Mayor Oliver and others. Practically all the members of the Toronto City Council were present.

Mr. G. Watts, Superintendent of Works of the C. G. E. Co., and Mr. R. E. Layfield, Superintendent of the Canada Foundry Co., accompanied the visitors and, representing the Company were very courteous and attentive. To them, fell the duty of directing the visitors through the various departments of the factory and of explaining the work.

The C. G. E. Co. have wide dealings with the Toronto City Council and invited the members to examine the factories at Toronto and Peterborough. The C.P.R. company with their usual thoughtfulness placed a special car at the disposal of the visitors and Mr. H. R. Mathewson, of the Passenger Dept., left nothing unprovided and was successful in making the trip a very pleasant one. The return trip was scheduled for 5.30 o'clock by a special train.

School Teachers Take Steps Against Gambling At Fairs

At a meeting of Campbellford Public school staff the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, believing in the educational value of a clean exhibition, we have in the past encouraged the attendance of our pupils as the Seymour Agricultural Fair;

And whereas, at the exhibition recently held, many games were in operation upon the grounds which could not fail to have an evil influence upon our boys, and lead to the formation of the gambling habit;

Be it resolved that we, the teachers of the Campbellford public school, express our strong disapproval of all such games, and enter a most vehement protest to the directors of the exhibition against their continuance;

And that we notify the directors that until we are assured that such will be no longer tolerated upon the grounds, we shall refuse to assist either by the sale of flags, tickets, or otherwise, and shall discourage the attendance of our pupils;

And be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the directors, to the local papers, and to all the teachers in the Township of Seymour.

We feel that we have been placed in a somewhat false position by reason of the aid we have given in the past in getting our classes to attend, and we do not wish the public to believe that we encourage, or even countenance such things as were given a place on the grounds this year."

For my own part I believe there is a growing public sentiment against them, and the time is ripe to make a strong move for their discontinuance. I trust that we will have your heartiest co-operation in further building up this sentiment.

Yours for the welfare of our boys,
J. A. BANNISTER,
Principal Public School.

Seventy-fourth Anniversary Of St. John's Church Next Sunday

The seventy-fourth anniversary of St. John's Church will be held next Sunday and as usual the dedication festival will extend over two Sundays.. The occasion will be honoured by the presence of Rt. Rev. Dr. F. L. Sweeney, Bishop of Toronto, A reception will be held at St. John's Rectory, at which the Bishop will be present on the following Monday evening from 4 to 6 and from 8 to 10 o'clock.

The reception will be made the formal opening of the handsome new rectory on the church's own property corner of Sheridan and Brock streets, erected by the congregation in 1908-9. The architect of this work was John E. Belcher, C.E., who also planned and supervised the large and commodious new vestry, opened some eighteen months ago, and which beautiful adjunct to the sacred building is pronounced to be second to no other Anglican vestry in the diocese. The committee entrusted with the duty of providing this new rectory was as follows: Messrs. Peter Campbell, chairman; Dr. Halliday, W. H. Cluxton, Joseph Mills, Harry Long Chas.. H. J. Mitchell This valuable property is vested for the congregation in a Board of Trust, composed of Dr. Boucher, Dr. Halliday, Dr. Burnham, Messrs. Peter Campbell and Chas. H. J. Mitchell.

The rector Rev. Canon Davidson trusts that the rectory may be widely used for the general advantage of the parish and church. He invites every parishioner to feel a personal share in the house, where a warm welcome will always be found within its walls.

Spacious Livery Stable Is Being Built On Chambers Street

Work has been commenced on a new livery barn, by which the stable now occupied by Mr. Merton Storey of Chambers street, will be much enlarged, and will be made one of the most comfortable and commodious in the city. Those acquainted with the locality know that the present barn is back from the street and around the yard there is accommodation for vehicles, roofed, but not entirely closed in. Dr. Johnston's office is on the south side of the drive way, and will not be affected by the change.

The yard from the barn to the street will be enclosed and will in itself provide stable accommodation. A brick wall will be built along the north and south sides and also along the street. The present sheds for buggies will be torn down. There will be a clear story over the main part of the yard. The north and south sides of this will be composed entirely of windows, in order to provide ample light for the interior of the whole structure. A slanting roof will extend on each side from the foot of the windows to the north and south walls. A clear idea may be gained of the roof formation when it is understood that it will be similar to that on the building at the Exhibition Grounds. A large door facing Chambers street will open on the street. Stables will be provided along the south side, and a number of new box stalls will be added. When the building is completed it will be one of the most spacious livery stables in the city. The work is being done by the owners of the property, the Alf. Parker Estate, and it is expected that it will be completed before the winter sets in. The old livery provides good accommodation, but the greatest drawback was the fact that the buggies had to be kept under the sheds and the horses hitched in the yard at the mercy of the weather. With the new wbuilding this hardship will be removed and the conditions will be equal to if they do not as is generally stated surpass, those which are found in any of the other local liveries. Mr. Merton Storey will have a modern equipment and should greatly increase his already flourishing business.

PERFORMED CEREMONY

Rev. Canon Davidson Laid Corner Stone of Trinity Church House at Colborne on Thanksgiving Day—Many Present.

PRESENTED WITH TROWEL

Rev. Canon Davidson has returned from Colborne, where he was honoured by his former congregation by being chosen to lay the corner stone of the new Trinity Church House on Thanksgiving Day. Canon Davidson brought back with him a beautifully engraved silver trowel, inscribed as follows: "To Rev. Canon Davidson, M.A., on the occasion of the laying of the foundation stone of Trinity Church House, Colborne, Oct. 25th, 1909." The ceremony was opened by prayer, by Rev. J. R. McLean, after which Rev. Canon Davidson gave an address. The stone was then well and truly laid, after which there were appropriate prayers. The assembly then adjourned to the church, where addresses were given by the clergy of the Deanery and the different Protestant ministers of Colborne. There was a large number of people present, and the ceremony throughout was of a most impressive nature.

The meetings of the Deanery were concluded last night.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE

TO-MORROW (THURSDAY) EVENING

MARGUERITE CLARK, In "The Wishing Ring."

In speaking of Marguerite Clark and her all star company in "The Wishing Ring," which appeared at the Russell Theatre, the Ottawa Journal makes the following very flattering criticism:

Marguerite Clark in the leading role of "The Wishing Ring" completely captivated the two large holiday audiences at the Russell Theatre yesterday. The comedy itself is somewhat unique and very charming, but Miss Clark in her sweet, captivating manner from the moment she appears takes possession of the hearts of the audience. In "The Wishing Ring," the role Miss Clark plays is peculiarly effective. In it she is the simple, kind-hearted and very lovable daughter of the village parson. Both in the emotional and lighter parts she appeared to advantage. Her delightful voice, captivating smiles and coquettish ways and capable handling of her role won her many sincere encomiums.

Miss Clark is fortunate in being supported by a capable cast. The acting throughout is well balanced and the various parts intelligently interpreted. Robt. Dempster as Giles, King Baggett as William, and Miss Grace Goodall as the Godess Girl, all taking important roles, did excellent work.

The staging of the play is lavish, floral decorations being profuse. The ladies' gowns are very beautiful. A number of live fowl, dogs, parrots, etc., give the play a touch of reality.

HALLOWE'EN WARNING

Chief Bonsel Reminds Boys That no Damage is to be Done to Property.

Chief Bonsel issues his annual warning to the boys of the city in regard to Hallowe'en, the anniversary of which, this year, falls on Sunday. No doubt it will be observed on both Saturday and Monday. The Chief wants the boys to understand that any one found guilty of damaging property will be severely dealt with. There will be a number of special constables on that night, who will have vigilant eyes for any wrong doing.

We know of a number of cases of supposed consumption that have been cured by Miller's Compound Iron Pills Wm. Madill, Druggist.

PETERBOROUGH'S BUILDING RECORD FOR THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

Shows a Slight Falling Off Over the Figures of the Same Month Last Year, But Only After a Long Series of Gains---Comparison With Statistics in Other Places.

Considering the point to which the season has advanced, and, especially the remarkable series of preceding monthly gains, September, as regards operations in the building line, was a period of unusual activity and development. Comparative figures, as supplied Construction, place the average gain for the month at 49 per cent., and, although five of the twenty cities reporting, showed a falling off, the losses were widely scattered, and detracted but little from the well balanced and highly satisfactory condition which obtained in general. The results in the West, were particularly gratifying, and only one city in that section, is listed among the places in the Dominion which suffered a decline. This decrease fell to the lot of Brandon, which, after a most lively period for some time back, dropped behind her last year's figures for the month, to the extent of 42 per cent. On the other hand, not only was a marked movement evident in all parts, but the gains made in almost every instance, were of such huge proportions as to almost strikingly reflect the prodigious gorwth which the entire Western section of the country is at present undergoing.

The largest increase for the month is noted in the case of Calgary, which follows her extraordinary gains of the preceding months by another mighty advance of 377 per cent.; Edmonton is second in this respect, with an increase of 309 per cent., which overwhelmingly wipes out the loss sustained in the month of August; while Victoria again repeats her previous successes by registering an advance of 160 per cent. the third highest increase tabulated for the month.

Aside from the splendid progress made in these places, other cities which showed substantial headway, were Vancouver and Winnipeg, which augmented their big season's gain by an additional advance of 135 per cent and 60 per cent. respectively. Regina also comes wall to the fore by overreaching last year's figures for all the month to the extent of 32 per cent.; and Lethbridge, although failing to submit corresponding figures for September 1908, shows by the high total recorded, amounting to $95,000 that this city is pressing onward at a most remarkable pace. Winnipeg issued permits aggregating in value $801,050, as against $481,200 in the corresponding period last year, while Vancouver shot ahead of her 1908 figures for the month, by a margin of $440,026.

Despite the set backs noted in the case of Toronto and Peterborough, which were 5 per cent. and 18 per cent. in order named, the situation throughout Ontario proved to be highly satisfactory and steadfast. Berlin registered a gain of 150 per cent.; Hamilton 71; London 15. Fort William 10 per cent. and Port Arthur recorded a total of permits issued during the month of $271,000, which amply attests to remarkable expansion which is taking place in this rapidly growing city. This is the first reversal Toronto has experienced in eight months and Peterborough's decline comes only after a series of uninterrupted gains.

In the east, Montreal has again annexed a gain, this time adding 8 per cent to her credit. Operations in Montreal this year have been unusually active and an idea as to the progress which has been made may be imagined from the fact that the Metropolis has so far this year carried on building operations involving the expenditure of $6,405,151 as compared to $3,900,078 for the corresponding period in 1908. Halifax, however, was hit hard, suffering a decrease of 85 per cent., which doubled that of any other loss noted for the month. St. John also recorded a loss, that of 19 per cent., but Sydney on the other hand loomed up strongly with a gain of 95 per cent., the fifth consecutive increase which this thriving city has recorded.

As yet there seems to be no indication of any decided break. On the contrary the reports from the country show that the architects and builders are unusually busy, and while the volume of work is not as heavy as in the spring and summer, there is at least a proportionately great amount in prospect through the Dominion than at any other fall season in the past.

Charity Board's Bill May Not Be As Heavy This Winter

Conditions in Peterborough have undergone a great improvement during the past several months. The factories are all busy and many of the larger ones are increasing their staff so that to-day there are really no men out of work. In fact it is almost impossible to secure a labourer for a day or two to do odd jobs about one's premises.

This is a very bright outlook for the Charity Board and its sister institutions. The probability is that next winter will be an easy one compared with the past two years. Relief Officer F. W. Miller says he does not expect any such rush for charity this year. He reports that several families that relied upon the city for the necessities of life have moved away and the men have secured permanent employment in outside towns. Several other families have also been deported, so that the majority of those kept by the Charity Board are now gone, and with the improved conditions here there should be quite a surplus next spring.

HUNTER'S FAREWELL.

EVIDENCE AT THE INQUEST

Lindsay, Oct. 26.—At the inquest held yesterday into the death of Joseph Hunter, the man who shot his wife dead with a rifle and who hanged himself in the cells on Sunday, the jury arrived at a verdict of strangulation by hanging, after being out only a few minutes.

A number of notes were found on Hunter's person, one of which read as follows:

"Mort Andrews,

"The Turnkey:

"Don't tell how it happened, but that I had a faint spell and died. Fix pail and box and say it was a fit. Don't tell doctor until he passes his examination.

"Many thanks for kindness, both Mr. Andrus and Governor Jackson. Good-bye for a time. Meet you in Heaven."

Hunter left the following note to his young son, Carman:

"Good-bye, Carman. Be a good boy. We shall meet in Heaven."

He also left notes to other relatives in which he asked them not to blame poor Rose, his wife—whiskey was the cause of it all.

Hunter hanged himself to the bars over the door of the cell, using a rope made out of the sheets of his bed.

When the guards went through on their usual rounds at an early hour Sunday morning all was quiet in the Hunter cell. On entering for inspection the guards found the lifeless body of Hunter hanging to the bars. The legs were tied together and a handkerchief tied over the face, and everything evidenced the most determined act.

Hunter at his trial was said to suffer from epileptic fits, and the judge adjourned the trial till spring in order to allow the defence to obtain more evidence.

During the past week Hunter had been cheerful, showing no signs of remorse, and nothing in his demeanour indicated that he meditated doing away with himself.

The body of Joseph Hunter, murderer and suicide, was sent to Bobcaygeon, his home for many years, this morning. The funeral arrangements have not ben made as yet, but it is expected that interment will take place in the family plot at the Bobcaygeon cemetery to-morrow afternoon. He had numerous relatives in that vicinity, and the body was taken in charge by his mother, who is still living.

BOATING DONE

Season of 1909 is Now Practically Closed.

Thanksgiving Day was practically the closing day of the summer boating season. It is not so long ago since the launches and yachts were hauled from the dry docks, repainted and rolled into the water for their first plunge. Then the enjoyable summer months with their delightful afternoons and evenings invited the launch owners and slowly the season spent itself. On Thanksgiving Day a number of Peterborough people sailed down to Hatrick's Point and other locations on the lake to enjoy the autumn weather. They returned with bags of walnuts and butternuts and made probably the last trip of the season.

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. C. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

RAN INTO TRENCH

Automobile Had Mishap on Charlotte Street This Morning.

An automobile going east on Charlotte St. this morning ran into the trench on the south side of the road. Men have been engaged on excavation work there for several days. Fortunately no damage was done and with the assistance of some workmen the automobile was put on the road again.

POLICY AND PERPETUATION LACKING.

The Globe, in an article on "Failure Co-Operation," says:

There may be wisdom in a multitude of councillors, but there is never the promptness and positiveness of decision, nor the continuance of policy essential to success."

This pretty fully expresses a fundamental truth in relation to the management of a town's or city's streets by a municipal council. With practically an annual change in personnel of the responsible body in charge of street work, and also as inevitably a change of policy if anything so chaotic as the ill-digested and haphazard way of directing street expenditure, or rather permitting it to drift, can be dignified with the name of policy, what else than failure can be expected? There can be no "continuance of policy" when no policy exists, except that of spending a fixed sum very much at random. A man proposes to build a house. His first step is to procure plans, which provide for every contingency, which indicate the end before the beginning is made. Every step taken in construction is, by this plan, taken in reference to some subsequent step. All is co-ordinated and made subservient to the plan, as a whole.

There is nothing like this in regard to the problem of dealing with our streets. Years ago the Examiner advocated the preparation of a grade plan by the city. This was before we began to construct peremanent pavements. It was not done; and what has been the result of this neglect? Since we began to construct permanent pavements nearly half of the buildings in the city have been constructed, and there has been a perpetual fight between the city and the ratepayers. There was no fixed grade by which to build, so that private persons built to the best of their judgment as to what would be the proper grade. When walks came to be constructed, some entrances to dwellings were found to be "up in the air," or deep below the pavement, thus destroying the value to the property affected in proportion to the disparity. Where the variation was too outrageous for even the street authorities to ignore, the grade of walks was changed. The result has been that we have in Peterborough the most absurd pavement grade levels that can be found outside of an earthquake district, subject to heavings of the breast of mother earth. There has been no attempt, either, to rectify the boundary lines of streets. Buildings erected in the early days have been left to encroach upon the street. On Charlotte street there is a building occupying three feet of the street. The walk was slammed down without reference to this condition, and the same has been done in other streets of the city. The result is that we have also some of the most remarkable pavements lines—lines, as well as levels, that have been the cause of a great deal of heart-burning and injustice to citizens who have to pay their share of the costs of pavements, which have been a positive injury to their property. We have pavements on other strets that are not parallel, but wobble in the most nonchalantly independent and intoxicated way. All this is due to lack of a defined plan and the same applies to general street work. The City Fathers charter cabs and take a "joy ride" about the city to note the needs of the several streets. A hap-hazard suggestion is made that this street needs a little dab of gravel there, or a mud-hole filled, or something of this kind. This is about all the plan of campaign that is organised. A certain amount of money is voted, and it is spent with the most misty idea in advance of how it is to be laid out—it is expended "by rule of thumb" and, necessarily, to a large extent, wasted.

This reckless work has been going on for years, and seems destined to go on till the crack of doom, or until we agree upon some sort of system, some "continuance of policy," till we work from plan, and not by the inspiration of ignorance and chance, or the impulses of vote-catching expediency.

CORNS CURED IN 24 HOURS

You can painlessly remove any corn, either hard, soft or bloodtide, by applying Putnam's Corn Extractor. It never burns, leaves no scar, contains no acids; is harmless because composed only of healing gums and balms. Fifty years in use. Cure guaranteed. Sold by all druggists. 25c. bottles. PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

They Help Your Stomach Out

And Save You a World of Wretchedness

A stomach that cannot digest a good meal is certainly a sore trial. It has been responsible for almost everything in the way of human misery, up to suicide.

The trouble in most cases is that the stomach and other digestive organs lack vigor. Not enough of the juices necessary to digestion are secreted, nor does the stomach work up the food properly.

The worst of it is that there is not sufficient nourishment taken out of the food to restore the system's vigor, and the trouble goes from bad to worse. The stomach needs help.

"Little Digestem" must the need exactly. One "Little Digester" after each meal will ensure perfect digestion, provided, of course, that the food is good and wholesome.

"Little Digestem" are guaranteed to cure Indigestion, and Dyspepsia, or your money will be refunded.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If you wish to murder your wife safely, fill yourself with whisky to the Blythe standard and you can slaughter her without fear of the rope.

Our evening contemporary has invented a new way of fighting Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It speaks of him as "Mr. Laurier." That won't agitate Sir Wilfrid. He boasts that he is "a democrat to the hilt."

There have been, the Ottawa Free Press points out, three elections to the House of Commons so far this autumn—Montcalm, Strathcona and Lotbiniere—and in not one of them did the Conservatives place a candidate in the field. The "reaction" is still reacting!

Montreal boasts that it has handled 80 per cent. of all the grain exported from all the Atlantic ports. That's a credit to Montreal, and to Canada, which has spent money liberally to make and improve the media of transportation that enables Montreal to assume so important a supremacy.

The Bobcaygeon wife-murderer who hanged himself in his cell was precipitate, says the Hamilton Times. Had he awaited the verdict in the Blythe case, he might have taken the cue and escaped on the plea that he was drunk when he committed the crime and it was only his wife that he killed.

The first year's returns show that under the new British Workman's Compensation Act the amount awarded for injuries under it was £2,080,372. That is a very large sum, and it does not include amounts paid to agricultural and domestic servants, building workers and fishery employees.

Exclusive of coin and bullion, the imports of Great Britain have not increased in the same proportion as the exports in the last ten years. In the fiscal year 1900 the imports were £508,203,803; in 1909 the imports were £606,952,672. The exports in 1900 were £363,084,919. In 1909 they were £458,064,654. The increase in imports in 1909 over 1900 was £96,748,839, or slightly over 19 per cent. The increase in exports in the same period amounted to £105,029,735, a little over 29 per cent. There is in these figures no indication of British trade decalence.

The autumn number of Night and Day, the official organ of the remarkable philanthropic movement inaugurated and conducted for so many years by Dr. Barnado, will be found full of interest for all concerned in the welfare of the young. In 43 years the Barnardo homes have rescued 67,334 children and they now have 8,500 boys and girls as inmates. About one thousand a year of those waifs are brought out to Canada, and it is noteworthy that all but two per cent. have succeeded in the land of their adoption. No charitable organization is more worthy of support.

TRIAL BY JURY.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The illogical and absurd verdict returned by the jury at Toronto Assises in the Turner case has, naturally enough, exerted a good deal of adverse comment, and a clamour has arisen for the abolition of trial by jury in capital cases. The Grand Jury which sat in Toronto last week, indeed, took the unusual course of presenting to the judge presiding at the Criminal Assises a recommendation that juries be dispensed with in cases where capital punishment might apply.

There is a touch of humour about this action on the part of the Grand Jury, which even the judge failed to appreciate. Here we have a body of men, "good and true," and presumably intelligent, condemning a system under which they themselves are enabled to enjoy one of the most cherished prerogatives of free citizenship—that of free speech, and to pronounce an opinion which, no doubt, they regarded as of supreme importance.

The average man, who has never served on a jury may wonder why any weight should be attached to the opinion of a body of men who, on their own admission, declare that they should not be entrusted to take an intelligent or fair view of the evidence in a case where the life of a man or woman is at stake.

Or again, why should a jury be regarded as incompetent to try a murder case, and still be adjudged capable of forming an intelligent conclusion upon any other criminal issue? It may be suggested that some men are disqualified from acting as jurors in a case of murder because of views opposed to capital punishment, but it so happens that there are not a few judges who hold similar views.

Besides, if the personal point of view is to be regarded as a test of a man's fitness to judge of crime, what about the individual who extenuates, if he does not justify, theft under certain circumstances, or the fellow who thinks drunkenness is an excuse for crime, or the man who has somewhat complacent ideas of what constitutes a breach of the moral code?

There probably never was a jury which did not include one crank, one self-satisfied oracle, or one blockhead. But these are types of the race, and it is the variety of mental make-up on a jury that makes it the bulwark of justice it is. A famous judge once said that he would rather have a jury of farm labourers than one composed of men of legal training, and it is safe to say that the ends of justice would suffer more at the hands of a jury, made up of geniuses than at those of a tribunal of men of average intelligence.

As Mr. Justice Magee wisely said by way of comment upon the Toronto Grand Jury's recommendation: "On the whole, juries are men of common sense and human experience." It is perhaps necessary to lay emphasis on the phrase "on the whole," but after all, that is a qualification that is ever present in the affairs of human life in this best of all possible works.

"To err is human," says the poet, and it is because juries are human that they err. It should not be forgotten that even Justice has a blind eye, and that judges, be they ever so able and impartial, are not infallible.

Trial by jury has been railed at, ever since it became a British institution in the ages long ago. It has been criticized in high places and jeered at on the street. It has been travestied on the stage, and laughed at in the court. But it has survived all attacks, and is to-day a cherished institution in every country where the sacred name of justice is respected.

WHY SUFFER FROM PILES?

Nature's Remedy is Zam-Buk—Impressive Cures of Women Sufferers.

Wherever there is suffering from piles, Zam-Buk should be applied! There are lots of reasons for this, but one of the best is that in practically all cases of piles where the use of Zam-Buk is persevered with, complete cure—not merely relief—is the result.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes, of 253 Hochelaga St., Hochelaga, Montreal, says: "I suffered from blind, itching, and protruding piles for years. Sometimes they were so bad that I could hardly bear to move about. The inflammation, the burning smarting pain, the throbbing, the aching, the overpowering feelings of dulness and dark despair which this ailment brings, the shooting spasms of agony—all were so terrible that only sufferers from this awful ailment can understand!"

Bad as this case was, Zam-Buk triumphed, and Mrs. Hughes suffers no longer. It only needed a little perseverance with Zam-Buk, and in the end complete cure resulted.

Mrs. E. Boxall, of Scott street, St. Thomas, says: "For months without cessation I endured great pain from bleeding piles. For as many months I tried everything which I thought would give me ease, but in the end, dispirited and still suffering, I gave in."

Then it was she heard of Zam-Buk, and she adds: "Although I feared Zam-Buk would be like the ordinary remedies—useless—I am glad it was not. It soon proved itself to be very different. It rapidly gave me relief, and after a time cured me completely. I would like to let all sufferers from piles know what a grand thing Zam-Buk is."

Mr. F. Astridge, 3, St. Paul St., St. Catherine's, says: "For five years I suffered untold agony from piles. At times the pain was so bad I could have screamed aloud. On a friend's advice I tried a box of Zam-Buk. It gave me considerable ease, and I persevered with the treatment until I was cured. I wish I could convince every sufferer from piles of the value of this great herbal balm."

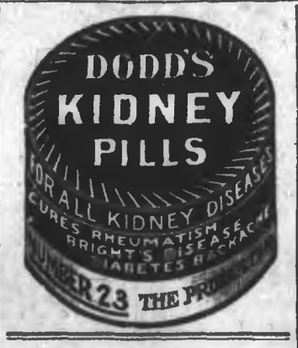
So one could go on quoting case after case, and it is by working such cures that Zam-Buk has earned for itself its great reputation.

Now, if you suffer from this terribly painful ailment just be guided by the foregoing cases!

For internal piles melt a little Zam-Buk and thoroughly soak a wad, made of clean but old linen. Then apply to the part. If the piles are external, application of Zam-Buk is still more simple. Do it upon retiring. Next morning you will be well satisfied.

Zam-Buk is a cure also for cold-sores and chapped cracked hands, ulcers, festering sores, blood-poisoning, eczema, bad leg, ring worm, scalp sores, burns, scalds, and all skin diseases and injuries.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c a box, or may be obtained post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 3 boxes for $1.25. You are warned, however, against cheap and dangerous imitations sometimes offered as being "just as good."



Match Factory For Alexandria.

Cornwall, Oct. 27.—Alexandria is to have a new industry, a match factory, 40 x 120 feet, built of solid brick, with a cement floor. The industry is being started by W. A. Catton and other gentlemen. An effort will be made to complete the building this fall. About thirty-five hands will be employed.

SAMPLE BOTTLE CURED HER

Of Eczema on Her Hands.

We are always glad of an opportunity to send a sample bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to an eczema sufferer, because we are sure it will stop the awful, torturing itch at once and start the patient on the road to recovery. But no one expects the necessarily small sample bottle to complete the cure.

That is what it did, however, for Madame Mathilda Bourdreau, of Amherst, Magdalen Islands. Writing on June 18th last she says:

"I was suffering with eczema on the hands for about three months when I started using D.D.D. Prescription, and after I used a sample bottle I was entirely cured. I recommend D. D. D. to anybody suffering with skin disease."

D. D. D. directly attacks the germs in the skin which cause eczema—kills them—relieves the torturing itch at once, and restores the skin to a healthy condition.

For free sample bottle of D. D. D. Prescription write to the D.D.D. Laboratory, Department P E, 23 Jordan St., Toronto.

For sale by all druggists.

In The World of Sport

"Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?"

FENELON FALLS CURLERS ARE NOW READY FOR WINTER'S SPORT

At the annual meeting of the local curlers, a few evenings ago, Mr. J. H. Stanton was elected president of the club for the ensuing year, and Mr. T. Cashore vice-president. Mr. W. A. Bishop was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Messrs. R. M. Hamilton, Thos. Graham and Thos. Sadler were elected managing committee, and Messrs. J. Mann, J. H. Brandon and R. M. Hamilton appointed to represent the Club at the district meeting at Toronto; Mr. Flavelle to act as proxy in case of the delegates being unable to attend.

A special meeting of the club was held on Wednesday evening last to consider the purchase of the rink building from the shareholders. After rectifying an irregularity in the election of the managing committee, by electing the committee over again, the matter of buying the rink was discussed, and it was decided to make the purchase, as the price, $350, and the terms were considered very reasonable. It was also decided to put ventilators on the rink. The question of employing a caretaker by the day or by contract was also brought up for consideration; and, while the advantage of engaging a man by the day was recognized, it was thought the expense would perhaps be too great. The managing committee will look into the matter, and deal with it in the regular course of their duties.

The state of the ice for curling has been more or less unsatisfactory ever since the club was first organized; and, although opinion is divided as to the cause or causes of this condition of affairs there is a general and strong feeling amongst the members of the club that something has to be done this season to get good straight ice that it will be pleasure to play on, and that will make visiting curlers feel like coming again.

There will be several new names added to the list of members this year and prospects are excellent for a good winter's sport.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

HOWARD NOT IN SHAPE FOR THE ROUND-THE-BAY RACE

Fred Simpson, who was in town today on business, says that Hanlon Howard made a very good showing in the Hamilton Herald race, considering the fact that he had very little training. He commenced to get into shape just two weeks before and no one can hope to negotiate that nineteen miles around the bay in anything like winning time who has not prepared carefully for the event. Fred says, however, that Howard showed style and willingness in his work, and that he will have to be looked after in the future, as he is bound to be a good long-distance man. Simpson went over the course with Howard on a wheel, making the third year in succession that he had covered the distance during the big race. He says that he was recognized all along the route.

RUGBY PRACTICES FOR BOTH TEAMS TO BE HELD TO-NIGHT

There will be a full practice of both senior and junior Rugby teams tonight at Riverside Park, and every player on both teams is expected to be out in uniform. The juniors have a very hard game in front of them at Lindsay on Saturday and must be in the best possible shape if they hope to carry off the district. Points count on the round and as Peterborough are just four to the good they will have to hold Lindsay very closely on Saturday. The youngsters are practising every afternoon and evening this week and as many of the seniors as possible are asked to get out to the afternoon practices as well as to those in the evening.

The seniors still have a chance in their district provided T. A. A. C. beat Parkdale in the game on Saturday, and the players are expected to attend every practice from now on in order to be in shape to go up against T. A. A. C. in the game here a week from Saturday.

CORNELL FEARS OBERLIN CAPTAIN

One of the best halfbacks in the west is Capt. Glen Gray of the Oberlin University eleven, who, against Cornell this year, scored a touchdown for the fourth consecutive year against the Ithaca team, despite the fact that Cornell had been especially drilled to "get him."

Gray is a junior and in addition to his brilliant football record is a basket ball star and a splendid ball player. Exceptionally fast on his feet, he is a wonderful runner in a broken field, and his skill in avoiding tacklers is uncanny.

Last year, in stopping Gray, the Cornell men injured him so that he was unable to resume play until this spring. This year he escaped injury in the Cornell game, and not only scored the touchdown he was credited with, but upon two more occasions carried the ball over the goal line.

GLEN C. GRAY.

Once he was called back for holding in the line, and again for tripping in the line.

Gray hails from North Tonawanda, N.Y. His success in athletics has caused other institutions where the young idea is instructed in the classics and football, to seek him, but he has refused, and will remain at Oberlin.

VETERAN TACKLE OF INDIAN TEAM

WASEUKA.

Few intercollegiate tackles ever had anything upon Waseuka, the husky redskin, who plays on the left wing of the Carlisle rush line this season, as he has for several years. Waseuka was one of the Carlisle mainstays last fall and his early work this year promises well for a repetition of his success.

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.

ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.

OTHERS AND SOME others prefered the Sherlock-Manning—each and every produce perfect tones but of different qualities.

WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

NOAH WAS BLACKBALLED

Detroit, Mich.—The Society of Naval Architects rejected Noah for honorary membership, when his name was proposed as the father of the ship designing profession. The reason given was "that Noah was a gamekeeper and not a ship designer primarily".

It all depends on the point of view. It is the same with "Fruit-a-tives".

Some people take "Fruit-a-tives" for Constipation and Biliousness. Others use them for Stomach Troubles and Dyspepsia. Still others find "Fruit-a-tives" an excellent tonic and blood purifier. Many more say that "Fruit-a-tives" are the best Kidney Regulator and a certain cure for Neuralgia and Rheumatism. For all these troubles, "Fruit-a-tives" may be said to be infallible.

Everywhere in Canada — in the crowded city—on the lonely prairie—in fishing villages and mining camps—people depend on "Fruit-a-tives" to cure them and keep them well.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c—or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

FINE PICTURE OF T. C. S. CRICKETERS

In last Saturday's Canadian edition of the Buffalo Courier there was a large half-page photograph of last year's championship Cricket team of T. C. S., Port Hope. The reproduction has been very successful, and Peterborough readers recognised Gordon Campbell, of this city, probably one of the best all-round athletes T. C. S. has ever developed. The picture was taken on the steps of the College. Rev. Dr. Rigby is with the boys, and the whole makes a fine piece of newspaper reproduction.

An Interesting Travel Talk Given By Rev. Dr. Marsh

The meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society last night was of an unusual nature, being an illustrated travel talk. The President, Dr. Marsh, gave a very charming description of a winter trip to the Bermudas, which supplemented by about 75 excellent coloured views, more than delighted the audience.

Of all the unique corners of the earth the Bermudas must hold a distinctive place in the catalogue. As it is of coral formation (built of insects) the roads, houses, dykes, fences churches are all built of coral. All as white as the driven snow, or possibly here and there a few grey streaks to mark the hand of time, upon certain portions the scene presented is one of spotless cleanliness and refinement.

The speaker gave a very instructive description of the natives with their characteristic politeness, refinement and high morals. This, coupled with the magnificent views gave the Bermudas an aspect of "Eden" loveliness.

As the temperature is quite constant, holding between 60 and 80 degrees the climate would be ideal if it were not for the excessive moisture. Within the houses, however, the dampness does not appear to be noticeable, as the coral seems to absorb it nicely.

There are no wild animals and no snakes or other reptiles except a small turtle and lizard.

As there are no rivers or springs on the islands the natives have very hard work to understand references to such. Many amusing incidents were told of conversations with the natives relative to such and of times when people and horses are able to walk upon the water. Where ice and snow are never seen it is simply impossible to form a conception of our frozen lakes and rivers.

On the conclusion of the lecture a great many questions were asked the speaker relative to details of the country and climate. Many of the questions were most interesting and bore evidence of the instructive nature of the address and the close attention of the audience.

During the evening an announcement of special interest was made in connection with the next meeting a fortnight hence. Mr. Stupart, director of the Meteorological Observatory, will give the address. Everyone will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing the man who 'Makes the weather for Canada, as he is the man who issues the forecasts and all the details of this important work.

WEDDING BELLS

CLARRY—CAMERON.

A pretty though quiet home wedding was celebrated this afternoon at the residence of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron, 441 Reid street, city. Rev. Robert Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, was the officiating clergyman, who, in the presence of only immediate relatives, united in marriage Mr. Ernest Simpson Clarry, of the Trent Canal staff, Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Clarry, Millbrook, and Miss Jean Milne Cameron, youngest daughter of Mr. John Cameron, of His Majesty's Customs. The groom was supported by Mr. Walter B. Snow, of the local staff of the Bank of Ottawa, and Mrs. W. T. Hall, Peterborough, gowned in white net, with touches of yellow, and carrying a bouquet of chrysanthemums, bound with yellow tulle, was matron of honour. The bride's gown was of white liberty satin, trimmed with Brussels lace. The conventional veil was caught with white heather, sent for the occasion from the former home of the bride's father in Scotland, and the bridal bouquet was a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The wedding march was played by Miss Mabel Clarry, sister of the groom.

Among the many handsome presents was a solid mahogany suite from the office staff and outside employees of the Trent Canal; a beautiful Limoges dinner and tea set from the gentlemen friends of the groom, and a cabinet of silver from the members of the C. D. A. A. social club, of which the groom was secretary, members of the club now resident in distant parts of Canada, contributing to the gift.

Both parties are well known in Peterborough. The bride is a most estimable and amiable lady, and the groom enjoys a well-deserved popularity, having for years been actively associated with public interests of various kinds. He is hon. captain and paymaster of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons; he has been always prominent in the promotion of sports and athletics—hockey and Rugby especially—having filled the position of President of the Rugby Club, and, above all, he is a graduate of the great school of manhood and public usefulness, the press, having formerly been city editor of the Examiner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarry left later in the day for their wedding journey, which will include Montreal, Quebec and Halifax. On their return they will, with the best wishes of a host of friends, in which the Examiner heartily joins, take residence at 337 London street.

OBITUARY

CLARA HARDING.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Harding, 1 Dunlop St., will sympathize with them in the loss they have sustained by the death of their infant daughter, Clara, which occurred last evening. The child was six months old.

The funeral took place this morning to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. STEPHEN O'REILLEY.

The death occurred at her late residence, lot 5, concession 4, Ennismore, of Mrs. Stephen O'Reilley, one of the best known and most highly respected residents of that township. The deceased was sixty years of age. Her maiden name was Agnes Costello. She was a woman of many estimable qualities and won the respect of all who knew her. Her husband and one son, Joseph, residing at home and one brother and five sisters are left to mourn her loss. The brother is Mr. Paul Costello of Ennismore and the sisters are Mrs. James Herbert and Mrs Patrick Barrie, of Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. John Moloney and Mrs. Jno. Shanahan, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Michael Dwyer, of Saginaw, Mich.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at nine o'clock from the family residence to St. Martin's church and thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

EXAMINER WANT ADS. TRIUMPH

Two Umbrellas and a Sable Ruff are Recovered Through Medium of This Paper.

The efficiency of the Examiner Want Ad Column in restoring lost articles is being daily and effectively demonstrated by incidents in which things which the owners have given up for keeps have ben returned through a few lines in this paper. The latest illustration of this fact has been given just now. Two people who had lost umbrellas and a third who had temporarily parted possession with a sable ruff wisely inserted advertisements in the Examiner with the result that the owners have secured their lost articles at a small fraction of the cost. Examiner want ads. pay.

SUMMER FANCIES.

Very smart and saucy looking is the athletic girl in her newest middy blouse. It is of regular khaki cloth, with a very little bit of trimming in red. Around the left arm above the elbow is a soldier-like stripe of the color.

Instead of having two squares of material sewed together around the edges, some of the newest sofa pillows are made with covers all in one piece. The pillow is placed diagonally in the center and the corners brought together, forming a cross. In the soft new cretonnes these pillows are especially attractive.

Kindergarten handkerchiefs are a summer novelty for the children. The little squares are stamped with scenes from kindergarten games, such as a group of children playing "ring around a rosy" or "the pigeon" or model lessons in the well known kindergarten subjects—sewing, weaving, representations of first, second, third and fourth gifts, etc.

There is a new material for table covers and sofa cushions which looks cool and comfortable for the summer house or porch. It is woven after the fashion and in the design of the old time rag carpets and comes in green and white, tan and white, blue and white and brown with little touches of orange and black. In effect it is somewhat like very heavy burlap, and it has the merit of being washable.

A New Economy.

By holding spoiled negatives under the hot water faucet the gelatin is removed and a nice piece of glass obtained.

With a ten cent piece of passepartouting tape and a quantity of glass in different sizes to choose between, it is possible to frame pictures from magasines for dens and nurseries almost without expense.

Spoiled negatives are frequently thrown away as worthless which could be washed clean in five minutes and put to good use. The glass which comes on both sides of honey cases in different sizes can also be removed, cleaned and used for picture making.

Mrs. Sarah P. Decker, M. C.

The women of Colorado are to make a stubborn effort to send one of their sex to congress two years hence.

"Of course it is difficult to tell whether we will be successful in our efforts or not," said Mrs. Harriet Wright, former member of the state legislature, "but we certainly are going to make a determined trial."

All are agreed that Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker is to be the candidate for the national house of representatives.

Earning a Living.

A young woman who found herself facing the problem of self support, though tied to her home by an invalid parent, hit upon a plan which proved successful enough to be worth copying.

The girl was deft with her needle and had the added gift of being able to draw her own designs and monograms. She decided to make outfits for prospective brides.

A business friend of hers who was to be married had a good income, but little time to bother with her trousseau. When the young woman offered to look after everything for her the bride to be was delighted to give her the order.

Knowing the importance of not sitting too steadily at the needle, the young woman became an accredited shopper and purchased materials, table and bed linen and everything needed for a trousseau outside of clothes and millinery.

Being a judicious shopper, time and money were saved for the bride elect, and her friend had the benefit of commissions and many valuable suggestions for her work.

The Kitchen Wastebasket.

Though the average housekeeper apparently isn't aware of the fact that a wastebasket in the kitchen is a useful thing, the fact remains that it is. Try one under your kitchen table, in which to throw all wrappings from parcels and other odds and ends that cannot be placed in the garbage or in the ash pail. It is also a good idea to hang a small bag over the kitchen table and use it as a receptacle for odds and ends of string and cord.

The Last Turn.

"My turn will come!" the actor cried.
"Some day I'll turn the dollars!"
Alas, he failed in all he tried,
And now he turns his collars.
—Chicago News.

Exactly.

"After all, what difference would explorers find between the north pole and the south pole?"

"Oh, all the difference in the world!"—Cleveland Leader.

Speed Sport.

The chauffeur dodging from the cop
Lets danger spice his fun.
He knows he always runs a risk
Whenever he risks a run.
—Denver Republican.

One For Pa.

"Say, pa?"
"What is it?"

An Oppertune Propaganda.

The price of beef is soaring high,
And higher still are rentals.
Now, why not head the shidder cry
And live outdoors on lentils?
—Atlanta Constitution.

Birds on the Wing.

Twice every year a wave of living birds, almost inconceivably grand in the number of birds involved, surges over North America. The autumn wave rolls from the arctic tundras of Canada and Alaska to the torrid valley of the Amazon and the great pampas of the La Plata, only to roll back again to the icebound northern ocean with the northward progression of the sun. And almost as ceaseless as the ever rising, ever falling swell of the ocean tides is this miraculous tide of beating wings and pulsating little hearts. The last stragglers of the northward migration do not reach their northern home before the early part of June, but in July the southward setting tide has begun again. The number of birds that make up this mighty wave almost passes comprehension. Probably more than 95 per cent of all birds making their summer home between the northern boundary of Mexico and the Arctic ocean—that is, in the United States and Canada—help to swell the great bird tide that moves southward in autumn and northward in the spring with the regularity of a pendulum. Allowing a little less than one migratory bird to an acre, we get the enormous number of 4,820,000,000 birds whose wing beats follow with rhythmic precision the southward and northward movement of the sun. This number is too vast to be easily comprehended.—D. Lange in Atlantic.

Spencer's "First Principles."

In Spencer's "First Principles" he endeavors to define the fields of the unknowable and the knowable and the postulates with which the studies of the knowable must be pursued. When Spencer writes that "the man of science truly knows that in its ultimate essence nothing can be known," he is not referring to man's brain yesterday or today. He means that the fundamental principles of the universe, like space, time, matter, force and motion, are by their very nature unknowable. Since all man's knowledge of the cosmos can be traced back ultimately to sense experience, and since sense experience is not always reliable and much of what he calls the ultimate essence is entirely inaccessible to sense experience, it may be philosophically said that man cannot be sure he really knows anything. Both the strength and the weakness of his theory are due to the equivocal import of the term "knowledge."—New York American.

Modern Methods.

They've learned to make ice cream without
The use of cream. How nice!
But will they ever learn to make Ice water without ice?
—Kansas City Times.

No Change.

"You know woman was once the head of the family," she said.

"No need to speak of that in the past tense," replied her husband meekly.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

DUTIES.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

N.B.—Unauthorized publications of this advertisement will not be paid for.

THE HESTIA'S DEAD WASHED ASHORE IN BOATS

CLUNG TO RIGGING

Fishermen Off Nova Scotia Coast Find One Lifeboat Containing Three Corpses From the Ill-Fated Liner and Another Boat Containing One—Wreck Happened Early Monday—36 Hours on Wreck.

St. John, N.B., Oc. 28.—That the Donaldson liner Hestia was wrecked off Seal Cove, Grand Manan Island, at one o'clock Monday morning, not twenty-four hours later as previously supposed, was declared yesterday by Third Mate Stewart, and the other five survivors. These half dozen men, who had been unable to find places in the small boats remained lashed to the rigging for thirty-eight hours without food or water, before they were taken off by the life-savers.

One of their number, Seamen Keene, was in a serious condition yesterday. So far as can be ascertained last night those on board the Hestia comprised Captain Newman, a crew of thirty-five, three cattlemen, and two boys.

When the steamer struck, Third Officer Stewart was below and so is unable to account for the cause of the wreck.

"It was very dark at the time of the wreck, and a high wind and sea made it a perilous undertaking to start out in an open boat. The two boats on the port side were carried away by the big seas that broke over her. In one of these boats, a man in charge of the horses aboard had taken his place and he was swept over in an instant.

"The third boat, in command of the second officer, contained eleven men, but in some manner, the forward tackle was let go and the rear tackle held, and all on board were thrown into the water. Ropes were thrown over to the men, but, owing to the darkness, it was largely guess work. Two of the occupants were saved, however, Morgan and McVickar.

"The captain was the last leaving and he went in the big lifeboat, in which there was at least twenty-five men, and possibly more, if any were picked up from the boat that upset. Those remaining on the steamer did so from choice, and we were fortunate in doing so.

"After the departure of the captain's boat, we sought refuge in the rigging, as the tide came up, and washed over the forward end, the rest of the ship was entirely submerged at high water."

Several times on Monday a sail was observed, but apparently the wreck with its survivors was unnoticed. Two blankets were hoisted amidships when the tide went down, and on Tuesday morning a blanket was hoisted in the main rigging. This was probably the signal Capt. Gaskill of the schooner Mizpath reported seeing.

All the food they had in 36 hours was one big onion and a can of condensed milk, which had not been washed out of the galley.

Halifax, Oct. 28.—Mute testimony that fifteen more names must be added to the twenty known to have perished in the wreck of the Donaldson liner Hestia came to light yesterday. When that steamer crashed on the ledges of the Grand Manan in the Bay of Fundy Monday morning twenty men perished, while two lifeboats containing fifteen men got away. Yesterday morning two lifeboats drifted ashore on the southwest coast of Nova Scotia. One contained three corpses, the other one. All wore life belts, with the Hestia's name on them. Fourteen men put off in the third boat launched. One man who was thrown into the sea when the first boat capsized managed to scramble into it again, and two boats with their load of human freight drifted off into the mists of the Bay of Fundy. A boisterous sea was running, and the wind and tide would drive them on the Nova Scotian coast.

What happened after they disappeared from the view of those still on the steamer will never be known, but flotsam thrown up on the shores yesterday proves that all who left the Hestia perished. Fishermen out setting their nets at Pembroke, near Yarmouth, yesterday morning saw a ship's boat tossing in the breakers. They put out to it in dories, towed it ashore and started to examine it. Huddled up under the stern sheets they found three corpses. There were no marks on the boat.

A WOMAN DYNAMITER

Claiming That She Was Driven From Her Home, Mrs. Mary Rumble Is Held In Chatham Jail on a Charge of Trying to Kill Her Husband and Family—Tried to Chloroform Them, But Failed.

Chatham, Oct. 28.—Protesting her innocence and wailing about alleged sufferings that she says have been inflicted upon her by her husband and children, Mrs. Mary Rumble, was incarcerated in the county jail yesterday morning to await trial on the charge of trying to blow up the home of John Rumble, her husband, with dynamite, while Rumble and his family were sleeping inside.

The Rumble home on the river road was partially demolished by dynamite put under the foundation about 1 o'clock Friday morning. A burning fuse, attached to another charge of dynamite, in another portion of the house was just snuffed out in time to save the inmates' lives.

Suspicion fell on Mrs. Rumble, who fell out with her family about a year ago and went to Detroit. Provincial Detective Mahoney traced her movements to the house and back to Detroit, where he arrested her Tuesday night.

"I have been most shamefully wronged and thrown out of my home by a plotting gang of villains," declared Mrs. Rumble in court, naming her husband, her son George, and John Rumble, the latter's wife Ann, and Sydney Knapp, landlord of the farm.

"They wanted to get my home, to get what I had worked hard for. My God, why should the world treat a woman that has been wronged like I have like this. No person knows what I've suffered in 18 years of married life with that reprobate?

"Just as we were beginning to make money they threw me out. My daughter was on her deathbed. They drove her to her grave."

Although she tearfully told Detective Mahoney to tell her sickly daughter Edna, in Detroit, where to find $5 in a trunk, saved by hard labor from her wages as a working woman, she telephoned for a taxicab to convey her to the jail.

Had Chloroform, Too.

Windsor, Oct. 28.—Detective Mahoney returned yesterday afternoon from Chatham, where he investigated the dynamiting of John Rumble's home in Chatham Township. He had Rumble's wife arrested in Detroit and taken to Chatham, where she confessed that she purchased four sticks of dynamite in Port Huron and chloroform in Sarnia. She bored a hole in the wall, but the chloroform had no effect at such long range, and only her ignorance in placing the dynamite where she did saved the Rumble family from annihilation.

Earl Grey's New Secretary.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—The Earl of Lanesborough has been appointed military secretary to the Governor-General of Canada, vice Sir John Hanbury Williams, resigned to assume the northern military command in Scotland.

The Earl of Lanesborough, Charles John Brinsley Butler, was born in 1865, was educated at Eton, entered Coldstream Guards in 1888, major in 1904, assistant military secretary to the Duke of Connaught, then commander-in-chief and high commissioner in Mediterranean in 1908. The earl served in South Africa.

Steamship Service to France.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—The Franco-Canadian steamship service of the Allan Line is likely to be greatly improved in consequence of the improvement in trade which is expected to follow the French treaty becoming effective. At present the contract calls for 15 round trips a year for a subsidy of $200,000. The contract is expiring, but will likely be renewed with the same company on the basis of a fortnightly service.

French Tariff Reductions.

Paris, Oct. 28.—In the course of the tariff debate in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, M. Jaures, leader of the Socialists, demanded that the Government at once begin pour parlers with foreign Governments, with a view of securing a general reduction in the tariffs. Foreign Minister Pichon replied that such a project would be impossible until France had completed the revision of her own tariff.

TORONTO IS AHEAD

Montreal Is Second In List With Slightly Less Than a Million Dollars — Winnipeg Is Third and Vancouver Fourth—Money Orders and Postal Notes Are Becoming More Popular.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Toronto is the banner Canadian city in the matter of grass postal revenue, the total for the year being $1,513,310. Montreal was a bad second with receipts of $963,729. Winnipeg takes third place with a gross income of $580,385, Vancouver was fourth with $205,935 and Ottawa fifth with $199,394.

Figures for other Canadian cities were: Quebec, $152,384; Hamilton, $134,748; London, $141,985; Port Arthur, $21,650; Fort William, $24,679; Halifax, $113,555; St. John, $109,990; Brandon, $48,307; Portage La Prairie, $18,257; Moose Jaw, $25,601; Regina, $71,662; Saskatoon, $28,340; Calgary, $99,595; Nelson, $24,129; Cranbrook, $19,117.

The Postoffice Departmental figures show for the period 1900-1909 a steady increase in the use of money orders and postal notes. In 1900 only $17,499,045 were transacted in this way. Since then there has been a steady increase year by year, the money transmissions for the year ending June 30, 1909, totalling no less a sum than $57,740,622.

During the year there was an increase in the number of postoffice savings banks. There was, however, a falling away of 9,798 in the number of depositors and $2,373,800 in the amount of deposits, which totaled $45,190,484.

The total number of letters posted during the year was 414,301,000. Of these, 91,108 were sent to the dead letter office. The proportion of unpaid letters sent to the dead letter office is steadily decreasing.

Shot His Sisters Then Confessed

Long Standing Family Quarrel Results in Tragedy.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 28.—James McMahon yesterday confessed that he murdered his sisters, Miss Rose McMahon and Mrs. Alonzo Van Royen, Kas., last Tuesday. A long standing family quarrel caused the tragedy. McMahon killed Van Royen in a wood and later went to the Van Royen home and shot his sisters.

"It took me three months to plan and execute the crime," he said. "I waited until my victims would be in right positions for me to kill them, and get away.

"Later it dawned on me that I had committed a crime. I tried to keep it a secret, but hour by hour something told me that I must tell all. Now I'll sleep in peace."

The Accident to the Empress.

Quebec, Oct. 28.—Capt. Demer, Canadian wreck commissioner, yesterday opened an enquiry into the recent accident to the Empress of Ireland, near Matane. The ship's officers maintained that a perfectly safe course had been steered, while Joseph Begin, a diver, said the damage, which consisted of two plates near the keel being separated about 15 inches, was apparently due to having struck a submerged rock, rather than a lock.

It was also stated that the steamship Kildona had met with a similar mishap near the same place in May, 1901.

Will Reject Lords' Work.

London, Oct. 28.—Premier Asquith announced yesterday in the House of Commons that on Nov. 5 he would move for the rejection of the entire House of Lords amendments to the Irish land bill.

The Premier also stated that the House of Commons would adjourn on Nov. 5 until Nov. 29. This precludes the possibility of a general election before the new year. During the adjournment of the Lower House, the budget will be in the hands of the Lords.

Row Over Fish Ends In Shooting.

Windsor, Oct. 28.—Paul Roehmer, of Wyandotte is prosecuting George Rogers on a charge of shooting with intent to maim, the outcome of a quarrel near Amherstburg over the sale of one lonely fish which Rogers and a companion wanted to purchase from Roehmer. Roehmer declined and was peppered. His back and arms were riddled with duck shot. Rogers was remanded for trial.

Car Accident Fatal.

Hamilton, Oct. 28.—Herbert Tuck, son of Constable Harry Tuck, Oxford street, was run down by a car in the Westinghouse Co.'s works yesterday morning, and was so badly injured that he died yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The car crushed his left foot and broke his leg.

Seventh Son Dropped Dead.

New Liskeard, Oct. 28.—Howard McKnight, aged 18, seventh son of Mrs. John McKnight, dropped dead Tuesday night while walking across the room. He was formerly of Madoc, Ont.

Boston, Oct. 28.—Jealous of his 18-year-old wife, and his mind inflamed because she had left him and gone to the home of a friend in the Backbay district, Irvin Fletcher, sought her out late yesterday and shot and killed her. He then killed himself. A two-year-old daughter of the couple witnessed the tragedy.

Dramatist and Critic Fight Duel.

Paris, Oct. 28.—Henri Bernstein, the dramatist, and Francis Chevassu, a dramatic critic, fought a duel with pistols at Princes Park yesterday. M. Chevassu fired and missed, while Bernstein did not discharge his weapon.

The duel grew out of the publication of an article written by Bernstein, in which he attacked the critic.

New South American Railway.

Santiago de Chili, Oct. 28.—The Government has contracted with a London syndicate for the construction of that section of the longitudinal railway which will lie between Copiage and Iquique. The price is $15,253,000. When completed the road will extend from the frontier of Peru to the Strait of Magellan.

HOUSE FIFTY-FIVE YEARS OLD IN WARSAW HAS BEEN TORN DOWN

Special to The Examiner.

Warsaw, Oct. 27. — The various clergymen of the village preached on the subject of Thanksgiving in their pulpits on Sabbath. The attendance at the places of worship was large.

The Thanksgiving dinner and entertainment given under the auspices of the Ladies of the Presbyterian church on Monday evening was an unqualified success in every respect. After ample justice had been done to the toothsome repast prepared in plenty by the congregation, the following programme was rendered in the church, Rev. Mr. Currie acting as chairman:

Hymn No. 404.
Prayer—Dr. Marvin.
Opening Chorus—Choir.
Chairman's address.
Duet—Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Wasson.
Solo—Mrs. E. R. Hamblin.
Address—Rev. Dr. Marvin.
Duet—Mrs. Mimms and Miss Davis.
Address—Rev. Mr. Spence.
Solo—Mrs. Geo. Taylor.
Address—Rev. J. J. Mellore.
Violin Solo—Miss Julia Choate.
Quartette—Messrs. Watts and Miller, Miss Davis and Mrs. E. Hamblin.
Closing vote of thanks.
Concluding Chorus—Choir.
Singing of Doxology and benediction by Rev. C. W. Spencer.

The proceeds amounted to $63.50.

Many former residents of this vicinity availed themselves of the opportunity to renew old acquaintances.

Miss M. E. Nesbitt, teacher in the junior rooms of the Public School gave a very enjoyable concert for the benefit of her pupils on Friday last.

The juveniles themselves took part rendering very cleverly several drills and dialogues, recitations and songs. Misses Dora Payne, Florence Guides and Ruby Crowe and Mrs. Geo. Taylor kindly assisted Miss Nesbitt in the programme, while Rev. Dr. Marvin occupied the chair. Many residents of the village were present and all expressed themselves as having thoroughly enjoyed the affair, and spoke highly of Miss Nesbitt's skill in training the children for their difficult parts.

A large party from Indian River attended the tea given by the Presbyterians on Monday evening.

An entertainment was given by the choir of Bethel Methodist church, on Friday evening of last week. It was unfortunate that the weather was so inclement preventing the large attendance expected.

Mr. W. K. Pane, Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. Uriah Payne on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. N. E. Bell and Masters Cyril and Eugene, Toronto, are the guests of Mr. A. F. Choate for a short time.

Dr. and Mrs. Robt. Tighe, Peterborough, were guests of Mr. Wm. Messrs. Thos. Miller and A. W. Jackson on Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Ada Richardson left on Saturday for Peterborough to spend the holiday with friends.

Mr. C. A. Radcliffe spent the holiday in Eglinton, Ont.

Miss Ruby Crowe left on Friday for Peterborough, where she spent a short time with friends.

Mr. E. G. Glenney spent Thanksgiving with friends in Ottawa.

Mr. Bert Trotter, Apsley is spending a few days with Mrs. Richard Fedford.

Misses Clara and Ella Dewart, of Clarina and Fowlers' Corners, respectively, visited with their parents here Thanksgiving.

Miss Lauretta Mahoney, Warkworth, spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Mahoney, Douro.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn, Smith, are the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Hugh Kidd.

A motor party consisting of Mr. G. A. Gillespie and Miss Wesley and Mr. Mortimer Johnston, of Peterborough, came out on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. B. T. Huston, editor of the Canadian Grocer, Toronto, spent the holiday with friends here.

Miss M. McAdam, of Campbellford, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Fairfield Crowe.

Rev. C. W. Spencer, Young's Point, was in the village on Monday.

Mr. David Kidd, Indian River, spent Monday in town.

A meeting of the Council of Dummer, was held on Saturday last.

The regular monthly meeting of Court Warsaw, C.O.F., will be held on Tuesday next, Nov. 2nd.

The lecture and entertainment given under the auspices of Caledonia L.O.L., No. 281, North Dummer, on Tuesday, Oct. 26th, Zion Methodist church proved a successful vehicle of promotion to a fund being raised to purchase a new banner. The members of the lodge certainly made a wise choice in their committee, as it would be difficult to select three more enthusiastic workers than Messrs. W. Batten, T. Hull and W. H. Dunford.

Excellent music was furnished by the North Dummer choir. The following speakers delivered addresses: Rev. G. W. Marvin, D.O., Warsaw; Bro. J. A Sexsmith, M.P., Havelock; Bros Col. Miller, D.M., and Bro. Joseph Batten Peterborough; Rev. C. R. Spencer, Young's Point.

In the tearing down of Mr. Albert Help's old house this place loses one of the oldest landmarks. The building was erected about 1854, which would therefore be 55 years ago, by Mr. E. McIlvena and has been used continuously until last month, when Mr. Helps, the present owner, vacated it to take up residence in his new house situated in the foreground.

INJURED BY FALL FROM SCAFFOLD

Mr. Wm. Hill Received Bad Shaking Up —Interesting Items.

Examiner Special.

Hastings, Oct. 23 — An accident which might have resulted more seriously occurred to Mr. Wm. Hill while at work on Mrs. M. McCarthy's house recently. The scaffold on which he was standing gave way, and Mr. Hill fell to the ground, where he lay speechless for some two hours or more. We are glad to say, however, that beyond a severe shaking up, nothing serious is anticipated.

A marked improvement is being made in front of the Methodist church, by the laying of a concrete walk, which, when completed, will add materially to the appearance, both of the church and of that of the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Purdy of Huntsville, are rejoicing over the birth of a son. Mrs. Purdy (nee Miss Alice Dodd) is a daughter of Mr. John Dodd, of town.

Mrs. Wm. Rice has been in Norwood for the past week, assisting as baker for Tucker Bros., filling the place of Mr. Cecil Tucker, who is ill.

Miss Nellie Beavis, of Peterborough, has been visiting her brother, Mr. Nelson Beavis, for a few days.

Messrs Hess and Huycke are preparing to ship poultry and will be ready to buy on Wednesday, Oct. 27.

Miss Edith Shearer of Lakehurst, has been the guest of Mrs. Jas. Fleming.

Mr. Hubbs is in town visiting his son, Mr. F. S. Hubbs, editor of the Star.

Rev. Mr. Barrett, pastor of the Methodist church here, was officiating clergyman at the marriage of Miss Ethel Metcalfe to Mr. Andrew McGee of Seymour. The bride was gowned in a pretty suit of white, wearing the customary veil and orange blossoms, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Nettie, while Miss Clara played the wedding march. At the close of the ceremony the party retired to the dining room, where a dainty luncheon was served and much enjoyed by those present. The gifts were numerous and costly, showing the esteem in which the young couple are held. All their friends in Hastings join in wishing them bon voyage through life. Mr. and Mrs. McGee will reside in Seymour.

Miss Sherry of Norwood, has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowlds.

The patrons of Ormonde Cheese factory are requested to attend the annual meeting on Oct. 30th, to arrange for the building of a new factory to take the place of the one recently destroyed by fire.

Mr. Geo. Fleming of Orangeville, has been visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. C. N. Maddens has returned to her home in California, after a somewhat lengthy visit with friends here.

Mrs. O'Neil of Cobourg, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. T. Howard.

Mrs. Leo Convey, of Ottawa, has been holidaying under the parental roof.

Miss Stella Burgess spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stevenson.

The paper hangers have been at work during the past week, beautifying the interior of the Methodist Church which is rapidly nearing completion.

We are pleased to see Dr. Wade around after is recent illness.

DOURO COUNCIL HAS A MEETING

The Douro Council met on Monday Oct. 18th, at a call from the Reeve. On motion the minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed.

Moved by M. Walsh, seconded by P. Farley, that Coun. Leahy be appointed to have a culvert placed on the road between cons. 5 and 6, in con. 10; and that the Treasurer be authorized to pay cost of same on the order of B. Leahy.—Carried.

Moved by W. J. Charlton, seconded by P. Farley, that the Reeve and Coun. Leahy be appointed a committee to settle with Dr. Morgan, re smallpox case, and that the Treasurer be authorized to pay cost on their order.—Carried.

Moved by B. Leahy, seconded by P. Farley, that Alex. Kearney be appointed arbitrator to arbitrate on lot 21 and 210 acres of lot 22, Township of Douro, now in School Section No. 6, and to have said land removed into School Section No. 14, if arbitrators see fit.—Lost.

Orders on Treasurer were: George McKiver, $5, 100 ft. culvert timber; Stuart Brown, $3.50, for opening ditch on sideroad between lots 5 and 6, in con. 9; Thos. E. Whibbs, $10.60, being part cost of wire fence erected opposite lot 19, con. 6; and $17.65 for fence erected in lot 1, con. 12.

By-laws No. 708 and 709, fixing upon the place at which the nomination of candidates for the office of Reeve and Councillors for the year 1910, and fixing upon the places at which the election shall be held in each of the Polling sub-divisions, each received its several readings, and was passed, signed and sealed.

A by-law to improve the main and leading roads within the municipality was submitted and received its first and second readings, and a copy of same signed by the Reeve and Clerk, sent to the Department of Public Works for approval, and a grant requested of one-half the estimated cost of same.

THE BEST HERITAGE

Good health is one of the first requisites to success. Prolonged application to any subject cannot be sustained without well fed nerves.

If nervous energy could be secured by a large cash payment, every person would make a big effort to find the money.

By reason of well directed study, assisted by practical experience, a way has been found to supply energy to jaded and overwrought nerves, without its costing a fortune.

Pure fresh air, exercise, and eating the simplest foods will produce this desired result.

Among foods for human consumption none contain the necessary elements to sustain life in greater quantities than milk and wheat.

Orange Meat which is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked, malted, flaked and toasted, contains the necessary elements to sustain life in greater proportions than any other cereal.

ORANGE MEAT and milk is a perfect food.

FRASERVILLE NEWS

Fraserville, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Joseph Hopkins and daughter had quite an exciting experience in Peterborough Saturday. The horse she was driving became frightened while she was driving along Albert street, and ran away, throwing the occupants out of the vehicle, slightly injuring Mrs. Hopkins.

Mrs. Hopkins managed to get to the home of her father, just outside the city, where she procured a horse and buggy and arived home without further mishaps. This is the second time Mrs. Hopkins has met with an accident, the former one, however, proved more serious.

Little Thomas Henry, son of Mr. Wm. Henry, of this village, met with a very painful accident at the home of Mr. Alex. Brown, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry were away and the young lad, in company with Howard Rose, went to Mr. Brown's, where they occupied their time for a while playing with an old straw cutter; young Rose was turning the machine while the other fed it. He was in the act of putting a stick through the machine when he opened his hand to let go of the stick, the result was that his hand was too close to the rollers and was drawn close enough so that the knife cut off the second finger of the right hand at the first joint and gashed and lacerated some of the other fingers. Dr. Russell, of Bailieboro was called and upon examination it was found necessary to amputate part of the remaining stub. The boy is sick as a result of his experience and has a very sore hand.

Housebreakers are busy in and around this village, but in no cases have very valuable goods been stolen. Last week the parsonage was entered about 10 o'clock, p.m., before the occupants retired. Some members of the family heard a noise in the back part of the house and adjoining buildings, but paid no attention, thinking it was caused by coal falling down in the bin; next morning, however, Rev. Mr. Weatherillwas very much astonished to find that some preson had gained an entrance and rummaged around, but nothing was missed. Since the above incident took place, several people of this locality have complained of similar annoyances.

Potato growing has become one of the principal industries in this sectin of the country and the local farmers are adopting all the new methods lately introduced. The potato digger has been used very extensively around this part, and very favourable reports are given of its work.

Two Port Hope young men were out to this village on Monday for a day's hunting and report that game is very plentiful. Judging from the success with which the young men met with, we have no reason to doubt the fact of their statement. The young men also stated that a number of other sportsmen were thinking of coming, but were afraid of being shot; this danger need not be feared now as in the past few years hunters have not visited the country around here very much.

Mr. Wesley Hutchinson and his wife and mother-in-law were in the village on Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cruikshank, of Peterborough, were the guests of the former's mother here, on Sunday.

Miss Mary Clayton of Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cruikshank, on Sunday.

Mr. Alfred Anderson of Centreville, was in the village Saturday night.

Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, of Centreville, was in the village Saturday evening.

Miss Lillie Canlds, of Peterborough, is the guest of Miss Keitha Kidd.

Miss Cora Scobell of Peterborough, spent Sunday with her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clark arrived home Monday after a trip to British Columbia and points west.

Mr. George Cunningham of Peterborough, spent the holiday with his parents here.

Mrs. Thomas Medd of Peterborough, spent Sunday and Monday visiting friends here.

Miss S. Taylor of Bailieboro, spent Sunday with her parents at Keene.

We are sorry to learn of the illness of Miss May Weatherill.

Miss Daisy Lockhart of Peterborough, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. Seabrook.

Four Agnew brothers of Toronto, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewers.

The fowl supper at Centreville on Monday evening was largely attended from this village.

Mr. Roy Byers of Peterborough, spent Sunday with his parents at Bailieboro.

Mr. Harold Donaldson of Lindsay, spent the holiday with his parents at Centreville.

Mr. W[illegible] Bonus of the Peterborough Co[illegible]te Institute, spent the holiday v[illegible]ng friends around Bailieboro.

ANOTHER FAKE.

From Farm and Dairy.

Almost every year some new fake in the horticultural line makes its appearance in Canada. The variety and ingenuity of these frauds is astonishing. Even more astonishing, however, is the number of farmers and fruit growers who are bitten by them.

We have had powders which by being injected into a tree, would be carried by the sap through all the branches and result in phenomenal yields. Paints that would protect trees against all insect life and insure large crops, have had their day. "Seedless" apple trees that were going to revolutionize the fruit growing industry have appeared and disappeared. Now we hear of Northern Spy apple trees grown by a new budding process, that will insure young trees coming into bearing inside of three years' time. Agents who are booming this new discovery (?) we learn are operating in such counties as Simcoe, Grey and Dufferin, in Ontario and possibly elsewhere.

The agents who represent these concerns are smooth talkers. They know that their frauds will not be discovered before several years, which enables them to get a portion at least of the money they are after and get safely out of the country before their victims discover that they have been defrauded. Our farmers and fruit growers should be on the lookout for these gentlemen and demand that they show reports from the experiment stations and government institutions proving absolutely the merits of the goods they offer. When the agents are unable to do this then they should be given a hot time, and the country should be warned of their presence.

Bearine, the standard hair pomade, is made from the grease of the Canadian Bear, which has the heaviest coat of hair of any animal. 50c. a jar.

WHY DO THEY DO IT?

(Toronto Star)

On a beautiful sunlight October day two passengers were looking out of their car window and admiring the rich coloring of the Ontario woods, when one of them invited the other to observe the farm houses along the line. For the most part they were handsome brick dwellings, each attended by large frame barns, set on stone foundations.

But do you notice that in these houses every window is tight shut? Where there are shutters the shutters are closed too. Take that house—the kitchen door is open, but that is for convenience, no doubt, not for fresh air. All the windows are closed down fast."

It was true. All along the line for miles the houses were sealed up close, except for an occasional door, in which usually the figure of a woman would appear as the train went by. The day was warm, and the golden sun and fine air of October carried life and energy wherever it reached. But the farm houses within sight of that railway line on that day were shut and barred against sun and breeze, as if they carried pestilence instead of death.

Why is it? Is it the habit of winter carried into summer? If so, the sealed house, even in winter, is a mistake, for cold air is as bad as hot if not fresh and new. Or are these handsome farm houses kept closed so that flies may not get in, or that dust be kept out, or that the beams of the sun may not fade the finery of the parlor or spare bedroom?

Whatever the reason it is a poor one. A house is not fit to live in unless the outdoor breezes are allowed to blow through it, and the beams of both summer and winter sun are welcomed through open windows and doors. Healthy people whose work is mostly in the open air may manage to dwell in a sealed house without being conscious of injury, but the effect of such houses nearly always is to produce bad health and bad tempers.

In the cities more and more people every year are sleeping in verandah bedrooms, or in rooms with windows wide open the year around. The man who does this for a while soon feels that he would stifle in his sleep were the room closed. If he should spend the night in a place where he cannot have the outside air entering his apartment he rises in the morning unrefreshed. The gospel of fresh air it seems, has not as yet been preached enough.

THE APPLICATION OF MANURE

From Farm and Dairy.

D. Drummond, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Manure should be applied to a field as soon as possible after the removal of the previous crop. For example, if the field intended for pasture next year is in hay this year, apply, as soon as possible after the crop has been removed, all the manure that has accumulated since winter and continue with all fresh manure as made during the winter months if the land is suitable to spread it. If the land is too rolling or too level and liable to be washed by water in the spring, the better way would be to put it in small heaps on the snow. These small heaps in winter freeze immediately and remain frozen.

EFFECTS ON THE PASTURE.

It is a well known fact that the pastures in this country generally fail as soon as dry weather comes. In cultivated fields, we can prevent to a certain extent the damage from dry weather by frequent cultivation and by what is known as a dust mulch. The manure acts as a mulch in the pasture and so lengthens the season of good pasturage.

Some objections may be made that the cattle will not eat the grass so close. Is that an objection or a benefit? Authorities tell us that the leaves are like unto the lungs of the plant, so how can grass be expected to grow without lungs or with very contracted one as are too frequent in pastures in this country. Therefore, we cannot see that this would be a serious objection. Though the cattle do not eat the grass for a short time after the application of manure spread on the grass during June and July, as soon as the rain comes, they eat it quite freely and it is almost like a new field to them.

SAVING MANURE.

All authorities agree that the sooner manure can be applied after dropping the less loss there will be. By applying it to sod, there is a crop of roots already in the ground to make use of it and prevent any leaching. There may be some lost by evaporation in summer, but even that is doubtful. The growth of grass would soon prevent that and the tramping of the cattle seems to cause the manure to lie close to the surface of the soil and so aid the soil to make use of the fertilising properties of the manure.

DESTRUCTION OF WEEDS.

It used to be a general opinion that the rotting of manure destroyed all weed seeds. That theory is not now generally accepted. Of course, some will be destroyed by rotting but a great many will still retain their vitality. By applying this manure to land intended to be pastured, the weed seeds germinate almost immediately and if not kept down by stock can be cut by mower. Some of the annuals that germinate the first season are killed by frost. Biennials and perennials having had only one year are not far enough advanced to produce seed and as the land is plowed for corn or other crop, either in the fall or spring, aided by the cultivation of the corn crop, will destroy them before they come to maturity.

Anyone who is in the habit of applying manure either in winter or spring to the land, knows well that that land is kept wet, the frost is retained longer and the manure on the surface retards early cultivation which is of great benefit to break up the crust and cause the germination of weed seeds that can then be destroyed by a later cultivation. Even in the case of land not plowed until immediately before corn planting (an excellent practice if land is suitable), the tramping of the teams in applying the manure has a tendency to compact the soil and to make the plowing more difficult.

By this other system the manure has been on the sod a year previous and has assisted the grass to make a great root growth, so adding more humus to the soil and whether plowed in spring or fall, gives the very best bed for a good corn crop, which being a voracious feeder, will use up an excess of fertility and benefit by it, and so leave the soil in a better condition for the following grain crop.

FIRE INSURANCE

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

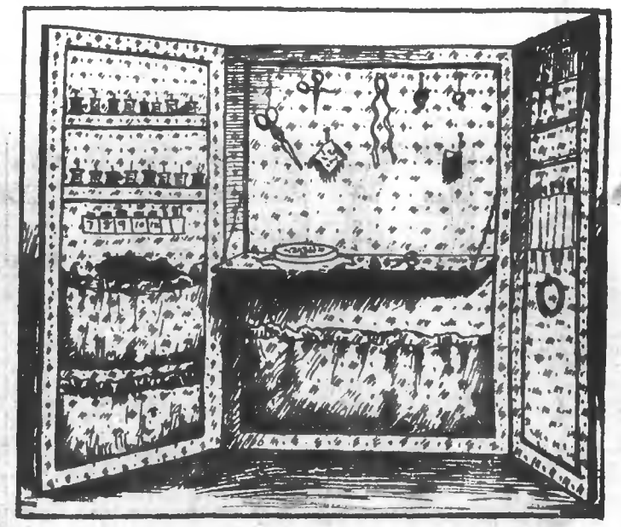
A PAGE for MISSES

FINE SEWING and EMBROIDERY ESSENTIAL TO A FASHIONABLE EDUCATION



WITH the large amount of embroidery and fine hand work that is used everywhere in these days on gowns, linens, curtains or any decorations for the room has come a renewed interest in fine sewing. The girls now growing up are taking much more pains to learn it than their mothers ever did, or even their grandmothers. Indeed, in some kinds of work they may even hope to rival their great-grandmothers. That generation of women and those immediately preceding it did the exquisite work that is now kept in cabinets and glass cases and treasured among the most precious possessions.

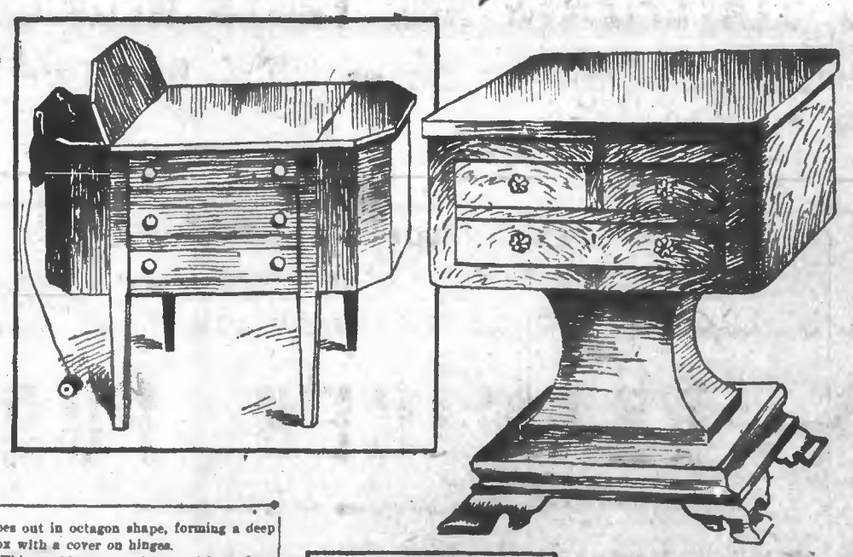
And with the interest in fine sewing and embroidery has followed naturally a desire to own an attractive and convenient sewing table. Happy indeed is the girl who possesses one that belonged to her great-grandmother, for those ladies always had their mahogany sewing table, and beauties many of them were. The girl who hasn't a family heirloom of this kind can (if she is rich enough) buy a real antique one; or, if that is too expensive, there are excellent copies of them in modern mahogany.

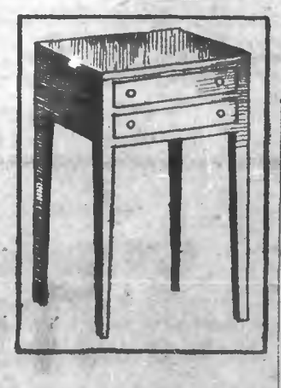
Where a girl's room is not large and there is not space for one of these tables, which take up a good deal of room, a most desirable substitute is a folding sewing screen. Nothing could be more convenient than these screens, and one of their great advantages is that while they can be bought made of quite handsome materials they can also be copied in simple and pretty cretonnes by the girl herself. She can even paint the wood of the screen, only buying the frame and the materials.

OF the old fashioned mahogany tables the most interesting and the one a girl of to-day is most proud to own is a Martha Washington sewing table. The distinctive feature of this table is the box or pocket on each side to hold large pieces of work or materials. The centre part of the table has two or three shallow drawers in which one keeps scissors, thimble, spools and all the little things used in sewing. At each end of this centre part the wood goes out in octagon shape, forming a deep box with a cover on hinges.

This table may have either four straight legs or a centre support with a broad base in Colonial design. In some the support is a column and in others a heavy curved piece of the mahogany. The antique Martha Washington tables are really valuable possessions, but some of the modern copies are extremely good and the design is just the same as the old ones, while, of course, they are much less expensive than the originals.

But this is not the only kind of antique mahogany sewing table. There are others that are just the same design without the side boxes, and still others that follow the same general idea with many variations of detail. All of these tables are charming and a great addition to any girl's room. If the table is to be bought it is well to follow any idea that is already represented in the room. For instance, if a girl has an old fashioned mahogany four post bed with carved spiral posts, she should chose a table with legs carved in the same way. Some of them have these spiral legs and beautifully carved claw feet.





If she has not the four post bed and has An old mahogany bureau with the curving lines of so many of the old bureaus, it would be better to select a table with similar lines. Of course a girl who has a table that is an heirloom will be only too glad to use it whatever may be the furniture of her room.

THE sewing screens are in many ways the greatest comfort a sewer can have, for everything is ready to use the moment it is wanted. They are made with either two or three panels, covered on the outside with brocade, cretonne or some such firm material. The covering may be fastened on with brass headed nails or finished with a gimp. On the inner side are the various pockets and straps to hold the articles used in sewing.

The pockets are made of the same material as the outer covering, put on with a little fulness, and an elastic in the top. They may be of any size one chooses. On the middle panel of a three panel screen or one side of a two panel is a little wooden shelf, fastened with chains at the outer corners. This folds up when the screen is put away and hangs in a horizontal position when in use, serving as a table to put things on. Two little cross bars of wood have small spikes to hold spools, and under these is a strap, sewed across in many places, to hold papers of needles. Over the shelf are a number of hooks on which to hang scissors, pin cushion, emery bag, tape measure and other little things one needs.

Another very useful article is a case for embroidery silks or thread, stitched in sections, the threads running through so they can be easily pulled out. This must be hung flat on the screen by its two upper corners.

If a girl has a small room and yet would rather have a sewing table than one of these screens, there is a very attractive little mahogany table that will fit in any room. It is a perfectly straight square with two little drawers and four straight legs. Some of these little square tables are quite plain and others are handsomely inlaid.

One great convenience in any sewing table is to have the drawers divided into compartments so that the different little things may be kept separate. When a lot of small things are loose in a drawer it almost inevitably follows that they soon get into a good deal of confusion.

How to Line a Standing Warbrobe

TO make an old wardrobe or mahogany hanging closet doubly attractive it should be completely lined inside with either silk or sateen or perhaps chints to correspond with the hangings of the room in which it stands. Nor is it at all a difficult task to line a wardrobe in this way, some brass headed nails, a hammer and the necessary amount of material being the only requirements beyond that of a little time and patience for the labor. Top, lower shelf, sides and back of the wardrobe must first be measured to determine the quantity of material to be bought. The sateen may be tacked in either perfectly plain all around or slightly gathered. In case it is put on somewhat full it will be necessary to first run the material on a piece of tape at each end like a curtain and tack this tape to the wood at each end. One advantage in this method is that if desired the material can the more readily be taken off and washed or laid away during the summer, when not in use.

After the rough wood has all been covered the next consideration is the bar and clothes hangers.

The bar should have wound about it smoothly and tightly a piece of ribbon or else strips of the material with which the wardrobe itself is lined. The hangers must then be all prettily covered with ribbon of the same shade as the color scheme of the rest of the room. For gowns and waists of perishable material, like chiffon or lace, the stuffed hangers made of three inch ribbon filled with cotton wadding, the hook part of the hanger being wound about with narrow ribbon, is best, while for coats or plain shirt waists the brass hangers with the metal simply covered with narrow ribbon binding are best, as they prevent any wrinkles at the back of the jacket or bodice.

Just a faint perfume of sandalwood, of lavender or of orris root will add greatly to the charm of this wardrobe.

Tiny ribbon bags are easily made and filled with the perfume, which is sprinkled between folds of cotton wadding. A bag should be attached at each corner of the closet, and still smaller bags are tied on each hanger.

Even the most ordinary oak wardrobe can be rendered most attractive by covering the crude boards with this soft sateen, which has also the further advantage of keeping out any dust or smoke dirt that might otherwise sift in through cracks or knots in the wood and soil the dainty gowns.

Instead of plain white paper upon wash stand shelves or in bureau drawers a covering of sateen or silk is infinitely more attractive. This sateen should be of pink, blue, yellow, pale green or whatever shade harmonizes best with the room itself. The layer of cotton wadding or a double thickness of cheesecloth, basted to the sateen before it is tacked to the drawer will make a softer, more attractive surface against which to place the lingerie and thin blouses. Not only the bottom but the four sides of a drawer as well should be covered if the effect is to be altogether perfect. There should be the same faint perfume of sandalwood or lavender from tiny ribbon scent bags tacked at each corner of the drawer as is used in the wardrobe.

A hanging closet should always be white, in order that it may be as light as possible, that each garment may be located at once when wanted. A girl can easily paint a closet herself, but if it is not too large a white sateen wall covering is most attractive and is not hard to tack on. Of course, the larger a closet can be the better, but it is astonishing how much space can be evolved in a very small space by a clever arrangement of bars, hooks and shelves.

A bar across the closet will hold any number of hangers for waists and gowns, keeping the clothes at the same time in best possible condition if they are carefully hung up. One row of skirt hooks must be allowed for a row of ordinary hooks at the back of the closet and a shelf at the top and generally one at the side for boxes can be squeezed into the smallest closet. On the door should be put two hat hooks for the morning hats, which do not need to be carefully put away in boxes each time they are taken off, and below this two rows of boot hangers or holders. All these different kinds of hooks and hangers can be obtained at almost any department or hardware store. To be made even more attractive the bars and hangers should all be bound with white or colored ribbon or strips of sateen, or else given a coat of white, pink or blue enamel paint. Then when all the various boxes are covered to match with paper of the pattern and color of that on the walls of the bedroom the closet will be a vision of delight every time the door is opened.

New Bags for Opera Glasses.

OPERA glass bags, which are now being shown in the fashionable shops, are now so very lovely that any girl with a taste for fancy work must find them irresistibly attractive. The most beautiful colors, fabrics and trimmings are used, the colors are dull and elusive, the softest old rose, pale, almost indistinguishable grayish green, vague, old blue, &c. The materials are dull, thick silks or soft silk cashmere or wonderfully fine silk cashmere, over this large meshed nets in dull gold, silver or copper and queer blendings of the tints used for the foundation. The bags are trimmed with wreaths of tiny ribbon flowers and with designs in dull paillettes. There are also very quaint looking bags in a soft silken wool material that is like some of the old fashioned fabrics. These are trimmed with showy designs in jet.

Some Useful and Interesting Hints

PARASOLS that are being laid away for the winter should never be rolled up and placed in a tight case. A bag of muslin, linen or perhaps chints should be made the required length for stick and all to fit in and about four or five inches in width, and the parasol placed loosely in this. Neither should a handsome silk umbrella remain tighly rolled up when not in use, but should be kept in a loose bag. Silk when creased tends to crack along the mark, so that the wider open an umbrella can be left the better.

Tortoise shell umbrella handles are now much in vogue, and the girl fortunate enough to own so cherished a possession should keep it rolled up in cotton wadding, for in this frosty climate tortoise shell will often crack just from the cold alone. Many of the supposed tortoise shell sticks are in reality of bone with a shell covering, and these, of course, are less perishable and more practical for ordinary use.

The smartest umbrellas of the moment have all unusually long sticks, like the Directoire parasols, and really the long handles are by far the most convenient to carry with the exaggeratedly wide hats still in vogue. Care should be taken in purchasing an umbrella to see that the rims slant well out and do not curve down too much—in other words, in a way that will not send the water dripping down upon the hat brim. In fact, extra large umbrellas are essential so long as these large hats remain fashionable.

WHAT becomes of the lost pins in the world has been a question of the ages, but where the numbers of lost pocket handkerchiefs go is a problem almost as mysterious. In the case of the latter, however, it will be found that if one is willing to take the trouble of keeping a special handkerchief bag in which each soiled handkerchief is placed and on Monday mornings, when this bag is sent below stairs, a slip of paper is pinned to it with the number of handkerchiefs enclosed carefully written out, invariably the same number will returned. Even if one or two chance to be missing then investigation will often discover that they have been mislaid somewhere in the mysterious regions of the laundry and they will be quickly returned.

Naturally a girl likes to have every detail of her dress as nearly perfect as possible, and a coarse pocket handkerchief is extremely ugly, but if she will take this little extra precaution there is no reason why the finest linen should not be carried every day.

A pretty handkerchief bag can be made by joining with fine lace insertion four tiny French glove handkerchiefs and then cutting button holes, through which ribbon can be run, the four corners of the handkerchiefs being left to form a ruffle effect at the top. The ribbon can be easily taken out and the bag itself laundered whenever desired.

A TABLE placed beside the bed is the greatest comfort and convenience imaginable, but of course not every room is sufficiently large nor can be so arranged as to make this possible. In the latter case it is an excellent plan to purchase as small a folding table as possible, buying it in cheap wood if necessary, and paint it over with white enamel. The top of the table should then be covered with a pretty chints, felt or silk, which is tacked on firmly all around the edge with brass headed nails. This table can be opened out and placed beside the bed each night to hold such books as may be desired and a candle or portable electric light. During the day the books will stand on their shelf or desk; the lamp or candle wherever it may be most convenient and the space of the table be free.

Unless the table or stand is of especially handsome wood the cover is now generally attached firmly to the top instead of being left loose to fall off or drag down at one end on the least provocation. In a city, where dust collects so quickly, it is well to make one or two fine lawn or dimity covers that may be taken off every few days if necessary and washed. In this case the under cover should be of a fairly deep shade of pink or blue sateen or silk, so that it will show through prettily. In putting on the cover the rough edge of the material should, of course, be turned in beneath the tacks, while a band of ribbon or of braid will give a more finished look to the table.

FOR everyday wear silver hatpins are very popular. They are in many shapes, some having long pentagonal or octagonal heads, others round and flat, others in cubic form, &c. Most attractive are those with chased designs. There are also many of these silver pins set with stones, round jade, cornelian, coral and lapis lazuli settings being the most attractive. Among the handsomer pins there are beautiful jewelled heads, very large, and many of them set with pearls or pearl matrix, surrounded by several rows of brilliants. Colored stones are set in the same manner, so that the metal does not show at all. The flattened hemisphere seems to be the most popular in these handsome pins.

Practical Fancy Work for the Girl Who Sews

THIS is the harvest time of the year for the girl who can combine with a certain adroitness with her needle just a little ingenuity. From stray scraps of velvet and brocade, chints and fine muslin left by the upholsterers and decorators who have been getting the house in winter trim, quite wonderful things can be made. Christmas gifts costing the maker nothing at all yet which will be most welcome presents can now be turned out in great number, while from odd left over pieces of curtain or chair covering can be evolved any number of ingenious ornaments for the room which that particular hanging adorns.

Silver and heavy French gilt and bronze picture frames are, for example, decidedly fashionable at present, yet no matter how heavy or costly the frame it will be no ornament if the velvet back has worn shabby or even if the material is of a color that does not harmonize with the rest of the room. Fortunately it is really a simple matter to re-cover the back of any picture frame, for it will be noticed that the silver or metal part is attached by tiny nails or screws which are easily removed, while if it is carefully noted just how each part is put together and then that part re-covered before another section is attempted the whole will be quickly accomplished. Dextine is the best glue to use, since, when thoroughly brushed off after it has dried and hardened, it leaves no stain on even the most delicate texture.

In the same way silver jewel boxes and pin cushions can be re-covered or relined with a desired color and the dressing table rendered doubly attractive.

It is generally more convenient to keep the bottle of talcum powder on the dressing table near at hand than out of reach on the washstand shelf, but in its ordinary tin case this would be out of the question. With a tiny bit of silk or brocade the width of the bottle, a pretty medallion or small French print and a few scraps or narrow gold braid or lace, the powder flask can be converted into a most charming little ornament. First the silk is stretched tightly about the bottle and sewed up so that the joining is as inconspicuous as possible. Next the picture is pasted on, framed with gold braid and a band of the braid basted or pasted at each end of the silk. As the top and the nozzle of these bottles are of gilt, the silk, if a pretty shade of du Barry pink or deep yellow, is especially pretty.

Practical Talks by the April Grandmother

"LONG before you are three decades old you will possess a sinewy, yellow throat unless you exercise the utmost care about keeping it round and white," warned the April Grandmother as she watched her eldest granddaughter test the effect of a Dutch collar. "There is a vast difference between a slender throat and a thin throat. A girl who is naturally nervous or who constantly allows herself to get over-fatigued is quite likely to become so thin that her neck will consist chiefly of bones and hollows, and in order to acquire a pretty, nerve-protecting plumpness she should adopt a diet of raw eggs, milk and fresh vegetables, especially celery and lettuce, which induce sleep.

"Beyond all else, the exceedingly slender girl should avoid cold baths, as these are tissue melting, and take her daily dips in tepid water, rubbing the neck with olive oil directly after the night ablutions and then drinking a generous glassful of warm, fresh milk.

"A fat throat is a tragedy," continued the April Grandmother with mock solemnity. "It is the forerunner of the duplex chin, the heavy jaw and the irregular facial outline. In fact, they are three of the salient indications of middle age—a period which the modern woman is learning to skip over so deftly that its appearance, at least, the intermediate state between girlhood and grandmotherhood will soon cease to exist.

"Because a stout throat decreases the apparent height and increases the apparent width of the figure the girl who desires to look willowy should eliminate sugary foods from her diet, do without tea, cocoa, coffee and water at meal time and withstand the temptations of the soda water fountains. She may, however, occasionally satisfy a craving for sweets by nibbling sunflina raisins or by lunching on ice cream instead of hot food. Water ices, which will lower the temperature at least ten degrees, help to reduce flesh and would best be substituted for candy, which has an evil trick of fattening the throat.

"Be careful to keep your head raised and slightly thrown back while you are writing," advised the April Grandmother, "for by drooping the chin over the desk even quite a young girl soon acquires a wrinkled neck. If a careless teacher has allowed you to form the habit of assuming an incorrect position the quickest method of obliterating incipient wrinkles is to dash the neck with cold water or rub it gently with cold cream—always applied with the palm of the hand.

Civic Enquiry at St. Kitts.

St. Catharines, Oct. 28.—A civic investigation opened yesterday morning before Judge Carman, and was adjourned for a week. The investigation was asked for by the City Council because Miles Plumley, a citizen, wrote two letters to the local newspapers, in which he made reflections on the council over the contract for paving Queenston street, in which he hinted at graft.

Missing Girl Is Found.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 28.—Florence Ferguson, the 12-year-old Toronto girl who was lost in St. Catharines Monday, returned to her uncle's home here yesterday. She has been staying at the home of a farmer between here and St. Catharines, according to her story, having been frightened by the hired man's boisterous conduct.

Husband's Suicide Follows Wife's.

Dalton, Mass., Oct. 28.—Unable to endure his bereavement, George Thompson, a Hartford, Conn., machinist, committed suicide by shooting yesterday, at the home of his wife's parents, where the body of Mrs. Thompson lay. Thompson's wife killed herself in Buffalo, N.Y., Tuesday because of ill-health.

MACEDONIAN MUST DIE.

Pavali Stefoff Found Guilty of Killing Compatriot.

Toronto, Oct. 28.—Pavali Stefoff is guilty of the murder of Vani Simoff and at 11 o'clock this morning was brought before Justice Riddell in the Criminal Assizes Court to receive the death sentence.

The verdict was returned at five o'clock yesterday afternoon, after an hour and forty minutes deliberations upon the evidence. Fifteen minutes before their final return the jury filed into the court to hear read that portion of the evidence as to the statement made by Stefoff to the police as to his actions on the day of his arrest.

The scene in the court-room was dramatic indeed. As the jury seated themselves the prisoner's eyes scanned the faces of the men who were so soon to decree his fate. As their finding was translated to him he shook his head in a dazed way, and murmured a barely audible "No."

A Frigid Lie.

London, Oct. 28.—Alexander Ure, Lord Advocate for Scotland, and as such a member of the Government, has fallen under the lash of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Balfour's ire for repeating the statement, after the Conservatives had given denial of it, that the payment of old age pensions would be cancelled if the Conservatives again came into power.

On Monday Mr. Balfour denounced the Lord Advocate's remarks as a "frigid, calculating lie," which amounted to a crime against the poor receiving pensions. By the course he had adopted, persistently and energetically, and with obvious design, he dishonored the legal profession, of which in Scotland he is the head. He dishonored his office and dishonored the country in which he was born.

Bye-Election In Essex.

Windsor, Oct. 28.—A lively contest is being waged for the Liberal nomination at the convention Saturday afternoon. The principal aspirants are: W. J. McKee, A. F. Healy and James Anderson, while J. A. Tremblay, of Tilbury, has many supporters. McKee is the recognized party candidate, but his selection is anything but assured. O. E. Fleming, who opposed Sutherland a year ago declares positively that he will not run, and does not expect the Conservatives will offer any opposition. Mayor Wigle, however, is being strongly urged to run. Oliver Wilcox of South Woodslee, is also being boomed, and seems to be the probable man in the event of contest.

Has a Bad Record.

Hamilton, Oct. 28.—"In Lupo you have one of the most desperate "black hand" criminals in this or any other country, and you are to be recommended for taking him into custody," wrote Police Marshal Farnan, Baltimore, to the local authorities concerning one of the "black hand" trio sentenced Tuesday under the name of Sam Wolfe, to ten years by Judge Snider. On a charge of conspiring to murder Joseph Georgia by blowing up his house with dynamite, he served 15 months. He was also indicted in Pittsburg for attempting to murder another merchant. When arrested he was residing on Church street, Niagara Falls.

Make Them Go to School.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—After generations of haphazard education there is now a move on foot for the introduction of compulsory attendance at school before the Catholic school board. At present there is no obligation to send children to school, and thousands of the children of the poorer classes never saw the inside of a school, and go to work as laborers without being able to read or write, and without any hope of raising in the social scale. The only restriction on the labor of children is that they must not be employed before fourteen years of age, but the law is not enforced.

Forty-One Lawyers In One Case.

New York, Oct. 28.—Forty-one lawyers, all connected with a single case, elbowed each other at the rail of the Supreme Court here yesterday as representatives of as many parties interested in a motion for the distribution of the $2,000,000 estate of the late Daniel C. Kingsland, a wealthy real estate man, who died here ten years ago. The estate is to be divided among the children of his sisters and brothers, but the distribution has been held up by litigation.

Badly Mauled In Fight.

Windsor, Oct. 28.—Henry Boismier was removed last night to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, suffering from injuries received in an altercation in a hotel in the village of Tecumseh.

Joseph Renaud was arrested as a result of Boismier's charges. Renaud is said to have knocked Boismier down and punished him to the great delight of a crowd who edged him on.

Boismier had his jaw broken and a scalp wound, and both eyes are closed.

Dreadnought Plans Stolen?

New York, Oct. 28.—The World prints the following London cable: A big sensation was created in political circles last night by a report that the plans of the last Dreadnought launched, which should have been returned to the Admiralty have disappeared. It is feared they have been sold to some foreign power, perhaps Germany. Naval Minister McKenna is to be questioned in the House of Commons on the subject Thursday.

For Photographing Bacilli.

Paris, Oct. 28.—Jean Comandon announced at the Academy of Sciences yesterday the discovery of a new method of photographing bacilli by the combined use of an ultra microscope and a cinematograph. The discovery is considered of first importance, opening as it does, a new field for the study of microbic action.

Scott's Emulsion

is the original—has been the standard for thirty-five years.

There are thousands of so-called "just as good" Emulsions, but they are not—they are simply imitations which are never as good as the original. They are like thin milk—SCOTT'S is thick like a heavy cream.

If you want it thin, do it yourself—with water—but don't buy it thin.

In New York election betting continues more inactive than in any municipal campaign in years. A few small bets that are being made continue to run on the basis of 2 to 1 on Gaynor against the field. Some money is being placed even that Hearst will have a plurality over Bannard.

To Abolish Salute.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 28.—The establishment of Feb. 17, the anniversary of the death of Miss Frances Willard, as a special memorial day, when contributions to the Frances Willard Memorial Fund are to be made, was the most notable work of the national W.C.T.U. yesterday.

It has also been decided to establish a printing plant, where the organization may do its own printing; to make an addition, valued at $10,000, to the Willard Rest Cottage at Evanston, Ill., and to abolish the "Chautauqua salute," the waving of handkerchiefs, for sanitary reasons.

The convention also adopted for suffrage work the motto "Woman's ballot for the King's business."

Land Sale Denied.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—Last evening D. McNicholl, vice-president of the C.P.R., said that he knew nothing of the story which originated in Wall street to the effect that the company had made a huge land sale in Alberta to an American syndicate.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the president, who is in Quebec, wires that the story is untrue.

The directors also declare that they are unaware of any such transaction.

The story was to the effect that 965,000 acres of irrigated lands had been sold to the syndicate, which had also an option on 2,000,000 acres more.

Says Father Murdered Mother.

Punxsutawney, Pa., Oct. 28.—Declaring to the district attorney that she was unable longer to keep the fact secret that her mother was murdered, and stating she was threatened with a similar fate if she did not keep silent, Mrs. John Kunzelman, living near here, has caused the arrest of her father, William Jones, who she declared upon oath, killed her mother a year ago. At that time a verdict of "death from unknown causes" was rendered.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—United States Markets Active and Generally Steady.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning, the offerings were 1600 cattle, 1000 sheep, 1236 lambs, 700 calves and 1000 hogs. The supplies of all lines of live stock, and especially cattle, were the largest this season to date at this market, and in consequence a weaker feeling prevailed in the latter, and prices declined ½c per lb. At this reduction the demand was good for all grades, owing to the fact that the attendance of buyers was very large; consequently, an active trade was done. A feature of the trade was the brisk demand from packers for canning stock, of which supplies were fairly large, and prices ruled lower than on Monday. Choice steers sold at 4¾c to 5c; good at 4¼c to 4½c; fair at 3¾c to 4c; good cows at 3½c to 4c; common at 3c to 3½c; bulls at 2½c to 3½c, and canners at 1½c to 1¾c per lb. There were also 75 milch cows offered, for which the demand is very good at present, and a brisk trade was done at prices ranging from $40 to $65, and in some instances as high as $80 to $85 was paid for extra choice ones.

Supplies of sheep and lambs were large, but, as the demand was active from local buyers, a steady feeling prevailed in the market, and prices show no change.

Lambs brought 5¾c to 6c, and sheep 3½c to 3¾c per lb. A weaker feeling developed in the market for calves on account of the increased supplies, and prices ruled lower at from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality. The market for hogs was strong, or under a good demand, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50 to $8.75 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, and in some cases as high as $9 was paid for extra choice lots.

At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market there were 700 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 175 calves. The bulk of the cattle consisted of northwestern ranchers, of which the quality was good, and in consequence there was a good demand for them. Sheep and lambs were steady, and hogs sold at $8.50 to $8.60 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

Something Better Now

There was a time when people were satisfied with any glasses with which they could read regardless of whether they were using one eye more than the other, knowing nothing of how the eyes were strained by wrong lens powers, and careless of the frame fitting the face. All this is changing now, a thorough examination by experienced men, lenses specially ground for each eye, and the neatest, most becoming mountings are now required by discriminating people who realize that nothing is too good for the eyes.

We make appointment for eye examination by our phones, Bell 1291, Mach. 7. It saves waiting your turn.

DROPPED DEAD WHEN ABOUT TO GET INTO BUGGY TO COME TO TOWN

Sudden Death of Mr. Ernest A. Hutchison of This City Last Evening---Had Been Working at Home of Mr. C. L. Hall on the Gravel Road---Succumbed to Heart Failure ---Funeral To-morrow at 3 o'clock.

With shocking suddenness came the death a few minutes before six o'clock last evening of Mr. Ernest A. Hutchison, 578 Stewart St. The deceased who was employed with his brother, Mr. Geo. Hutchison, as a tinsmith, had been working with his nephew, Mr. Harry Hutchison and Percy Pearse at the residence of Mr. C. L. Hall, about six miles out on the gravel road. They were about to start for the city, when without a moment's warning the late Mr. Hutchison dropped dead. His death was due to heart failure. The deceased was brought to town and his family was notified, the news of his death coming as a great shock to his relatives and friends.

The late Ernest Alfred Hutchison was thirty-nine years of age. He was born in Peterborough and was well known and highly respected. He was a member of the 24th Field Battery. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and three children, Marjorie, Kathleen and Jack, who have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad bereavement. His mother, two brothers and two sisters also survive him. The brothers are Messrs. George of this city and Joseph, of Lindsay. The sisters are Mrs. Stone, of London and Mrs. Fossy, of Chatham.

The late Mr. Hutchison was for seventeen years with the 14th Field Battery and was for four years Sergt.-Major in the 24th Field Battery. He was a capable and popular officer, and his death will be learned of with deep regret by his fellow comrades.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternon at 3 o'clock from the family residence, 578, Stewart St., to the Little Lake cemetery. It will be under military auspices.

Eight People Injured In An Explosion Of Benzine

From The Examiner's Own Correspondent, 2:45 p.m.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 28.—Eight men and boys were injured and several thousand dollars' damage done by a bensine explosion in the cleaning room of Parker's Dye Works, 791 Yonge street, shortly before eleven o'clock this morning. The wreckage was hurled through walls, ceiling, and roof. The injured are: Wm. North, Robert Higgins, Frank Palmer, Robert Harris, foreman; Fred Roberts, George Croft, J. Graham, Jimmie Totten.

Presentation Was Made To The Retiring Organist

On Monday evening of last week a number of the congregation of Fairview Methodist church, gathered at the home of Mrs. Hopkins, Smith, to bid farewell to her niece, Miss Perrin, the organist, who is leaving for a visit to her father in Saskatoon.

After spending a social time, Dr. Graham, President of the Epworth League, read the address and Mr. Elliott, superintendent of the Sabbath school, made the presentation of a pearl brooch and souvenir spoon.

The address follows:—

Miss Perrin and co-worker. It is with feelings of sincere regret that we, the members of Fairview Methodist church have learned of your proposed removal from our midst.

We do assure you that we have appreciated and will remember your services as organist of our church league and Sunday school.

We know that many times this must have meant inconvenience and self denial. While we cannot make a return for such service we do ask you to accept this little gift as a token of our goodwill and as something with which to remember the friends you are leaving behind you. Commending you to any with whom your lot may be cast and to the great Father of all that His presence may go with you and assuring you of our high esteem.

We bid you farewell, till we meet again. John Elliott, Cecil Graham, Mrs. Payne, Mrs. Rosborough.

Miss Perrin replied in a few well chosen words.

Ald. McGuire Of Toronto Was Highly Pleased With This City

The Toronto civic deputation that visited Peterborough yesterday returned by special train last night at 7.30 o'clock. They had a profitable and enjoyable time and the representatives of the C. G. E. Co. were more than successful in showing the visitors through the different departments of the local factory.

Ald. McGuire stated to an Examiner reporter that the trip had been much enjoyed. Toronto during the next few years will find it necessary to buy extensively steel and iron work. In fact it is estimated they will spend between two and three million dollars. The trip to Peterborough was for the purpose of giving the Toronto officials an idea of the C.G.E. Company's establishment. It is understood that the company will make an effort to secure large contracts from Toronto for the supply of steel and iron. Ald. McGuire was pleased with Peterborough and impressed with the air of prosperity that was apparent. He considered the C. G. E. works a splendid factory and one of the city's best assets.

After luncheon in the evening the visitors were entertained at the Peterborough club. Controller Ward made a brief speech, thanking the Peterborough officials and those who had assisted in making their trip so pleasant. He spoke on behalf of the party, referring to Peterborough's progressiveness and again expressed his appreciation of the cordial treatment extended them. Controller Hocken, Ald. McLean and others spoke briefly in the same strain.

McGill Graduate Burned By Short Circuit At C. G. E. Works

David Flemming, a young man employed in the Test Department of the C. G. E. works, met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon by a short circuit being formed after he had thrown in a particular switch. The resulting flash seriously burned both hands and arms, and the shock is said to have hurled him ten feet. He was removed to the Nicholls Hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance, and was attended by Dr. Young.

Wile the burns are not very deep, the flesh has been seared from finger tips to elbow on each arm. It is expected that he will be around again in a few weeks. Flemming, it is learned, is a McGill graduate in electrical engineering and is receiving practical experience in Peterborough.

NOTICE TO 24TH F.B.C.A.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIES AGAINST HER FATHER

Robinson Murder Trial Commences To-day in Toronto—Court Was Adjourned to the Hospital Where Ella Robinson's Testimony Was Heard.

INCRIMINATES FATHER

From The Examiner's Own Correspondent, 2.45 p.m.

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 28.—James Robinson, whose unnatural crimes shocked the whole country appeared for trial this morning before Mr. Justice Magee the charge being murder. It was pointed out by crown counsel, Mr. Cresswick, that while Robinson was not accused of actual killing of child, he aided and abetted his wife in the deed and urged her against her will, to put the child out of existence. Evidence of Ellen Robinson, his daughter, had to be taken in hospital, court being adjourned for purpose, and the girl's evidence heard there. She testified that after birth of child she heard her mother say, "I can't do it, Jimmie." Whereupon her father said, "You must do it, do with it as you did with the other," referring it is alleged to the child born to Jessie, another daughter.

STEFOFF TO HANG

From The Examiner's Own Correspondent, 2.45 p.m.

Toronto, Oct. 28, 09.

Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.—

Toronto, Ont., Oc t.28.—Poral Stefoff, the Macedonian found guilty of murdering a fellow countryman last April in a house on Eastern Ave., was this morning sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 21. The prisoner showed not the slightest sign of emotion on learning of his fate.

DANGEROUS DANDRUFF

Will Make Canada a Baldheaded Nation If Not Checked.

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said: "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

Wm. Madill guarantees it. It will stop itching scalp,, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning gray.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease stickiness. It is the favourite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of fascinating hair. A large bottle costs only 50 cents at leading druggists everywhere and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill. The girl with the auburn hair is on every package.

NEILL PARTY OFF TO THE WOODS

Rev. G. W. Henderson, J. D. Collins, Robt. Neill and Felix Brownscombe left yesterday for two weeks' hunting trip in the Parry Sound district. They were joined by Mr. Gregory, of Lindsay, and the party will be further increased by gentlemen from other towns. They travel by train to Parry Sound and have a fifty mile journey over a rough road until they reach their destination.

OBITUARY

GEORGE GRIFFITH.

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon at half-past four of George Griffith. The deceased had only been ill since last Friday. He was suffering from pneumonia. The late Mr. Griffith was 27 years of age and was a native of Manchester, England. He had been out here three years. He returned to England last year on a visit to his home. He worked at the C. G. RAZING OLD G.T.R. SHEDS Building Used as Shop for Blacksmiths and Carpenters Is Being Dismantled—Has Been Out of Use for Many Years.

TO UTILIZE YARD

The old blacksmith and carpenter shops on Sherbrooke St., in the G.T.R. yards are being dismantled after a number of years out of use. They were purposed for the stuff of carpenters and blacksmiths who were engaged in general work on the line in Peterborough's vicinity, repairing switches, etc. For a number of years the building has been used as a storehouse for grain, but officials of the G.T.R. have regarded it as an eye sore of late and ordered it to be removed. It is not known what will be done with that part of the yard. The local representatives are not in a position to state whether the new space has been disposed of or not.

Mr. T. Rehill purchased one part of the building and had it moved to the property he had leased on Townsent St., near Spaulding's Bay. Mr. Allan McCarthy who had the contract carried out the work with customary despatch. The wires along Aylmer St. are in many cases too low, he states, and frequently hampered his progress.

SHOT HIMSELF IN THE HAND

Ben Oakman of Asphodel Met With Slight Accident.

While handling a shot gun on Saturday Mr. Ben. Oakman, son of Mr. Oakman of Asphodel, shot himself in the hand between the thumb and forefinger. The charge did not go deep into the hand, but gouged out a piece of flesh in passing. Mr. Oakman picked the powder out with his pocket knife an dthen came into town and had the dressing completed.—Hastings Star.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS' TEA ROOMS NOW OPEN

The comfortable and centrally situated tea rooms conducted under the auspices of the King's Daughters are now open in the afternoons from four to six. The rooms are admirably adapted to their purposes and situated in the buildings formerly occupied by Richard Hall & Sons, Simcoe St Being situated in the heart of the business section, they are easily accessible by, and a favourite resort for ladies when they are "down town" after the fatigues of shopping. They present an opportunity for the enjoyment of social chat, exchange of housekeeping ideas during the discussion of a delicious cup of tea and the nibbling of light refreshments. Admirably conducted as they are the tea rooms should form an important and delightful social exchange and a welcome and comfortable place of rest. The rooms are open from four to six in the afternoon, and the comforts they provide will be better appreciated when they are considered as means of enlarging the capacity of the King's Daughters for carrying on the splendid charitable work to which they give earnest effort during the winter.

$200,000 IN NEW HOUSES

ALL OF BETTER QUALITY

At least 125 new residences were, or are being, erected in Peterborough this year. These represent a total of practically $200,000. Exclusive of several thousand dollars spent on repairs, alterations and enlargements.

During the summer and at the present time several hundred carpenters, masons, lathers, plasterers, painters and decorators have been given steady employment and the work will be continued for several weeks yet.

The class of houses erected are good Practically all are brick or brick veneer, and cost from $1,000 to $4,000 each, with a very few below $1,000. The general run was from $1,500 to $2,500. In nearly all of them modern conveniences have been installed so that they will rent in the neighbourhood of $14 to $18 per month. A very large number of the houses were built, however, as homes for the owners and are not on the market for sale or to rent.

SAYS A MAN CANNOT BE AN ATHLETE AND DECENT MAN

Speaker at the Ontario Sunday School Convention Emphatically Condemns Athletics--Lowers the Tone of the Sunday School, He Says.

"A man cannot be an athlete and a decent man."

With these words did Mr. J. M. Robinson, of Hamilton, condemn the encouragement and organization of athletic societies in and by Sunday schools. He was addressing an audience composed largely of young lady teachers, at the Ontario Sunday School Association convention to-day in Annette street Baptist church.

"The minute we admit the athletic spirit to enter our Sunday school we lower the moral tone of the institution right away," he went on."

"Remember that I make a distinction between athletics and physical culture. I believe in the courses of physical culture given by our Public school teachers and in our Y.M.C.A. gymnasiums. But I have seen so many young fellows dragged into the mire through participation in these athletic games, that I am convinced that our Sunday schools have no business with them whatever."—Toronto Star.

The Orangemen Of Dummer Have Enthusiastic Meeting

Dummer, Oct. 27.—A most enthusiastic meeting was held at Dummer Zion Methodist church last night, under the auspices of L. O. L., No. 281. The church was well filled, among whom were a party including Messrs. Jos. Batten, Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller, R. N. Hopkins, A. F. Jackson and N. A. Howard-Moore from Peterborough; Messrs. D. Andrew, sr. and Mr. Andrew, jr., Norwood, Rev. Dr. Marion, of Warsaw, and Rev. C. R. Spencer, of Young's Point, were among the speakers, who gave short addresses. As a chairman, Mr. Jos. Batten, excelled, and the programme, which is given below, was interspersed with short and witty speeches from the chairman who certainly had the knack of keeping his hearers in good humour. Rev. C. R. Spencer referred to the Orange Association in glowing terms as an association of equal righters who wanted to see all Roman Catholics and Protestants get what was due them, but no special privileges to any. He emphasized the fact that a true Orangemen sworn to loyalty to the teachings of the Bible and to the British constitution, to each other and his neighbour, made the better citizen.

Mr. David Andrew also thought that men were better for being Orangemen if they were true to their obligations. Lt.-Col. Miller emphasized the fact that our influence against corruption would tend to lessen it.

Mr. N. A. Howard Moore gave a brief history of the protesting of the Protestant church in England from 60 A.D. to the reformation, and showed conclusively that there was a Protestant church ever since.

Rev. Dr. Marvin gave an address worthy of the genial doctor on "Some results of the Battle of the Boyne," and it was listened to with rapt attention throughout.

The balance of the programme was furnished by local talent and friends from Warsaw and Norwood. Mrs. Ross, of Norwood, and Mrs Hamlin, of Dummer, gave excellent solos, Mr. J. Anderson recited "Jimmy Butler and the Owl" in true Irish style, Masters W. Clemmehs recited, and Mr. R. Kidd sang "My Bonnie Jean." The choir gave several musical and vocal selections and received its just mead of praise. At the close of the programme a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the visitors and the choir.

2 PEOPLE BURNED

Fire Spread With Lightning-Like Rapidity in a New York Tenement.

MANY WERE RESCUED

Special to The Examiner.

New York, Oct. 28. — Two persons were burned to death and sixteen others were injured in a fatality which spread with lightning-like rapidity, in the three-storey buildings at Nos. 203 and 205 East 15th street, early to-day. The police declare that the fire was of incendiary origin, and are making every effort to capture the culprit. More than twenty persons were rescued by firemen and policemen who risked their lives in climbing ladders, which were practically enveloped in flames and carried to the street the helpless occupants of the house.

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But it Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich

WAS ACCIDENTAL

Such is the Verdict of Coroner's Jury in Case of Man Found in River.

From The Examiner's Own Correspondent.

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 28.—The verdict of accidental drowning was returned by a coroners' jury in case of Martin Boyd, whose body was found in the river last Sunday. Boyd had been drinking heavily.

FINE TRAVEL PICTURE AT THE CRYSTAL

An exceptionally fine film is being shown at the Crystal theaturium today. It is a travel picture, depicting a trip to Yosemite Valley in California. It takes one over the entire route to this beautiful place illustrating the wonderful beauties of nature. The scenes are unsurpassed for rare magnificence and cannot fail to please and interest everyone.

Another interesting picture is J. Fenimore Cooper's story of "Leather Stocking" or "The last of the Mohicans."

FEARED PARALYSIS

Mr. F. A. Kruta, Schwarta, Que., writes, "For one year I was a complete nervous wreck, could not rest or sleep, had indigestion and terrible headaches and constantly feared paralysis. Six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food made me well and strong. There is no treatment in the world so good as this for building up the nervous system."

CONFIRMATION SUNDAY

His Lordship, the Bishop of Toronto, Will Administer the Rites.

MAY BE RETALIATION.

Mr. John Norris, chairman of the committee on paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, is a severe critic, not only of the American paper duties, but of the American tariff as a whole, and the attitude of the tariff makers toward Canada. In an article in the Editorial Review for November Mr. Norris predicts a tariff war between Canada and the United States. He shows that the placing of retaliatory duties on print paper and mechanically ground pulp has stiffened the backs of those who desire to have Canadian wood converted into paper in Canada.

He declares that on 31st March next there will come into force the Payne law imposing 25 per cent. ad valorem duty, or 10½ million dollars additional duty on 42 million dollars' worth of dutiable imports to the United States from the leading provinces of Canada. To this Canada may reply by applying its Surtax Act of 1903, adding one-third to duties on articles from any country which discriminates against Canada. This is equivalent to an addition of 7½ million dollars duty on articles sent from the United States to Canada.

Some years ago Germany imposed her maximum against Canada, upon the ground that the preferential tariff was a discrimination against Germany. Canada declared that the preferential tariff was a family affair, and she met Germany by imposing the surtax of one-third on German imports. German agents are now in Canada, admitting that Germany made a mistake, but declaring that so great and powerful a nation as Germany cannot draw back when she does wrong—a singular manifestation of national pride.

In an article in the Boston Transcript Mr. E. W. Thomson, a well known writer on Canadian affairs, says that if the maximum American tariff is imposed against Canada, the Dominion Government will probably readjust the Canadian tariff, admitting raw material free, or at low rates of duty, and imposing stiffer duties on manufactures such as cotton fabrics, boots and shoes, machinery, etc. "The latter would, no doubt, be hit hard, since Canadian public spirit, being incited by Washington aggression, would stand by such action of Ottawa. Indeed, some lines of United States goods might be quite excluded, not directly, but by the application of a surtax, as in the German case."

A very appropriate reply to the maximum tariff, if imposed, would be an increase in the British preference, at least upon certain lines of goods. The British preference was enacted partly in recognition of the difference between the free market of Great Britain and the high tariff of the United States. If the American tariff is to be made still higher, it might be well to make the British preference still more emphatic.

MAIL MISREPRESENTATION.

Any one desiring an illustrative definition of an euphemism has it the fact of calling political statements by the Mail and Empire, misrepresentations. Why, the Mail persists in destroying utterly, its reputation for veracity is a mystery, unless we regard the practice of misrepresentation a last resort. The generally impregnable character of the record of the Liberal Government affords little ground and scope for fair criticism, and it is to be added that as Mr. Borden himself admits the Conservative party has no policy. Speaking at Halifax he stated that he prepared a platform of his own, which had not been ratified by the party as a whole, but which was condemned by the people on Oct. 26th, 1908. The position being thus, the inference is suggested that the Mail and Empire, in default of making headway by honest criticism of the Liberal policy, or advocacy of the non-existent Conservative policy, is compelled, to justify its existence as a party organ, to resort to flirtation with the facts. Invention is laid down as a foundation for invective. The latest concrete example may be submitted:

The Mail and Empire, not content with circulating what purported to be an interview between Mr. R. L. Borden and its Ottawa correspondent, which interview was promptly repudiated by Mr. Borden, proceeds to inform its readers upon alleged matters of Dominion policy, emanating from the same source. In its issue of October 19, the Mail prints an article from its Ottawa correspondent which has not a shred of fact or truth upon which to rest, an article purely imaginary from the first word to the last. Among other things this article says:

The proposed naval programme is sowing dissension among the Liberals. Revolt in Quebec has been prevented by the prospect of large expenditures in that province.

Announcement that a large dry-dock and big shipyard are to be located at Levis.

Promise that $18,000,000 should be advanced by the Dominion Government to the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal.

That strong remonstrances by cable had been received by Hon. Mr. Fielding, Finance Minister, from British financiers, who are alarmed at the extravagance of the Dominion Government.

That British Columbian Liberals are demanding at least one half of the fleet shall be built on the Pacific coast, n default of which they will antagonize the Government's policy in case the bulk of the expenditures are to be confined to Quebec and New Brunswick.

That St. John, N.B., had been selected as one of the great centres of expenditure.

That some Government supporters are saying that the preference shown to New Brunswick is the logical result of last elections, because Hon. Dr. Pugsley came to Ottawa with a big support behind him, while Nova Scotia is neglected because Mr. R. L. Borden and other Conservatives were returned.

The above contains the pith of the article, which had its origin in the imagination of the man who wrote it. This may be regarded as a good sample of the vicious yellow journalism of the Mail, as evidence of the unreliable character of what purports to be political news and fact published by that paper. Stuff of this kind seems to be manufactured for party purposes. The fact that there is no truth in it, no foundation for it, nothing in it, nothing whatever to warrant it, makes no difference. One has only to remember that a programme cannot cause dissension until the particulars of it are known; and the naval programme of the Government will not be known until it is submitted to Parliament. The story of promises to Quebec, to prevent revolt, is farcical. There being no decision as to the location of dry docks or ship-building yards, there can be no complaints from any parts of the Dominion that they have been passed over. The most vicious portion of the article is that which refers to an alleged loan by the Government to the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal of $18,000,000, and an alleged cable from British financiers complaining of extravagance. The Mail reaches the limit of reckless and misleading circulation of alleged fact when it says:

"During the past few days, however, there has been an official denial of the big loan to the Montreal Harbour Commissioners, prompted by Mr. Fielding, who received strong remonstrance by cable from British financiers, who are alarmed at the extravagance of the Dominion Government."

The average man reading the above statement would assume that in consequence of cables from England, complaining of extravagance Mr. Fielding had denied any intention of making the loan. The facts are simple. An absurd rumour was circulated to the effect that the Government intends making a loan of $18,000,000 to the Montreal Harbour Commissioners. This rumour had no foundation in fact. Mr. Fielding did not wait to hear any complaints from any source, he gave an emphatic denial to the rumour. No member of the Government ever authorized such a statement, it was false and malicious and placed in circulation for the express purpose of injuring the Government.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

"Man's inhumanity to man, makes countless thousands mourn," but man's inhumanity to dumb animals is worse. It is not only cruel but cowardly. Man, even the weakest, is capable of resistance, of seeking some penalty, if not relief; man can think, can tell of the injustice to which he may be subjected, but the dumb animal has to suffer in silence and cannot reason or realize that if in many cases, it put forth its strength, it could crush its oppressor. If a horse, beaten and abused by some physically weak degenerate, knew enough, it might easily have its revenge. But he knows no better than to suffer dumbly. And no one can estimate the aggregate of suffering inflicted upon animals in one day in a city even of this size. Horses, underfed, badly stalled, overworked, beaten, have daily to do their work, they cannot tell if they are ill and unfit for work. They must fill their task must furnish their "tale of bricks", and if physically unfit must be forced to it by brutality. When we see these things we must see the necessity of concerted measures to prevent the cruelty daily enacted amongst us. Having this in mind, and with a view to informing the public, the following sent out by the managing director of the Toronto Humane Society, is printed:—

There sems to be a large amount of ignorance as to what the law, regarding cruelty to horses and other animals, is, and this letter is sent out in the hope that a better understanding of that law may result and court proceedings prevented. We believe that every man who handles horses, using them for this purpose, knows when he is treating them properly, or in any wrong manner, no matter whether he has seen, or has not seen, the law on the subject. Here is the law:—Criminal Code, Section 512.

"Every one is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction before two justices of the peace, to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, or to three months' imprisonment with or without hard labour, or both, who (a) wantonly, cruelly or unnecessarily beats, binds, ill-treats abuses, over drives or tortures any cattle poultry, dogs domestic anibird in a state of captivity; or bird in a state o feaptivity; or (b) while driving any cattle or other animal is, by negligence or ill-usage in the driving thereof, the means whereby any mischief, damage or injury is done by any such cattle or other animal; or (c) in any manner encourages, aids or assists at the fighting or baiting of any bull, bear, badger, dog, cock or other kind of animal whether of domestic or wild nature."—R.S.C., chapter 172, S. 2.

It is passing strange that many a man, good in many ways, is often exceedingly cruel when the care of his animals is concerned. Not long ago I visited a man who was reported to be very cruel to his horses, working them when they had bad sores on their shoulders. He said to me, "What am I to do when the rush comes on," If that man had sores on his shoulders, or on any portion of his body, what would he do? Lay off, of course. Such a man must know, and if he does not know he must be taught, that, when he works an animal in such condition, he is breaking the law of the land and the higher moral obligations which govern every man's relation to the dumb part of creation.

It must be understood that, while the Toronto Humane Society works, first of all, for the well-being of dumb animals within the City of Toronto, no report of any cruelty received from any portion of the Province will be allowed to lie uninvestigated, if it is at all possible to make that investigation. We desire to be friends with all men, but the man who is cruel, who cannot be reached by advice or warning, will find that there is the power of the law for the protection of these animals.

The Toronto Humane Society is doin a large amount of educational work throughout the Province, and any donations to its funds will be thankfully received. All communications should be sent to the undersigned, who will acknowledge the same.

P. C. LAVERTON HARRIS,
Managing Director.

The next best thing to contributing to the funds of the Royal Humane Society would be the taking of steps to organize a similar society in Peterborough.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Canadian jury is on trial. How a jury could bring in such a verdict as manslaughter in the case of Mrs. Turner, the infanticide, is known only to the jurors themselves. To call the issue of the trial a miscarriage of justice might subject one to penalty for contempt of court. Some think that a charge of contempt of justice would reasonably lie. However, is the jury in the cases cited to be charged with undue leniency any more than the judge who imposed a sentence of fifteen years imprisonment for the crime of manslaughter, a crime, to the lay mind rendered more heinous from its being committed for money gain upon an infant incapable of self defence or resistance?

GEO. ROBINSON,
Of the Otonabee A. C., winner of fourth prize in the Senior Race.

SIMPSON MAY HOOK UP WITH SELLEN AT BROCK STREET RINK

There is a possibility of local people being given an opportunity to see a professional race in the near future. Fred Simpson of Hiawatha and Percy Sellen, the former Irish Canadian star amateur, and now a pro., are after each other's scalp, and will likely hook up at ten miles before long. Both are anxious for the meeting, and each is confident that he can take the measure of the other. Simpson is very anxious to have the race take place here and a week from Saturday night is spoken of as the date. The contest will take place in the Brock Street Roller Rink, if it is run here. The rink will be an ideal place for such a contest, as a good track can be marked out, and there is plenty of seating accommodation. A race between Simpson and Sellen would attract a big crowd.

EDMONTON HOCKEY CLUB HAS CHALLENGED FOR STANLEY CUP

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The Edmonton Hockey Club, which gave the Montreal Wanderers a close run in the first of their Stanley Cup games last year, and which defeated the Wanderers in the second, has again challenged for the famous piece of silverware. Their challenge came to the trustees, Messrs. P. D. Ross and Wm. Foran, to-day, the Alberta champions requesting that they be given dates in January or February next with the Ottawas. They promise to send down the strongest septet ever sent out from the West in search of the trophy. Fred Whitcroft is again managing the team and expects to have nearly all of last year's players.

The Edmonton challenge is the sixth received. The Winnipeg Strathconas, champions of the Manitoba League; Renfrew, champions of the Federal; Cobalt, champions of the Temiskaming, and Galt, champions of the Ontario Pro League, challenged last season, while the Nelson challenge has been forwarded by Lester Patrick. Winnipeg has first call and will be given dates in December. The other challenges are yet to be considered by the trustees, but it is considered doubtful if they will be accepted, as the trustees have ruled firmly against the clubs scouring the country for players. If al the challenges are accepted there will be a harvest for professional players to reap. The trustees are preparing their new rules and will not announce their decisions in any of the challenges for a few days.

In the meantime the Ottawa Hockey Club, holders of the Stanley Cup, sits pat and tells the trustees to send along all the challengers that want to play for the mug. There will be a fortune in it for the local club if three or four of the challenges are accepted. The Nelson team has a good chance of getting dates, as Lester Patrick guarantees to select none but players now residing in British Columbia.

A POWERFUL AND EFFECTIVE CURE

JUNIORS HAVE HARD GAME

Next Lindsay on Their Own Grounds on Saturday Afternoon.

Peterborough's O. R. F. U. Juniors have a hard game before them on Saturday when they tackle the Scugog team on their own grounds. Lindsay is confident of overcoming the four-point lead that the locals set up here on Monday, and of winning by a margin large enough to give them the district. On the other hand the local youngsters are confident that they will beat Byron Green's outfit. It looks like an even-money battle, and Scugog people will see a great game of Rugby as the teams are very evenly matched.

Talking about matched races, a three-cornered battle at ten miles between the three Indian runners of Peterborough county, Willie Parker and Hanlon Howard of Hiawatha, and Albert Smoke, of Chemong, the winner of the Examiner senior race, on Monday, should be just about the classiest contest that could be arranged. All three are anxious for such a race, and, of course, each thinks that he would have no trouble in tying up the others. It is understood that arrangements are being made to bring the three Indians together.

RUGBY

The Tigers have prevailed upon Davy Tope, the late crack Full Back of the amber and black, to turn out again this season notwithstanding he had intimated that his recent marriage would necessitate his retiring. On Saturday Montreal and Tiger teams lined up before Mr. and Mrs. Tope in the grand stand and gave them three cheers. This was a preliminary to an artfully conducted campaign to get the speedy Davy back into the Tiger fold. Several eloquent members of the Hamilton Executive pointed out to Mrs. Tope how badly her hubby was needed, and she assured them that she would do all in her power to get him to turn out again, as she expressed it, "in Hamilton's time of need." After this it was plain sailing, and Tope rescinded his resignation and promised to attend the practices. Attempts will be made to get him into form for the game with Montreal next Saturday. The game with Montreal on Monday was to have been Moore's last appearance, but the urgency of need of his team has induced him to reconsider his decision. Simpson was criticised for his showing in the Montreal-Tiger game, but in reality he should have been highly commended for pluck. He wrenched his shoulder last week at practice and his doctor ordered him to keep out of the game. Patriotism caused him to disobey the medical man. He, however, took no chances and his caution was interpreted as a sign that he had gone back.

Football enthusiasts seem to think that the Varsity team this year is stronger than Casey Baldwin's 1905 team, which won the Canadian championship.

Rugby teams past and present are difficult to compare.. Casey Baldwin's team, for instance had size as well as weight and speed. You recall Jack McInnes at right half one of the speediest men behind the line that ever played in Canada. Gordon Southam was at full-back, and Dr. A. W. McPherson was at full-back, with Casey, of immortal memory, in centre. Ray Montague, with the pictu resque knickerbockers, was the quarter-back; Jack Lash and Babe Reynolds, outside wings; Ken. Ross and Paddy Burns, middle wings; Dr. Whit Lailey and Alex. Davidson, inside wings; and Frank Burnham, Alex Johnston, and (look who's here) Hugh Ritchie, in the scrimmage. Ritchie is the only one left of the original team, and is much improved over the form he displayed in that memorable game with Ottawa at Rosedale.

Even the admirers of the present team will admit that Casey's team had some class and a peerless leader. The 1909 team might help that airship along if they repeat and win the Canadian championship. Football has always been Casey Baldwin's greatest inspiration.

game for the Ontario Intermediate football championship, game called for 2 p.m. sharp. Brussels were to have played the game on Oct. 15th, but failed to appear, and now the Ontario Association have ordered Brussels to come to Havelock on Friday, 29th inst., and play the game. This contest will be one well worth attending and a large crowd is expected to witness the event. The citizens band will be in attendance, and all business places closed during the game.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Scotty McWhirter of the old Victorias, has turned out to practice with Parkdale, and will be in the game Saturday against T. A. A. C. at Diamond Park in the senior O. R. F. U. series. This game is arousing a lot of interest in the west end. Before T. A. A. C. strengthened up the Parkdale boys were laying plans for Dominion honours, but now they will have to beat T. A. A. C. to win the senior O. R. F. U., and this looks no easy task. Both teams are evenly matched, and as there is a lot at stake the game Saturday should be a corker. Good police protection will be provided, and they will see that nobody but the players and officials are allowed on the field.

RUNNING

There is deep gloom among the village sports in Hamilton, Ont., and the knowing ones who "made book" on the Herald Road Race are gazing dolefully at large punctures in their bank rolls. And while in Beaverton sundry yonng men are exhibiting fat rolls of currency and gleefully telling how it all happened.

One short year ago Beaverton, in a body, engaged a special train and swooped down on Hamilton with a running wonder who was a world beater. They took along their entire summer's wages, and on the way down a lightning calculator figured that the money placed at the prevailing odds would give them just $17,000 to take back to the Scotch village.

But alas and alack! For when they reached the foot of the mountain they found that a tip had preceded them, and that Jimmie George had been wiped off the slate. They couldn't get up a dollar, and in their despair they almost "scratched" their man. But wiser counsel prevailed, and they let him start. He was never better than third, and was worse than fifth

GARNET TOVEY,
Second in The Examiner Junior Race. He was second also the year before up till the eighteenth mile, when his mentor and guide loaded him into a buggy, drove him to the hotel and then to his own stable in Beaverton. All the sporting world, and the greater part of Beaverton were led to believe he was simply another busted phenom.

All year Jimmie toiled in the village barber shop, and gathered wisdom from the local wits who laughed long and loud because he kept right on running. Two weeks ago the man who loaded him into the buggy at Hamilton brought him down to the Ward Marathon, where he said nothing, and ran a careful twelfth. And the plant was all loaded for those guileless Hamilton bookies.

He went to Hamilton without any special train this time. The odds were 7 to 1 against him, and the few "in the know" went to him strong. Then Jimmie George, still as silent as only an Indian can be, jogged out in front, and never quit jogging till he passed the winning post nearly half a mile in front of his nearest competitor. Then the Scotchmen indulged in their favourite amusement of collecting money.—Toronto Telegram.

The Meadows-Sellen ten-mile race at Galt, scheduled for the holiday night was declared off. Meadows wanted a banked track to run on. The pro. game is already stirring. Red Hawk, the Mississauga Indian, is after Fred Simpson's scalp. Simpson defeated Red Hawk at 12 miles this summer and Red Hawk won at ten miles. Red Hawk wants to run Simpson fifteen miles indoors here.—Toronto Star.

BASEBALL

The Brantford Expositor says of the good work of Dubbie Shea in the Inter-City League: Dubby Shea probably did more timely hitting and ran bases better than any man with the Windmillers during the last seven games. It was Shea's three-bagger that broke up Saturday's game, sending three runners across the plate. That made the third straight pinch hit for Shea in Hamilton, two of the other victories being due to his terrific wallops at the right time. Both at the bat and at shortstop, Shea proved a brainy player, and is undoubtedly ready for better company.

A POWERFUL AND EFFECTIVE CURE

For Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Asthma.

Soothing Balsams Are Carried to the Sore, Congested Membranes — Cure Quickly and Completely.

Diseases of the breathing organs are, as you know, excited by germs so minute that only the microscope can reveal them; they are lodged in the tissues, develop there, and cause all the trouble. That is how consumption starts.

If the cause of the disease can be carried by air, why not the remedy? This conclusion lies at the root of the Catarrhozone treatment. The instrument through which you breathe fragrant, healing Catarrhozone spits up into minute particles this invaluable healing and curative agent, thereby enabling the air to carry it to the remotest ramifications of the breathing organs, and diffuses itself over their entire surfaces.

CATARRHOZONE ALWAYS CURES.

It would be absolutely impossible to breathe through a catarrhozone inhaler without carrying this liquid to the remotest parts of the breathing apparatus. Upon healthy tissue it has no action, but upon diseased tissue and upon the micro-organisms which infect diseased tissues its action is so wonderfully curative that the disease is completely abolished. Then the tissue heals.

EARLY TREATMENT IS WISE.

Catarrhozone is an ideal remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. If you have catarrh, or bronchitis, or asthma, all are equally curable by Catarrhozone. These diseases are all modifications of an inflammatory condition of the lining membranes of the throat and nasal passages. Under these conditions we call it catarrh. When it extends to the bronchial tubes, we call it bronchitis. The condition is the same, the causes which produce the diseases are identical, and the remedy, Catarrhozone, acts equally promptly and efficiently upon the different forms of this disease. Your case is curable. Get Catarrhozone to-day; two months' treatment (guaranteed) price $1; small size 50c. Sold by all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

McPherson was at full-back, with Casey, of immortal memory, in centre. Ray Montague, with the picturesque knickerbockers, was the quarter-back; Jack Lash and Babe Reynolds, outside wings; Ken. Ross and Paddy Burns, middle wings; Dr. Whit Lailey and Alex. Davidson, inside wings; and Frank Burnham, Alex Johnston, and (look who's here) Hugh Ritchie, in the scrimmage. Ritchie is the only one left of the original team, and is much improved over the form he displayed in that memorable game with Ottawa at Rosedale.

Even the admirers of the present team will admit that Casey's team had some class and a peerless leader. The 1909 team might help that airship along if they repeat and win the Canadian championship. Football has always been Casey Baldwin's greatest inspiration.

game for the Ontario Intermediate football championship, game called for 2 p.m. sharp. Brussels were to have played the game on Oct. 16th, but failed to appear, and now the Ontario Association have ordered Brussels to come to Havelock on Friday, 29th inst., and play the game. This contest will be one well worth attending and a large crowd is expected to witness the event. The citizens band will be in attendance, and all business places closed during the game.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Scotty McWhirter of the old Victorias, has turned out to practice with Parkdale, and will be in the game Saturday against T. A. A. C. at Diamond Park in the senior O. R. F. U. series. This game is arousing a lot of interest in the west end. Before T. A. A. C. strengthened up the Parkdale boys were laying plans for Dominion honours, but now they will have to beat T. A. A. C. to win the senior O. R. F. U., and this looks no easy task. Both teams are evenly matched, and as there is a lot at stake the game Saturday should be a corker. Good police protection will be provided, and they will see that nobody but the players and officials are allowed on the field.

RUNNING

There is deep gloom among the village sports in Hamilton, Ont., and the knowing ones who "made book" on the Herald Road Race are gazing dolefully at large punctures in their bank rolls. And while in Beaverton sundry young men are exhibiting fat rolls of currency and gleefully telling how it all happened.

One short year ago Beaverton, in a body, engaged a special train and swooped down on Hamilton with a running wonder who was a world beater. They took along their entire summer's wages, and on the way down a lightning calculator figured that the money placed at the prevailing odds would give them just $17,000 to take back to the Scotch village.

But alas and alack! For when they reached the foot of the mountain they found that a tip had preceded them, and that Jimmie George had been wiped off the slate. They couldn't get up a dollar, and in their despair they almost "scratched" their man. But wiser counsel prevailed, and they let him start. He was never better than third, and was worse than fifth up till the eighteenth mile, when his mentor and guide loaded him into a buggy, drove him to the hotel and then to his own stable in Beaverton. All the sporting world, and the greater part of Beaverton were led to believe he was simply another busted phenom.

All year Jimmie toiled in the village barber shop, and gathered wisdom from the local wits who laughed long and loud because he kept right on running. Two weeks ago the man who loaded him into the buggy at Hamilton brought him down to the Ward Marathon, where he said nothing, and ran a careful twelfth. And the plant was all loaded for those guileless Hamilton bookies.

He went to Hamilton without any special train this time. The odds were 7 to 1 against him, and the few "in the know" went to him strong. Then Jimmie George, still as silent as only an Indian can be, jogged out in front, and never quit jogging till he passed the winning post nearly half a mile in front of his nearest competitor. Then the Scotchmen indulged in their favourite amusement of collecting money.—Toronto Telegram.

BASEBALL

The Brantford Expositor says of the good work of Dubbie Shea in the Inter City League: Dubby Shea probably did more timely hitting and ran bases better than any man with the Windmillers during the last seven games. It was Shea's three-bagger that broke up Saturday's game, sending three runners across the plate. That made the third straight pinch hit for Shea in Hamilton, two of the other victories being due to his terrific wallops at the right time. Both at the bat and at shortstop, Shea proved a brainy player, and is undoubtedly ready for better company.

WOMEN'S WOES

Peterborough Women are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

THE DISCOVERY OF GOLD AT TORY HILL

Minden Echo Says Report is Well Founded —The Results of Assays are Encouraging.

We are assured that the reports of a find of precious metal near the railway, only three miles from Tory Hill, is no fake story by any means. A few gentlemen, satisfied that there were indications of a mining interest of great value, employed Mr. J. K. Sunstrome, of Detroit, paying him a high salary for his professional services, who, as a consulting engineer, thoroughly examined the holding, and who reports, from careful assays made, practically a whole hill worth $129 per ton. There are millions of tons of ore, and the richness seems to increase with the depth. From the examinations made, gold takes first place, being worth $65 a ton, followed by silver, oxide of iron and sulphur, the last named forming 52 per cent. of the whole, and being worth $8 a ton.

The parties interested are Messrs. Geo. A. Wintermute, of Sandwich, Ont., J. S. Austin, of Essex and Capt. Ross Anderson, of Tory Hill. These gentlemen, we understand, have already received offers for the ore and also for their interests, that may lead to the early development of the mines and create a new Gowganda or Cobalt in our midst. There are also copper and nickel in the neighbourhood, and 15 tons of mica have been shipped during the past three months.—Minden Echo.

THE DUTIES AND RIGHTS OF JURIES ACCORDING TO JUDGE

That Mr. Justice Riddell has some pretty strong opinions regarding the results of the Walter Blythe and Mabel Turner cases concluded in the Criminal Assizes last week, was pretty clearly indicated in his address to the jury in the Stefoff case this afternoon. His Lordship began his address by carefully laying down the law as to the duties of judges and juries.

"I cannot make laws," he declared, "but, neither can you. There is a proper method for you to have any particular law changed, which is through your representatives in Parliament; but so long as the law stands as it does, no judge or citizen has any right to modify it. I am anxious you should understand this, because judges have been blamed for their decisions.

"Now, the law is made for me, and it is made for you. Neither you nor I have any more right to alter them than has a minister the right to take the word 'not' out of any of the Ten Commandments.

"Never mind what my learned brother may or may not have told you before; I am the person to say what the law is in this case. If I am wrong in saying what is the law, then I should be tried by the proper tribunal.

"If I were trying this case on facts I might come to a decision in a very short time, but I am not the judge of facts, you are.

"Now, I am going to outline the salient points as they have been presented, but, remember, nothing I can say will take from you twelve men the responsibility of deciding on the facts."

Newspaper Criticism.

At this point his Lordship made a reference to some newspaper criticism of the recent trials which did not meet with his approval.

"I was shocked," said he, "to see in a certain paper the opinion expressed that juries may sometimes have the right to disregard their oaths. If so, then it is right to disregard his oath, and the witness have the right to disregard their oaths. I charge you, as a matter of law, that you have no more right to violate the oaths you have taken than I have to violate the oath I have taken. You have called on the Almighty to witness what you have sworn to. You must not regard public opinion. If you have heard anything other than what was told you in the witness box, cast it out of your minds. Also rid your mind of any thought of what the result of your verdict will be."

Rights of Police.

Reference was made to the evidence given by the police.

"There is altogether too much said of late regarding what is called the third degree," he declared. "The police have no right to torture any person, either physically or mentally, but they have a right to ask questions. What are the police for? Is there anything unreasonable in the police having asked these questions. Would you, as a jury of sensible men, be satisfied if they had not?"

THE VALUE OF TURPENTINE

When all else fails the physician recommends his wealthy patient to take a trip to the turpentine groves as a cure for throat and lung troubles. The turpentine of commerce cannot very well be used but by adding linseed Dr. Chase succeeded in getting up the most effetcive treatment for throat and lung troubles that was ever discovered. It is known as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

"GIRLS" COMING TO THE "GRAND"

The coming of Sam S. and Lee Shubert's production of Clyde Fitch's famous comedy, "Girls," will prove among the more important of the season's offerings. The date has been set for Wednesday evening, Nov. 3rd. "Girls" is a comedy dealing with the avowed intention of three girls to scorn the companionship of men in general, and in order to more fully demonstrate their ability to be independent, hire a studio, which serves as their living room. Everything goes well until one night when they are about to retire a man hurriedly enters, and despite the protests of the girls, announces his intention of remaining. He explains that his presence there is due to the fact that he was dining with a married woman, living in the building and her husband unexpectedly returned, making it necessary for him to make a hurried exit in order to save the woman's honour. The girls, not dressed to receive company, huddle together, and Pamela, the leader, is most vehement in her tirade against the intruder and all of his sex. Her two companions remain quiet, but bestow glances upon the visitor, which show he has their sympathy and the strength of the anti-man chief is weakning. From this time on the interest never lags, and the numerous and humorous characters that go to make up the big cast appear in rapid succession and laughs flow incessantly. "Girls" from every point of view will please the most sceptical theatregoer.

Mr. McIlroy, Peterboro's premier baritone, will sing Killarney at the 57th Regiment Band Concert, in the Armouries next Friday evening. 24-28

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

A PATRIARCH THESPIAN.

"By the way—Harry Lindley is in town. He looks just about as young as he did a hundred years ago. Away back in the 70's he used to do funny "stunts" at the Mechanics' Hall and the John street opera house In these days Harry used to write the criticisms of his own show for a certain newspaper. Sometimes he would give one or two of his actors "Hail Columbia," for their poor acting. Then in the afternoon he would take over a copy of the paper and read to them what the dramatic critic said. Then he stormed around that they would ruin the show with their wooden efforts at acting. Next morning Harry would have a good laugh, telling the newspapermen how he scared the members of his company with the newspaper report."—Hamilton Times.

Marguerite Clark, winsome and dainty, arrived in the city to-day for the production of "The Wishing Ring" to-night at the Grand. A special car of scenery is carried by the company and as all Shubert productions are well staged this will be no exception. It is said to even surpass "The Bachelor" in this respect.

LABOUR CONDITIONS HERE DURING MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

The Labour Gazette has the following report from its local correspondent Mr. J. A. Sharpe, of conditions in Peterborough during September:

Active conditions prevailed during September. The City Council have closed a contract with Conway Bros. to build a reinforced cement bridge on Smith street to be completed by Aug. 31st, 1910. The cost will be about $30,000. The Council is also advertising for tenders to erect an isolation hospital. It was decided to accept the offer of the Ontario Power Company to supply power to the City from Burleigh Falls at $11.60 per horse power. The Bradburn Homestead with two acres of land has been purchased by a Roman Catholic corporation and will be used for an orphanage. Excavations for a new Presbyterian church started on the 14th of this month, the work will be done by day labour, the foundation to be completed this fall. The rest of the building will not be undertaken until spring. The Quaker Oats Company has completed an improved fire fighting equipment, which will enable the company to handle any kind of a fire with its own apparatus. The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was a success and will have a surplus. Insurance rates have been reduced; residence insurance has been changed from "B" to "A" and Mercantile risks substantially reduced by the Underwriters' Association. Building permits for August show an increase of $11,396 over those of August, 1908.

Condition of Local Industries.

Agriculture.—The harvest is about finished and threshing is now general. The grain is reported as turning out well.

Lumbering has been very active.

Manufacturing.—The factories as a rule were busy. There has been a slight improvement since spring in all lines. The Peterborough Lumber Company will start its mill at once and expects to run night and day for the rest of the season.

Condition of Particular Trades.

The building trades were all busy and expect to remain so for the rest of the season.

Iron moulders and core makers had steady work. Machinists had plenty of work and reported an improvement. Electrical workers and linemen were active and brass workers were busy.

Blacksmiths also were busy. Boiler makers reported very little work.

Woodworkers were all well employed.

Printers had all they could do, pressmen and bookbinders had a good month.

Tailors and garment makers had fair employment, and were busy during the latter part of the month.

Bakers and confectioners had a good month. Butchers and meat cutters were busy. Cigarmakers reported no improvement.

Leather workers had a good month.

Railroad workers and steamboat men have been busy.

Street railway men had steady employment. Teamsters and expressmen have had all they could do.

There was a good demand for unskilled labour, but the supply was equal to requirements.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for bath or toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

WHO PAYS FOR THEM?

From Farm and Dairy.

While talking to a wholesale dealer the other day he made the remark that in a 30-dozen case of eggs received at this time of the year there would be an average of over two dozen eggs that were absolutely worthless and had to be thrown on the dump heap. I asked who paid for them, and he said, "We don't. If the buyer does not, who does? The middle man can't or he would not stay in the business; the consumer may pay a little of it, but it is quite probable that the bulk of the price has to be paid by the producer, for the same man said, "We have to count this loss when we buy our eggs from the farmer." And still some farmers will continue to market stale eggs.

The worst feature is that the careful man very often loses with the careless one. The remedy is for the man who is honest to cease to sell eggs to the buyer who does not discriminate in price.—F.C.E.

SELFISH UNSELFISHNESS

Do you realize that there is such a thing as selfish unselfishness?

Well, there is.

It is a vice found almost exclusively in mothers but occasionally in fathers or maiden aunts and once in a lifetime in sons or daughters.

Did you ever notice what very selfish children extremely unselfish mothers are apt to have?

"Strange," you say, "that Alice's mother should be such very selfish mother, thoughtless girls when Alice, herself, is unselfish to a fault."

Not strange at all, but perfectly logical and almost inevitable.

Why should Alice's daughters have been the crusts and leftovers when their mother insisted that she preferred them?

Why should Alice's daughters ever have learned to stay at home and send their mother to the concert or the play when Alice always protested that she would really rather stay at home, "she was tired and they would be sure to enjoy it much more than she."

Why should Alice's daughters have worn their suits two seasons, and had their mother have a new gown when Alice insisted that her four-year-old gown turned and made over was just what she wanted—"She always liked that gown and, anyway, she didn't go out a great deal."

The matron of "Mothers' Rest," a summer camp where tired mothers are invited to spend two weeks in solid resting, told me this little story the other day:

In the first party of the season there was a woman who was the mother of 17 children and who never in all her life had had a vacation.

She was invited for two weeks. She had been at the camp three days when one of the eight cildren, who were still living, came for her. The youngest boy, aged 15, was sick and the mother was needed at home. The matron pleaded with the girl to try and get along without her mother, but she said she didn't see how it could be done.

So the woman gave up the only vacation she had ever had and went home, crying gently to herself as the carriage carried her away from "Mothers' Rest."

When I heard that story my blood fairly boiled. It seemed to me that I must go and find that family and say to them some of the things that seethed through my mind.

And then I wondered if after all that mother's unselfishness had not been partly to blame.

With good mothers, unselfishness is an instinct—a beautiful, wonderful instinct that seems to be born a twin child with the first baby.

But beautiful and wonderful as it is, it is an instinct that ought sometimes to be curbed.

BAD KIDNEYS CAUSE OF BLADDER MISERY

Backache and All Distress From Your Out-of-Order Kidneys Will Vanish.

No man or woman here whose kidneys are out of order, or who suffers from backache or bladder misery, can afford to leave Pape's Diuretic untried.

After taking several doses, all pains in the back, sides or loins, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, dizziness, tired or worn-out feeling, and other symptoms of clogged, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, discoloured water and all bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect the slightest kidney or bladder disorder, or feel rheumatism pains, don't continue to be miserable or worried, but get a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic from your druggist and start taking as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which is so harmless or will effect so thorough and prompt a cure.

This unusual preparation goes direct to the cause of the trouble, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected and completes the cure before you realize it.

A few days' treatment of Pape's Diuretic means clean, healthy, active kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

$4,500 FOR POULTRY

From Farm and Dairy.

The exhibit of poultry in connection with the last Winter Fair was one of the largest ever seen on the American continent at an annual show. There were over 4,200 entries The poultry committee of the Fair are striving to reach the 5,000 mark at the coming Fair.

Conditions are favorable for a large increase in the entries for this department. The new addition which has been made to the Fair building in Guelph gives 10,000 square feet of additional floor space in the poultry department and brings the total up to 25,000 square feet of space. The high prices ruling for both dressed poultry and eggs has caused a keen demand for pure bred poultry and breeders will therefore desire to secure the advertising which comes from exhibiting at such a large Fair.

The direct financial inducements, of course, are the greatest influence. This has been well provided by regular prizes of $3,000 in cash and a list of special prizes worth over $1,500. The classification of the special prizes has just been arranged. Included in the specials will be over $500 in cash, 43 silver cups, 13 medals, a large number of valuable goods, specials and many valuable ribbons offered by specialty clubs. Poultry entries close on November 22nd and should be sent to the secretary of the Fair before that date.—A.P.W.

AUTOMATIC OIL CANS

While Mr. Geo. Howson, Inspector of Weights and Measures, was on his recent trip through the surrounding district he found an automatic oil can, five of which were in use and were confiscated. They are known as the automatic oil can made in Meadville, Pa., Spence & Son, general merchants, Lakefield had two of them of 50 gal. capacity. The Douglas hardware firm in Campbellford had two and Sargent & Son, of Westwood, general merchants, had a 100 gal. can. Upon examination it was found that they gave exact measure up to four gals., but at 5 gal. register it was found to be considerably short. The cans were marked "Approved at Ottawa" which aroused Mr. Howson's suspicions.

The proprietors of the stores were held innocent of the condition of affairs and the 5 gal. notch was closed. Imperial measure was obtained under the other marks.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Post Card Column.

Sir,—Peterborough is one of the cleanest towns I was ever in, and I do not think an isolation hospital matters so much. Wash the sidewalks, improve the streets and the drainage and keep the sewage out of the river and rebuild the old dwellings. Paint all wood-work and use plenty of white wash. There is much "dirty" in our sports and games and in our politics. We should be anxious to clean up in a moral sense.

A CITIZEN.

October 26, 1909.

Sir,—Your remarks on Saturday, indicated knowledge of the poor cottages in some parts of England. This will not be remedied until we get Home Rule. The American liking for things old has something to do with it, and too much art. Those in glass houses should not throw stones however. On landing in Toronto three years ago I wondered 'What a lot of poor houses.' In the West I read that when it comes to bedtime the Harvesters are told to find some place to sleep, and in England we don't send our poor to prison or dump them abroad.

GARLOUGH INNOCENT

At Hearing of Trial of Williamsburg Township Man on a Charge of Killing Rose Beckstead, Evidence Is Adduced to Show That the Accused Was Frequently Annoyed by People Passing House.

Cornwall, Oct. 29.—Isaac Garlough was last night acquitted by an Assize Court jury of a charge of murder. It was claimed that he had shot and killed Rose Beckstead on May 13, in the rear of Williamsburg Township. Garlough and his wife both swore that they had been annoyed two or three times by parties throwing stone at their dwelling. On the night of the shooting, rotten eggs accompanied the stones. Something which they described as a bomb had been thrown in through an open window in August, 1908. On Saturday, May 8, a dead hen was left at the door, and next day he borrowed a shot gun, and some loaded shells from John Lewis. On the night of May 13, Mr. and Mrs. Garlough swore that they were aroused about 9.30 by stones thrown at the buildings, and looking from a window saw two men on the road east of the house. Garlough seized his gun, and going to the west side of the house, stuck the muzzle through a pane of glass and fired at random.

Garlough claimed to be very good friends with Rosa Beckstead, whose body had been found next day in a nearby field.

Several witnesses for the defence testified to Garlough's good character as a harmless, inoffensive man, and others gave testimony that the night was very dark. The jury were out about fifteen minutes. I. Hilliard, Morrisburg, and L. A. Pringle, K.C., acted for the prisoner, and J. C. Milligas for the crown.

Stolen Papers Returned.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—A fortnight ago a portfolio of papers was stolen in Vancouver from the Canadian surveyors, who had been working on the Alaska boundary all summer. The papers included all the accounts, and might possibly make it necessary to do all the surveying work all over again. However, the papers have been mysteriously returned.

American Hospital In Paris.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The American hospital, built and equipped through the generosity of the American colony in Paris, was formally opened yesterday. It is surrounded by spacious grounds and contains 25 beds, many of which have been endowed. Among those who have thus contributed are J. P. Morgan, W. K. Vanderbilt and Miss Helen Gould.

Petitioning Against Vaccination.

London, Oct. 29.—A monster petition bearing thousands of names has been prepared and will be presented to the Board of Education asking that the compulsory vaccinating clause be rescinded. The agitation grows out of the recent death from lockjaw of Arnold Court, a six-year-old boy, who was sent home from school to be vaccinated.

East Toronto Child Killed by Train.

East Toronto, Oct. 29.—A sad accident which caused the death of seven-year-old little Willie Sinclair, at the G.T.R. crossing at Woodbine avenue yesterday.

The litle fellow was trying to see how many times he could cross before a westbound train would pass. The boy had just decided to stop when on his last trip across a train coming in the opposite direction struck and literally cut him to pieces.

Halifax the Proper Place.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Major-General Sir George French says that the greatest mistake in the world will be made by locating naval shipyards at Levis or at any other place which is frozen in several months of the year. Halifax, the general adds, is the proper place for such a plant, where they would be under the forts.

Want to Build the Navy.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Messrs. Laurier, Fielding and Brodeur, three Ministers of the crown, have been in conference with a local representative of Swan, Hunter & Wigham Richardson of Newcastle-on-Tyne, respecting proposals for the building of the Canadian navy. The company has secured property at Halifax.

Manitoba Local Option Jolt.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—Judge Metcalfe yesterday rendered a decision granting injunctions to prevent the municipalities of Pembina and Oaklands submitting local option bylaws to a referendum. The decision was based on technicalities and may affect local option in 57 municipalities.

ROBINSON IS SANE

Mrs. Robinson Is Brought In to Give Evidence and Her Face Shows Signs of Terrible Suffering Since Arrest — Daughter Says She Overhead Father Forcing Her Mother to Kill the Child.

Sudbury, Oct. 29.—James Robinson of Warren, husband of Annie Robinson, now under sentence of death, was yesterday morning placed on trial on a charge of murder. It is alleged that he forced his wife to kill the infant son born to him by his young daughter Ellen.

A. E. Creswick of Barrie is crown counsel and R. R. McKessock of Sudbury for Robinson.

Following a report by Mrs. Bruce Smith and Clarke, it was announced that the defence would not attempt to prove Robinson insane.

The evidence of the daughter, Ellen, was taken at Sudbury General Hospital, where she recently gave birth to her third child. The effect of her evidence is mainly a corroboration of her mother's evidence, whom she heard say, "Oh! Jimmy, I cannot do it," and that he said "You must." She also asserted that her father was the father of her three children.

The first witness called in court was the daughter Jessie. Before she appeared Robinson sat in the dock with head bowed down in his hands and his face completely hidden. Jessie stated her age as 19 and told of her father's misconduct toward her. Once or twice she was on the verge of breaking down, but recovered.

"You are trying to tell the truth, are you not?" asked defence counsel.

"Yes," she replied, "but I mind nothing about what I said at the last court."

"Do you pretend to remember what happened last March?" he asked.

"Yes," was the emphatic reply.

"Then, has your memory been refreshed by talking with people since last court?"

"No, I never talked to anyone."

"Has your memory not failed you since?"

"Some of it has," she replied.

At ten minutes to six there was a flutter of excitement when the name of Annie Robinson was called. She entered the court-room, slow and shaky. She looked years older yesterday than when she received sentence a month ago. She was dressed in black from head to foot, and was provided a seat near the legal table. She sat with clasped hands, paying no attention to surroundings.

Argument ensued between counsel as to the admissibility of her evidence, and an adjournment was made until 9 o'clock this morning, when Justice Magee will make his ruling.

John Robinson, the son, a youth of 20, was taken in hand by Justice Magee for his slowness in answering questions.

Mrs. Harriman to Run Estate.

New York, Oct. 29.—Mrs. Mary Averill Harriman, widow of Edward Henry Harriman and sole legatee of his estate, which makes her one of the wealthiest women in the world, will take charge of and personally direct the management of this great fortune of more than $100,000,000, and possibly twice that amount.

She has leased offices occupying the greater part of the second floor at No. 475 Fifth avenue, convenient to her residence.

Opposed to Tin-Pot Navy.

Cape Town, S.A., Oct. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Assembly, Premier Merriman announced he was asking Earl Crewe's consent to the publication of the deliberations of the Imperial Defence Conference, and said he and the Transvaal representatives were strongly opposed to "wretched tin-pot navies."

He hoped in future the British naval program would be discussed with the colonial Parliaments beforehand.

Closer to War?

Vienna, Oct. 29.—The Vaterland, which has close relations with Archduke Franz Frederick, nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph and heir presumptive to the throne, in a sensational article declares that the Rassobigi meeting brings Europe within measurable distance of war, because, for Italy and Russia to declare before the world their identity in Balkan interests, is in reality a war cry against Austria.

Divorce For the Poor.

London, Oct. 29.—The King has appointed a royal commission to enquire into the condition of the divorce laws, especially as they affect the poorer classes. The appointment arises out of the agitation to facilitate divorce, which hitherto, owing to the heavy legal expenses, virtually has been the privilege of only the well-to-do.

Teacher Spanked Pupil.

Norwich, N.Y., Oct. 29.—Because he spanked a 12-year-old schoolboy with a shingle, Timothy Tripp, a district schoolmaster, was yesterday found guilty of assault and sentenced to pay a fine of $20 or serve 30 days in jail. Tripp began serving his sentence, but a few hours later paid the fine.

Arthur Langevin Dead.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Arthur Langevin, joint chairman of the board of assessors and broker of the Archbishop of St. Boniface, is dead, aged 65.

UNIONIST VICTORY

Tariff Reformer Has a Big Lead Over the Asquith Candidate in a Hot Contest — Women Agitators Pour Corrosive Acid on the Ballot Boxes and Burn Several of the Returning Officers.

London, Eng., Oct. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Bermondsey bye-election yesterday resulted in the return of the Conservative and tariff reform candidate, who polled 4,278 votes. The runner-up was Spencer L. Hughes, the Ministerialist, with 3,291 votes; Dr. Alfred Salter, Labor-Socialist, totalled only 1,435 supporters. Ald. Dumphrey's plurality over the Ministerialist was thus 987, but his vote fall short by 448 of the combined poll of his two opponents. This is an opposition gain, the late member, Dr. George J. Cooper, having been returned as a Liberal in a straight party contest by a majority of 1,759. In the now preceding election, Bermondsey returned Conservatives, and it has always been regarded as an uncertain constituency.

The Women's Freedom League took advantage of the fact that yesterday was the first anniversary of the "grille protest" in the House of Commons (when attendants who sought to empty the ladies' gallery found that two suffragettes had firmly chained themselves to the grille or lattice, to inject violence into the bye-election. A Mrs. Chapin smashed a bottle containing corrosive acid upon a ballot box. Her intention evidently was to destroy the ballots in the box as a protest against the exclusion of women from the right of franchise. What she accomplished was the painful burning of some of the election officers and the assurance of her own arrest.

A similar outrage was attempted at another booth, by a young girl who wore the suffragette colors. In the latter instance little damage was done beyond the burning of the finger tips of the election officials who removed the bits of broken glass.

Later, in an interview, Miss Christobel Pankhurst, while deploring the wounding of the officials, asserted with much emphasis: "It is the Government that is responsible. It is the Government that drives women to these acts."

Wanted Half Jury of Compatriots

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—At the Assizes Wednesday, prisoner's counsel, M. Doyle, in King v. Lutz, asked that at least half the jury be compatriots of the prisoner, who is a Galician.

Justice Richards, however, took the ground that the section which specifies that in King's Bench cases half the jury shall be able to understand the language of the defence, referred only and specifically to French and English jurors.

Lutz is charged with manslaughter. It is alleged he threw a stone through a house window, striking an infant.

Col. Gordon Takes Charge.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—The vacancy in the Quebec command caused by the death of Gen. Buchan, is to be filled by the appointment of Col. W. D. Gordon, who was in command of the eastern Ontario and recently transferred to the staff at Ottawa. Col. Gordon was in command at Montreal under the old system for several years. He went to South Africa as second in command to Col. Jarvis of Halifax in the sixth contingent.

Were Assisted Back to Canada.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The annual report of Lord Strathcona as Canadian High Commissioner, reports that the fund furnished for Canadians who apply for help in London is inadequate to meet the demands. Last year 90 persons applied to the High Commissioner's office for relief; 28 passages to Canada were furnished, and 51 were given temporary financial relief. The remaining 11 did not establish their Canadian identity.

Used Poisoned Bullets.

Harbin, Manchuria, Oct. 29.—The assassin of Prince Ito was identified yesterday as Inchan Antean, a former editor of a newspaper at Seoul. He said that he was one of an organization of twenty Koreans who had taken an oath that they would kill the Japanese statesman.

The assassin used dum-dum bullets which had been poisoned with cyanide.

Three Sudden Deaths.

Chatham, Oct. 29.—Ernest Wemp, a farmer of Chatham Township, was found dead in his stable from heart failure. John Van Meer, a produce dealer, was found dead in an outhouse in the rear of his residence. Mrs. H. Willsher of Blenheim, was found unconscious, due to a paralytic stroke, in her home by her daughter, and died Wednesday.

Watches For Runaway Sister.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 29.—Sitting on a chair on the west wing of the main floor of the postoffice, Miss Catherine McKay of Lucknow, Ont., took up unique vigil Wednesday morning. Throughout the day and until midnight she sat, and yesterday morning again resumed her watch. She is looking for a missing sister, Sarah McKay, aged 20, who ran away from their home on a farm five weeks ago. Friends in Lucknow received letters from the girl, dated Detroit, directing that replies be sent her at the postoffice here.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The U. S. National W.C.T.U. will meet next year in Baltimore.

The Norwegian bark Poseidon, timber laden, for Canada, went ashore off Dublin. The crew was saved.

A movement is for the extension of the C.P.R. to Halifax. The proposition began at a Board of Trade meeting in that city yesterday.

Frank Barto, an Italian, was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate Campbell, for selling liquor illegally at Lowery Bros. quarries at St. Davids.

The new Indefatigable, the fourth largest and improved battleship cruiser of the invincible class, was launched at Devonport, Eng., yesterday.

Near Lexington, Ky., a girl armed with a double barrelled shotgun, put to flight forty night-riders when they broke down the door of her father's house.

Wm. H. Purdy, manager of the Grosvenor Hotel, New York, chose death yesterday rather than face the discovery of a shortage in his accounts.

L. Wigfield, from Ontario, C.P.R. extra gang man, was instantly killed by a yard engine while sleeping at midnight on the freight siding at Medicine Hat.

During three months $4,000 worth of freight has been stolen from the C.P.R. freight sheds at Fort William, and four employes of the company were arrested on the charge of theft.

John B. Walsh, convicted of misuse of funds of the Chicago National Bank, and sentenced to five years, may remain at liberty under bonds pending an attempt to appeal his case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

RUNAWAY ON THE A. AND B.

A Signal the Kindly Conductor Was Thankful He Heeded.

By JAMES E. DUNNING.

The G. P. A. put his head into the general superintendent's doorway and said:

"Old Tympan's out there again, I see. Palmer."

"No use," replied the general superintendent. "His name came in two hours ago. I told him to report here next time he got drunk. This finishes him."

Five minutes later old Tympan, after forty years of service for the A. and B., went tumbling down the stairs because he was drunk at the Hancock street switch the day the directors went up the line. Palmer had given him a pass home, eighty miles up the road, and then fired him with ten of the words Palmer wasn't accustomed to using on ordinary jobs.

Train No. 8 pulled in while Tympan fumbled the pass on the platform, and he climbed in and found a double seat in the smoker. He knew only that he was out of a job, with a full plot in his coat and Palmer's transportation to take him up home, where he could camp down for the winter with the boys. He had threatened that many times. They deserved it for letting him work for a living.

"Taking vacation, Tympan?" asked Hennessy of No. 8 when he came through for tickets. Tympan admitted he was off for a bit of time up the road.

"Guess you ain't coming back right off," taunted Hennessy. "The return check on your pass doesn't seem to be in sight. Long lay off, eh, Tympan?"

Tympan sat up, pulling his hat over his eyes.

"Dick Hennessy," he said, "you go slow on yer kiddin' 'r I'll roast you one o' these days fr bein' so smart. They've fired me, you c'n bet—yes, they have—fired me good, but I'm next to Palmer yet. An' I heard what Palmer told the G. P. A. this mornin' about your runnin' over orders twice last week. I know somethin', an' don't you kid me no more!"

Train No. 8's conductor ignored the challenge, partly because he dared do no more. He knew the whole operating department had been knocking everybody in sight because old Tympan, invariably drunk and disorderly, held his job while better and younger and sober men were overhauled in Palmer's office for nothing more than leaving stations half a minute ahead of orders or failing to vise the annual of some of the spying directors who went up and down. R. H. Palmer got a master tongue lashing those days from the rank and file, and now that the dismissal had really come Hennessy was no more skeptical than any of the others concerning the general superintendent's honest intention of keeping Tympan out of service.

Hennessy tried to conciliate Tympan on his next trip through, but the old man lay with his hat over his face, steaming with rage, too angry even to curse. No. 8 was making beautiful work, and Hennessy felt better than usual. He had eight cars with a big load of women and kids and wanted to be on time anyway because it was his day off that Saturday and there was an all night game in the "club" at home.

At Inchburg Hennessy got his usual orders, everything all straight, and left on time. The rear brakeman found him just afterward and said:

"Hear about the wild freight went up ahead of us? She's a big one, and it wouldn't surprise me if she got stuck on the Long Misery and held us at Lyshon."

Hennessy knew his man was right. Lyshon station is at the foot of a thirteen mile grade known for good reasons as "the Long Misery." If a freight got hung there ahead of No. 8 it meant everything balled up, for the A. and B. is a single line, and the directors won't stand for a siding between Lyshon and Oldtown, the station at the crest of the Long Misery.

Hennessy took the platform at Lyshon before No. 8's brakes held her and sought the dispatcher in the dingy station.

"Wild freight?" echoed the telegrapher. "Yes, went up an hour ago. Big train? Yes, big train, but she's got a good rail, and I don't believe she'll hold you a minute."

Hennessy went out and looked in the book by the station door. He found where the wild freight had reported and saw with satisfaction that she was in charge of Bitters, one of the ring and sure to do his best to get that heavy train out of the way long before Hennessy came along.

Lyshon was on the card for only thirty seconds, but Hennessy risked a trifling delay and went back to the operator:

"Can't you ask Oldtown, just for a chance, if that freight's showed up yet?" he asked.

* * * * * * *

Wild freight 543 started over the Long Misery in good order that Saturday and made excellent time for eight miles or more. Then she was stopped by a shaky injector in the mogul. Bitters left his caboose and ran up ahead in time to see his red headed engineer grab up the wrenches and start from his seat.

"Go ahead lively as you can, Mike!" he shouted.

Mike gave the mogul sand and steam. She strained for a moment while her drivers raced and then shot ahead so hard that Mike bounced out of his seat. The train had broken apart seven cars down, leaving thirty-three detached. Before the mogul could gather herself to back up and catch the breakaway the fugitive section was moving off very slowly down the head end of the Long Misery.

"Back up, Irish! Back up and catch 'em!" screamed Bitters.

"You can't do it!" yelled a breathless brakeman who came up from the rear, "because the gear's just completely out o' the head o' that section and there wouldn't be nothin' to make a couplin' to if you caught 'em, which it ain't likely you'll do anyway."

Bitters was thinking of Hennessy and No. 8. If No. 8 were on time she was just leaving Lyshon. Chances were she was late. He knew Hennessy. It was for him to reach Oldtown in time to stop No. 8 at Lyshon. Bitters sickened at the thought of the Saturday night rush of women and children which had given Hennessy's train the name of the "nursery express."

They worked quickly then. In thirty seconds Bitters was in the cab and was giving the mogul steam enough and some to carry. Bitters figured it was four miles to the good, and the way they paced it off made it impossible for him to say he was disappointed when he jumped off at Oldtown.

"No. 8, hold her at Lyshon. My freight's busted, an' thirty-three of 'em are on the grade, goin' to beat thunder!"

"No. 8!" The dispatcher's face was pie crust. "She left Lyshon six minutes ago, late." He went back to his instrument and sent "Seventeen," the clear out signal, to warn the road south of him, but as he did so he knew that No. 8 was coming up the Long Misery ten minutes late, straight into the teeth of the worst runaway the A. and B. had known.

* * * * * * *

Hennessy was fuming at Lyshon, for he couldn't afford another second, yet Oldtown had seen nothing of the wild freight.

"Better wait for another report from Oldtown," said the operator. But Hennessy was six minutes late then and resolved to go on up the grade. He signaled his engineer and jumped on the rear. The brakeman was there and grinned when the conductor cursed his luck.

Hennessy, halfway through the door, wheeled. There, away back by the station platform, only a fading bit of dismal detail in the familiar view, was old Tympan standing in the middle of the track and waving crossed arms.

"Left and signaling us to come back for him," said the rear brakeman.

Hennessy spoke eloquently, looking at his watch. The time frightened him. "I'll not go back for him," he cried. "I can't be"—

There was that in the rear brakeman's eyes which stopped Hennessy. Suppose he should leave Tympan at Lyshon over Sunday, with no trains either way, and suppose the old man's pull with R. H. P. were still working, and suppose the young husband of her who was Nell Tympan, he who worked in the G. P. A.'s office, should—

And there was old Tympan himself standing in the middle of the track and signaling, "Back up, back up, back up." Could he afford to ignore the old fellow? Though it hurt him to do it, he said:

"No; I believe I'll go back for the old guy, Bill."

The rear brakeman pulled the cord, and Hennessy went in to reckon just how much over thirty minutes late he would be into Oldtown.

There was no denying that old Tympan was exceedingly drunk. Hennessy smothered his wrath with difficulty as No. 8 backed into Lyshon, for he hadn't relished what he had heard going through the day coaches. He leaned out toward the dirty figure reeling across the platform and heard Tympan's idiotic laugh as he boasted of having called back the biggest train on the road. "I jus' went out there—ri' out there—and signaled, 'Back up,' and yer backed up, didn't yer? I tell yer, gents, there ain't er man o' the ro'd darst tes-dis-disobey my orders."

There was a scramble on the platform behind them, and the dispatcher came shrieking like a plow train at a blind crossing.

"Back up, Hennessy, for all you're worth!" he shouted. "Runaway freight—thirty something cars off the wild train coming down the grade—be here in less than a minute. Oldtown wired. Oh, Hennessy, look up the line!"

It was a cloud of sand and dust at the first curve in the Long Misery, three miles away.

Hennessy's knees wavered. The dispatcher struck him with his fist between the shoulders, crying: "Quick, man! Run her back into the siding and let the freight go by."

The passengers knew only enough to complain that they were horribly shaken up that afternoon near Lyshon. It was Hennessy himself who switched No. 8 into the siding and who thanked heaven with all sincerity that it was just long enough to take his train and leave the main line open. As he drew the switch his head went dizzy with the whirl of the freight. When the threatening thirty-three banged past Hennessy gave not one look after, but fainted over the lever and hung like a uniformed scarecrow until they gathered him up.

READY TO FIGHT.

'Twas Lucky the Humorous Little Man Made Good His Escape.

The big man with the fiery look on his face had been struggling with the car window for twenty minutes. Suddenly it came down on him and held him a prisoner. With much fuming and wriggling he finally released himself.

"Confound that blasted window!" he thundered, almost exploding with rage. "I feel like I could chew it up in bits, glass and all."

It was then that the humorous little man in the next seat touched him on the arm.

"My friend," he said, with a merry twinkle in his eyes, "don't be so angry with the window. Why, that window likes you. In fact, it is really affectionate."

"What! Are you joshing me? The window affectionate?"

"Certainly, sir. Didn't it fall on your neck?"

And then the humorous little man vanished toward the smoker.—Chicago News.

Gratitude.

She came back from the ocean with the sparkle in her eyes and the tan on her cheeks.

"Well, well!" said the pale little man who had been laboring in the hot, stuffy office. "You are looking fine. I'll wager you didn't worry about me one second while you were down there."

"No, dear," she teased as she counted her souvenir shells, "that is just the reason I went away."

"What reason?"

"Why, to keep from worrying about trifles."

And he, poor married man, had been sending the weekly checks.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

As to That.

Interrupting her husband's mutterings, the fair young wife says:

"Before we were married you would have been delighted to button my dress for me."

Straightening up and mopping the perspiration from his brow, the brutal husband retorts:

"Huh! Before we were married you would have called the police if I had offered to do such a thing!"—New York Life.

RANGE AUTOCRATS.

Sheep Shearers Whose Earnings Average $10 a Day.

The sheep shearers who gather this country's harvest of wool form an important though little known feature of western life. Everybody knows about the cowboy, and there is more or less knowledge of the life and duties of the lonely sheep herder, but the sheep shearer has come on the scene so quietly that few persons realize the important role he is playing.

In order to get an idea of the importance of the sheep shearer's work one must take a glance at the tremendous growth of the sheep industry in the big states of the west. Wyoming has something over 4,600,000 sheep within its borders. Montana, which held the record until last year, has 4,500,000 sheep. Then come Idaho, with 2,500,000, and Oregon, with 2,000,000 sheep, and so on down the list until the nation's total reaches the astonishing number of 40,000,000 sheep, four-fifths of which are west of the Mississippi river.

To harvest the wool from such an enormous number of backs is something that calls for expert shearers—men who can handle the big shears or the machine clippers with a skill that comes from long practice. The shearing must be done at the right time of year. If the wool is clipped too early the sheep suffers from cold. If the shearing comes too late the sheep suffers from intense heat and in either case is bound to lose weight and value. To meet the exacting conditions a class of men have arisen peculiar to the sheep shearing business. These shearers start work in southern California, Utah, middle California, etc. Another month finds them busy in the great sheep states of Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Oregon, where they find steady employment until July, when they go to the ranges of Canada. In this way the shearers keep busy nearly all the year at high wages. In fact, they are the most prosperous class of wage earners in the west, as a good shearer will average about $10 a day.

The champion shearer of the United States is C. M. Marquis, whose record of 320 sheep sheared in eight hours, made at Two Dot, Mont., several years ago, has never been equaled. It takes a man of iron constitution to be a successful sheep shearer, as the work is very exhaustive, owing to the fact that the shearer has to remain in a stooping position during the entire operation of removing a fleece. There is a great variation in the weight of fleeces also, which has its effect on the shearer's work. Some sheep, such as those off the best ranges in Oregon, Montana and Wyoming, will average an eight pound fleece, full of natural oil, while sheep from the more sterile alkaline ranges of New Mexico will not average much over five pounds of wool.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Night Signals For Airships.

The Aero club of Berlin has been giving its attention to the question of guiding lights for the use of aeronauts at night. It suggests a combination of letters in vivid colors, which will be clearly seen at a distance in the dark and which will be placed at the top of elevated structures. The letters which indicate frontiers or the neighborhood of the sea will be specially distinguished if the Aero club has its way. Germany is to be divided into ninety sections by ninety combinations of letters, and France, it is proposed, should adopt a special sign for each department. The project has been submitted to all of the principal aeronautical societies in France, Belgium, Holland, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Spain, England and America for consideration.

Whitewash.

Liberal use of plain old fashioned whitewash is urged in a bulletin issued by the Chicago sanitary bureau. Inspectors of workshops and tenements are ordered to insist upon the use of "lime wash" in dark basements and workshops. In addition to adding materially to the light of premises, it is declared an important aid in fighting tuberculosis. "When made of only seventy grains of lime and five grains of salt to a gallon of water it has a proved power," the bulletin says, "of killing germs on dry surfaces. When used on such surfaces it possesses both a chemical and mechanical action, killing germs and bacteria by the first and sealing them in by the other."

What He Found.

"Did he find it?"

"No; quite the opposite. He sat down on an ant hill."

HOUSEHOLD TIPS.

If you want your sofa pillow to look plump instead of flat, make the covers an inch smaller each way than the pillow.

Whitewash the cellar with a wash containing enough copperas to tint the solution a pale yellow. Copperas is a deadly poison.

If there is no barley or rice for the soup, oatmeal can be substituted with excellent results. The meal thickens and adds a pleasant flavor to the soup.

Sunshine is destructive to mirrors. The glass assumes a milky appearance and cannot be restored to its original appearance. Place the mirrors in position so that the direct rays of the sun do not fall upon them.

Flour a fish before putting it into the broiler. This will prevent the skin from sticking to the wires. If the meat is extra thick, requiring additional time for broiling, lay over it a baking pan to keep in the heat.

To remove stubborn stains from the porcelain in the bathroom scour with salt and vinegar. Heat vinegar boiling hot and dissolve in it all the salt that it will take up. Turn the solution into the stained porcelain and let it remain until cold.

When you have scoured until you are tired and rust still remains on nickel plated faucets or steel knives, before throwing out the knives and having the faucets renickeled try saturating the spots with kerosene. Later rub steadily with fine sandpaper and the trouble will be over.

Stale bread crumbs and dry bread crumbs are quite different. Stale crumbs are the crumbs of stale bread made by rubbing the bread over a grater. They are to be used in puddings and escaloped dishes. Dry bread crumbs are the bits of stale bread dried in the oven until slightly brown, then rolled on a board and sifted. They are to be as a covering for dishes which are used in crumbing croquets, oysters, cutlets, meat and fish or as a covering for dishes which are to be baked.

Mrs. Taft's Log of Travel.

In Mrs. Taft's tally of miles she easily outstrips the wives of all other American presidents since that historic day when Liberty bell rang out its famous message from the town of Independence hall, says Human Life. She has seen moonlight nights on the broad waters of the Pacific from the bridge of that monster ship, the Minnesota; she has watched the dirt fly at the big ditch down in the Panama country, and she has risked her life on the Transsiberia railway in that 6,000 mile dash across the gigantic width of Asia which the czar planned as a spectacular affair to catch the world's attention.

She has fished in the royal lake at Ashiba, where the Taft party was quartered in one of the mikado's palaces during its Japanese visit; she has danced the queer native rigodon in the Philippines; over the snows of St. Petersburg she has had fur bundled sleigh rides such as only Russia knows, and to beguile transatlantic hours she has played shuffleboard with that gold braided gentleman, the captain, whose word is law on the liner.

On practically all of the missions as a popular peace envoy Mrs. Taft has accompanied her husband. In the matter of distance this would mean more miles than one would care to figure, for no American outside of the navy has ever covered so much of the earth's surface in behalf of the government as the new president.

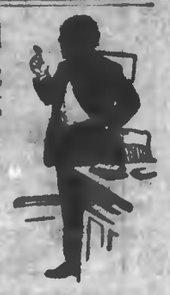
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription



Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

A One Volume Man.

A curious example of generous obstinacy was a stout English countryman who inquired for a nice book to read—"one with a story in." On several being placed before him, he examined them attentively and picked out the middle volume of a "three decker" with the remark: "This 'ere's my sort. What's the price?"

"Oh," was the reply, "this is only the second volume. The story goes through three. The set is half a crown."

"Haave a crown! Well, I'll gie ye that for that one book. It's a pretty one enough."

"But won't you have the other two as well? You'd better."

"Naw. I don't like th' beginnin' of a story. I can't get forrod wi' it. An' I don't like th' eddin'. I don't know as 'ow it's comed about. But in th' middle us I'm into th' thick of it right off. No, I'll tak' th' middle un. It'll set me up for a month." And, cramming the book into his pocket, he put down his half crown and disappeared with a "Good night" before the other volumes could be given to him.—Chambers' Journal.

The Diamond Remains a Mystery.

As a substance the diamond is one of the mysteries of nature, one of the despairs of science. Nobody knows whence it came or how, whether it is a spark from a comet's tail or a crystallized drop squeezed in some horrible intensity of fiery convulsion from the white hot insurgent heart of the earth. Nobody knows much about it at all, except that it doesn't belong to this world. Some known black diamonds literally were from the skies. They came imbedded in meteorites cast upon Arizona and Chile by an unidentified star. One does not prospect for chips of stars. As well search for the end of the rainbow. Neither is it practical to hammer all sorts of eruptive rock and conglomerate wherever come upon. Earthquake or volcanic upheaval districts are not necessarily the most promising, for often diamonds that seem to have had volcanic origin occur thousands of miles from the probable place of extrusion, carried thence, it is assumed, by glacial drift in some far back geological time.—Franklin Clarkin in Everybody's Magazine.

Struck a Bargain.

An old woman recently entered an optician's shop and asked to look at some spectacles. Choosing a pair, she asked the price.

"Five shillings," was the answer.

"And how much are they without the case?"

"I could not sell them for less than 4s. 10d.," said the tradesman, who was determined to get all he could.

"Do you only take off twopence for the case?" queried the woman.

"That is all. The case is worth no more than twopence," was the reply.

"That is good news!" ejaculated the old lady, with a sigh of relief. "It's the case for mine which I have lost."

So saying, she laid down the twopence and marched off with the coveted case before the astonished shopkeeper had time to interfere.—London Mail.

How Animals Learn.

Dr. T. Zell, a German naturalist, has collected many instances to prove that animals learn by experience and thus become wiser than their uninstructed parents. Game animals of all kinds, he avers, have learned the range of modern rifles. Greyhounds quickly learn to let rabbits alone, and foxhounds pay no attention to either rabbits or hares. Killer whales and gulls follow whaling vessels, just as vultures follow an army. Crows begin to accompany the chamois hunter as soon as they have seen the result of his first successful shot, and rough legged buzzards follow the sportsman after winged game. The number of birds that kill or injure themselves by flying against telegraph wires is much smaller than it used to be. Dr. Zell also refers to the fact that birds and quadrupeds have learned to disregard passing railway trains, as horses quickly cease to be frightened by automobiles. His instances of the intelligent election exercised by sheep dogs are familiar to all.

A Prompt Reply.

A temperance lecturer was describing to his audience how his life had been influenced by total abstinence.

"You know," he said, "that I am now head of my business. Four years ago there were two men in our office who held positions above mine. One was dismissed through drunkenness, the other was led into crime and is now in prison, and all through that evil drink, the invention of the wicked. Now, what I ask is," he cried, "what has raised me to my present high position?"

"Drink!" was the unexpected reply he received from a member of his audience.

Not Much to Make Up.

"Fo' goodness' sake," impatiently exclaimed Mr. Cowley during the poker game, "speak up lively an' say what yo' am a-gwine to do, Mose! Why, it don't take me mo' den two seconds to make up mah mind."

"If it did," replied the player addressed, very deliberately, "you'd suttainly be loafin'!"—New York Sun.

Wrong Either Way.

Isabel—I'll never have another photograph taken. Dorothy—Why not, dear? Isabel—Oh, if it looks like me I don't like it, and if it flatters me my friends don't like it.—Exchange.

A Mean Critic.

"How realistic your painting is! It fairly makes my mouth water."

"A sunset makes your mouth water!"

"Oh, it is a sunset, is it? I thought it was a fried egg!"

Fire is not extinguished by fire.—Italian Proverb.

RAN A RUSTY NAIL INTO HIS FINGER

USING Zam-Buk on a cut or scratch is insuring yourself against the danger of blood-poisoning, festering, or inflammation. As soon as you sustain an injury—a scratch from barbed wire, a cut, a burn, a bruise—put on a little Zam-Buk, and then don't worry! Zam-Buk kills the disease germs, which, entering wounds, set up festering, etc. Not only so, but Zam-Buk stimulates the cells to rapid action, and in this way builds up healthy skin very quickly; also, it eases pain and smarting. You have ease, insurance against blood-poisoning, and rapid healing—only Zam-Buk combines the three! Try it!

Mr. Alf. Hy. Orth, of Shipley (Ont.), says:—"While at work recently I had the misfortune to run a rusty wire nail under my thumb nail, to the depth of about one and a half inches. The pain was terrible, and what I feared was that the nail, being so dirty and rusty, would set up festering and blood-poisoning. I knew, from previous experience, how good Zam-Buk was, so I cleaned the wound, melted a little of the balm, and ran it into the wound. The result was wonderful. It soothed the pain, and the thumb actually did not swell. Zam-Buk kept away all inflammation. I was able to go on with my work all the time, and in a few days the thumb was as good as ever."

Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, varicose ulcers, prairie itch, ringworm, scalp-sores, bad leg, diseased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

NEW YORK'S CHINATOWN IS RAPIDLY PASSING AWAY

Business Has Fallen off With the Advent of a New Police Captain, Followed by the Murder of Elsie Siegel---Chinese are Departing Daily From New York.

New York, Oct. 0.—Chinatown is passing away. The exodus has been on for weeks, but has assumed such proportions lately that it has begun to worry not only merchants in that quarter but property owners. There are many vacant stores in Chinatown.

One hundred and seventy Chinamen, many of them taking their families, departed on Thursday, bound for China by way of Vancouver. Many have been in business in the Chinese quarter, have made money and are going back home to live the remainder of their days. The majority left because a blight had struck the Chinese quarter.

Chinatown's business has been falling off since last June, when all gambling was stopped with the advent of a new police captain and a new police inspector. Then came the murder of Elsie Siegel, and the police became more active. Chinatown has been under constant police espionage ever since, because of fear that the rival tongs would begin shooting.

Gambling is at the bottom of the business depression that has struck the quarter. Before Inspector John Daly and Police Captain Michael Galvin were sent to police that district everybody was prosperous and waxing fat. Every gambling house was open.

In the Palmy Days.

There were one hundred and fifty fan tan and pie gow games running, and the backers of each game gave up $15 a week protection money to somebody or other. When the new police commanders took hold the Chinese gamblers were told to close. They followed instructions, supposing the order was temporary and only a "bluff."

One who was told positively that no gambling would be allowed was Tom Lee, Mayor of Chinatown and the leader of the On Leong Tong. Capt. Galvin told him there would be no fan tan nor pie gow played in the district while he was in charge.

"You damn fool cop," said Tom Lee.

Tom has been accused of having a proprietary interest in a Mott St. gambling house, but there is no gambling going on there now. Tom was found there yesterday by a World reporter and asked how things were going.

"Velly rotten," he responded. "Me be here maybe thirty-five years and never so rotten. Business bad; everything velly bad. Chinamen go way, business so bad."

Around in Pell stret the same condition exists. Mock Duck, one time local chieftain of the Hip Sings, held forth in prosperous days in Pell St. One of the biggest gambling houses in the quarter used to be running there. The place was deserted yesterday. So was one in a basement in Pell street, which the Hip Sings used to frequent.

In fact, all doors of gambling houses were open for any one's inspection. Of the few that were locked the keys had been given to the police.

"If the "Chinks don't give us the keys or leave the doors open we break in the doors," explained a uniformed policeman.

Departing Every Day.

Chinatown's population in prosperous times is 2,500, and this number is doubled on Saturdays and Sundays by visiting Chinamen. The number of Chinamen in the quarter yesterday was estimated by a policeman at 700.

"They are leaving daily—not singly, but in groups," said this policeman. "The Chinese won't come here when there is no gambling. They used to come from all the nearby Jersey towns as well as from all over New York City. When gambling stopped they stopped coming.

"Many have moved to other cities. Dozens of them have gone to San Francisco. Newark and Jersey City get a lot of them now, for they can gamble there. They tell me they have to pay only $7 a week protection money in Jersey.

"All the Chinese merchants are kicking about the hard times, but many of them are just holding on in the hope that after election things will open up a bit. The Chinese farmers over on Long Island are having trouble in disposing of their vegetables, because the Chinese are not here to buy them. And, say, if you wan't to hear a real wail of distress get hold of some one that owns property around here. They are sore, and don't care who knows it."

Up to this time property owners have received fine returns for their investments in Chinatown, for when the Chinaman has money he pays good prices.

DON'T BE A SCANDALMONGER

Of all the sins known to humanity probably scandalmongering is worst and meanest, as unfortunately it is the most enjoyed, fashionable and general.

Columns and volumes without number have been written against the scandalmonger, but they have failed to repress the evil. Every day characters are ruined, lives blighted, hearts smitten and innocence made to bear the heavy burden of guilt.

From physical wounds one may recover but an injury done one's character is irreparable; explanations and apologies may follow, but the original beauty is affected, just as an injured piece of glass—in both the character and glass some usefulness may remain, but the first perfection is forever blemished.

In the knowledge that "to err is human, to forgive divine," one's own frailties should inspire lenience, and, were most gossips to devote the energy they spend in criticising their neighbours to correcting their own mistakes, there would be little need for reformers.

Every human being is vulnerable somewhere, if only, like Achiles, in the heel; and it would be the part of wisdom for all to remember that the true secret of nobility is not in contempt but sympathy.

Just as a garment, made imperfect by a rent, is worthy of mending, so in all justice should human mistakes not only be condoned, but also inspire sympathy.

No physical beauty is absolutely wrecked by one defect, such as nearsightedness, lameness, etc., and neither should a partial moral obliquity or imperfection make us denounce our friends or acquaintances as useless or evil.

The habit of gossiping is a form of conceit and an indirectly passive way of suggesting one's own superiority. One who constantly criticizes one's fellow man as being below one's own personal standard is as generally credited with no virtues as is the man who is forever prating about his own noble inspirations and characteristics.

The habit of criticising which is but the natural beginning of slander and gossip, almost invariably springs from idleness, for the busy, active, responsible man has little time to devote to things that are worse than useless.

"Good name, in man or woman, dear my lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls.
Who steals my purse, steals trash;
'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good
name
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

THE PAINS OF THE AGED

Are usually due to the tendency of the kidneys to wear out as age advances, giving rise to the accumulation of poisons in the blood and causing backache, lumbago, aching limbs and rheumatism. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are particularly prized by aged people because they can be relied upon to invigorate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and so remove the cause of pains and aches

CHURCHILL CAUGHT.

Escaped Pickpocket Is In Jail at Butte, Mont.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—Harry Churchill with innumerable aliases, and one of the first pickpockets of the United States, is once more under arrest, and will be extradicted to Canada. Churchill is one of the seven who escaped from Toronto jail July 17, 1908, and is wanted here for picking the pocket of a Chicago architect on the G.T.R. sleeper between North Bay and Toronto. He had been indicted by the grand jury and was awaiting trial at the sessions when he made his escape.

Churchill was arrested Oct. 7, at Butte, Mont., for a like offence, and is there awaiting his trial, and it is doubtful whether the Montana authorities will not insist on trying him, and having him serve out his sentence there should he be convicted. but failing this, County Crown Attorney H. L. Drayton will make every effort to have him brought back to face his trial here.

This is the second time that Churchill is known to have been in custody since his sensational jail delivery. Nearly a year ago he was arrested at Dallas, Texas, but had been allowed to go before the Toronto authorities were aware that he had been taken.

Of the seven who escaped, two are now in Canadian prisons, Alexander Ross is serving a life sentence in Kingston, having been brought back from West Virginia by Inspector of Detectives Duncan, and Robert Snow was taken in the city, and is now serving in the Central Prison.

At the time that Ross was arrested in West Virginia, James Clark and William D. Jones were also arrested there, and were sent to Newcastle, Pa., where they were wanted for escaping from the Pennsylvania Penitentiary previous to their coming to Canada.

Edward Lee, the only other member of the escaping septette heard from since the jail delivery is now wanted for murder, it being said that he is the man who shot a constable who was attempting his arrest at Niagara Falls, N.Y., John Copeland, the seventh man has never been heard of since the escape.

Dreadnought Plans Gone.

London, Oct. 29.—Discussing a recent rumor in the House of Commons yesterday, Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, admitted that confidential drawings having to do with the construction of the Dreadnought cruiser Indomitable, had disappeared.

He added, however, that as the battleship had been in commission for some time the missing plans had lost much of their value.

The loss of the sketches has resulted in the usual suggestion that they have found their way into the hands of the German Government, but so far as known this is a surmise purely.

Judge Censures Jury.

Goshen, N.Y., Oct. 29.—After considering the case for twelve hours a jury yesterday acquitted Frank Perry, who was charged with the murder of Scanlon Carminio. Perry was held to answer another charge of murder.

When the jury announced its verdict Justice Morschauser expressed himself in strong terms of disapproval and dismissed them from the courtroom, saying: "I do not see how you can face your townsmen. If verdicts like this are to be rendered by juries upon such evidence as was presented in this case, then neither life nor property will be safe."

Police Catch Two Burglars.

Kingston, Oct. 29.—Augustus Wilkinson and William Bermingham, young married men, were committed for trial for burglary at R. J. Carson's wholesale grocery. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning the police were given a tip that two men came out of the grocery with bundles and hid them in the rear of St. Andrew's Church, across the road. Three policemen waited twenty minutes and got the men, who had cigarettes and cigars valued at $66.

Vault Door Fell Off.

Kingston, Oct. 29.—Postmaster James Stewart and Arthur Ellis, architect, were injured at the postoffice yesterday afternoon, when a new vault was being put into the office. The postmaster tried to open the door, which, as it swung, loosened from its bearings and fell, knocking Ellis down. His escape from death was miraculous. He had severe cuts about the head and body. Stewart, in endeavoring to save Ellis, suffered severe cuts in both arms.

Badly Hurt In Student Scrap.

Kingston, Oct. 29.—In a hustle between sophomores and freshies at Queen's Medical College, E. H. Hardeman, freshman, of Fort William, was kicked in the head. Concussion of the brain is feared, but he is doing nicely at the hospital.

Refused Amputation, Dies.

Waskada, Man., Oct. 29.—David Jack, aged 33, married, and with two children, injured by a gunshot wound in the wrist last Friday while duck shooting, and who refused to have his arm amputated, died yesterday.

Schools Perturb France.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The Government is preparing a bill for the protection of teachers, who are subjected to persecution by Catholic parents and religious committees, which are forming throughout the republic.

Good-Bye to Sir John.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The Canadian Club yesterday said farewell to Sir John Hanbury Williams, for five years military secretary to Earl Grey. Sir Percy Fitzgerald gave an address on South Africa.

Want Ontario's Help.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—Premier Whitney has wired the executive committee of the Winnipeg Centennial Exposition that the Ontario Government will receive a delegation from here on Nov. 5.

Half an Acre of Potatoes Stolen.

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 29.—Richard Duesberry planted half an acre of potatoes near Albert College, and hoed them thrhugh the summer. When he went yesterday to dig the potatoes they were all gone.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—United States Markets Generally Slow and Steady.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—London cables for cattle are higher, at 13c to 13¾c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¾c to 10¾c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—The three railways reported 164 carloads of live stock at the city market on Wednesday and Thursday, comprising 2509 cattle, 3619 hogs, 2532 sheep and lambs, 211 calves, and 4 horses.

Exporters.

A few export bulls were bought at $4 to $4.50 per cwt. Extra choice quality bulls would bring a little more money.

Butchers.

There were a few odd cattle, of prime quality which if sold alone, would have brought $5.25, but they were few in number.

George Rowntree, who bought 200 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Co., reported prices as follows: Butchers, steers and heifers, $4 to $5.10; cows, $4 to $4.40; bulls, $2.90 to $4.40.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports a quiet, steady trade for feeders, the market for them was not as brisk as the fat cattle, that is, there was not the same life, and prices were certainly not any higher, altho all of good quality was readily taken at unchanged quotations. Mr. Murby bought 350 cattle and quotes prices as follows: Best steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $4 to $4.50; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.50 to $3.90; good stockers, 500 to 700 lbs. each, at $2.75 to $3.25; common stockers, $2 to $2.25.

Milkers and Springers.

A fair supply, but not enough, of good milkers, and forward springers met a ready market at prices as high as at any time this season. Prices ranged from $45 to $75 each; of course there were few that brought the latter figure, but several sold up to the $70 mark. There were also a lot of late springers and common cows that sold at lower quotations than those given above.

Veal Calves.

There was a strong market for veal calves at prices ranging generally between $3 and $6.50 per cwt., and very few choice calves brought $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

A fair delivery of sheep and lambs sold at firmer prices as follows: Export ewes, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; rams, $2.50 to $3 per cwt.; lambs ranged all the way from $5.25 for light, common quality to $5.90 for selected lots.

Hogs.

Receipts on the railways from all sources were reported at 3619 for the two days. Prices were quoted about steady at $7.75 to $7.80 for selects fed and watered, and $7.50 to $7.65 f.o.b. cars at country points.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 28.—Cattle—Receipts 100 head; slow and steady; prime steers, $6.65 to $7.

Veals—Receipts 100 head; fairly active and steady.

Hogs—Receipts 4800 head; fairly active and 10c to 15c lower; heavy and mixed, $7.90 to $8; yorkers, $7.50 to $7.85; pigs, $6 to $7.50; roughs, $7 to $7.25.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 5000 head; slow; ewes and mixed sheep, 10c lower; lambs 20c lower; lambs, $5 to $5.85; ewes, $4.25 to $4.40; sheep mixed, $3 to $4.90; Canada lambs, $5.60 to $5.75.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Beeves—Receipts 1235; no sales; feeling steady. Dressed beef slow at 9c to 11½c for native sides. Texas beef at 7c to 8c.

Calves—Receipts 363; very little doing; feeling weak. A few veals sold at 9c to 10.50; culls, $8; dressed calves slow; city dressed veals, 8c to 11c; country dressed, do., 9½c to 12½c; dressed grassers at 6c to 8c.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 6000; market dull and unchanged. Sheep, $3 to $4.25; a few at $4.75; culls, $3; lambs, $5.75 to $7.25.

Hogs—Receipts 1670; feeling steady.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Cattle—Receipts 9000; market steady; Steers, $5.60 to $9.10; cows, $3.50 to $5.25; heifers, $3.40 to $6; bulls, $3 to $4.60; calves, $3 to $8.75; stockers and feeders, $3.75 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts 15,000; market steady to 5c higher; choice heavy, $7.90 to $8; butchers, $7.85 to $8; light mixed, $7.80 to $7.90; choice light, $7.60 to $7.80; packing, $7.65 to $7.80; pigs, $5 to $7.35; bulk of sales, $7.70 to $7.85.

Sheep—Receipts 20,000; market steady; sheep, $3 to $4.25; lambs, $4 to $7; yearlings, $5.60 to $5.25.

Sugar Directors as Sports.

New York, Oct. 29.—John E. Parsons, counsel for the American Sugar Refining Co., is quoted as saying that he and his fellow directors, indicted in the Pennsylvania Sugar Co. conspiracy cases, will not take advantage of the statute of limitations as construed by Judge Hold of the United States Circuit Court. "It would not show good sporting blood for us to take shelter behind this technicality. We'll fight the thing out," he says.

To Probe Hestia Wreck.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 29.—Captain Lugar, deputy commissioner of wrecks, left yesterday for St. John, to hold an enquiry into the wreck of the Donaldson steamer Hestia.

To Remove Bridge Debris.

Ottawa, Oct 29.—The Government is calling for tenders for the removal of the debris of the old Quebec bridge from the south shore, where the collapse occurred.

TAYLOR'S TUB TALKS

How Common Soaps Ruin Clothes

Ordinary yellow soaps eat the texture of dainty lingerie and household linen. You must rub harder to get out the dirt—and that, too, wears out the clothes. So even if these poor soaps cost less, they would be more expensive to use.

Taylor's Borax Soap is made of cocoanut oil and borax, but the price is the same as for soap made of cheap, harmful materials. One cake goes as far as any two ordinary soaps.

TUB TALK No. 3

To wash fine lace curtains, first brush out as much dust as possible with a soft whisk broom. Then baste each curtain carefully upon an old piece of muslin a little larger in size than the curtains, tacking each scallop firmly in place. Make a strong suds with Taylor's Borax Soap and warm water, and let the curtain soak in this for about half an hour. Then squeeze gently with the hand until clean; (do not rub) rinse, starch and spread perfectly straight on the floor or other smooth surface, fastening the muslin down firmly with small brads. When perfectly dry carefully remove the basting threads and the curtains will appear like new.

FRICTION BETWEEN PEDAGOGUES LEADS TO A STORMY MEETING

Teachers of Havelock School Had Different Ideas of Discipline---Matter Aired at Meeting of Board and a Subsequent Fight Was Narrowly Averted.

(Havelock Standard.)

The regular October meeting of the School Board was held on Wednesday night of last week, when about forty citizens were present, as a result of a "tip" that the meeting would prove to be out of the ordinary humdrum affair. The "tip" was a good one, as the meeting was productive of debates on certain questions which provoked strenuous remarks from the participants and was nearly the cause of two fisticuff encounters afterwards.

The chairman then enquired as to the cause of a reported disagreement between the principals of the public and continuation schools. Mr. Nelson intimated that there was no disagreement, but Mr. Baker promptly settled the point when he declared that there had been friction between them on matters of discipline, which he stated was "rank" and the worst he had witnessed in years. Mr. Nelson denied Mr. Baker's statements flatly and upheld the discipline of the school, stating that it was as good as could be expected with such a large school. His remarks in turn were contradicted by Mr. Baker, and these two gentlemen grew quite wrathy in endeavouring to present their views in the best light. Dr. Holdcroft, Mr. Innis and Mr. Knox also had a few remarks to make on the situation, and Trustee Kindred was of the opinion that if the principals could not "get together" and work properly, that he was in favour of having one principal who would control the whole school.

The Board then adjourned.

After the meeting two fisticuff encounters were narrowly averted between parties whose intense zeal in presenting their views on the matter nearly led them into a question of the survival of the fittest.

MUSIC PUPILS OF THE CONVENT GAVE A SPLENDID RECITAL

Presentation of Medals and Testimonials to Winners at Recent Midsummer Examinations by Rev. Father McColl.

AN EXCELLENT CONCERT

The annual recital of the music pupils of St. Mary's Convent, and presentation of medals and testimonials was held last evening in St. Peter's Hall, a large number of the parents and friends being present. The piano playing of the young people was remarkably clever and reflected great credit on the ability of the music teachers of St. Mary's Convent, Sisters Theodosia and Mercedes. Each number was well received, probably the most popular one being the toy Symphony. The singing of Miss Helen McCarthy in her humorous number "Father Will Settle the Bill," was very pleasing, and an encore was demanded. She responded with a solo "Always Me."

Presentation of Medals.

Following the excellent programme the presentation of medals and testimonials was made by Rev. Father McColl, who spoke in congratulatory terms of the excellent results achieved by the pupils.

The winners were as follows:

Medal for Christian Doctrine, in Senior 4th class, presented by Mr. Wm. Rudkins, obtained by Miss Mary O'Brien.

1st Prize for Christian Doctrine in Senior 4th class, presented by Rev. W. J. McColl, won by Miss Florence Leahy.

Second prize for Christian Doctrine, in Junior 4th class, presented by Rev. Father McColl, won by Miss Mary Galvin.

Silver medal, presented by Mr. John H. Burnham for highest standing, at the entrance examination in Boys' School, awarded to Master Arthur Primeau.

Silver medal, presented by Mr. McClelland for highest standing in English at the entrance examination, in Girls' Separate School, obtained by Miss Pearl Wilder.

Prize for first-class honours in Primary Violin, highest standing of all the College of Music centres, awarded to Master Vincent McCabe.

BAND CONCERT AT ARMOURIES TO-NIGHT

To-night's promenade band concert in the Armouries promises to be an enjoyable sequel to the summer programmes in Victoria Park. A feature will be a new selection composed by Bandmaster Gliddon, which a number of the bandsmen state is very fine. Walter Hughes has returned to Peterborough and will, no doubt, receive a warm reception from his many admirers. The programme has been carefully selected and in addition, Messrs. McIlroy and Halpany will be heard in two vocal numbers. The band is requested to meet in the band room at 7.30 sharp for particular business.

OBITUARY

MICHAEL O'DONNELL.

The death occurred this morning at 10.30 at his late residence, 215 King-St., of Mr. Michael O'Donnell after a lengthy illness. He was 65 years of age and was born in Glen of Aherlow, Tipperary, Ireland. He came to Peterborough fifty-five years ago and was well known and highly respected. He leaves a wife and thre sons to mourn his loss. They are Edward, at home, and James and John in the United States. One brother, Wm. O'Donnell, in Chicago, is also left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for bath or toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

Ran Out of Funds in Europe and Had to be Helped Home With Government Funds—Fifty-one Received Temporary Aid.

THE FUND IS SMALL

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The annual report of Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner in London, for the last fiscal year, has been issued by the Interior Department. He says that during the year twenty-eight Canadians, who for various causes became destitute in Europe, were provided with return passages. Fifty-one were given temporary aid, while to eleven aid was refused. Lord Strathcona remarks that the fund provided by the Government for this work is very small, and it has to be distributed with the greatest of care.

DELIGHTED WITH THE WELSH CHOIR

Ottawa Journal Speaks Highly of Their Singing.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Numerous singing organizations have in the past visited Ottawa, but undoubtedly none have ever equalled the Royal Welsh Ladies' choir in perfection of chorus singing or solo work. The choir is composed of some twenty voices and a programme of exceptional merit was given. The voices are apparently selected with the greatest care and in the ensemble work sang with the precision and perfection of some sweet musical instrument played by a master hand. The volume of sound the twenty voices were at times able to produce was surprising. One remarkable characteristic of these Welsh singers was the perfection of their enunciation. The Choir will be heard in Peterborough next Wednesday at the Conservatory of Music Hall.

WAS SHOPLIFTING

Young Man Walked Into Jewellery Store and Carried Away Hat Pin.

David Cottrell of Campbellford was charged with shop lifting at the police court this morning, having entered Milburn's Jewellery store yesterday and walked away with a lady's valuable hat pin. He stated that he did not know that he had committed the theft, having been under the influence of liquor at the time. He worked in the Trent Valley Woollen Mills and had come up here for a holiday. He promised His Worship to leave for Campbellford by the first train.

PRAYER MEETINGS

Three Will be Held This Evening at Different Houses.

Three District Prayer meetings will be held this evening at eight o'clock in connection with the approaching revival to be held in St. Paul's, St. Andrew's and Knox Churches, commencing on next week. The Prayer meeting will be held at Mrs. G. Hopson's, 188 Edinburgh street, Miss Dunlop's, 482 Water street, and Mrs. Davidson's, 567 Aylmer street.

To-morrow morning at half past nine a confecence of the gentlemen who will conduct this revival and leading men in the Presbytery will be held. The public is invited to this meeting.

HOME FOR FAMILY

Thos. Turner Has "Made Good" Here and Will Bring out His Wife and Children.

Thos. Turner, a sail worker in the employ of J. J. Turner & Sons, left yesterday for London, Eng., and will return shortly, bringing his wife and family with him.

Three years ago Mr. Turner came to Canada and during his stay here has been successful as is shown by the fact that he is going to bring his family to this country. His old home is at Ramsgate, Kent, to which he will likely bid a long farewell when he returns to Canada.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

A Hallowe'en masquerade part will be held to-night at the Y.M.C.A. The affair will undoubtedly be a success and the young ladies are invited to attend and make the evening even more enjoyable. A programme that is bound to please has been mapped out in keeping with the festive occasion of All Hallows.

GIRLS HURT AT SCHOOL

Chemicals Explode During Chemistry Class at Smith's Falls School—One Girl May Lose Sight of an Eye.

A VERY LOUD REPORT

Smith's Falls, Ont., Oct. 29.—While an experiment was being conducted in the laboratory of the High School here yesterday, the chemicals with which the students were working exploded, resulting in very serious injury to Miss Ethel Cains. The tube she was holding burst, and she was struck full in the face by the flying particles of glass. One penetrated her eye, and it was cut so badly that the pupil spread all over the ball. It is thought she will lose the sight of that eye. Her face was cut in several places, but not seriously.

Another student, Miss Minnie Condie who was working with her, received a gash in her arm from a piece of glass and her clothing was badly burned by the chemicals.

The flying glass went in all directions, and there was great excitement in the form when the accident occurred.

NEW BATTERY

Will Likely be Used in Fire Alarm Electrical System.

Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water & Light committee, has in hand a proposition which will mean a saving of considerable money to the city. It is in connection with the fire alarm system. While at the Fire Chiefs' convention in Grand Rapids last summer, he made special inquiries as to the best battery system to use, and he found that all the chiefs who had tried the dry battery with the storage system were unanimous in pronouncing it the best in every way.

The system used here calls for a great deal of work in looking after it and considerable expense for supplies. This will be done away with if the dry battery is installed.

Ald. Buller is now looking into the cost of the change and he will bring it before his committee in the near future. He proposes to adopt a similar system as is used by the Bell Telephone Company, or perhaps try to arrange with that Company for the power.

RARE SPECIMENS OF DUCKS FROM BRITISH COLUMBIA

Mr. Kenneth Shook recently returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast, bringing with him a male of the Harlequin duck, a very rare species. This duck is classified as among the fauna of Ontario, but none has ever been known to be seen here. It is found in the Hudson Bay district and apparently prefers a far north habitat. Its presence in British Columbia and its capture by Mr. Shook is probably explainable by the fact that he secured it on its migration, "caught it on the fly," as it were. The duck has been left with Mr. E. Elcome, Taxidermist, for mounting.

DESTROYED BY FIRE

Hunters' Shanty Burned Down a Few Days Ago.

A hunter's lodge between Cold and Gold Lakes in Anstruther township, owned by Messrs. Wm. Snowden, T. Rutherford and a number of other local gentlemen was burned down a few days ago. The lodge was a most comfortable and well built shanty and was occupied each year by men from this city who went back to hunt and fish.

CLOSE LIFT LOCK NOV. 26

Navigation on the Trent Canal for the Season of 1909 Has Practically Come to an End—Boats are Being Tied Up.

AN EXTRA BUSY SEASON

Navigation on the Trent Canal for the season of 1909 is rapidly drawing to a close and a week from to-morrow, Saturday, November 6, the hydaulic lift lock will be closed for the year thus putting an end to navigation between Peterborough and the upper lakes.

Nearly all the steamers of the district are now in winter quarters. All three of the Stony Lake Navigation Company's steamers, the Stony Lake, Empress and Majestic are through for the season and are laid up at Young's Point. A few tugs are still bringing wood down the canal but with the closing of the lift lock next week this week will have to cease until next spring.

The traffic over the lock all season has been very heavy both of passenger boats and freight craft and the number of lockages gives a faint idea of the conditions when the Trent Canal is opened for navigation along its entire length from the Bay of Quinte to Georgian Bay. It is expected that the Bay of Quinte terminus will be completed in two years.

"GIRLS" HERE ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Clyde Fitch's Funniest and Most Successful Comedy to Visit the Grand Under the Direction of the Shuberts.

"Girls," the Clyde Fitch comedy that created more laughs during its long run at Daly's theatre, New York, than any similar play in years, and which was produced by Sam S. and Lee Shubert, and now on tour under their management, will be seen at the "Grand" next Wednesday, Nov. 3rd. The mere announcement that this famous success will be seen here should arouse the greatest interest among all lovers of what is good in the dramatic world. "Girls" comes here with the same high class presenting company these producing managers are noted for. The play deals with three bachelor girls who have taken a solemn oath never to associate with men. One is a confirmed man-hater, who convinces her companions that her theories are right, but not without some effort. The girls are out of work and occupy one room, which they name their studio. The first act shows this room and the girls about to retire for the night. One occupies a folding bed, one a divan, and the other a Morris chair converted into a bed. There is just enough realism to make it convincing. Visions of pink toes peeping out from under the coverlet of the imprisoned Morris chair bed until their owner calls to her companions to "tuck" her in, is but one of the delightful little bits of realism in this charming play.

CHEMONG IS NOW ALMOST DESERTED

Only Two Cottages are Occupied—News Items From Bridgenorth.

Examiner Special.

Bridgenorth, Oct. 29.—William and Noble Kelly are away on a trip up to their new limits at South River.

The Kelly Bros. saw is still cutting shingles. They also have been bringing down a lot of good hardwood from Ball Lake.

The farmers are busy getting in their turnips and the crop is a good one, and the potatoes are an excellent crop.

Mr. George Bell has a modern sawing machine. He has placed his gasoline engine on a pair of trucks and has arranged a saw, so that he has the whole outfit on the trucks, which saves unloading and it can be drawn from one pile to another. He has at present many orders on hand.

Chemong Park has only two cottages occupied at the present time, and everything in the village is quiet as the farmers are behind with their plowing, and there is not much doing on the roads in the line of hauling out grain as it can be done after the weather freezes up.

COLLAPSES SEVERAL TIMES IN TELLING HER AWFUL STORY

Mrs. Robinson Tells of the Murder of Her Husband's Children---Case for the Crown in the Sudbury Case Has Been Completed and the Defence Has No Witnesses to Examine.

From The Examiner's Own Correspondent.

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 29.—The evidence of Mrs. Robinson, wife of the prisoner who stands charged with murder of his daughters' children, completed the case of crown this morning and at once Mr. McKeesock began his address to the jury. The defence having no witnesses to examine. The unhappy women herself, under sentence of death, presented a most pitiable appearance as she told her story in the witness box. She looked ten years older than at the time of her own trial. Several times during her examination she collapsed. She had smothered the first child born to Ellen she said, because her husband said she must.

Jessie's child, born afterward, had been similarly smothered while her husband was attending to his work.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY WAS HELD LAST NIGHT

There was a good meeting of the Peterborough Historical Society held last night in the Y.M.C.A. parlours and the society has got off to a good start. The course of lectures given last year were very popular and much new interest was aroused in the work so that this year the prospects are very bright.

It is the intention to have another course of lectures this winter and the executive committee has the preliminary arrangements in hands. They will confer with the Astronomical Society and other organizations for the purpose of securing dates that will not unnecessarily conflict with lectures under the auspices of these organizations. As soon as possible a program will be prepared and it is expected that a number of first-class speakers will be brought here to give addresses on historical subjects.

A financial statement was presented to the meeting and it was satisfactory. For the coming season's work, however, the funds are short and an effort will be made at once to replenish the exchequer. This is a very worthy and noble object and there should be no trouble in securing a good subscription.

The society is also looking for a permanent place for meeting and in which to hold their lectures which will be of public interest.

There was a general discussion of the work of the society and of the museum which is making considerable headway, and which is one of the interesting places in the city.

One of the chief objects of the meeting was to reorganise for the season and the following officers were elected:—

Hon. President—Mr. Richard Hall.
President—Mr. T. A. S. Hay.
Vice-Presidents — Messrs Corrigall and Elcombe and Dr. Burnham.
Secretary—Mr. W. J. Dunlop.

An executive committee was also appointed.

District Convention Of W. M. S. Of The Methodist Church

The annual district convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church was held in Lakefield yesterday. There were representatives from the Charlotte St., Mark St. and George St. churches of Peterborough and the Millbrook, Bridgenorth, Warsaw, Bethel and North Bensfort churches. The general tenor of the convention was one of satisfaction with the results of the past year and a renewed enthusiasm to continue the strong efforts put forth throughout this district. Mrs. J. K. Moore occupied the chair. Mrs. Lightfoot, of Charlotte St. church acted as secretary. The report of the financial department showed the following givings of the various churches—George St. $404.85, Mark St. $81.57, Charlotte St. $[illegible].39, Bridgenorth $61.18, Lakefield $102.76, Warsaw $100 Bensfort $35, Bethel $9.58, Fairview $55.51, Millbrook $45.00. At the afternoon session Mrs. (Rev.) Bedford and Mrs. Bravender, of Lakefield, and Mrs. J. Caryle, of Peterborough, led in prayer. After a reading by Miss Lttie Middleton and a vocal solo by Miss Andrews, Mrs. (Rev.) Rogers, of Millbrook, gave an address on the Present Outlook in China. Miss Davis and Mrs. Throop, of Mark St. church gave addresses on "How to conduct Mission bands successfully." Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, Mrs. Jas. Kendry and Miss Byam gave helpful hints in the same line. Miss Udy's address on "Systematic Giving," was one of the best of the day and was replete with good ideas. Mrs. (Rev.) Geo. W. Henderson spoke on How to Interest Women in Missions and held the attention of the meeting by the manner in which she dealt with this important question. Greetings were received from the W. M. S. of the Anglican and Presbyterian churches.

Mrs. Jas. Kendry conducted the Question Drawer. In the evening Miss Brooks, who has seen extensive missionary servie, gave an address as did Rev. H. J. Keith.

HAS THREE WIVES AND IS PROUD OF FACT

London Man Pleads Guilty to Charge of Non-Supporting Number Three.

Examiner Special:

London, Oct. 29.—That W. G. Thompson, alias Cornelius Bloomfield has three wives, came in police court this morning when he appeared on a charge of non-supporting of wife number 3. Under the name of Bloomfield he was married for the first time to Ailsa Craig in 1893. Four years ago he married Mrs. Holmes, of this city, and more recently wed a young girl Helen Raney, also of London. He dazzled the Raney girl with tales of wealth and promised her fine home and lots of money. He gave his age as 40 years, but looks 60 or 65. He pleaded guilty to charge of non-support but will be held for bigamy. Instead of realizing the seriousness of his position Thompson seems proud of his ability to charm the fair sex.

HELP SCARCITY

Farmers Unable to Secure Labourers to Do Work.

Farmers need help very badly now, and they are unable to secure men at any price. Work in the country is now finishing up for the year and the farmers are busily engaged in drawing in roots and the fall plowing is at its height. Everybody is working hard to "finish up" while the weather is favourable and the farmers are anxious to secure extra help to hurry the work. Wages are tempting enough but the farmers state that there are but few idle men at least there are but few who want to work.

WEDDING BELLS

ROBINSON—QUINLAN.

A pretty, though quiet wedding was solemnized on Thursday, Oct. 28th, in Lakefield, when Rev. Father Phelan united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. William Robinson, of Bobcaygeon and Miss Minnie Quinlan, daughter of Mr. Robert Quinlan, of Lakefield. The bride looked charming in a suit of rose coloured lady's cloth with hat to match. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Edna Cassidy, of Peterborough, while Mr. Robert Quinlan, brother of the bride, supported the groom. After the ceremony was performed the bridal party drove to Peterborough, where a dainty wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Thomas Cassidy, 289 Reid street. Mr. Robinson, who is Captain of the Steamer Manita, received with his wife many congratulations from their friends. They left on the evening train for Toronto.

Mrs. Robinson was the recipient of many handsome presents.

GREATER BRANTFORD.

It's a toss-up whether Brantford should be prouder of the Expositor or the Expositor prouder of Brantford. "The Expositor's Greater Brantford" number is a triumph of printing compilation and concentration of b om, whose superior has never found its way to the Examiner office—something in which the skill, art, good 'udgment and local patriotism it displays could not have been accomplished without having a live, go-ahead enterprising and beautiful city like Brantford as a purveyer of material. The Expositor's special number, special in a magnificent way is a book with a 12 x 16 inch page, and a round hundred of pages, with artistically elegant cloth back cover in colours. It is impracticable to treat of it in detail, but it generally deals in letter-press and picture, with every aspect of Brantford's civic, ecclesiastical, educational, and industrial interests and institutions. The typography is practically perfect, in execution, as well as design. The headings to general subjects or departments are special, original and artistic. A brilliant feature is the illustrations, which are exceedngly numerous, and presented with all the clearness of a photograph. The double-page groups of photogravaeurs—those picturing the industrial establishments of Brantford, "The men Who Run the Factories" and "A City of Handsome Homes," are triumphs of artistically effective grouping. There are hundreds of photogravure illustrations apparently special for this number and beautifully printed. The Expositor's Greater Brantford number is a credit, not only to the Expositor itself, but to Canadian skill in book making and illustrating, and, which is high praise, worthy of the lively city, whose material and moral enterprise and achievements it so graphically illustrates.

SCHOOL PENNY BANKS.

The Examiner has received the fourth annual report of the Penny Bank of Toronto, an institution which is devoted to the reception and care of small savings and incidentally to the creation of habits that tend to develop one of the most essential faculties of personal equipment for the greatest usefulness in the world, and the greatest success in life—thrift. The balance sheet shows that in the branches in Toronto there are on deposit $24,502.78, and that in the school penny banks of the province—ten in number—there are deposits to the credit of pupils amounting to $67,773. Of these Port Hope's credit is $1,191.70, while the average for the ten towns, all, except Ottawa, smaller and less important places than Peterborough is $8,060. During the year new branches have been opened in Ottawa, the city of London, and Brampton, Bowmanville, West Toronto and Erlscourt.

There is no need of argument to illustrate the success of the Penny Bank in schools, where it has been tried. It will be remembered that, last year the directors visited several towns and cities, addressing meetings of trustees and teachers, and among them Peterborough was favoured. According to the report in all the places visited branches have been opened in the public schools, except only those of Peterborough, whose Board has shown less appreciation than other les enterprising places.

It isunderstood that the teachers in antagonizing the proposal, take the position that the addition of a savings bank system would add to the already over-burdened curriculum of our public schools. It is to be admitted that there is force in this objection, but the objection should be swept aside. The Board of Education and the teachers should spend a moment in considering an intelligent answer to the question—with what object are our schools maintained? Would not the answer be to equip pupils for successfully filling their place and making their way in the world. We prepare our children to fight the battle of life and begin with withholdholding the ammunition. Money is the prime essential to material success in life and, rightly regarded and used, is an essential means to happiness and to moral, intellectual, and social culture, all elements in a life of happiness and greatest usefulness. Mere making of money is one of the most sordid of human acts; the proper use and care of it is one of the most important and beneficient of human arts. Nine-tenths of the misery and wretchedness, of the poverty in the world are due to lack of practice of habits of thrift, the right use of money. Great as is the progress of Canada it would be infinitely greater if the mass of the people were endowed with the quality of thrift and saving, such as school penny banks are designed to develop, and will, if employed, develop. Thirty years ago France, by the stroke of war, was prostrated in the dust of defeat, and weighted down with a war indemnity that would have crushed for centuries any other nation. But France had within her the springs of national resiliency. Her people, her thrifty peasantry, all classes opened their savings banks and placed their "economies" on the altar of their country, and saved their country. A war indemnity of a thousand million dollars was paid without borrowing a centime, outside of France; and the country rose like a giant, refreshed with new wine. Her national thrift was her salvation; she was saved by a variant of our penny banks in schools.

Sir Richard Cartwright devised and the Government has applied the grandest act of national economics upon our statute books, that establishing the old age annuities system. That system, if generally adopted, will make Canada one of the strongest financial countries in the world, the most self contained, and most independent. But its success depends upon its general acceptance by the people, and that acceptance depends upon the lessons taught in our schools. If our children are indoctrinated with the principles of the value of thrift, if they are helped to form habits of saving through penny banks in the schools, the next generation will take its place in the world strong in the elements and armed with the habit that involve the highest philosophy of life—making the most of our means and opportunities—that will make the best bread-winners of our boys and, of our girls, the most capable custodians of the bread they win.

The teachers have no time to teach their pupils how to live and take their places in the ranks of the most desirable citizenship! If the time is wanting, eliminate—"cut out" in the argot of the hour—the comparatively useless subjects, and include the most important in its moral tendencies, and immediate material profit. The object of building and maintaining streets is to make them comfortable and convenient for those who use them. The object of spending nearly $77,000 a year upon our educational institutions is to prepare pupils for taking their place in the world of action and responsibility. If, in the first case, money is spent without reaching the object—providing good streets—it is wasted; equally money spent and time and teaching used without reference to providing the most important essential, instincts of saving and habits of thrift, is equally wasted in relation especially to the obect to be gained.

"IT SEEMED LIKE THROWING MONEY AWAY

Until I Tried Gin Pills."

Mr. P. Fitzgerald was completely disheartened. He had suffered so long with his Kidneys, and spent so much money on doctors without relief, that he had made up his mind he could not be cured.

Then, he chanced to read about the wonderful cures by Gin Pills, the great Kidney Remedy, and sent for a sample. The pills did him so much good that he immediately bought two full size boxes. And these two boxes of Gin Pills made him feel like another man.

But let Mr. Fitzgerald tell his own story of a really remarkable cure.

Provincial Asylum, Orillia
June 18th.

I have much pleasure in stating that the sample, which you sent me, led me to buy two boxes of Gin Pills from a local druggist. They are the best remedy for Uric Acid Trouble that I have ever tried. I must say that before using Gin Pills, I had undergone a long and expensive course of treatment by eminent specialists of Chicago. They did me no good—it seemed like throwing money away.

I still keep a box of Gin Pills on hand and take one occasionally. I am pleased to recommend them and bear testimony to their efficacy.

P. FITZGERALD.

After reading such a letter as this, you simply can't doubt the value of Gin Pills in cases of Kidney and Bladder Trouble. If you are a sufferer, write the National Drug & Chemical Co., Dept. B, Toronto, for a free sample of Gin Pills and try them at our expense. After you have seen for yourself just what Gin Pills will do, buy the full size box at your dealer's, and remember that Gin Pills are sold with a positive guarantee of a cure or money refunded. 17

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. John Cowe, of Hiawatha, is another entry in the big potato contest. He submits a potato that comes within an ounce of the weight of the McGregor tuber of Hall's Bridge. Its weight is 2 lbs. 8 oz. But it is not an all-potato like the McGregor. It has a big central body to which an attached four pro-tuber-ances, so that there is some ground for contention that it is not one potato, but five potatoes—not a single potato, but a litter.

SLIGHTLY UNFAIR.

Winnipeg Free Press.

It is unlike Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition, and a startling lapse from his customary fairness that he should say, as he did in his speech at Halifax:

"To one thus returning from the mother country the question naturally presents itself: how shall we stand in the future within this empire? Shall we, as Mr. Goldwin Smith desires and predicts, become part of the great American republic, or shall we follow the aspirations of Sir Wilfrid Laurier who hopes and believes that Canada will sever her connection with the British empire as a ripe apple drops from a tree?"

Mr. Borden knows, as every other Canadian knows, including the editors of the Toronto Mail and Empire and the Toronto News, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's whole aim since he has governed Canada has been towards closer union with Great Britain, and that he has done more for Imperial unity than any other statesman, living or dead. Mr. Borden cannot cite a word or an act in the life of Sir Wilfrid which justifies the words quoted above from the Halifax speech of the Conservative leader.

SIR WILFRID DISCUSSES BRITISH CONSTITUTION

Shows Development of Constitutional Liberty and Demonstrates Superiority of British Constitution—Contrast With That of United States.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not only a great orator, but a great student of political history and a keen analyst of its character and meaning. At the Women's Canadian Club luncheon at Montreal, Sir Wilfrid was the guest of honour and gave an address on "British and American Constitution—a contrast."

Sir Wilfrid was in good form, and gave an excellent address upon his favourite topic. He paid a glowing tribute to the elasticity and adaptability of the British constitution, pointing out that it was more democratic and representative than that of the neighbouring republic. The British constitution had never been congealed into writing, but was a living flexible thing, always growing so that it could adapt itself to the varying needs of the nation. Yet so strong and solid was it that while it had grown by evolution, the other nations of the world, after centuries of revolution and fighting, had modelled their constitutions largely upon it. It was perhaps not perfect, but it was undoubtedly the most noble code of political wisdom ever devised by man for the government of man.

The Chaos of the Middle Ages.

Proceeding then to look at its historical aspect, Sir Wilfrid pointed out the chastie state of Europe after the fall of the Roman Empire, and the overrunning of the continent by the northern tribes, from which gradually developed the feudal period, to be followed in comparatively modern days by the present systems of government.

But while Europe was going through this period of despotism, Sir Wilfrid pointed out that the reverse conditions prevailed in England where all the efforts of the descendants of William the Conquerer to secure absolute power along European lines were met by the nobles and people with determined, unflinching and unconquerable resistance. The representative system gradually developed in England until it became crystalized in the Parliamentary system, the pride of British subjects all over the world, and the symbol of liberty, law and order the world over. (Applause.)

Struggle With the King.

This began with the determination of the people to insist upon the principle that in England the King should have no power to levy taxes upon his subjects except with their own consent. This led to long struggles between the Crown and the people until the time of Charles I., when Parliament forced upon the unwilling consent of the King a statute providing that no subsidy or tax could be imposed upon merchandise, either coming in or going from the country without the consent of Parliament. That was the first cardinal principle of the constitution, that the King could not tax without the consent of Parliament. Since then the power of Parliament has steadily has grown, and with its growth had come into existence the tradition that the Commons had the initiative and power in matters of finance, and that the Lords should not change such laws, a system long recognised.

The Legislative Power.

The second great principle of the constitution was that legislative power was not with the King, but with him and the Lords and Commons. This naturally led to the executive power. In any civilised nation the executive was with the Chief Magistrate, and in England the King was the Chief Magistrate. But the unique point was adopted, hitherto unknown, that in exercising this power the King must be subject to the will of Parliament. It was only in the first days of Queen Victoria that the principle of Ministers being directly responsible to Parliament as the representatives of the people was fully achieved by the Crown, so that to-day this third cardinal principle of the constitution was so fully recognized that the moment a want of confidence motion passed Parliament the Ministry must resign, while the Sovereign could not choose their successors, but they must be those whom Parliament desired.

Service of the Aristocracy.

But Sir Wilfrid pointed out that these cardinal points of free government were not gained altogether by the masses of the people, but by the Barons, the Lords and the aristocracy. "Therefore," said Sir Wilfrid, "all honour to the aristocracy of England. History does not record a class which has done better service to any State. Happy England, with its nobles of this century. Vital with the traditions of the past and the new principles of discussion and legislation, they stand as a vanguard of freedom and liberty."

Evolution of the Franchise.

From this Sir Wilfrid traced the growth of the franchise by gradual evolution, not revolution, through the various reform bills, until to-day the British constitution in the truest sense provided for the government of the people by the people themselves. Sir Wilfrid then proceeded to discuss the constitution of the United States, pointing out that after the revolutionary war the fathers of the republic incorporated, with few exceptions, the great principles of the British constitution, so far as they could apply to republican conditions.

"I am bound to say," remarked the Premier, "that where they departed from the constitution of the motherland they did not improve but weakened their condition. And I claim that the British constitution to-day is as elastic and compatible to the needs of the public and more democratic than the constitution of the American Republic."

More Elasticity Than in United States.

There was a great difference in the executive functions between the American and British Governments, Power was vested in the elective President, while there was no Ministerial responsibility, the power being absolutely beyond check or control during his four years of office. Neither Congress nor the people had power over him, so that if his course were considered wrong there was no power to set him right, as under British Parliamentary institutions. This was shown by the fact that one President could remain in office for months after the election of his successor, while under the system in Canada, a new Ministry would be sworn in within a few weeks of the election, if those in power had been defeated, which proved a much more elastic method of responding to the will of the people, and less liable to produce friction in times of danger.

The Federative Principle.

Proceeding, Sir Wilfrid said that in one way the United States system was superior to that of Great Britain, but not to that of Canada, which was a happy combination of both. This was in the adoption of the federative principle for the Union, with Governments for each State to look after their own affairs, and a Federal Government to look after that which equally concerned all. This was a counterpoise of overconcentration, from which the British Parliament suffered so much that from discussing one day matters of world import, they might have to take up a ditch in Ireland or a trifling matter in Wales. The adoption of such a system in Great Britain, he considered, would not only greatly relieve Parliament of a mass of detail, but once and for all end the Irish question.

After dealing with a number of details concerning the American Civil War and the leading figures of the nation at that time, Sir Wilfrid concluded.

"We thus see that Britain to-day under a King, is as much a democracy as the American Republic. We cannot hope that a democracy will be free from from those vices which are the lot of any nation—in fact we see these vices, corruption, envy, jealousy, and so on. But we may fairly hope that democratic institutions of both these great nations will be more and more impregnated with the larger virtues which have always been characteristic of both nations."

JACK JOHNSON AT NEW YORK
READY TO ARRANGE TERMS

Probabilities are That the Arrangements for the Big Battle Will be Completed To-day---Both Parties are Now in Gotham.

New York, Oct. 28.—"I am glad to get to New York. I have come all the way from San Francisco to meet Mr. Jeffries and sign articles for our battle, and I am willing to make the match under any fair conditions," said Jack Johnson, the big negro heavyweight, as he disembarked from the Twentieth Century Limited at the Grand Central station to-day. There was a big crowd on hand, including many of his dusky friends, to welcome Jeffries' rival. Johnson was accompanied by his manager, George Little, of Chicago. The two men had some difficulty in getting through the crowd which gathered along the station platforms and crowded and cheered the dusky champion.

Has Hopes.

Johnson grinned from ear to ear as the crowd gathered around and shook him by the hand and asked him about the fight with Jeffries.

"I hope to meet Jeffries at once, the sooner the better," said Johnson. "I never felt better, except the boil on my cheek bothers me some. I weigh about 205 pounds. How did I get the boil? I guess I have been living too high."

In a Hurry.

Speaking of the coming match with Jeffries, Johnson displayed an evident desire to have the articles signed right away, and the whole negotiations for the contest concluded.

"George Little, my manager, will see Sam Berger," said Johnson, "and arrange for a meeting. Of course, I shall be at the meeting, for Jeff and I can do more in five minutes to settle this matter than all the go-betweens can do in a day.

I am ready to abide by the conditions that I entered into with Berger in Chicago, except that I shall ask for a winner's and loser's division of the purse."

Different Division.

Johnson was dressed in a rather quiet fashion, except for a large sparkling gem in his necktie.

Jeffries was delighted when he heard that Johnson had arrived from Chicago, and said that he was ready at any time to arrnge terms. The exmaker of boilers put in some time this morning in gymnasium work.

George Little went at once to the hotel where Jeffries and his manager, Sam Berger, are staying, but was informed that the former champion and Berger were out. Little expressed surprise that Jeffries should not have remained to meet him, knowing that Johnson and Little would arrive to-day.

"We have cancelled five weeks' of theatrical engagements," said Little, "to come here and fix up this fight. I have left a note for Berger saying that Johnson and I will remain at our hotel all day to make the match. As to the $5,000 which I put up some time ago as a guarantee that Johnson would fight, I am willing to bet it at even money that Johnson wins, and, further, I will wager $20,000 more at the prevailing ringside odds that Jeffries is defeated.

"I understand that Jeffries spoke contemptuously of the pictures of the Johnson-Ketchel fight, and that he said it was a bout between a washerwoman and a boxer. If Jeffries thinks Ketchel fights like a washerwoman let him fight him, Ketchel has a terrible right hand."

Little then returned to the hotel where Johnson was registered. Johnson said he thought the fight would probably be held in California.

"I'm Feeling Fine"—Jeff.

"I'm feeling fine," said Jeffries the other day, with a good-natured smile. "In fact, I never felt better. I weigh 232 pounds now, but I was several pounds lighter two weeks ago. The increase in weight is due to the trip across the Atlantic, during which I could not keep up my daily vigorous exercise."

"When will you be ready to fight?"

"Some time in March or April. I know I can get in great trim by that time and I intend to be right, so there will be no slip-ups. I am ready to sign articles now. If Johnson was here this moment I'd put my name on paper to clinch the match, but that will be all fixed up in a few days.

"I had a great time on the other side," continued Jeffries. "I saw Jim Corbett in London, and he agreed with me that Johnson is overrated and a piece of punk."

RUGBY

The local rugbyists are putting in some stiff practises these evenings in anticipation of the struggle next Saturday with Peterborough. The Electric city papers are crowing lustily over the victory Monday, but the locals will spring a surprise on the Petes and will show them that Lindsay was a little off colour on Thanksgiving day. The citizens are urged to turn out on Saturday and encourage the boys in their efforts to bring victory and honour to the town. The team is deserving of every support.

CHIT-CHAT

On a recent auto trip into the country I saw this sign:

"Autos please go slowly.

School house 200 yards distant."

And in the 15 or 20 minutes that I insisted on waiting beside the sign to find out its effect not an auto disregarded it.

There was no threat of fine, no definite speed limit, simply the request and the reason set forth in such clear, large letters that no one could miss it.

What better thing could any Woman's Club do for its town or city than to safeguard all the playgrounds and schoolhouses by setting up such signs?

Here's what my last pair of shoes cost me," said one of my young friends holding up two ten dollars bills.

"What?" I gasped.

"Oh, she explained, "I didn't pay it to the shoemaker, but to the doctor.

"I tried to wear a pair of shoes that didn't fit and I ended with an inflamed foot that it took a specialist to straighten out."

Another woman whom I knew tried to wear a pair of shoes that were too short for her and threw her joint out. That was ten years ago. None of the treatment she tried did her any good. She will go through life with a misshapen foot.

The most economical thing to do with a pair of misfit shoes is to give them to some charity that will probably be able to find the feet to fit them.

Does your dressmaker-by-the-day come from some distance?

If she does, of course, you remember that an early arrival means a very early breakfast and do not let her fast until your noonday meal.

But some people, you know, are queer.

When mother took the customary crackers and glass of milk to our new seamstress she looked up gratefully.

"It isn't everybody that does that," she said.

We exp[illegible]ssed our astonishment.

"There's one place in this town that I go," she said, "where they have dinner at tw[illegible] They want me to get there by half-past seven and it takes an hour, so that means a six o'clock breakfast. I go there about once a week and they never yet have offered me a bite of lunch. It isn't because they aren't in the habit of eating between meals, for they usually disappear about 11 o'clock and oftentimes they come up chewing. My, it just makes me faint sometimes. Sister says she'd take something along and eat it, but somehow I can't just bear to do that."

The woman of whom she spoke is a woman well known in this vicinity. If it would not hurt the little dressmaker I would take pleasure in putting her name in the column.

It would astonish many people who admire her for her activity in charitable affairs.

I wonder if she would "come up chewing" again.

WITH A FALSE ARM.

A Story of a Clever Thief and a Detective.

By WILLIAM H. OSBORNE.

A man with one arm stood leaning against a showcase. The other arm, the false one, rested partly on the tray of diamonds. On the hand of that arm he wore a conventional glove of black. He was a well dressed man, with a smooth shaved face. He was examining some high priced stones.

With his other hand, the left one, he finally picked out a small diamond, probably the least expensive of the lot, and asked the clerk to wrap it up. At the same time he pulled from his trousers pocket a roll of bills at least three inches thick and with the left hand deftly counted out enough to pay for his purchase.

The clerk took the money and the purchased gem and then seized the tray to replace it in the case.

As he did so he rapidly counted with his eye the remaining stones, as was his custom. There were two missing in addition to the one he himself had taken from the tray. He glanced suspiciously at the one armed man.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said politely, but reaching as he did so for his revolver under neath the counter, "but there are two stones missing. I—have you taken them?" He made this inquiry with hesitation.

The one armed man looked the clerk squarely in the eye. "You are quite right to be careful," he said pleasantly, "but I did not take the stones. How many were there before?"

The clerk told him. "Come," returned the man; "we will count them together, then."

They did so. They found the tally right. There was none missing. The man was right and the clerk was wrong. He apologized profusely, but the one armed man took no offense whatever at the incident. He received his diamond and his change and spent several minutes chatting about diamond robberies and safeguards against them and then went his way.

"Queer thing happened then," called the clerk to another. "I came near selling that swell that he was a thief; thought that he took a couple of stones. I counted 'em wrong and told him that he must have 'em. He said he hadn't. Then I counted 'em over again and found 'em all right. And he wasn't mad about it either."

"Are you sure they're right now?" returned the other, an older man. "Let me see the tray."

The tray was produced. Before it reached the counter the old man seized the two largest diamonds it contained and held them to the light.

"Done, by George!" he exclaimed. "These are made of glass; that's all."

"Sneakers" Kelly, the crack plain clothes man at headquarters, was put on the case at once.

"I've heard of this fellow," he announced to the jewelry firm. "He's a new proposition and a slick one at that, I understand, and these have been a good many complaints about him. We haven't been able to make a touch as yet. I'll see what I can do, but I guess it's best for you to charge the thing up to profit and loss right now. Even if I overhaul the man it's ten to one I won't get the stones. I'll do my best, though, gentlemen."

That happened in Chicago. In January of the next year on a cold, crisp day two prosperous looking men stood almost side by side in a fashionable jewelry store.

One of them was dressed in furs and wore rich jewels. He was a showy man, with a red face. This was "Sneakers" Kelly of Chicago.

The other man was a man of grave appearance. He wore a gray beard, and his hair was tinged with white. By his appearance he was an aristocrat, probably the president of a bank. In his left hand he held a fur mitten—only one. His right was clothed in a light colored suede glove. He was buying diamonds.

Kelly watched this man closely—more closely than did the clerk. Finally the clerk handed out a few small bills and a small white packet, and he left. As he did so Kelly followed him. When they reached the sidewalk Kelly touched him on the arm. The man glanced at him but once and then, swinging around suddenly, struck Kelly in the head with his right hand. It was hard as iron. Kelly was stunned. He reeled and fell. When he came to the other man was about to enter a carriage which stood at the curb. The carriage started off, but before the door was shut Kelly had succeeded in seizing that right false arm with a tight and unrelenting grip. The man beat him about the face with the other hand, and the coach went faster and faster, but Kelly clung desperately to the hand, his feet dragging upon the street below.

Suddenly, as they swung around a corner, there came a snap and a jerk and Kelly fell face downward on the pavement. It was late in the afternoon and dark, and no one had noticed what had happened. Kelly lay for a moment, but soon recovered and scrambled to his feet just in time to avoid being run down by a heavy truck.

And as he rose he grasped something tightly in his arms. This object he bore to a brilliantly lighted window and examined it.

"By George, that's clever!" mused Kelly to himself. "And now he'll have to get a new one. First blood for me!"

Limping, he wended his way back to the store from which he had started. "Look here," he exclaimed to the clerk, after he had made known his identity; "send out your hand."

The clerk did so. The detective held forth a long false arm and pulled a wire that protruded from its upper end. As he did so from a recess in the artificial palm there were released three gems, among the largest in the house. They were genuine. The clerk be examination of the tray found that three spurious stones had been substituted in their place.

Kelly and the clerk examined the arm. It was made largely of wood, but with a hollow iron chamber below the elbow and a hollow hand. A series of wires ran from the hand all the way through the arm. These wires evidently were controlled by the other hand or the feet, and it was these that had snapped when Kelly clung to the artificial member on the carriage step.

On pulling one of these wires Kelly found that a slot in the hand opened and closed, thus scooping up whatever lay beneath it. On pulling another he found that it would release one, two or more spurious gems in place of the purloined genuine stones. Of these spurious gems they found a dozen or so, but no more genuine stones were found. Evidently the thief secreted each stone immediately.

It was the most complete contrivance that Kelly had ever seen for any kind of thievery.

But Kelly was sore—sore in mind and body. He vowed an unholy vow in most unholy language that he would have that one armed man's scalp inside of a month at the outside. He was not satisfied with the man's arm. He wanted more. Kelly was one of those people who are never satisfied.

Two weeks later in a large jewelry house in a down east metropolis an old lady in a Quaker bonnet stood and adjusted her spectacles and examined some diamond earrings. She was plainly but richly dressed. Her real name was "Sneakers" Kelly.

Contrasting with this aged woman and within a foot or so of her there stood a tall young man with a black mustache. There was a ruddy, healthy color upon his face. He said, with some embarrassment, that he was buying an engagement ring. He bent over a tray containing an assortment. The old lady was so close to him that she almost touched him.

Suddenly she gripped him by the arm and yelled to the clerk. "This man's a thief!" she cried in shrill tones. "Close the doors!"

The clerk hastily drew back the tray of rings. Several other men ran up. Somebody closed the doors.

Then they inspected the tray of diamonds. Sure enough, two rings were missing. None, however, had been substituted in their stead.

The young man uttered not a word. He only looked surprised. He had made no resistance and no outcry.

The old woman, however, was excited. She pushed back her bonnet from her face.

"He's got 'em!" she exclaimed. "He's got 'em in his arm. It's hollow. Make him take it off. They're in there, I tell you, and you'll find 'em."

The young man smiled, but protested feebly.

"Gentlemen," he began, "true, it is my misfortune to have but one arm and true that I wear a false one, but I did not take your stones, I assure you."

The old woman violently shook her head. "You make him take off that arm!" she commanded. "It's the greatest thing you ever saw! It's hollow, and it's got your diamonds in it. Make him take it off!"

The young man looked around upon the faces; then he smiled again. "Here," he replied; "there's but one way to prove my innocence."

He removed his coat, rolled up his sleeve, unbuckled a strap or two and pulled off the arm. They gathered round and examined it, especially the old lady.

It was not hollow—not by a long shot. It was an ordinary false arm, made of solid cork.

When they were satisfied that it was nothing else, the young man replaced it and donned his coat again.

"Gentlemen," he continued, looking hard at the old woman, "I am no man's accuser and no woman's either, but these stones were missed when both of us, the old lady and myself, stood at this counter. There is a bare possibility," he continued, with a grin—"a bare possibility that she has the stones herself. And if I am not mistaken I saw her put something in that bag. You might examine it if you will."

The bag in question was one which hung at the old lady's side. They examined it, and they found—oh, nothing much, save the two missing diamond rings; that's all.

"Now, gentlemen," added the young man, "unless I am again mistaken this old lady is not what she seems to be. Let us investigate once more." He reached over and deftly pulled from her head the Quaker hat and an old gray wig. There stood revealed the grizzled countenance of "Sneakers" Kelly, the detective.

The clerks pounced upon him and bore him to the station house—the nearest one. There he was kept for two days until a Chicago special could be sent on to recognize and identify him for the man he really was.

Full choir rehearsal will be held in the church after the service, specially for the Dedication Festival music to be used the next two Sundays.

But on the way down to the station the young man with the false arm somehow disappeared. Before he did so, however, he stepped up and said a word to Kelly.

"Kelly," he explained in a low voice, "next time you must give a fellow time to get a new arm made. Arms of my pet brand don't grow on trees, you know."

And then he went.

Our Fruit Possibilities.

Ontario fruit orchards are growing yearly into more prominence. Thousands of our people are depending upon the success of the trees and gardens for their livelihood. Any obstruction to their successful operation means not only a loss to the owners, but a big hindrance to our rural population. Ontario has produced and can produce the best apples, peaches, plums and pears to be found on the continent. For flavor and appearance we take no second place. It is true that other parts of Canada and in the United States fruit may put on a color that all hot climates give to their productions. But for flavor the temperate zone has them all beaten.

Nature has done fine things for Canada. But man's handiwork at the market-end—or at the spout is anything but creditable. The rule of corporations, both public and private, seems to be to squeeze dollars out with as little outlay as possible. If it is good business ethics for the carrying and selling corporations, it is poor enough indeed from a producer's standpoint.

Out of mere preservation the fruit growers are showing organizing in co-operative associations. The sooner they have co-operative selling houses in the city the better they will be, for many reason. But there is no better system of selling one's fruit than by an honest commission house with good facilities for display and sale of the goods.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE WISHING RING.

Winsome, dainty, clever little Marguerite Clark, erstwhile musical comedy star, succeeded in making "The Wishing Ring," the new Shubert production from the pen of Owen Davis which was seen at the Grand last night, a thing of beauty and a joy for ever. Without Miss Clarke's personality one would be inclined to think that the play would be rather insipid; with her it is a bright fascinating comedy with a pretty story and an air of reality that succeeds in holding the undivided attention of the audience from the first curtain.

There is little that is new in the plot; the action hinges on that basic principle which seems to be at the bottom of all comedies — mistaken identity but the subject is treated daintily and cleverly and with the assistance of Miss Clarke's winsomeness makes a most favourable impression. It drags a little in spots, but these defect will be remedied as the production is only in its experimental stage and "The Wishing Ring" will undoubtedly come into its own when it reaches Broadway.

Miss Clarke who was co-star with De Wolf Hopper in musical comedy satisfactorily demonstrated that she is a most pleasing comedienne and her work last night was most pleasing. Her almost constant presence on the stage was necessitated by the action of the play, and her hold on the audience steadily increased, so that she had to respond to curtain calls at the end of each act. She was given able support by Robert Dempster in the chief male role, and by other members of the thoroughly well-balanced company.

"The Wishing Ring" is clean, sweet and wholesome and like all Shubert productions, is effectively staged.

The next attraction at the Grand is "Girls," "Clyde Fitch's most successful comedy, in which Charles Cherry and Ruth Maycliffe, who appeared here in "The Bachelor," another Fitch comedy, made their big hit. "Girls" which appears here on Wednesday night next, is under the direction of the Shuberts, and comes with a metropolitan record of marked success.

GAS, HEARTBURN AND DYSPEPSIA VANISH

Makes Your Out-of-Order Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent. case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

THE WORKING GIRL MAKES THE BEST WIFE IN THE WORLD

President of the Women's Trade Union League Makes That Statement---"Woman is in the Industrial Struggle to Stay Until She Wins What She is Fighting For."

"The working girl makes the best wife in the world."

This is the firm assertion of Miss Mary MacArthur, president of the Women's Trade Union League of Great Britain. Miss MacArthur was the guest of the Women's Trade Union League of this city last week, while on her way home from attendance at the biennial convention of the Chicago Women's Trade Union League.

Miss MacArthur is a remarkable woman. Not yet thirty, she has been interested in trade unionism among women for more than ten years, and has practically built up the English organization of which she is president and which now numbers fully 210,000 women. It is a very big and definite force in English labour movements.

And in defiance of all the doleful masculine prognostications that girls and women who work outside the home are thereby unfitted for the natural feminine functions of wifehood and motherhood, Miss MacArthur reiterates, "It is the working women who make the best wives—and the best mothers, too," she adds composedly.

"Woman is in the industrial struggle and she is in it to stay until she wins what she is fighting for—her right to food, shelter and a home. We cannot be defeated. We are at one with the great purpose of life.

"It is the working woman every time who, first of all, starts out with a wise marriage. She marries for love and for friendship and for respect—not just for the sake of a man—ANY man who will bestow the light of his countenance upon her.

"The working woman is delivered from the two great errors that women have been making since the institution of marriage was founded. One of these is marrying for a home. The other is marrying for an emotion. It would be hard to say which one of these mistakes has caused the more unhappiness.

"In the past, if a woman did not have a sufficient income to provide for her, aside from her own exertions, it was up to her to marry a 'provider.' What is this but decently legitimatized prostitution? Remember Mr. Bernard Shaw's brutally direct epigram, 'The only way any woman can get along is to be good to some man who'll be good to her!' Before the day of the workingwoman far too many girls thought and lived that gospel.

"The women of the past have been helpless, if unconscious parasites. Financial parasites or emotional parasites—but always 'sponges' of one sort or another.

"The woman—the working woman of to-day—stands on her own feet. She has at last gained the masculine privilege of selection. She can discriminate in her destiny.

"When she marries she chooses a man who can be both her sweetheart and her chum. It is so absolutely hopeless to think of being happy unless one's husband is both. He must love passionately, intensely, unwaveringly. But—he must understand keenly, finely.

"The working woman has the opportunity to make such a choice wisely, as well as the power. It is not merely that she is no longer forced to be beggar maid to the first King Cophetua handy—poor and starving for life interests, if not for money. But in the natural comradeship she finds with men workers through her own position as a worker she learns to know men in the chum relation—not just in the Sunday-night-best-curled-hair sentimentally devoted relation.

"Then, after the marriage, all her training in her work makes her so much better fitted to become a wife. That is, of course, if she has been working sensibly, according to trade union rules. She has acquired the habits of industry, of precision, of speed, of trustworthiness. If she has held a position of any responsibility she has learned initiative. Every one of these qualities she is going to find constant use for in the managing of her household.

If she has supported herself for some time she has learned the value of money. She knows better than to run up long bills on a short income. She very often may have 'boarded herself,' as well as bought her own clothes, during her days of service in the industrial world—then she knows how to market economically. And in every domestic crisis she must inevitably show the effects of what work always teaches—the perfect accomplishment of one thing."

PROMINENT ATHLETES RESENT THE STATEMENTS OF J. W. ROBINSON

Toronto Physical Directors are Indignant at the Opinion Expressed That an Athlete Cannot be a Decent Man.

A SILLY STATEMENT

What Toronto Athletes and lovers of athletic sport say about J. M. Robinson of Hamilton, who told a convention of Sunday schools that "a man cannot be an athlete and a decent man," is in most instances short and to the point.

"The man who says a man cannot be an athlete and a decent man condemns such shining examples of athleticism and clean, upright living as Rev. J. D. Morrow, pastor of Dale Church; Bobby Kerr, the pride of Canada; to say nothing of boys whose cleanliness of spirit, wind, and body, is unquestioned, such as Lou Sebert, George Goulding, Alf. Sellers, George Barber, Jack Near, Cal. Bricker, Ed. Archibald," said Physical Director Stafford of West End Y.M.C.A. "Why, I could go on naming Y.M.C.A. "Why letes by the score who are a credit to the nation, to say nothing of the fine fellows there are in the I.C.A.C., All Saints, Evangelias, and other clubs. There may be some blackguards in athletics, but 95 per cent. of the boys will pass muster in any company in the world as clean-living, upright, decent citizens. I take strong exception to Robinson's remarks. Not decent? What about the sportsmanship and decency displayed in the hurdle race at Ottawa this spring, when in a race between Bert Stronach and Cal. Bricker one man fell and the other refused to take the race and insisted on it being run over? And a similar incident in Woodstock, Monday, where a man who had ran a dead heat with another who had fallen surrendered the place to him, aying, "You are a better man than I am?"

"Why, Robinson places our best men on a par with a thug. He should be roundly condemned from every pulpit in the land for seeking to throw cold water upon clean athletics, which have been one of the strongest factors in uplifting the young manhood of Canada."

J. J. McLeod's Opinion

"I think Robinson must be a very old man, and 50 years behind the times," remarked J. J. McLeod, physical director of the Central Y.M.C.A. "He must have lived all his life in the backwoods. He isn't abreast of things at all. Nor can he have associated with virile men, or he would know that athletic associations in connection with churches have been doing grand work. There is nothing better or more up-to-date to keep and interest the boys and young men in church work than church athletic organizations. He must be an idiot who expects lively young men to sit around a church library reading Pansy books. No man of gumption would make such a senseless, uncalled for, and wholly untruthful remark."

To all of which every athlete and lover of athletics in Canada will cry "Carried."—Toronto Star.

'ROUND THE STORES

First impressions are the best—at least, so they say. Certain it is that the biggest and rosiest apples are always placed on top to make an impression. The appearance of men, too, is often by that of the well-groomed chap. And it's quite right to make the most of yourself and your opportunities by improving your appearance. Men who will wear only made-to-measure garments are reminded of the special opening tomorrow at H. LeBrun & Co's Clothing Store. Since giving up their tailoring department, this firm has made arrangements with one of the largest individual tailoring houses in Canada for making up their ordered work. Those who have been accustomed to leave their names at LeBrun's are advised that their particular wishes will be faithfully carried out, as usual.

Truly it is a phenomenal sale this mammoth "fire sale" at Richard Hall & Sons. The way the big store has been crowded by women ever since the sale started, is proof as strong as needed to testify to its success. The effort of the firm to clean out every yard of material and every garment in the house that may have taken on the taint of smoke or been injured by water, is a big undertaking. The stock is a large one, unequalled in the city for its newness and exclusiveness; having only been opened up out of their foreign packages a few days before the fire, which did the damage. The reductions which have been made in the prices of these goods strike below original cost in most cases; in others the price is cut in half. There are scores of women in Peterborough who know the character of Richard Hall & Sons from actual experience and from season to season. Thousands have attended this fire sale already, and have proven to their own satisfaction what a splendid money saving opportunity it is. The offerings every day, as chronicled in the Examiner keeps up the phenomenal rush.

A new confectionery store is to be opened in the city to-morrow in the premises formerly occupied by the Port Hope Knitting Works, 362½ George St., and directly opposite Grafton & Co's. The firm's name is to be J. Haggis & Co., and its members are practical candy men, who will manufacture all their own goods. By reference to their announcement in another column, it will be seen that they will put on sale quite a varied range of special sweet meats and the figures quoted indicate the most moderate prices.

Isn't it just about now that a thought should be turned towards the furs you will want for this winter. The mosquitoes cease to bite us, the flies no longer fight us, and summer's tribulations ofr divers months are o'er. Wouldn't it be a sensible thing to do to step into the handsome fur store of Wm. E. Lech, 366 George St., and cast your eyes upon the fashionable display of furs and fur garments. This handsome store with its costly and elegant front and show windows is a credit to the city and the enterprise of its proprietor. So that an early visit will not only be taking time by the forelock, but you will see the furs at the time when you can make the most advantageous purchases.

The apopintment of Mr. A. H. Stratton, to the position of City Postmaster, causes an important change in the Peterborough Bookstore. In anticipation of this event the firm of A. H. Stratton & Co. have announced a retiring sale, which includes the entire stock of books, stationery, wall papers, window decorations, leather goods, fancy art goods, etc., contained in the Peterborough Bookstore. The stock must be reduced many thousands of dollars before the first of December, and as a result most remarkable sacrifices will be made in prices all along the line, in every department of the store. In selecting Christmas gifts one could not choose to better advantage than out of this elegant stock, which has always been representative of the best goods known in the lines carried.

THE FIRE SALE AT MILBURN'S IS NEARING A CLOSE.

If you wish to procure suitable Xmas gifts at big money saving prices you will have to hurry.

We must clear out all the old stock, in order to have the place renovated and be in a position to receive a complete stock of New Jewellery, Cut Glass and Brass.

WEDDING BELLS

BRAY—CARPENTER.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Albert Carpenter, Otonabee, on Thursday, October 28, when his eldest daughter, Sarah Ellen, was married to Mr. Joseph Bray, of Otonabee. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt officiated. The young couple were unattended and will reside in Otonabee.

STINSON-LONG

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Long, 71 0Water street, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock when their eldest daughter, Lillian, was united in marriage to Mr. William Stinson, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev E. A. Pearson in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends, and there were no attendants.

After a dainty wedding repast, Mr and Mrs. Stinson left on the 4.36 train for Toronto and other western points and on their return to the city they will reside on King street.

Many beautiful wedding gifts were received as an evidence of the high esteem in which the young people are held by their many friends.

SHEPPARD-MUNDELL

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the Knox Church Manse on the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 27 of Miss Olive Mundell of Parkhill to Mr. Edward Cornelius Sheppard of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of Knox Church, Rev. H. J. Keith in the presence of the imediate friends of the young people.

DUMMITT-CLIFFORD

At the home of Mr. R. G. Clifford, 212 Reid street, city, a pretty wedding was celebrated when his eldest daughter, Miss Gertrude M. Clifford, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph H. Dummitt, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Keith of Knox Presbyterian Church in the presence of about thirty guests. The bride was given away by her father while the wedding march was played by Mrs. Keith. The witnesses were Miss Maud Clifford and Mr. John Frederick Dummitt.

The young couple were the recipients of a large number of useful and costly presents.

HER BABY HAD ECZEMA

Mrs. F. Clark, Belmont, Man., writes:—"My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to help her. Hearing of some remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment had made we began using it and with the third application the sore began to heal. The cure was thorough and complete and we give all credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

PREPARE FOR WINTER

"Chilly", you say—Of course we can't expect to have all warmth and sunshine in this Canada of ours. There must be some cold vigorous weather to start the pulse beating faster and to put a glow of health in the faces of our Men and Women, especially the women. But we must prepare ourselves for the chilly blasts with warm comfortable Clothes, cosy homes and everything to make one disregard the terrors of the winter..

Had So Many Wifes He Forgot Exact Number—Now In Trouble

New York, October 29—"Matrimony is like good, old whiskey," says John Jacob Tremper. "It's all right when it is taken in moderation."

Tremper, sixty-two years old, intelligent, with some education, is charged with bigamy and under arrest at Yonkers. Police Lieut. McGoman and Detective Nealy were questioning him there when he astounded them by saying that he has married so many women that, really, he cannot remember the names of some of whom he vowed to love, honour and maintain.

He talked to the policemen in a grandfatherly way and as an expert on matrimony, saying, in the course of his confession:—

"I think I am qualified to talk about matrimony, for I have married and have lived with wives of all ages and of all dispositions—or, rather, of all tempers. Most of my wives were widows with money, which goes to show that widows are not so sophisticated as most men think. Indeed I think that a widow who marries again is foolish; freed once she willingly becomes a slave again."

Tremper's memory is pretty good as far back as 1898. In eleven years he married a Mrs. Lyman, of Utica, N.Y., at Camden, N.J., 1898; Susie A. Meyers at Westminster, Md., in August, 1900; Louise Culbert, at Wilkesbarre, Pa., in 1905, and a woman in Camden, N.J., in June, 1908.

It was this woman, middle-aged and well dressed who had him arrested in Yonkers. She told the police he had disappeared from their home at Norwood, N.J., but a letter told her vaguely that he was in Yonkers, so she hurried there.

"My favorite wife was Susie Meyers," said Tremper, with the air of an art connoisseur, discussing the gem of his collection.

"She had a sweet disposition, she was tractable and obedient, and I could have been very happy with her. But my very first wife heard of my marriage and pursued me to Maryland.

"Why does any woman chase after a man who has left her. It must be for spite, for if she had any sense she would know not only that he is tired of her, but that he is unworthy of her. He proved that by leaving her and she should be glad to be rid of him.

"I used to be a sailor," laughed nagged me nearly to death to give her more money than I earned.

"The unfortunate part of it is that I am engaged to marry a really nice woman named Marie E. Maines, who lives at Voluntown, Conn. We exchanged vows very recently. It was a case of love at first sight—with her—and I fear she will be greatly disappointed."

"I used to be a sailer," laughed Tremper, "and a sailor has a wife in every port, you know."

Tremper is being held for extradition papers from New Jersey.

PREDICTS END OF THE WORLD

Montreal People Have Been Receiving Mysterious Notes to This Effect But are Not Much Alarmed by the Communications.

A MAN WITH NIGHTMARE

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Predicting the end of the world as a means of scarifying the nervous still holds its popularity, but the recipient of such warning does not get alarmed to the same extent as if it had been a missive from the dread Black Hand Society.

At the present time there is going the rounds an individual of the ultra zealous type, or an ordinary being who has a few superfluous one-cent stamps to get rid of.

A number of people in town have received the following communication:

Sir,—I give you advice, that the second day of November, of the tenth year of the new Era; the death will be equal for all people and animals on the Globe; becoming so, the end of the World—The Earth God, Josafat."

The ominous communication is written on ruled note paper has a small cross preceding "Sir" and was mailed in Montreal, the postage stamp being affixed on the left hand side of the addressed envelope.

A curious coincidence in this regard is that one of the recipients has during the past two nights been unable to enjoy a quiet sleep. He has been harassed with the most horrific dreams, such as knowing that his sister-in-law was being electrocuted and that the work of years had been wiped out by fire.

On Tuesday the nightmares began and the communication was received only yesterday morning, and as the victim of insomnia did not till then know of its existence, his friends are naturally wondering if he has been let in on the ground floor in the matter of the date which will mark the dissolution of creation.

THE FULL CONFESSION OF EDWARD BEDFORT

Man Who Gave Himself up to the Scotland Yard Authorities in a Declaration Tells of How He Murdered Ethel Kinrade—Detective Miller Picks Many Flaws in His Story in Which Not Much Credence is Placed by the Canadian Police.

Toronto, Oct. 30.—Edward William Bedfort's confession to the murder of Ethel Kinrade in Hamilton, as he made it to the Scotland Yard authorities, has at last reached Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General and Inspector Miller of the Provincial Police, C.I.D.

The Minister has been requested to notify the London authorities if Ontario desires the return of Bedfort as a fugitive offender.

In police circles the alleged confession is regarded as a "fake," and as coming from a man who seeks free transportation to Canada. Inspector Miller examined the man's story, and reported to the Attorney-General the numerous discrepancies in it. He cited sixteen instances where Bedfort's description is not in accordance with the facts.

Hon. Mr. Foy states that Scotland Yard will be notified as soon as possible whether or not Ontario will ask for the return of this man who calls himself a murderer.

"There are an unusual number of inaccuracies in the alleged confession," the Minister remarked.

The documents in connection with the matter were prepared on Oct. 11, and reached the Attorney-General only yesterday. They travelled a devious route to their destination. From Scotland Yard they were sent to the British Home Office, transferred from there to the Colonial Office, where they were despatched to Hon. Charles Murphy Secretary of State, who in turn forwarded them to the Attorney-General of Ontario.

Bedfort's Confession.

Bedfort's statements made before Inspector Kyd and P. S. Cruthett, C.O.C.I.D., are here given:—

New Scotland Yard.
11th October, 1909.

Edward William Bedford states:—I murdered Miss Kinrade, of Hamilton, Canada, in 1908, by shooting her. I have come to give myself up. I cannot stand the worry of it any longer. I prefer to die. I met a man in Toronto whom I never knew, and I went with him to Hamilton and he helped me to find the house and I shot her. I went at the man's request, and he gave me 500 dollars to shoot her. I know not the man's name.

(Signed) EDWARD WILLIAM BEDFORT.
Witness, A. B. Kyd, Inspector, Central Office, New Scotland Yard.

First Said 'Twas Summer.

New Scotland Yard, 11th October, 1909.

Edward William Bedfort states:—I wish to make a full statement about the murder I committed in Hamilton, Canada.

I am about 21 years of age. So far as I can remember, it was in the summer of last year. I was in Toronto when I met a man at the docks His age was about 33 or 34, height 5 feet 7 or 8, medium build, ginger hair, heavy dropping moustache; his hair was fair, but his moustache was ginger; dressed in dark clothing, carried an overcoat on his arm. He wore a Christie hat (black felt). We were strangers, but we got into conversation. He said: "Are you out of work?" I said "No." I then said: "What is your business?" He did not reply. I said: "Well, come round the corner." We went into a side street and stopped there. He said: "If you can keep all the secrets that you will learn in the next few days from me I will pay you well." He showed me a bunch of bills. I said: "I can see by the look of you that you want something very bad done." He looked nervous. I said: "I am willing to do anything as long as there is money in it." He then gave me a dollar and a half and told me to meet him where I met him first at 12 o'clock. It was then about 10.30 a.m. I met him as arranged at 12 o'clock. He said: "You have got here; I hope you have not altered your mind." I said: "No, I have not. What is it you want me to do?" There is a public garden in the docks and we went in there and sat down. He then said: "I am in love with a girl in Hamilton, but someone else has been going out with her and I have found it out. Her name is Ethel Kinrade. I have seen her and told her that I mean to have revenge."

Had Two Revolvers.

He showed me two revolvers; one was a Mauser, the other was an old-fashioned one. He said: "Have you ever used them?" I said: "No, but you can leave that to me." He then showed me how they worked. I said: "Then you really mean to kill this girl?" He replied: "No, I want you to, and that is the reason I am going to pay you." I said: "What do you intend paying me?" He took out a roll of bills and said, breaking them in half. "You can have that lot," and handed the half to me. I looked at them and saw that they were ten and five dollar bills, and put them in my pocket. He said: "Now I will instruct you what to do." He said: "With the money I have given you, you are to leave Toronto so as to be in Hamilton by five o'clock in the evening, and I will meet you at Hamilton station." I was to take with me thre masks, one black and two ginger. What I mean by masks is false beards. I was to get a black overcoat, also to fit myself, and two black caps. We then parted.

Bought Disguises.

I bought three false beards at a shop in the Jewish quarter, a turning out of Queen St. I also bought a black overcoat and two black caps at the same place. I paid, I think, two dollars and twenty cents for the lot. I put the overcoat on and the other things in my pockets.

I caught a train about a quarter to three and went to Hamilton. The man met me on the station. We walked together to a street, the name of which I do not remember, but it was about five minutes' walk. He said: "Have you got the things?" I said: "Yes; are you wanting them now?" He said: "Give them to me." I gave him everything except the overcoat. He put them in his trousers pocket. We then went in another street and changed the coats. We then parted, the arrangement being to meet again at 9.30 the next morning at the station. He was dressed very roughly, something like a tramp. We met next morning as arranged. He said: "I have no security that you do what I want, so you had better give me back half the money." I said: "No, I will not do that; I have put my faith in you, and you will have to put your faith in me.

"What am I going to do after all this work is done?" He said: "Don't worry; if it goes all right I will let you have the money to take you away from the country and four hundred more dollars, but that will be after the work is done." He then took half the money away that he had given me. He said: "I want you to wear a wig in this work." I said: "I don't mind." He then gave me a ginger wig and a cap. We were both wearing bowler hats, and we went up the street and threw them away in a corner and put the caps on. We parted there and met again at 10 oclock at the railway station. He then said: "Meet me at Herkimer street," or something like that, "put the wig, the overcoat and the cap on and meet at the corner of Herkimer street. Make yourself look as much like a tramp as you can, and I will show you the place where the girl lives." We then went to the street and he pointed out the house It was a corner house with woodwork on the front—a balcony. We then walked through a long street. He said as we walked along: "Now are you ready; have you the revolver, and do you know the house? When you go to the house, look like a tramp as much as you can; knock at the door, and whoever answers it, ask for money. Don't be afraid of anybody, as there are only two girls in the house. You are to go about half past two, as time is everything to me." I left him there. It would then be about 12 o'clock. I walked until half-past two, and then went to the street. I saw the man then; he was about twelve houses away from the Kinrade's house. I did not speak to him then, as we had previously arranged that I should not do so. I forgot to say that when we met at 10 o'clock the arrangement was that after the job was done, I was to return to Toronto, and we would meet there next morning.

I went to the Kinrades' door and knocked. The door was answered by a young girl, I think about twenty-four years of age. She was wearing a brown coat and no hat; she was dark. I said: "I want some money. Will you give me a little?" She seemed frightened and ran upstairs. I went in the door and shut it behind me. As I entered I heard a noise behind me, and I opened the door and saw the man there. I then shut the door, leaving him on the steps. At that moment another young lady came downstairs and I immediately fired the revolver until it was exhausted. I believe there were five shots. They took effect on her head and body and she fell. I ran through the house and out through a window at the back. I forgot to tell you that this man said that one of the girls was a little taller than the other, and it was the shorter one that I was to shoot. I believe I shot the shorter one. After I got through the window I got over a brick wall and made my way to the railway station. When I got there I took the false beard off and put it in my pocket. I caught a train about 5 o'clock after waiting about an hour and a half and returned to Toronto. I stayed that night in a cheap boarding house near the railway station. There was a notice hanging outside: "Board and lodging by day or week." Next morning I went to the station about 6.30 and waited. The man came there about 2.30 in the afternoon.

Off to Montreal.

He was well dressed, like a gentleman. He said: "Well done, you fixed her all right." I said: "I don't know if I have shot the right one." He said: "Yes, you have." I said: "How do you know." He said: "Never mind, don't trouble; come with me. He then took a single ticket to Montreal and gave it to me. I said: "How about the money, and what am I going to do as I can't stop at Montreal." He then said: "Here's the money," and he handed me a roll of bills. "Go to Montreal and wait there about two days, and I will send a letter to you at the post office." I said: "What are you going to send a letter for, you promised to send me away from the country and Montreal is not away." That is the reason why I want you to stop there. I will send you a ticket that will take you to Liverpool." I said: "When I get to Liverpool I am to forget all about you." He said: "Yes." I left about 5 o'clock for Montreal and he saw me off. I left him behind. I got to Montreal about 6 p.m. the following day. I waited there three days and then got a letter from the man, it was giving me some directions and was initialled "E. J. T." The directions were to leave for England by boat that sailed that afternoon and enclosing a ticket in the name of Christopher. The initial I forgot. It was a saloon ticket. The boat was the S. S. 'Laurentic." I came to Liverpool by that boat and have never seen nor heard of the man since. I destroyed the letter he sent me.

The man never told me his name, and I have no idea how he could be found.

The letter referred to was an introduction to two persons in England, one in Liverpool and one in London. Their names I do not care to give you, but I have called upon them both.

Later Said 'Twas Winter.

Further statement of Edward William Bedfort made to P. S. Crutchett, C.O.C.I.D., at Bow street Police Court, 12th October, 1909:—

I can now remember that it was in the winter when I shot the girl and came over here, as there was a lot of snow out in the back garden. Heaps of it where I got over the wall.

(Signed) EDWARD WILLIAM BEDFORT.

The Story Punctured.

Provincial Inspector Miller finds the following discrepancies in alleged confession:

1. It was not in the summer of last year.

2. No such train leaving between 2 and 3 o'clock. Only trains are 2 and 3.45.

3. Kinrades do not live in corner house. It is in the middle of the block.

4. Impossible for him to know only two girls were in the house three or four hours before.

5. Florence answered the door. She did not have a coat on as stated.

6. There were nine shots fired. This man says he fired five shots. Some one else must have fired the other four.

7. There was no window open in the back for him to escape through as stated.

8. No brick wall at the back of the Kinrade house over which he said he escaped.

9. Says he shot girl at 2.30. Alarm was given at 3.55. At the time he said he shot the girl Mrs. Kinrade was in the house.

10. If he left for Montreal at 5 p. m.; as stated, he would arrive there the next morning; whereas he says he arrived there next evening.

11. No boat leaves Montreal in the afternoon. All these boats leave in the morning.

12. It was 1909 the girl was shot; not 1908.

13. No foot prints of a man in the snow. There was just a light fall of snow, not a heavy snow fall as stated by him.

14. Florence said in her first statement that the man was a tramp, and in her statement later, said he was not a tramp, but was well dressed. This man says he went to the house looking as near like a tramp as possible.

15. He said this man gave him two guns, a Mauser and another old fashioned one. The cartridges used in the Mouser are different to any others used in ordinary revolvers. The other old-fashioned gun he speaks of we can not tell anything about. But the cartridges found in the body were those of a common ordinary revolver.

16. The S. S. Laurentic did not begin sailing from Montreal till May.

ANY KIND OF SKIN TROUBLE

Quickly Yields to D. D. D. Prescription.

Oil of wintergreen is recognised by the medical fraternity as one of the best of all remedies for skin diseases. But it has been found most effective when combined with thymol, glycerine, etc., as in D. D. D. Prescription.

The following letter written on July 12 last by Mrs. R. E. Purdy, of Condie, Sask., gives an idea of the variety of the uses of D. D. D. in the household:

"Last winter I sent for one of your free samples of D. D. D. Prescriptions. I tried it on sores that broke out on a teething baby's head, on cold-sores and on a mild type of eczema, and found it worked well, curing each trouble quickly and easily.

This summer we have used it on bad mosquito bites and it heals them in two or three applications."

D.D.D. is a wonderfully soothing, cooling liquid, which instantly allays the itching caused by skin diseases, and cures them.

For free sample bottle of D. D. D. Prescription write to the D. D. D. Laboratory, Department P E, 23 Jordan street, Toronto.

For sale by all druggists.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

It was covered with vessels. On all sides they lay thick upon its surface. They were huge caracks, high-ended and portly, with red sides and bulwarks carved and crusted with gold. Each had one great sail set and was driving down channel on the same course as the Basilisk. Their decks were thick with men, and from their high poops came the weird clashing which filled the air. For one moment they lay there, this wondrous fleet, surging slowly forward, framed in gray vapor. The next the clouds closed in and they had vanished from view. There was a long hush, and then a buzz of excited voices.

"The Spaniards!" cried a dozen bowmen and sailors.

"I should have known it," said the shipman. "I call to mind on the Biscay Coast how they would clash their cymbals after the fashion of the heathen Moor with whom they fight; but what would you have me do, fair sir? If the fog rises we are all dead men."

"There were thirty ships at the least," said Knolles, with a moody brow. "If we have seen them I trow that they have also seen us. They will lay us aboard."

"Nay, fair sir, it is in my mind that our ship is lighter and faster than theirs. If the fog hold another hour we should be through them."

"Stand to your arms!" yelled Knolles. "Stand to your arms! They are on us!"

The Basilisk had indeed been spied from the Spanish Admiral's ship before the fog closed down. With so light a breeze, and such a fog, he could not hope to find her under sail. But by an evil chance not a bowshot from the great Spanish carack was a low galley, thin and swift, with oars which could speed her against wind or tide. She also had seen the Basilisk and it was to her that the Spanish leader shouted his orders. For a few minutes she hunted through the fog, and then sprang out of it like a lean and stealthy beast upon its prey. It was the sight of the long dark shadow gliding after them which had brought that wild shout of alarm from the lips of the English knight. In another instant the starboard oars of the galley had been shipped, the sides of the two vessels grated together, and a stream of swarthy, red-capped Spaniards were swarming up the sides of the Basilisk and dropped with yells of triumph upon her deck.

For a moment it seemed as if the vessel was captured without a blow being struck, for the men of the English ship had run wildly in all directions to look for their arms. Scores of archers might be seen under the shadow of the forecastle and the poop binding their bowstaves to string them with the cords from their waterproof cases. Others were scrambling over saddles, barrels and cases in wild search of their quivers. Each as he came upon his arrows pulled out a few to lend to his less fortunate comrades. In mad haste the men-at-arms also were feeling and grasping in the dark corners, picking up steel caps which would not fit them, hurling them down on the deck, and snatching eagerly at any swords or spears that came their way.

The centre of the ship was held by the Spaniards, and having slain all who stood before them, they were pressing up to either end before they were made to understand that it was no fat sheep but a most fierce old wolf which they had taken by the ears.

If the lesson was late, it was the more thorough. Attacked on both sides and hopelessly outnumbered, Spaniards, who had never doubted that this little craft was a merchantship, were cut off to the last man. It was no fight, but a butchery. In vain the survivors ran screaming prayers to the saints and threw themselves down into the galley alongside. It also had been riddled with arrows from the poop of the Basilisk, and both the crew on the deck and the galley-slaves in the outriggers at either side lay dead in rows under the overwhelming shower from above. From stem to rudder every foot of her was furred with arrows. It was but a floating coffin piled with dead and dying men, which wallowed in the waves behind them as the Basilisk lurched onward and left her in the fog.

In their first rush on to the Basilisk, the Spaniards had seized six of the crew and four unarmed archers. Their throats had been cut and their bodies tossed overboard. Now the Spaniard who littered the deck, wounded and dead, were thrust over the side in the same fashion. One ran down into the hold and had to be hunted and killed squealing under the blows like a rat in the darkness. Within half an hour no sign was left of this grim meeting in the fog save for the crimson splashes upon bulwarks and deck. The archers, flushed and merry, were unstringing their bows once more, for in spite of the water glue the damp air took the strength from the cords. Some were hunting about for arrows which might have stuck inboard, and some tying up small injuries received in the scuffle. But an anxious shadow still lingered upon the face of Sir Robert, and he peered fixedly about him through the fog.

"Go among the archers, Hawthorn," said he to his Squire. "Charge them on their lives to make no sound! You also, Loring. Go to the afterguard and say the same to them. We are lost if one of these great ships should spy us."

For an hour with bated breath they stole through the fleet, still hearing the cymbals clashing all round them, for in this way the Spaniards held themselves together. Once the wild music came from above they very prow, and so warned them to change their course. Once also a huge vessel loomed for an instant upon their quarter, but they turned two points away from her, and she blurred and vanished. Soon the cymbals were but a distant tinkling, and at last they died gradually away.

"It is none too soon," said the old shipman, pointing to a yellowish tint in the haze above them. "See yonder! It is the sun which wins through. It will be here anon. Ah! said I not so?"

A sickly sun, no larger and far dimmer than the moon, had indeed shown its face, with cloud-wreaths smoking across it. As they look up it waxed larger and brighter before their eyes—a yellow halo spread round it, one ray broke through, and then a funnel of golden light poured down upon them, widening swiftly at the base. A minute later they were sailing on a clear blue sea with an azure cloud-flecked sky above their heads, and such a scene beneath it as each of them would carry in his memory while memory remained.

They were in mid-channel. The white and green coasts of Picardy and of Kent lay clear upon either side of them. The wide channel stretched in front, deepening from the light blue beneath their prow to purple on the far sky-line. Behind them was that thick bank of cloud from which they had just burst. It lay like a gray wall from east to west, and through it were breaking the high shadowy forms of the ships of Spain. Four of them had already emerged, their red bodies, gilded sides and painted sails shining gloriously in the evening sun. Every instant a fresh golden spot grew out of the fog, which blazed like a star for an instant, and then surged forward to show itself as the brazen beak of the great red vessel which bore it. Looking back, the whole bank of cloud was broken by the widespread line of noble ships which were bursting through it. The Basilisk lay a mile or more in front of them and two miles clear of their wing. Five miles farther off, in the direction of the French coast, two other small ships were running down Channel. A cry of joy from Robert Knolles and a hearty prayer of gratitude to the saints from the old shipman hailed them as their missing comrades, the cog Thomas and the Grace Dieu.

But fair as was the view of their lost friends, and wondrous the appearance of the Spanish ships, it was not on those that the eyes of the men of the Basilisk were chiefly bent. A greater sight lay before them—a sight which brought them clustering to the forecastle with eager eyes and pointing fingers. The English fleet was coming forth from the Winchelsea Coast. Already before the fog lifted a fast galleass had brought the news down Channel that the Spanish were on the sea, and the King's fleet was under way. Now their long array of sails, gay with the coats and colors of the towns which had furnished them, lay bright against the Kentish coast from Dungeness Point to Rye. Nine and twenty ships were there from Southampton, Shoreham, Winchelsea, Hastings, Rye, Hythe, Romney, Folkestone, Deal, Dover and Sandwich. With their great sails clued round to catch the wind they ran out whilst the Spanish, like the gallant foes that they have ever been, turned their heads landward to meet them. With flaunting banners and painted sails, blaring trumpets and clashing cymbals, the two glittering fleets, dipping and rising on the long Channel swell, drew slowly together.

King Edward had been lying all day in his great ship the Philippa, a mile out from the Camber Sands, waiting for the coming of the Spaniards. Above the huge sail which bore the royal arms flew the red cross of England. Along the bulwarks were shown the shields of forty knights, the flower of English chivalry, and as many pennons floated from the deck. The high ends of the ship glittered with the weapons of the men-at-arms, and the waist was crammed with the archers. From time to time a crash of nakers and blare of trumpets burst from the royal ship, and was answered by her great neighbors, the Lion on which the Black Prince flew his flag the Christopher with the Earl of Suffolk, the Salle due Roi of Robert of Namur, and the Grace Marie of Sir Thomas Holland. Farther off lay the White Swan, bearing the arms of Mowbray, the Palmer of Deal, flying the Black Head of Audley, and the Kentish man under the Lord Beauchamp. The rest lay, anchored but ready, at the mouth of Winchelsea Creek.

The King sat upon a keg in the fore part of his ship, with little John of Richmond, who was no more than a schoolboy, perched upon his knee. Edward was clad in the black velvet jacket which was his favorite garb and wore a small brown-beaver hat with a white plume at the side. A rich cloak of fur turned up with miniver drooped from his shoulders. Behind him were a score of his knights, brilliant in silks and sarcenets, some seated on an upturned boat and some swinging their legs from the bulwark.

In front stood John Chandos in a party-colored jupon, one foot raised upon the anchor-stock, picking at the strings of his guitar and singing a song which he had learned at Marienburg when last he helped the Teutonic knights against the heathen. The King, his knights, and even the archers in the waist below them, laughed at the merry lilt and joined lustily in the chorus, while the men of the neighboring ships leaned over the side to hearken to the deep chant rolling over the waters.

But there came a sudden interruption to the song. A sharp, harsh out came down from the lookout stationed in the circular top at the end of the mast. "I spy a sail—two sails!" he cried.

John Bunce the King's shipman shaded his eyes and stared at the long fog-bank which shrouded the northern channel. Chandos, with his fingers over the strings of his guitar, the King, the knights, all gazed in the same direction. Two small dark shapes had burst forth, and then after some minutes a third.

"Surely they are the Spaniards!" said the King.

"Nay, sire," the seaman answered, "the Spaniards are greater ships and are painted red. I know not what these may be."

"But I could hazard a guess!" cried Chandos. "Surely they are the three ships with my own men on their way to Brittany."

"You have hit it, John," said the King. "But look, I pray you! What in the name of the Virgin is that?"

Four brilliant stars of flashing light had shone out from different points of the cloud-bank. The next instant as many tall ships had swooped forth into the sunshine. A fierce shout rang from the King's ship, and was taken up all down the line, until the whole coast from Dungeness to Winchelsea echoed the warlike greeting. The King sprang up with a joyous face.

"The game is afoot, my friends!" said he. "Dress, John! Dress, Walter! Quick all of you! Squires, bring the harness! Let each tend to himself, for the time is short."

A strange sight it was to see these forty nobles tearing off their clothes and littering the deck with velvets and satins, whilst the squire of each, as busy as an ostler before a race, stooped and pulled and strained and riveted, fastening the bassinets, the leg-pieces, the front and the back plates, until the silken courtier had become the man of steel. When their work was finished, there stood a stern group of warriors where the light dandies had sung and jested round Sir John's guitar. Below in orderly silence the archers were mustering under their officers and taking their allotted stations. A dozen had swarmed up to their hazardous post in the little tower in the tops.

"Bring wine, Nicholas!" cried the King. "Gentlemen, ere you close your visors I pray you to take a last rouse with me. You will be dry enough, I promise you, before your line are free once more. To what shall we drink, John?"

"To the men of Spain," said Chandos, his sharp face peering like a gaunt bird through the gap in his helmet. "May their hearts be stout and their spirits high this day!"

"Well said, John!" cried the King, and the knights laughed joyously as they drank. "Now, fair sirs, let each to his post! I am warden here on the forecastle. Do you, John, take charge of the afterguard. Walter, James, William, Fitzallan, Goldesborough, Reginald—you will stay with me. John, you may pick whom you will and the others will bide with the archers. Now bear straight at the centre, master-shipman. Ere yonder sun sets we will bring a red ship back as a gift to our ladies, or never look upon a lady's face again."

The art of sailing into a wind had not yet been invented, nor was there any fore-and-aft canvas, save for small head-sails with which a vessel could be turned. Hence the English fleet had to take a long slant down channel to meet their enemies; but as the Spaniards coming before the wind were equally anxious to engage there was the less delay. With stately pomp and dignity, the two great fleets approached.

It chanced that one fine carack had outstripped its consorts and came sweeping, along all red and gold, with a fringe of twinkling steel, a good half-mile before the fleet. Edward looked at her with a kindling eye, for indeed she was a noble sight with the blue water creaming under her gilded prow.

"This is a most worthy and debonair vessel, Master Bunce," said he to the shipman beside him. "I would fain have a tilt with her. I pray you to hold us straight that we may bear her down."

"If I hold her straight, then one or other must sink, and it may be both," the seaman answered.

"I doubt not that with the help of our Lady we shall do our part," said the King. "Hold her straight, master-shipman, as I have told you."

Now the two vessels were within arrow flight, and the bolts from the crossbowmen pattered upon the English ship. These short thick devil's darts were everywhere humming like great wasps through the air, crashing against the bulwarks, beating upon the deck, ringing loudly on the armor of the knights, or with a soft muffled thud sinking to the socket in a victim.

The bowmen along either side of the Philippa had stood motionless waiting for their orders, but now there was a sharp shout from their leader, and every string twanged together. The air was full of their harping, together with the swish of the arrows, the long-drawn keening of the bowmen and the short deep bark of the under-officers. "Steady, steady! Loose steady! Shoot wholly together! Twelve score paces! Ten score! Now eight! Shoot wholly together!" Their gruff shouts broke through the high shrill cry like the deer roar of a wave through the howl of the wind.

As the two great ships hurtled together the Spaniard turned away a few points so that the blow should be a glancing one. None the less it was terrific. A dozen men in the tops of the carack were balancing a huge stone with the intention of dropping it over on the English deck. With a scream of horror they saw the mast cracking beneath them. Over it went, slowly at first, then faster until with a crash it came down on its side, sending them flying like stones from a sling far out into the sea. A swath of crushed bodies lay across the deck where the mast had fallen. But the English ship had not escaped unscathed. Her mast held, it is true, but the mighty shock not only stretched every man flat upon the deck but had shaken a score of those who lined her sides into the sea. One bowman was hurled from the top, and his body fell with a dreadful crash at the very side of the prostrate King upon the forecastle. Many were thrown down with broken arms and legs from the high castles at either end into the waist of the ship. Worst of all, the seams had been opened by the crash and the water was gushing in at a dozen places.

But these were men of experience and of discipline, men who had already fought together by sea and by land, so that each knew his place and his duty. Those who could staggered to their feet and helped up a score or more of knights who were rolling and clashing in the scuppers unable to rise for the weight of their armor. The bowmen formed up as before. The seamen ran to the gaping seams with oakum and with tar. In ten minutes order had been restored and the Philippa, though shaken and weakened, was ready for battle once more. The King was glaring round him like a wounded boar.

Only Medicine That Did Any Good

After Suffering Tortures For Years, This Lady Found Happy Relief In "Fruit-a-tives".

Frankville, Ont., June 11th, 1908.

"I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from headaches and pain in the back, and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches.

MRS. FRANK EATON

I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally still, but I am quite cured of a trouble that was said to be incurable. I give this testimony voluntarily, in order that others who suffer as I suffered may try this wonderful medicine and be cured."

(Signed) MRS. FRANK EATON.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial box, 25c —or sent post-paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Do You Realize?

That despondency in women is a mental condition often traceable to some distinctly female ill!

Women who are well do not have the blues, neither are they irritable and restless. Derangement of the female organism breeds all kinds of miserable feelings such as backache, headache, and bearing-down feelings. Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. There is no doubt that it has made many remarkable cures of female ills after all other means had failed. There is hardly a day that some woman does not write us that this simple old medicine, made only of roots and herbs, has cured her of a severe illness after several doctors had done their best and failed.

Here are two such letters — read them — they are genuine and reliable.

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—Mrs. Albert Wickett, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Rockland, Me.—"I was troubled for a long time with pains in my back and side and was miserable in every way. I had doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read a testimonial about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it.

"After taking three bottles I never was so well in my life. I am recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my friends."—Mrs. Will Young, 6 Columbia Avenue, Rockland, Me.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

MARINERS' COMPASS.

Little Known of the Real Origin of the Instrument.

ITS USE BY THE CHINESE.

This Wonderful People Knew of the Magnetic Needle Long Before the Christian Era—The Claims of Gioia, the Pilot, and the Credit Due Him.

Much interest must forever attach to the discovery of that valuable instrument the mariner's compass, and yet there are few subjects concerning which less is known. For a period the honor of the invention was ascribed to Gioia, a pilot, born at Positano, a small village situated near Amalfi, about the end of the thirteenth century. His claims, however, have been disputed.

Much learning and labor have been bestowed upon the subject of the discovery. It has been maintained by one class that even the Phoenicians were the inventors, by another that the Greeks and Romans had a knowledge of it. Such notions, however, have been completely refuted.

One passage, nevertheless, of a remarkable character occurs in the works of Cardinal de Vitty, bishop of Ptolemais, in Syria. He went to Palestine during the fourth crusade, about the year 1204. He returned afterward to Europe and subsequently back to the Holy Land, where he wrote his work entitled "Historia Orientalis," as nearly as can be determined, between the years 1215 and 1220. In chapter 91 of that work he has this singular passage:

"The iron needle, after contact with the loadstone, constantly turns to the north star, which, at the axis of the firmament, remains immovable while the others revolve, and hence it is essentially necessary to those navigating on the ocean."

These words are as explicit as they are extraordinary. They state a fact and announce a use. The thing, therefore, which essentially constitutes the compass must have been known long before the birth of Gioia. In addition to this fact, there is another equally fatal to his claim as the original discoverer.

It is now settled beyond a doubt that the Chinese were acquainted with the compass long before the Europeans. It is certain that there are allusions to the magnetic needle in the traditionary period of Chinese history, about 2,000 years before Christ, and a still more credible account of it is found in the reign of Chingwang of the Chow dynasty, before Christ 1114.

All this, however, may be granted without in the least impairing the just claims of Gioia to the gratitude of mankind. The truth appears to be that the position of Gioia in relation to the compass was precisely that of Watt in relation to the steam engine—the element existed; he augmented its utility.

The compass used by the mariners in the Mediterranean during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries was a very uncertain and unsatisfactory apparatus. It consisted only of a magnetic needle floating in a vase or basin by means of two straws on a bit of cork supporting it on the surface of the water.

The compass used by the Arabians in the thirteenth century was an instrument of exactly the same description. Now, the inconvenience and inefficiency of such an apparatus are obvious. The agitation of the ocean and the tossing of the vessel might render it useless in a moment.

But Gioia placed the magnetized needle on a pivot, which permits it to turn to all sides with facility. Afterward it was attached to a card divided into thirty-two points, called rose de vents, and then the box containing it was suspended in such a manner that, however the vessel might be tossed, it would always remain horizontal.—Electrical Engineer.

THE "REGENT."

A Diamond That Restored the Fortune of the House of Pitt.

Men have never collected great crystals for personal adornment. Even that "fribble in lace and spangles," the rival of Beau Brummel and afterward George IV. of England—even he sought them simply for some Perdita he was pursuing.

Louis XIV., le grand monarque, purchased twenty-five large diamonds, mostly for La Valliere, Montespan, Fontanges, Maintenon. Among them was the wondrous "Pitt." A slave in India found it. Having found it, his heart shouted for liberty. Cutting the calf of his leg in order to hide the diamond within the slit, he limped to the coast. To an English ship captain he offered it for passage to any country where men were free.

The captain, quite casually and with nice humor, took the gem and threw the slave into the sea.

The guerdon of such jesting release from servitude was sold to a dealer for $5,000 and through him reached Sir Robert Pitt, governor of Fort St. George, for $102,000, who shipped it home to England to be faceted.

A Scotch financier, John Law, then doing business in France, negotiated for a fee of $25,000 the sale of the diamond to the regent (afterward Louis XIV.) at $775,000.

It is pleasant to remember that thereby the fortunes of the house of Pitt were restored and that the seller's son, William Pitt, and his grandson, the Earl of Chatham, were assisted to high place and service by opportunities made possible through the profit on the diamond for which a poor slave, seeking freedom, was thrown into the sea. —Everybody's.

AN IRISH DUEL.

Rules Were Ignored and the Meeting Had a Happy Ending.

A duel with a happy ending seems an anomaly, yet one is commemorated in Blackwood's Magazine in an article on Irish "fire eaters." The duel as arranged was between John Egan, a county judge, and Roger Barett, master of the rolls. Both men were humorous, and the meeting upon the fair ground of Donnybrook was characteristic.

Upon the combatants taking their ground Barett, who was the challenger, promptly fired without waiting for the signal to be given and then walked coolly away, calling out:

"Now, Egan, my honor is satisfied!"

The judge, however, was by no means contented and shouted: "Hello! Stop, Roger, till I take a shot at your honor!"

Barett thereupon came back and, planting himself in his former station, said composedly:

"All right, then. Fire away."

Egan presented his pistol and, taking most deliberate aim, first at one part of the anatomy of the master of rolls and then at another, seemed determined to finish him outright. At last, however, he cried out:

"I won't honor you! I won't be bothered shooting you! So now you may go your own way or come and shake hands with me, whichever way you like best."

Barett chose to shake hands, and amidst the plaudits of the crowd the antagonists departed from the field in much good humor, the best of friends.

The Mess in the Oven.

"How came such a greasy mess in the oven?" said a fidgety old spinster to her maid of all work.

"Why," replied the girl, "the candles fell into the water, and I put them into the oven to dry."—London Tatler.

Mildew.

An easy method of removing mildew is to place the article in a warm oven for a few moments and then brush it.

MAGNETISM.

Some of the Peculiar Properties of This Strange Force.

The true nature of magnetism as such, of course, is not known. All that we can be sure of is that magnetic attraction does not radiate outward in all directions as does light, but simply acts along lines consisting of closed curves and called lines of force, these lines connecting the two poles and not extending very far outward between them. These curves may be found very nicely by placing a horseshoe magnet under a thin sheet of paper and sprinkling iron filings on top. The filings will collect along the lines.

Now, as to the different kinds of magnets, there are natural, artificial and electro magnets. The natural ones are found as magnetic ore in the earth, the artificial ones are made by stroking a piece of iron or steel with a magnet, and the electro magnets are caused by the action of an electric current.

Some peculiar things have been noticed in regard to magnetism, among which are the following facts:

It has been observed that fire irons that have rested in one position during the summer months are often highly magnetized, no doubt having been caused by the magnetism of the earth itself by the process known as induction. Other iron articles that stay in one position and do not come in contact with fire or other heat are often found in the same condition, such as iron bars to jail windows and iron railings in front of houses.

The most peculiar observation made, however, was that the upper part of the steel tire of a carriage wheel attracts the north pole of a magnet, while the bottom part, or part in contact with the earth, attracts the south pole. This is in the northern hemisphere only and is fully in accord with the theory of induced magnetism. Of course in the southern hemisphere, where the earth is under the influence of the south magnetic pole, the conditions are reversed.

A magnet dipped into boiling water loses a great part of its magnetism, which is miraculously restored to it on becoming cool again.

A sharp blow given to a magnet will cause it to lose its magnetism. Also the application of heat will have a like effect.

If a magnetic needle be placed over a rapidly revolving plate of copper, although it be separated from it by a thick plate of glass, the needle will revolve in the same direction as the plate.—Exchange.

THE ELEPHANT IN BATTLE.

Most Docile Yet Courageous and Faithful of Animals.

Of the docility of the elephant there is no need to multiply examples. It is said that in India native women sometimes when called away intrust their babies to the care of "the handed one," confident that they will be safe and tenderly handled.

But of all elephant stories surely the finest is that which tells how the standard bearing elephant of the Peishwa won a great victory for its Mahratta lord. At the moment when the elephant had been told to halt its mahout was killed. The shock of battle closed around it, and the Mahratta forces were borne back, but still the elephant stood, and the standard which it carried still flew, so that the Peishwa's soldiers could not believe that they were indeed being overcome and, rallying, in their turn drove the enemy backward till the tide swept past the rooted elephant and left it towering colossal among the slain. The fight was over and won, and then they would have had the elephant move from the battlefield, but it waited still for the dead man's voice.

For three days and nights it remained where it had been told to remain, and neither bribe nor threat would move it till they sent to the village on the Nerbudda, a hundred miles away, and fetched the mahout's little son, a round eyed, lisping child, and then at last the hero of that victorious day, remembering how his master had often in brief absence delegated authority to the child, confessed its allegiance and with the shattered battle harness clanging at each stately stride swung slowly along the road behind the boy. —London Times.

So There.

"Of course you will get a flat when you are married and keep house?"

"George isn't such a fat as some people who are envious think he is, and it's none of your business if we keep house or board!"—Exchange.

The DAY of the DUEL

TWO—AND A THIRD

(A TRUE STORY)

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"IT'S a safe bet that Crowley brings the affair to a head if the will gives Ellen the money," said the postmaster.

"Crowley? Why Crowley more than Fitch? When a carcass is to be picked there's little choice between the crows," answered his old friend, the court clerk.

"Well, they do say that Crowley has had an eye on Jim O'Neill's money this many a year. I've always supposed he had a long start on any possible competitor. Still, if you put it that way, there's a whole flock able to smell a fortune."

"The rest don't count; they haven't claws nor beaks for the job. But Fitch is flying well up, don't make any mistake. Crowley may be the smartest lawyer in the county, but Fitch is less scrupulous.

"Has it dawned on you yet that we're settling this thing pretty much without considering Ellen?" said the postmaster after a pause. "There's usually some prejudice in favor of young women making their own choice."

"Ellen don't come under the usual head. I happen to know something about her. She was raised in a French convent, and after her mother's death her uncle kept her close. O'Neill was a hard man. He never let more than three or four folks see her at all when he had her here. The rest of the time she was in religious houses."

"Crowley was one of the three or four."

"Yes, and Fitch was another. They both worked in on the old man. He needed them, with his continuous performance of law suits. They're both clever and they're almost the only men she knows."

"She may have a mind of her own."

"The chances are against it. Her mother and the convent and O'Neill crushed that out of her. Here she is a woman of twenty-five, used to being looked after and ordered around. She gets a fortune. She'll fall to the one of the two men that plays sharp and quick."

The opinion of the court clerk was generally held by all who had known the eccentric and his ways. It was confirmed when the will was read and it was found that the entire estate, valued at $400,000, had been left to Ellen Dugray. Those who were first to call upon the young woman with neighborly condolences were satisfied that she was not one to stand alone. Slender and pale, with a rather pretty face, she distinctly gave the impression of helplessness and dependence which the townspeople had been led to expect. At the funeral service it was noticed that she was supported and comforted by Mrs. Jane Taggart, upon whose motherly arm she leaned at trying moments. The postmaster pointed out this fact to the court clerk as they were returning from the cemetery.

"I said Crowley, didn't I? He's first on the ground already. Did you notice Aunt Jane?"

"What's Aunt Jane got to do with it?"

"Nothing, except that she's Joe Taggart's mother and Joe Taggart is Crowley's chief admirer and benchman. It was skilfully done. He has one of his own party to the front at a critical moment. Watch Crowley; he's smiling already."

Wagering on the Result.

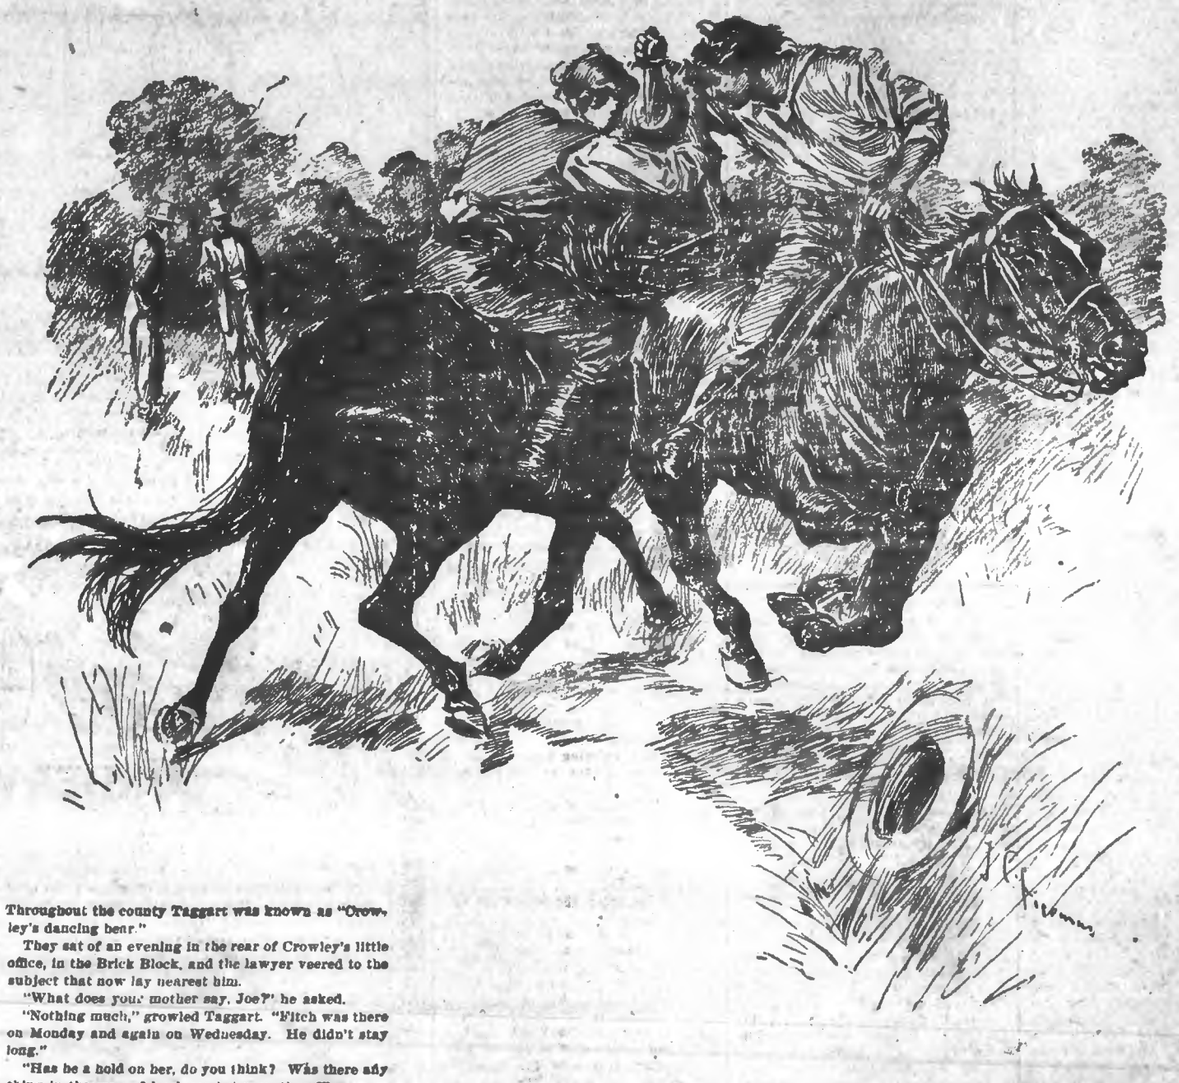
During the next week wagers were freely offered and as freely taken on the outcome. It was conceded that Crowley had lost no time in starting his campaign. But Fitch was as assiduous in his visits as his rival, and the issue hung in doubt. The common conviction was that the question would be decided once for all when Ellen indicated which of the two should be her legal adviser. The estate was large and complicated, litigation was still pending and it would be necessary for the young woman to designate some one to take charge of her affairs, since she could not follow the bandit tactics of her uncle.

The first surprise came when it was learned that Ellen had recruited moral support in the person of a distant cousin, a prim and aged lady of formidable respectability, who now took up residence in the O'Neill house. The neighbors in their amiable desire to further the designs of one or other of the pretenders found themselves quietly foiled by the presence of this new factor. Both Fitch and Crowley were matters of supreme indifference to the distant cousin, and she could not be led or driven into partisanship. Most of the callers retired discouraged from the field. Only Mrs. Taggart, secure in an expansive affection for every one and her homely title of "Aunt Jane," continued undaunted.

The community had already begun to think that the situation would not find so swift a conclusion as had been expected when it sustained another shock. It was announced that neither of the young lawyers was to have the O'Neill estate in charge. Ellen placed her business in the hands of aged Judge Poole, a man of unquestioned integrity, who had been rather hostile to her uncle. The townspeople felt vaguely that they had been defrauded in some way, but there was no doubt that the young woman had acted wisely. The court clerk rubbed his hands in glee, seeing in all these complications the clever checks manipulated by Fitch and scenting a keen contest.

Meanwhile relations between Crowley and Fitch, heretofore marked by outward friendliness, were undergoing a change. They no longer exchanged polite greetings when they met upon the steps of the O'Neill house, nor did they attempt simultaneous visits. The one in possession withdrew when his rival called, and this tacit avoidance of direct conflict remained the sole recognition between them.

Crowley discussed his hopes and his plans with but one person, Joe Taggart. Taggart had attached himself to Crowley in their school days and had since revolved about him as a satellite, singly devoted to his interests, charging himself with political or personal missions at the order of the young lawyer. They made a singular pair—Crowley thin, long of face and nervous; Taggart towering a foot above him, with the shoulders of a Colossus and a shaggy head of red hair.



Throughout the county Taggart was known as "Crowley's dancing bear."

They sat of an evening in the rear of Crowley's little office, in the Brick Block, and the lawyer veered to the subject that now lay nearest him.

"What does your mother say, Joe?" he asked.

"Nothing much," growled Taggart. "Fitch was there on Monday and again on Wednesday. He didn't stay long."

"Has he a hold on her, do you think? Was there any thing in the way of business between them?"

"The old lady couldn't find out. But it's a likely thing that O'Neill left something hanging over that gives him an excuse."

Crowley frowned. "I've been afraid of that. He's been there more frequently of late. And she's growing more difficult to understand. At first I was sure of her. She seemed nothing more than a child. But, hang it all, Joe, she's a woman and she makes a man feel it. Have you ever seen her, Joe?"

"Yes. I went with the old lady once or twice. She's pretty enough, I guess."

"Did she ever mention me?"

"No. She didn't say much, except about her uncle."

Crowley began to walk the floor frowning. "This is getting on my nerves, Joe. I'm beginning to think he's making it a personal issue. Have you heard any more about what he's been saying?"

"Except what I told you. He had a little too much one night and he let on he had you blocked. Some of the boys told me."

"Blocked, eh?" said Crowley, with kindling eye. "I'm sure he's been quietly knifing me. I don't know and I can't answer what he's been telling her. But it would be just like him to try and fix my chances that way, wouldn't it, Joe?"

Crowley's Menace.

Taggart nodded, with lowered eyes. "I guess he wouldn't care very much what he said 's long's he got her."

"Let him keep away from that," Crowley broke out sharply. "It lies between us two. If it wasn't for Fitch I'd have her to-morrow. I won't stand by and let him lie me out of the way."

It was a Saturday night and a group had gathered in the room above the Post Office for the weekly game of poker. Fitch and Crowley had absented themselves from the circle for several weeks. In the meantime there had been persistent rumors of increasing hostility between the two lawyers. The postmaster on entering had a bit of news.

"Fitch is coming."

"Then we'll be right on the scene," chuckled the court clerk, "for Crowley is, too."

Taggart had induced his chief to be present. He had brought word that Fitch would play poker, as usual. "You better go," he had said. "It's no use letting him think you're afraid to be near him. Folks are wondering already if it ain't a case of one's afraid and t'other dassn't. He'll get off some crack about your keeping under cover and it won't do you no good."

Crowley and his "dancing bear" were the last to arrive. There were six of them about the round table, with bottles and glasses handy. Fitch and Crowley did not even glance at each other, a fact that was noted with furtive grins among the others. Chips were dealt and the game began without delay. Taggart dropped into the chair next to Fitch, and Crowley took the one between Taggart and the court clerk.

THE FIGHT HAD GONE ON FOR TEN MINUTES.

They played with few words. From the first Fitch won steadily. Fortune also favored Crowley, and at midnight both were well ahead of the game. An hour later they were the only winners at the board and the tension tightened. The situation took on a curious suggestion of hidden significance, as if the cards offered a test of the issue between the two men.

Heated by the excitement and the drink, each emphasized the personal note by directing his play pointedly against the other. Fitch raised Crowley at each opportunity and Crowley responded promptly. The others, losers all, sat with glum faces, hoping for some turn that would allow them to take advantage of the reckless battle. Meanwhile, the hands running persistently toward the two lawyers, the luckless four were winnowed steadily. Taggart called for new cards three times, but the change brought no result.

The court clerk was dealing and Fitch opened the pot. Taggart stayed, as did Crowley. Fitch stood pat and bet the limit, $50. Taggart dropped out and Crowley drew one card. He glanced at it to find that he held a jack full. He raised Fitch the limit. The opener came back again.

"Sorry I'll have to repeat," said Crowley, addressing his rival for the first time and smiling coldly.

"Trotting along," answered Fitch, easily.

They raised back and forth steadily, while the others looked on, fascinated and breathless. There was more than $1,000 on the table when Fitch, with a gesture of impatience, called. Crowley was still smiling.

"I've got a jack full."

"No good; four eights," returned Fitch, and raked down the stakes.

Crowley knew that Fitch by failing to draw a card had overplayed him, and his face was unpleasant as the game proceeded. He played cautiously for a time. There came several passed hands, and with a good pot on the table he looked at his cards to find that he held a pat king full. It was Fitch's deal. Glancing at the court clerk, King, the man who sat next, and the postmaster, Crowley decided that the last could open the pot. When it came his turn he passed. His face reading proved correct and the postmaster opened.

Fitch raised and Taggart dropped out. Crowley raised the limit. The others threw down their hands and the postmaster also quit, showing a pair of aces as openers, with an angry gesture. The struggle was joined once more between the two lawyers. The betting was stiff. The pile of gold and bills on the table grew steadily. Then Crowley brought about a lull by calling and Fitch held the pack ready to deal.

"Help yourself," said Crowley.

Fitch carefully discarded one card and dealt himself another from the pack. He looked at it carefully and the betting began again. It went on until his neatly arranged piles had melted and he was forced to have recourse to his pocketbook. The watchers knew that the ill will between the adversaries was now at white heat and that neither would stop short of his last cent. They bent forward eagerly, while the raising continued back and forth. Taggart was following the play intently, hair awry and chest sunk against the table. Crowley threw down his money to call with an oath and spread his king full upon the table.

"No good; four eights," said Fitch, as before, but his hand trembled a little as he reached for his winnings. Exclamations escaped from the others. It was a remarkable coincidence that he should repeat his hand so soon. Crowley sat back with white face and turned toward Taggart, murmuring something under his breath. Fitch caught a word.

"What's that you said?" he challenged sharply, half rising from his seat. The postmaster started to protest. Just then Taggart leaned over and plucked Crowley's arm. He pulled his chief toward him and pointed over the edge of the table. Under Crowley's chair, in the dust and litter of the floor, lay a card.

With a leap Crowley was past Taggart's outstretched arm. He stooped, picked the card from under the chair and held it over the table under the light, where all might see. It was an eight of hearts.

The design on the back was that of all the packs they had used that evening. Fitch, with staring wrathful eyes, sprang to one side, glaring at his rival.

"W-what the devil is this?" he cried.

Crowley shook the card fiercely before the astonished faces of the other players. "What is it? Look at it and tell us yourself what it is." He threw the eight upon the table by the side of the four eights of Fitch's hand. A tense silence fell upon the group. Every eye was turned sternly upon Fitch, who glanced about as if seeking an ally.

Resented with a Revolver.

"Look here," he said suddenly, advancing upon Crowley. "I don't know what all this means. I didn't see what you did or where you got that card. But, damn you, if you or any other man here means to say there was anything crooked in my play"—— he whipped a hand behind him and a revolver flashed under the lamp. The postmaster rose from his chair and flung himself upon the arm that held the weapon. There was a scuffle and a crashing report. The others threw themselves upon the two. The postmaster, wiry and tough for all his years, had forced the revolver down and held it until Fitch was disarmed. Breathing heavily, the men fell apart once more. There were shouts from the street and the sound of men running.

"I think we'd better adjourn, gentlemen," said the court clerk gravely.

"Not till I settle this thing," cried Fitch, still struggling to reach Crowley.

"It can't be settled here or now," continued the court clerk calmly. "We'll have a crowd on us in a minute." The words seemed to steady Fitch.

"Then, may I ask you to take charge of that money," he asked, "until this affair is cleared up? You shall hear from me, sir," he said, turning to Crowley.

"As soon as you like," said Crowley, leaving the room, with the faithful Taggart at his elbow.

He went over the affair with his follower before they separated. The only question in Crowley's mind was as to the conditions he should name for the meeting.

"He's pretty handy at a mark, isn't he, Joe?"

"Some say the best shot in the State," returned Taggart, "with rifle and revolver. It's no use committing suicide by fighting him that way."

"Well, what then? We'd look pretty fighting with swords, wouldn't we?"

"Now, you hold on a minute," said Taggart with sudden decision. "There ain't much dueling with swords in this country and it would be foolish to try it. But we got something that's pretty near like a sword, and that's a Bowie knife. And if you want precedent for it, why, it's to be had, I guess."

Crowley walked the floor of his little office with short, nervous steps, considering this suggestion. He did not like it. He was no coward, but the thought revolted him. "Why, that's the way roustabouts fight!" he exclaimed. "Men carve each other to strips."

Taggart shrugged his huge shoulders. "What do you want? You're crazy to fight him, and now you've got your fight. With firearms he'll do you sure. With a knife you'll have the advantage in reach and strength. There's that much to choose between them."

A passing thought arrested the lawyer in his restless pacing of the floor. It occurred to him as he looked at the shaggy head and muscled form of his "dancing bear" that Taggart's manner was neither so friendly nor so aggressive in his support as it might have been. But he did not linger upon hint of a new attitude in his henchman. The duel was the pressing subject.

"All right," he said at length. "Knives let it be. But I must insist upon terms that shall remove the affair from the class of a mere rough and tumble. We will meet on horses. I want you to take letters for me to Lavigne and Wilson. I shall ask them to act for me. Good night."

There were few inhabitants of the town next day who did not know something of an impending settlement between the rivals for the hand of Ellen Dugray. The shot from the post office called for explanation and the various versions agreed in stating that the lawyers had brought their quarrel to a head. But the plans were carefully guarded and no definite word was in circulation. The time was set by Crowley for a week ahead in order to baffle the curious and avoid possible interference. It was early on a Monday morning that the opponents, attended by their respective seconds, galloped out of town by different roads to meet in a clover field two miles away. Crowley at the start looked about for Taggart, but the giant failed to put in an appearance.

Fitch had made no objection to the unusual terms of the duel. He came ready for the fray mounted on a stocky little roan, nimble of foot and gentle of temper, having decided that it would be important to hold a steady seat. Crowley rode a spirited bay, a mount that a less expert horseman would scarce have ventured with. He made a gallant figure as he swept the horse in a flashing circle about the field and drew rein at his own end.

Prepared for the Struggle.

The opponents prepared for the struggle according to their agreement. Coats were stripped off and each submitted to examination by a second from the other party so that there might be no question of concealed armor or other protection. Then the bowie knives, identical weapons, carefully ground and sharpened, were placed in their hands. The two parties rode slowly toward each other across the field. They halted ten feet apart, and Wilson, drawing to one side with the three other seconds, repeated the instructions.

"At the given word, gentlemen, you will be free to advance and manoeuvre at discretion. There will be no pause until one is disabled beyond the possibility of continuing or cries for quarter. In either event the combat will cease. You are absolutely forbidden to strike at your opponent's mount. If either is dismounted he will be given an opportunity to regain his saddle before resumption of hostilities."

There was a brief pause while the two men sat quietly, weapons ready, keeping watchful eyes for the first move. Then Wilson drew his horsemen still further aside. "Are you ready, gentlemen?" he shouted.

"Ready!" they replied, with raised spurs and tightened reins.

"Forward!" There was a muffled shout, the twinkle of steel in the level rays of the rising sun, a shock of bodies and the slap of leather. Both men missed in the first vicious slash and the charge of Crowley's bay carried him beyond his adversary. He wheeled and came back more slowly. Fitch, digging a spur, urged his roan in to close quarters and the fighters clinched.

There was swift, deadly work in the rush of hats and the blind rage of combat. Each had caught the other about the neck with his free hand and sought to deliver a fatal stab. The knives descended, rose again. The horses, thrown together, stamped and pranced, but held their relative positions. Crimson splashes appeared on the picture of whirl and struggle. Suddenly Crowley's bay nipped savagely at the roan, and the animals spun apart.

The riders had suffered severely. Both had felt the steel a dozen times. Their shirts were ripped to tatters and stained from deep wounds. Fitch could hardly see, a sweeping slash having laid open his forehead and cheek. Crowley pressed a hand to his left side, where his enemy had reached him sharply. They breathed a moment, then urged their mounts forward again with unabated energy and fury. Fitch, pulling in his roan, reached his left arm about his adversary's waist and held him in an impeding grip while he struck in again and again. Crowley caught the shoulder thus offered him and pushed Fitch down, stabbing at the exposed side with all his strength.

The horses, held neck to rump by the pressure of knee and spur, no longer sought to evade contact and stood quietly enough. The men meanwhile wrestled desperately. Fitch, finding that his waist hold was proving too expensive, released it and used his left arm to ward the blows that Crowley showered upon him. Each tried now to catch a momentary grip upon the other to make an opening for a thrust. The strain began to tell and they fought with less vigor, though with none the less determination.

The fight had gone on for nearly ten minutes. The opponents had lost almost all human semblance. Still the knives gave their ruddy flash and still they worked for death—and life. The men were forced to lean against each other across their saddles for support, gasping, heaving, with spasmodic efforts at a decisive blow. Crowley, leaning his weight upon the blade, almost severed Fitch's arm at the shoulder. The other at the same instant lurched forward and buried his weapon to the hilt in Crowley's breast. Nerve and courage could do no more, and the two dropped together, slid from their saddles and fell to the ground. The seconds, dashing forward, drew them from beneath the trampling hoofs.

Water carried in hats was thrown upon the unconscious combatants. One of Fitch's seconds who had some knowledge of surgery set about binding the terrible wounds. After some time Fitch opened his eyes. As he turned toward his helpless enemy there was a smile on his battered and disfigured face. Presently he knew, from the remarks of his seconds, that Crowley, too, had returned to consciousness.

"Crowley," he called, weakly. The others fell silent. Both men were dying. "Crowley," whispered Fitch again.

"Yes," answered the other, finally.

"I—wanted to tell you—that Taggart married Ellen last night. They went over the county line. I was the only one—that saw them go. I—didn't say anything because—because of the—eight of hearts. He—Taggart—put it under my chair."

And Crowley, with grim appreciation, reached out a hand, smiling a little. Under the cloud that hovered close above them both they exchanged a clasp of understanding.

FOR LOVE OF A WIDOW

John's Attempt at Suicide Rewarded With Sensible Advice.

By DONALD ALLEN.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

It was a new sensation for John Dale, farmer's hired man, to wake up one morning and find himself in love with the Widow Harper, who owned the next farm on the west. He had known her for a year, but love had come creeping along so insidiously that it gave him a shock when he came to realise it.

The Widow Harper owned her farm; John Dale was simply a hired man at $20 a month. The Widow Harper could discuss Shakespeare; John Dale had simply heard that Columbus discovered America. The Widow Harper quoted poetry; John Dale couldn't even repeat a Mother Goose rhyme. On account of these things and many others poor John Dale felt that the widow was as far above him as the clouds above the cornfield. Love had come, but it was a hopeless love. She was not for him. When he strolled over to her house she might welcome him with a smile and repeat lines from Byron or Milton as they sat in the gloaming, but in the end she would marry a sewing machine agent, and he must suffer with a broken heart.

For a week the farmer's hired man kept his hopes and fears to himself. Then he could stand it no longer, and he made a confidant of a lightning rod man who came along and stayed overnight. After supper the stranger was taken out behind the straw stack and told all. He listened without smiling once. He listened to the very end, and then he sighed and shook his head in a solemn way and replied:

"John, if you were talking about a girl it would be different, but she's a widow, you see. A widow is a curious creature. No man just knows how to handle her. She may fall into the arms of a tin peddler, or she may tell a millionaire to take his hat and go."

"Then there's no hope for me?" plaintively asked the hired man.

"Yes, there's one hope. If the widow quotes poetry she's romantic. If

"WHY DID I FALL IN LOVE WITH YOU?"

she's romantic you have a chance. You've got to appeal to her romance by dying for her—dying for love of her."

"But if I died I sure couldn't marry her."

"You mustn't really die, but almost. Here, now, let us do some planning. I'll beat a farmer every day in the week when it's business, but when I find a man eating his heart out for unrequited love I can't go back on him."

The talk between the two was strictly private, but one of the results came to hand within a week. John Dale was found by his employer in the barn just as he had swung off in a noosed rope to commit suicide.

"You tarnal idiot, but what did you do it for?" demanded the farmer after he had cut down and revived the victim.

John Dale shed tears and said his life was a burden to him, and of course the Widow Harper heard of the affair and wondered over it. She would be suicide ceased to visit her and that was another cause for wonder.

Ten days after his first attempt the hired man made another. He was caught just as he was about to partake of enough paris green to have killed a couple of horses. It was the farmer's wife that caught him this time, and as she gave him a box on the ear and snatched the dish away from him she said:

"Well, if you hain't turning into the biggest fool in America! What in catnip ails you, anyway?"

"It's my breaking heart!" was the tearful reply.

"Your breaking fiddlesticks! It's biliousness and nothing else. You are acting like a boy ten years old."

The widow heard of this second attempt, and it made her look serious for several days. She would have had a talk with John had he appeared, but she looked for him in vain.

Two weeks passed this time, and then came the third attempt at suicide. The farmer and his man were mowing grass beside the river when John suddenly threw away his scythe and leaped into the current. There happened to be an old boat handy, and the farmer managed to get the victim ashore and stretch him on the grass. Then he gave way to his indignation by shouting:

"You potheaded lunatic! What's got into you this summer? This is the third time you've tried to die. What's the matter?"

"I'm in love!" replied John after a long minute.

"You're in what?"

"I'm in love with the Widow Harper, but she don't love me, and that's why I want to die. I stood it till I can't stand it no more."

"Ever ask her to have you?"

"I dasn't."

"You seven kinds of idiot! Don't know whether she'd say yes or no, but trying to kill yourself!"

The widow heard of the third attempt through a farmer's boy, and she was sitting on the veranda after supper and thinking the matter over when John Dale suddenly appeared. He had a story to tell, and he went right at it like a man hoeing corn.

"Widow Harper," he began, "I know I hain't fit to lick your shoes, but I love you. When I found I was loving you I tried to kill the feeling, but the harder I tried the more I loved. That's why I tried to hang myself."

"I see," she said as he paused and wiped away a tear.

"I was in hopes my sore throat would make me forget you, but it didn't. I had suffered for you, and you were dearer than ever. I couldn't get you out of my mind. I kept thinking and thinking, and, knowing how hopeless it was, I turned to that tater bug pizen. I had a note for you in my pocket, and you'd have got it after my death. Mrs. Whalen took the pizen away from me just as I was asking heaven to always bless you. In the note I also said I hoped you'd be happy with any man you married."

"Yes," remarked the widow as another pause came.

"Then I was determined to weed you out of my heart at any cost. I drank sour cider; I fell off the fence on purpose; I pinched the cows when milking them to make them kick; I ran through a bed of nettles in my bare feet; I rolled off a haystack. It was all in vain! I was loving you more instead of less. Down by the river I got to thinking about you marrying that sewing machine agent or a wire fence man, and I just made a run for the river and jumped in. I swallowed all the water I could, and I kicked when Mr. Whalen got me by the hair and pulled me out."

"And after trying three times you have succeeded in weeding me out of your heart?"

"No. That's what I've come over to tell you. I keep thinking of you every minute. If a bird sings or a duck quacks or a goose cackles I think it's your voice and look around. Why was I born into this world? Why did I ever see you? Why did I fall in love with you?"

"And now, John, just what is it you want?" asked the widow when he had uttered his last word and was gritting his teeth to keep the tears back.

"Why, I want—I want you to have me!"

"Then ask me. If you had done so a year ago I should have said yes, as I shall say now."

Shrewd Peter the Great.

Peter the Great adopted rather a novel means to convince his subjects that they should change their clothes to conform with the modern costumes of western Europe. Believing, as is well known historically, that the future greatness of Russia depended upon the facility with which it was made to assimilate all that was best in other countries, he had succeeded in introducing some important innovations into the half civilized region over which he held sway. At length he had patterns of cloth hung up at the gates of the towns, and those who did not conform to the fashions thus set were docked publicly, albeit this was done in as pleasant a manner as possible, for Peter believed in being good natured with his people. They, on the other hand, loudly demurred and used the argument that what was good enough for their forefathers was good enough for them.

"Very well," said the sagacious Peter. In 1703 he gave a dinner at Moscow to celebrate the marriage of one of his jesters and insisted that it should be conducted in strict conformity with ancient usage. There had formerly been a superstitious custom of not lighting a fire on a wedding. So Peter made them do without a fire, although it was very cold. He would not give them any wine, because their forefathers never drank it. When they remonstrated he reminded them that it was a poor rule which did not work all around, and thus by his good natured greatness he bedded his people into new coats, about the hardest thing that can be done with humanity.—London Mail.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Nov. 4 to 8, warm wave 3 to 7, cool wave 6 to 10. This was not expected to be a severe disturbance. A cold wave was predicted to precede it and rains to follow. Several days of warm weather are expected to centre on Nov. 7.

Second disturbance of November is expected to reach Pacific Coast about 10, cross Pacific slope by close of 11, great central valleys 12 to 14, eastern states and provinces 15. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 10, great central valleys 12, eastern states and provinces 14. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 13, great central valleys 15, eastern states and provinces 17.

This is expected to be a more severe disturbance than the preceding. Rains accompanied by a general fall in temperatures will come from 8 to 17, and during the five days centring on 14 some ugly, stormy and cold weather may be expected.

I expect temperature in the southern states to go down rapidly from Nov. 1 to 8, and then rise till about 20, while in northern states temperatures will go down from Oct. 30 to Nov. 3, then up till 7, then down till 17. It will be cold south from 6 to 10, and warm north.

November crop weather will be fair as an average. From 9 to 18 will be stormy and bad for gathering corn, picking cotton and threshing wheat, but much better weather will prevail from 19 to Dec. 3. A great warm wave will spread over the continent 23 to 28, and work on farm and plantation should be rushed in preparation for winter.

I expect January to be very warm in the States with a great amount of rain. This will be very favourable to winter pastures, but live stock and rough feed will need protection from wet weather. It will probably be warmer than usual in Canada, but not much rain or snow west of Meridian 90.

February will be a very warm month east of Rockies. Too much rain in Ohio Valleys, New England states and eastern provinces, but very dry in Mississippi valleys, and all the drainage country of the Manitoba lakes.

It is well for all to know these things in advance and then make preparations for them. Our winter will come after middle of February. January and February look warm and wet for all the states and provinces east of Meridian 90.

Oct. 2 these bulletins predicted that about Oct. 14 a hurricane would organize on the Carribean Sea, later near our coasts and cause a cold wave to come down from the far West. The prediction was fulfilled to the letter. Why? Because the earth passed between the sun and Saturn and Mars was nearly on a line with sun, earth and Saturn. Put down one more credit mark for Planetary Meteorology.

NO KIDNEY TROUBLE OR BLADDER MISERY

Just a Few Doses Will Overcome Any Kidney Disorder and End Backache.

The most effective and harmless way to cure backache and regulate out-of-order kidneys, or end bladder trouble, is to take several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

You will distinctly feel that your kidneys and urinary organs are being cleaned, healed and vitalized, and all the miserable symptoms, such as backache, headache, nervousness, rheumatism and darting pains, inflamed or swollen eyelids, irritability, sleeplessness, or suppressed, painful or frequent urination (especially at night) and other distress, leaving after taking the first few doses.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder, or rheumatism, begin taking this harmless preparation as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Don't be miserable or worried another moment with a lame back or clogged(inactive kidneys or bladder misery. All this goes after you start taking Pape's Diuretic, and in a few days you feel and know that your kidneys, liver and urinary system are healthy, clean and normal, and all danger passed.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug sore—any where in the world.

WHAT IS TRUTH?

Men and women in all ages have asked Pilate's question, "What is truth?" and like Pilate have turned away because they were unable or unwilling to accept the answer to their question. Mortals are not always as desirous of knowing the truth as they think they are. The honest, earnest search for truth requires moral courage surpassing that possessed by many. The unwillingness to acknowledge himself in the wrong is one of the weaknesses of the mortal man that does much to retard his progress. A few desire the truth's sake and are ever ready to make any sacrifice to gain it, but there are many who are disinclined to acknowledge the worth of any teaching unless it is in strict accord with their preconceived opinions.

Truth is one and unchangeable. Every idea or statement of Truth must of necessity harmonize with every other idea or statement. Above and beyond all creeds, beliefs, opinions, supposition or convictions is Truth undisturbed or affected by mortal thought. No matter how firmly one believes a thing to be true, if it is not true his belief cannot make it so. Truth is absolute and final. Human opinion can neither make nor unmake it. Truth must be understood before its benefits can be fully realised. Mortals sometimes fancy that a belief, if it is honest, is sufficient; but this is not so and experience is teaching that nothing less than the understanding of Truth brings the promised freedom.

No doubt all are convinced that Truth will ultimately prevail, and that its final triumph will bring blessings without number to all mankind. The discords and failures of life are the result of error and these bitter experiences are preparing humanity for the recognition and acceptance of Truth. If human progress is slow and at times seems almost imperceptible, it is largely because mortals are unwilling to see and acknowledge the error of their ways. It is strange that there should be this reluctance since it is admitted that all error must be recognized and forsaken in order to achieve complete reality. To gain the truth means everything to humanity and all should be united in this good work even though their endeavors do seem to be along different lines.

The way to harmony is not through differences of opinion, neither is it to be found in unity of false beliefs. It is possible that no two persons have exactly the same concept of any one thing. The present finite attainments of the human mind cause mortals to view all things from slightly different standpoints. There may be and are countless beliefs regarding Truth, but there can be but one understanding of it. In the understanding of Truth and nowhere else can true harmony and enduring unity be found. Mortals have sought to establish unity of thought and action by formulating beliefs to which certain persons could assent. Such a course can succeed only for a time. The remedy is not to be found in unity of beliefs or opinions, but in the understanding of Truth. There is growth in understanding and progress is the law of God, but the unfolding of true ideas is always in perfect agreement with those revealed before. There is no conflict between higher mathematics and the simplest statements of the basic law of numbers, and so when the first idea of absolute Truth is discerned there is that much gained that can never be lost or superseded. All that the future has in store will be found to agree with the first simple statement of reality.

The wise man learns from observation and experience. He is ever ready to recognize the good others are doing. Instead of thinking he has gained the whole of Truth, he realizes he has just begun to understand it. His present concept of truth is imperfect and he is so busily engaged in righting the wrongs of his own thought that he has little time and still less inclination to dwell upon the imperfections of others. The might and majesty of a truly Christian character is a potent influence. Brotherly love and true charity stem the tide of sectarian bitterness and reveal the saving power of Truth. These Christian graces bring a truer concept of the one God who is Truth

Since all who are progressing are being lifted daily into higher, and consequently more correct conceptions of reality, would it not be well for each honest seeker to say to every other in the words of Abram to Lot, "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, . . . for we be brethren?" Thus each could go his own way, working from his own standpoint of experience and observation, fully realizing that in the future all will be united in the understanding of God, man and the universe.

NEWS FROM BOYS' DEPARTMENT

Y. M. C. A. Boys to Reorganize for the Season's Work.

A committee of Y. M. C. A. boys met last night to arrange for the reorganization of the boys' work. This year the boys will elect their own cabinet, which will be responsible for the various departments of their work. Nominations have already been made and will be posted. The election by ballot will be held Friday, November 12th. Polls will be open on that day from 4 to 6, and from 7 to 8 p.m. All members of the boys' department hold the franchise. Immediately after the polls close a mass meeting of the members of the department will be held, at which will be presented reports of the boys who attended the Conference of the Boys of Canada at Lake Couchiching last August, and the Thanksgiving Conference of the boys of Ontario and Quebec, which was held in Toronto. Members of the Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors, parents and members of other boys' clubs in the city are specially invited to this meeting.

Bakes Perfectly

Because of the special flue construction and because oven is built of nickel steel, the heat is distributed evenly throughout the Pandora ventilated oven. Just look at a batch of bread baked in your neighbor's Pandora. See how uniformly alike is the crust on each and every loaf. Pandora oven is certainly the perfect baker.

Easily Regulated

Pandora is simple in construction—easily regulated. Fire can be made to burn up quickly or checked rapidly—drafts respond immediately. Can be checked down to hold fire for 24 to 36 hours. Thermometer is tested for accuracy before range leaves factory. You'll find it an infallible guide to baking success.

THE HOTEL NATIONAL VISITED BY A VERY DISASTROUS BLAZE YESTERDAY

Carelessness of Employee Caused a Fire in the Basement Which, for a While, Threatened the Existence of the Entire Building and Which Did a Large Amount of Damage Before it Was Extinguished by the Good Work of the Fire Brigade---Hard Fight for the Firemen

THE BLAZE WAS IN A MOST AWKWARD POSITION TO FIGHT

As the result of carelessness on the part of an employee the Hotel National was visited by a disastrous blaze last evening that for some time threatened to destroy the whole building, and at that did a very considerable amount of damage, as well as giving Chief Howard and the fire brigade a very awkward task, which they accomplished splendidly. The fire originated in the furnace room, which is situated in the basement near the northeast corner of the building, and under the bar and offices. The cellarman of the hotel was engaged yesterday afternoon in burning the waste paper and other things which accumulate in the rooms, as is done once a week, and was raking his fire, when he carelessly laid down the fire shovel near the pile of papers. Almost at once the waste paper ignited and the flames shot up so quickly that he had very little time in which to make his escape from the basement.

Almost as quickly the smoke rushed through the corridors and before the inmates could realize what was wrong the place was full of smoke. An alram was hurriedly sent in and the brigade responded in quick time.

Once started the smoke from the fire in the basement spread with almost incredible rapidity through the building, filling every corner of the hotel so quickly that the inmates had little time to get their property from their rooms; in fact, very few got out with anything but the clothes they were wearing, and for a while it looked as if they were going to lose everything they had, as it was impossible to gain access to the rooms. The halls were filled with dense clouds of smoke that made it impossible for anyone to remain long in the building, and although a number of articles were recovered from the rooms by short dashes into the smoke, had the fire spread through the building the guests and employees would have been heavy losers. So quickly did the smoke spread that the inmates had little thought of anything but escaping.

When the fire brigade reached the scene they found dense clouds of smoke pouring from the windows of the hotel. Not only was this true of the basement windows, but also of the windows in other parts of the building. The smoke was so heavy that it looked from the outside as if the hotel was doomed.

The position of the fire made it very difficult for Chief Howard and his men to get at the seat of the trouble, but they were undaunted by the obstacles in their way and commenced a campaign that was successful in confining the fire for the most part to the section in which it originated. The blaze caught the ceiling and joists of the basement in places where it was a task of the utmost difficulty to reach them, and this fact made the fire a most troublesome one. The work of the firemen was further hampered by the smoke clouds which rendered it impossible to see anything. In spite of the obstacles however, the brigade worked heroically, and soon had seven streams of water on the blaze. The portion of the cellar in which the fire was was deluged with many tons of water from lines of hose laid through the windows and through holes chopped in the floors.

For some time the issue was a doubtful one. With every part of the building filled with smoke and with the blaze in the basement almost impossible to reach it looked to many of the spectators as if the hotel was bound to go. This view of affairs was taken by many of the inmates and rescue parties who succeeded in reaching some of the rooms by means of ladders from the outside, carried out all their portable belongings with a view to saving them if the fire spread. It was impossible to reach the rooms by means of the stairs, as the smoke was too thick to permit of this, but the ladder method proved successful, and a large quantity of property was carried to safety. Subsequently, it proved that such measures were unnecessary, but at the time they were taken the aspect of affairs looked so dangerous that it seemed the only wise thing to do under the circumstances.

About an hour after the alarm was given the blaze made its way through the wall at the rear of the rotunda, and it looked at that stage as if the fire had gotten beyond control. However Chief Heward and his men came to the rescue with a stream through the front door and the spread of flames in that direction was speedily checked.

Then the firemen stubbornly went back to their task of quenching the blaze in the basement. Tons of water were poured into the cellar and at last the efforts of the brigade were crowned with success. At one stage the fire was carried up the walls to the second and third storeys, but nse of the chemicals there was entirely successful in extinguishing the blaze.

Downstairs the blaze had penetrated in the joists over the greater part of the basement, but the firemen reached every part and drowned out the fire, keeping it from spreading to the main part of the hotel.

It was at 4.45 o'clock that the alarm was sent in, and the brigade did not leave the building until nearly 10 o'clock, having five hours of hard work before the blaze was totally extinguished. The men worked willingly and well and their efforts were commended by the big crowd of citizens which quickly gathered when the alarm was sounded. Their task was no light one as the fire in the basement kept jumping from one place to another, dozens of little fires starting in the ceiling at different points in the basement. That the brigade was able to confine the flames almost entirely to the cellar in view of the good start the blaze obtained speaks volumes for the good work done by Chief Howard and his men.

Several of the men had narrow escapes from being seriously injured while operating a line of hose through a hole in the wall in the rotunda. The large Grandfather's clock, which was hung on the wall near this point suddenly toppled over on the hosemen, who had no time to escape and two of them were knocked down by the heavy time-piece, the helmet of one man saving him from being badly hurt.

An Examiner reporter visited the National this morning and inspected the basement, where all the trouble was. The awkward nature of the blaze could be easily seen by an examination of the cellar. It could be seen where the fire had broken out in many different places in the ceiling of the basemnt, spreading in all directions, and the only wonder is that it did not break into the upper storeys. The floor of the bar was burned through and the flames made their way up the wall of this room, breaking through the rotunda and through the rear wall, but was checked before it could make much progress in that direction. However, the beautiful tiled ceiling of the front of the building will be ruined and the bar is almost totally wrecked by fire, smoke and water. This and the wall between the hall and bar were the only places where any damage was done upstairs by fire, but the whole building will be badly damaged by the smoke which permeated every room.

It is not possible just yet to get an accurate estimate of the damage done, but it will be very considerable. Mr. D. B. Dennison is proprietor of the hotel, while the building itself is the property of the Chamberlain estate. The damage to the building will be covered by insurance and the same is true of the furniture, but on the stock in the cellar and bar, which consisted of liquors, wines, and cigars there is no insurance, and the damage done in that department will represent a total loss. It is estimated that from $1,500 to $2,000 worth of goods were destroyed in the bar. The total damage will run well up into the thousands and this will be increased in the proprietor's case, as the hotel will necessarily have to be closed some time for repairs.

The Hotel National had been thoroughly renovated and refurnished within a short time, and the fire comes very inopportunely.

THE HEART A GREAT WORKER

What a wonder is the heart! Day and night it works away pumping tons of blood through the body and never tires or wears out so long as it is supplied with rich, red blood, such as is formed by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While sending supplies of nutrition to other parts of the body the heart renews and rebuilds its own wasted cells and so retains health and strength.

THE FALCONER BIBLE CLUB

Rev. H. J. Keith Conductor of Class Which Meets Every Friday Night.

The Falconer Bible Club, conducted by Rev. H. J. Keith, met last night at the Y. M. C. A., and the leader outlined the work to be taken up in the course. He pointed out that some of the questions that business men and others are up against as to the ideal life, and how far it is practicable, will be discussed. It is a course full of what all men need, and offers an opportunity that is not met with every day. All men are welcome whether members of the Y. M. C. A. or not. Club meets every Friday at 9 p.m.

THE BISHOP OF TORONTO VISITS PETERBOROUGH

His Lordship, Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto, will be the Sunday and Monday guest of Peterborough. He will arrive in the city this afternoon at 5.30.

In the evening an informal reception will be held at All Saints church.

On Wednesday morning the Bishop will administer the rite of confirmation at All Saints.

In the evening he will preach the sermon at St. John's, for whose congregation he has a special message.

On Monday evening a congregational reception will be held at the Rectory.

BAZAAR SUCCESSFUL

A very successful "Rainbow" bazaar was held last evening at St. James' church. There was a large number in attendance and the articles for sale at the various booths were quickly disposed of. During the evening there was a short programme, including an interesting talk by Rev. Mr. Biddiford of Park street church. The receipts amounted to nearly eighty dollars.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN BEGINS TO-MORROW MORNING

Rev. J. D. Morrow of Dale Presbyterian Church Will be the Speaker at the Morning Service at Knox Church.

EMINENT SPEAKERS

To-morrow morning, Oct. 31st, the evangelistic campaign that will centralize in the three Presbyterian churches will be opened in Knox church at the morning service by Rev. J. D. Morrow of Dale Presbyterian church. Mr. Morrow is an enthusiastic minister, who puts the same energy into his ministerial duties and pulpit work that he did when doing 400 yards in championship time. For Rev. J. D. Morrow is a Canadian champion and withal a most attractive speaker who puts the true note in all his messages. He will preach in Knox church morning and evening and the officers of the church are preparing for large congregations.

Mr. Morrow will also be one of the special speakers at the mass meeting at 4.15.

On Monday evening, Nov. 1st, Rev. A. E. Mitchell, of Knox church, Hamilton, will take charge of the services in Knox church. Mr. Mitchell has won a distinguished place for himself in the ministry of the Presbyterian church as an organizer and preacher. When he first took hold of Erskine church, Ottawa, it had a membership of 83. He left it after a few years of his vigorous work with a membership of nearly a thousand and with one of the largest Sunday schools in the Dominion. He is now pastor of Knox church, Hamilton, one of the largest in that city. He was chosen by the General Assembly's Committee to take part in the Kootenay campaign last spring. People of the city should not miss the opportunity of hearing him.

The second week of the campaign will be under the direction of Rev. Dr. Farquharson, of Durham. Dr. Farquharson is a distinguished scholar and a strong preacher. His service in the church was recognized by Knox College a year ago when the Senate conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

The choir will be assisted by members of other choirs.

The services in Knox church are open to the public, particularly to those living in the southern part of the city.

A BALD NEWSPAPER MAN.

Getting a New Crop of Hair, and Has No More Dandruff.

Everybody in the Northwest knows Col. Daniel Searles, the veteran journalist and publicist of Butte. Jan. 10, 1900, the Colonel writes: "I used a couple of bottles of Newbro's Herpicide with marvellous results. The dandruff disappeared; a new crop of hair has taken root, and the bald spot is rapidly being covered." Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ that digs up the scalp in scales as it burrows its way to the root of the hair, where it destroys the vitality of the hair, causing the hair to fall out. Kill the dandruff germ, with Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

LAID TO REST

Late Sergt. E. A. Hutchison Buried With Military Honours Yesterday.

The funeral of the late Sgt.-Major Hutchison took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late residence, 578 Stewart street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral was under military auspices, the members of the 24th Field Battery and representatives of the 57th Regiment turned out to pay their last token of respect to the memory of the late comrade. The funeral cortege was headed by the firing party in charge of Sergt. Major Fee and Trumpeter Spenceley. Then followed the gun carriage, on which was laid the casket. The pall-bearers were Sergs. Batton, Biggs, and Hay, of the 24th Field Battery, and Sergts. Sharpe, Mitchell and Metheral of the fifty-seventh Regiment. The 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons were represented by Major W. T. Hall and Capt. Medd, and Capt.-Adjt. W. Ackerman represented the 10th Brigade Field Artillery. The usual volleys were fired over the grave.

The services were conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb. A large number of beautiful floral tributes were received expressive of the deep sympathy felt for the sorrowing wife and family.

OPENING OF NEW CHURCH

Sunday, November 21st, Date Set for Formal Opening of Church of Sacred Heart— Notice Received To-day.

ARCHBISHOPS HERE

The Church of the Sacred Heart will be formally opened on Sunday, November 21st. Rev. Father McColl received a letter this morning from His Lordship Bishop O'Connor to that effect, and also that Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, will sing mass on the occasion and Archbishop McEvay, of Toronto, will preach the sermon. The complete announcements have not yet been prepared, but it is learned that the opening of the new Catholic church will be one of the most important events in many years in Catholic church circles and will be adequately observed.

A LATE FALL

Old Resident Predicts the Late Arrival of Winter.

According to some of the oldest settlers, the indications point to a protracted fall. Up to the present the weather has been delightful for the most part and many are the wishes for a continuation of the "fair with a little higher temperature" brand. An Examiner reporter chanced to meet Mr. Joseph Barnard this morning, and his opinion is that winter is hardly due yet. "I lived for 48 years on the shore of Rice Lake," he stated, "and I found that every year the wild ducks were late in arriving if the fall was a long one. I never saw it to fail. According to the stories from the lake now, the ducks have not yet arrived, and I will be much mistaken if winter does not take some time in arriving, and in the meantime we should have some fair weather."

PETERBOROUGH'S DEER HUNTERS OFF TO THEIR FAVOURITE TRAILS

Will be Ready for the Opening of the Season on Monday Morning---Where Local Enthusiasts Will Follow the Monarchs of the Forest.

Monday, the first of November, is the official opening of the deer shooting season which will be ushered in with the baying of hounds and re-echoing rifle reports in the unbroken wilds of the northern country. Peterborough's sporting fraternity have been leaving in groups during the past few days and by to-night they will all be gone. A long cold drive and a rest to-morrow in preparation for an early start on Monday morning and then with the dawn of the morrow the curtain will be wrung up. The weather is inviting and the prospects are of the best. The nights, however, are too cold, and in consequence the creeks and bays of the lakes are frozen up every morning, and it is said the ice has not disappeared before the noon-day sun. A little finer weather and the conditions could not be improved upon.

Battle Lake Party.

One of the happiest parties that leave Peterborough is that which makes its headquarters on the shore of Bottle Lake. It is composed of Dr. C. H. Amys, Messrs. Gus. Corcoran, M. O'Brien, Arthur Head, J. E. A Fitzgerald, M. Blewett, W. Weatherlake and J. Stabler. They not only have plenty of sport but their evenings are spent pleasantly and as a male chorus they would do credit to a Shubert production. Bottle Lake still re-echoes with last year's favourite, "Every Little Bit Added, etc." and this hit will be one of the most popular of the party's rather limited repertoire.

Mr. J. B. Laroque has gone to Parry Sound, where he will hunt with a Toronto party. They will go in for big game and all guesses are wrong if "Bat" does not bring down a moose.

Ketchecum Lake.

Up on the shore of Ketchecum Lake there is a cosy lodge which has accommodated the usual party on many previous occasions, and will again be the mecca of a number of the "bunch." Amonk those who went back this year are Messrs. G. W. Mororw, W. T. Hall, L. Hall, E. F. Mason, R Munro, R Gibbs, G. W. Burnett and R. Stuart.

Eastwood Party.

Messrs. W. Long C. Harkimey, F. Sergent, H. Brundrette, T. Eastwood, and I. Eastwood left last night for Stoney Creek and expect to bring home as many of the antlered family as the law alolws.

The Gladman-Ray party and the R. Neill party will hunt in the Parry Sound district. They are now on their way to their favourite hunting grounds.

To Eagle Lake.

Messrs. Chas. Gunnolus, C. Weah, B. White, A. G. Carruthers, C. Gunn, and C. Mitchell, of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club left shortly after six o'clock this morning for Eagle Lake, where they will der hunt for the next two weks.

The following licenses for deer hunting have been issued by Col. Miller, Wm. Tedford, Jos. Tedford, R. Tedford, R. Hambbin, Steven Miller, Warsaw; J. Heskett, Lambtan; J. M. Bradley, N. H. Bradley, Smith; L. Fife, Otonabee; R. Neill, G. Coleman, G. W. Henderson, Chas. Gladman, P. A. Kerr, S. Ray, T. Best, J. Bennett, N. Barnard, J. D. Collins, Robert Munroe, R. Waddell, W. H. Stroud, R. H. Jackson, F. Brownscombe, John Brightman, Andy Miller, Wm. Gill, Matthew Lambe, Peterborough; Arthur Hendren, R. Bell, Warsaw; C. Curtis, A. E. Curtis, J. H. Maybee, R. Haw, Robert A. Miller, C. Norslick, B. Larocque, B. O'Dette, M. McFadden, J. S. Waldron, George Metcalfe, D. Evans, J. G. Bothwell, W. Bothwell, G. Morrow, J. A. Morrow, Peterborough; N. J. Curtis, Northumberland; G. Bull, A. Bull, George Hooey, H. C. Winch, E. F. Mason, Wm. J. Miller, Amos Sherin, Frank Sherin, Lewis Fowler, Chas. Butcher, and A. G. Carruthers.

Wife Blind, Home Burned And Horse Seized, Being Disabled

London, Ont., Oct. 30.—Inspector Saunders yesterday ordered to be destroyed a horse which was in a pitiable condition. In connection with the case is a strange story of a man named Lewis Whitehead, who claims Tavistock as his residence, and says he was burned out there. Several days ago some one reported to Mr. Saunders that a man, accompanied by his wife and child, and a crate of chickens, was driving toward London, living off farmers, and with a horse that was in a terrible condition. The inspector at once sought the man, but it was some time before he could locate him. When he did so, he found the party in a pitiable plight. The mother is stone blind, the child was half starved and the man himself made a wretched appearance. The horse was limping along on three legs, its bones sticking through its skin and it was evident cruelty to ask it to work. The mother was taking care of the child, about five years of age, and the party was living from hand to mouth on the charity of the people.

When questioned, Whitehead said he had been two weeks on the road. He had been burned out in Tavistock and having neither money nor work, decided to come to London, where chances would be better. Taking with him his wife and child, and the crate of chickens, he started on his journey, and the whole outfit had put in a terrible time.

Ordering the horse to be killed, Mr. Saunders at once took care of the woman and child, and then began an investigation into Whitehead's story. Whitehead, according to what the inspector said, is a shiftless fellow, though not a bad man.

Arrested For Stealing Watch And Ring At The Hotel Fire

Jesse Airriess was arrested last evening during the progress of the fire at the Hotel National, and appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning, charged with stealing a gold ring from Mr. G. Clarke's room. Another charge of stealing a gold watch, the property of Mrs. A. P. Poussette from room 21 at the hotel was also preferred against him. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the accused and did not elect nor plead.

Chief Boesel was not ready to go on with the prosecution and the accused was remanded until Wednesday morning. His Worship placed his bail at $500.

A POPULAR MINISTER.

The Brockville Times apparently suffers its party spirit to make it unjust or at least, extreme. Speaking of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Hon. G. P. Graham, the Times intimates that if we are to take these gentlemen at their own valuation it is doubtful "whether it is really possible for mere human man to be as great as that." This is spleen. As to Mr. Graham he is justified in having a proper amount of self respect. Never any predecessor, Conservative or Liberal, held his portfolio with greater capability and credit. While he is a splendid Minister, in private life, "he puts on no side." At home he is genial, affable and popular, and is esteemed highly even by his political opponents. A prominent Conservative from Brockville the other day informed the Examiner that Mr. Graham is well thought of by Conservatives, and makes no distinction; he recognizes that he is the representative of the whole riding, Grit and Tory alike.

BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH.

City building is not an automatic process. No city can build itself, but must depend upon the energy and public spirit of its citizens. With all its transportation andvantages; with its central situation; with its cheap, and—for some time to come—abundant electric power; with its large concentration of important industries, practical testimony to its desirability as a manufacturing centre, one would think that more new industries would be brought to the city. In this regard the City Council seems to be asleep, and the Board of Trade treads lightly lest it should wake it. There seems to be lack of concentration of effort. What is everybody's business proves to be nobody's. We need centration of responsibility. As things are, Peterborough in the matter of industrial expansion is stationary. We need two things and we need them badly. We need an energetic and well directed publicity campaign, and we need somebody with specialized ability and responsibility to devote himself exclusively to its direction. The Examiner has heretofore urged the advisability of appointing an efficient industrial commissioner, good enough to command good pay and worth being made to earn it. There is no need to specify the duties of such a comissioner. It is self evident that his business would be to advertise the attractions of Peterborugh as an industrial centre. In the process he would be brought into touch with industries seeking a site for their establishment. If he is a live wire he would constitute a magnet to attract manufacturers. Other live cities employ such a commissioner and find that he pays. If the City Council and Board of Trade do not rise to the demands of the occasion public-spirited citizens might combine to bring pressure and to inject business order into organised chaos, to substitute action for inaction and doing for dawdling. We have all the conditions—except taking advantage of them—to make Peterborough a ten-times-more-important industrial centre than it is to-day.

RE[illegible]JUSTMENT OF ASSESSMENT VALUES.

The Assessment Act and its anomolies we shall, it seems, always have with us. That the incidence of assessment is, in effect if not in intention, unequal, can easily be demonstrated. The disparity is especially to be noticed in relation to the assessment of land values and assessment of business and improvement values. This is set forth in the following copy of a petition that is being sent to municipalities to be approved by them and forwarded for presentation to the Legislature. The petition has been approved and signed by the councils of more than 200 cities, towns and townships. The petition, which is now before our City Council, is as follows:

To the Honourable the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario.

The petition of the undersigned ..... showeth that:

Whereas buildings and other improvements are the product of individual industry, and are acknowledged by all to be beneficial to the community, and taxing them discourages their production and is thus detrimental to the interests of the community,

And whereas land values are not the result of individual effort, but are the product of the community as a whole, and taxing them discourages holding land out to use for speculation, and encourages putting it to productive uses, thus conducing to the prosperity of the community,

Therefore your petitioners pray that your honourable body will amend the Assessment Act so that municipalities may tax improvement values at a lower rate than land values; business assessments, incomes and salaries to be classed with improvement values, and the difference in the rates, in every case to be determined by the Municipality.

One of the undesirable features of the present time in this province is the seeming prevalence of a willingness of the average man to rest content with a small run-down and unsanitary home. This is accounted for by the fact that a fine is imposed for making improvements, the fine consisting in a very appreciable increase of his assessment, and hence of his tax bill. While the new or improved dwelling, which may be an ornament to the vicinity and the town or city as a whole, is made the legal excuse for a sharp advance in assessment, there is no increase in the assessment of the possibly vacant lot adjoining, though it has been increased in value by the erection of this hypothetical building or improvement. This irregularity certainly amounts to a grave injustice and its existence can be easily shown. Some eloquent figures have been collected to show how this condition obtains and they are no doubt typical of the province as a whole, though they specifically apply to two towns and two cities in this district. The figures are easily understood. They are as follows:

Cobourg	Trenton	Belleville	Peterborough
Pop'lation 6155	6157	10,012	16,907
L'nd value $1,648,670	439,791	981,587	3 937,366
Imp'nt val $1,305,500	987,671	2 59,833	5,990,396
Sum's as't $2-5,756	139,726	461,699	920,210
Tax Rate .025 mills	020 mils	020 mills	.0191 mills

It will be observed that in all these places, except Cobourg, the land values are far too low in proportion to the building or improvement, and the business values. This means the burden of taxation is loaded upon commerce and industry, and building improvements, while the land values, which are necessarily unproductive, and contribute compartively nothing to the sum total of prosperity, comparatively escape. It is held that this condition can be remedied in the way indicated in the petition quoted above—by so amending the assessment act as to give municipalities the power to decide upon the placing of a lower rate upon improvements than upon land values. The amendment should be made in order that every municipality may have the power to exercise it, at its option, as circumstances and conditions indicate, in the direction of readjusting assessment values so that they will be fairly placed to the encouragement, instead of the discouragement of improvements, and in the interest of general advancement.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS.

Two of Cassell and Company's monthly publications for October have all the attractive features of high quality and variety of text and excellence of illustration that distinguish them. The Quiver begins a new volume with November and promises many alluring new features grafted upon the sterling character of the past.

"Cassels" has a splendid table of contents, the leader being "Changes in the Royal Navy," the passing of the "Jolly tar." Lady Molly's Adventures are continued and an entirely new series of these interesting stories is promised for November and the following six months. "Under the British Flag"—in Australia—and "Choral Singing in England To-day" another instalment of "Coverly Gutch of the Stock Exchange," and a generous instalment of short stories, complete a very readable number.

The Busyman's Magazine — the Maclean Publishing Company, with November inaugurates a new era "national in its circulation comprehensive in its scope and breezy in its treatment of up-to-date subjects." Its contents for November are readable and timely, the original articles being of national interest, especially "Changes in the English Navy." This is of especial interest in view of Canada's contemplated embarking in the navy business.

An article on British Columbia Fruit Lands is of large interest and "A Man and His Paper" by G. B. Van Blarican deals appreciatively with the story of John Dougall and the Montreal Witness." "The Cheesemaking Monks of Oka," by Frank Yeigh, is an interesting relation of the dairying operations of the Trappists at Oka. The editor promises an unusually good Christmas number.

Busyman's Magazine is true to name and has won a creditable place in Canadian literature and publishing achievement.

"The Secret of Sex" is the title of an ingenious scientific essay by E. Rumley Dawson, L.R.C.P., and M. R. C. S. London and issued by the Cochrane Publishing Company, New York. The book is serious in its character and scientific in the treatment of the problem which Dr. Dawson, by the discovery of a simple law of nature has solved—the pre-natal determination of sex. There is nothing in the book to cater to prurient curiosity, more than in a text-book on physiology—only the elaboration from a scientific viewpoint of a newly discovered physiological law. A FAT WOMAN HATES SOCIETY

Fat people have to get into clothes that are designed for people of normal physique. The men wear dress suits and look like comic pictures. The women wear low necked dresses to their evident humiliation. This is why it is often said that a fat woman hates society. Fat is as much the mistake of poor health as anything else. The things that make fat should be making good blood, bone and nerves. The secret is that the digestive machinery is out of gear. The juices make fat in too large quantities. This fat impedes circulation, cramps the heart, suppresses the liver, crowds the lungs and interferes with the stomach. Marmola Tablets are harmless. They are taken after each meal. They help digest that meal as nature intended it should be digested. They remove the fat already made at the rate of from 12 ounces a day, and they leave no flabby skin or wrinkles. They are sold everywhere drugs are sold, or in the same category with harmful patent fat reducers. They contain Marmola, Cascera Aromatic, and Peppermint water. If you do not care to call upon your druggist, send 75 cents to The Marmola Company, Dept. 833, Detroit, Mich., and they will send you a large, full size case by return mail in plain package postage paid.

"CHURCHMAN" COMMENDS CANON DAVIDSON'S BOOK

The Canadian Churchman contains the following warm editorial commendation of the fourth edition of a Confirmation Manual, written by Rev. Canon Davidson, St. John's:

"In connection with our recent remarks under the above heading we would draw attention to a new edition (the fourth) of Canon Davidson's Confirmation Manual, entitled ("Features of our Faith, Position, and Practices." Issued first in 1899, three editions have been called for—each showing some improvement on its predecessor. The fourth edition, just published in an enlarged form presents many striking additions to the subjects treated in former editions. These now include, amongst others, "Principles of Prayer and the Prayer Book;" "The Christian Year;" "The Message of Our Church Buildings;" "The Church and the Bible;" "Conversion;" "The Layman's Commission, and Missionary Duty;" "Mixed Marriages." These and other subjects are concisely and devoutly dealt with in language at once, simple and direct. Strict accuracy of definition is not, we suppose, to be looked for in brief a manual intended for general circulation. But the booklet being instructive and inexpensive, should gain a wide circulation, as a ready and intelligent exposition of the distinctive teachings of our Church and a popular means to a most desirable end—the building up of an intelligent and progressive Churchmanship. It may be added that, whilst definite in its teaching, the Manual deals with such subjects as Prayer and the Baptismal Obligations from a distinctively modern yet Scriptural standpoint. The booklet bears the imprint of the Church Book Room. We heartily commend the new edition of this opportune and practical Manual to our readers,—not only on the ground of its own intrinsic merit,—but also because it is a "labour of love," of one of the most zealous and devoted of our clergy, whose daily exemplifying in his own life work the potent truth of the principles so clearly and forcibly advocated in its instructive pages."

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform Leagues of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

A LOCAL EVIDENCE OF GETTING OUT OF THE BUSINESS.

Peterborough citizens will need to exercise care before accepting arguments against local option advanced by the liquor interests for past history shows that gross ignorance and misrepresentation are weapons often used against the banishing of the bar. This may be seen in the fact that at the time of the vote for the reduction of license in Peterborough many citizens were made believe that the taxes of Separate School supporters would be increased and some who were then in the liquor business in Peterborough were supposed to pay much to the Separate School. What has happened? Since that time ten Catholics have dropped out of the business and with what result? The Taxes on Separate School supporters have been lower. The schools have been better equipped and the teachers have received higher salaries.

Is it not evident to everybody that in every conceivable department of civic life there has been increasing benefit?

What Liquor Has Done.

As Peterborough citizens reviewed their papers during the past few days they must have been struck by the records of horrible crimes for which whiskey is responsible. Take, for example, Walter Blythe, who pounded the head of his wife into a pulp with a poker. He was so maddened with whiskey that his actions were the actions of a demon.

Remember that sad and broken-hearted mother, Mrs. Robinson, with such a blighted life, waiting for her death sentence to be carried into effect as the result of the unnatural and brutish outrages committed by her husband while under the control of whiskey. Then poor Joe Hunter, of Bobcaygeon, the hotelkeeper, wife murderer and suicide who begged his friends in a note not to blame his wife but whiskey.

Why should the question of compensation be well mentioned? Yet some weak kneed people call local option confiscation.

Prohibition is Not Confiscating.

The clearest thing that has appeared in the daily press in years in reference to the liquor men's claim that prohibition is or amounts to "confiscation," is the following from the "Detroit News":

"The liquor business has no standing before the law. It has no rights. It is merely tolerated by society. A license is not a property. It is not negotiable. When it expires that is the end of the State's special obligation.

"The contract has been fulfilled and is dead—what is there to do about it?"

There can be no compensation for a business that ruins and destroys human life.

Compensation for Prohibition.

In the course of the foregoing article "The Independent" says: "By local option and State law the area of prohibition is rapidly spreading. The saloon business is being made more disreputable, and the brewers and distillers less admired members of society. They know they are in a risky sort of business, like the manufacture of explosives. If they suffer from hostile legislation they have no right to complain; they know the nature of their business, and no public spirit or private generosity on their part can purchase them the privilege to do a public injury and a multitude of private wrongs."

It is clearly inconsistent for a government to license and protect a business, in the progress of which vast sums of money are invested, and then by a reversal of its position enter upon a policy of prohibition and endeavour to destroy the same business, but the mistake is in following the first and not the second line of action. The saloon is at war with mankind. The liquor dealer understands this, or should do so. He is willing to reap a harvest from the suffering and misery of his fellow creatures. He knows the movements that are in progress against the saloon. He knows the efforts constantly being made in favour of prohibition. He knows, or he can easily know, the degree of success attained in this direction. And when he invests his thousands, or millions, in the liquor business, he does it at his own risk. If prohibition destroys his business, he is entitled to nothing. He has been giving the public drunkenness and misery instead of value received. He has too long grown rich through his unproductive and destructive trade. The government owes him nothing. The people owe him nothing but suppression. He need expect nothing in the way of compensation for his business.

The whole ground of argument, however, is fallacious, because it is always assumed that a good hotel will not thrive without all the foul accompaniments of the saloon. Wherever men have gone in to succeed there has been success and the proprietors themselves have acknowledged that they felt that they were better men and more highly respected for at once it changes them from being malefactors to that of benefactors of any city.

TEMPERANCE HOTELS.

When many good temperance hotels are found all over England, Scotland and Ireland, as well as in the United States and Canada, some of them earning as high as twelve per cent. on the investment, in a country where dividends are usually lower than with us and where abstainers are much fewer, it is surprising that we have hardly half a dozen hotels outside of prohibition territory worthy to be compared with the West Central of London or the Cockburn of Edinburgh. It is certainly one of the fields where philanthropic investments on a paying basis might be even more wisely made than in model lodging houses, for these last are mostly used for men already impoverished by drink, while the hotels might save many of the travelling men before they are caught in the temptations incident to every hotel where liquors are sold. The common saying that "a hotel can not succeed without a bar" means no more than to say a man could make more money by becoming a pugilist than as a physician. Hundreds of hotels have paid as reasonable a return as average investments without the blood money of a bar.

The Mayor of Alabama on State Prohibition.

Large cities in the States are making a success of local option or prohibition. So can we in Peterborough. This is what the Mayor of Atlanta, Ga., says about prohibition:

"I don't believe the city of Atlanta has been damaged by prohibition. The places that were formerly occupied by the whisky saloons, have all been rented to the near-beer dealers, or other lines of business.

"Real estate values have not decreased in Atlanta during the one year and a half of Prohibition, but on the contrary, they have been fully maintained, and are to-day the highest in the history of our city.

"Building permits to the amount of $3,714,573 have been issued during the past seven and a half months of 1909, which exceeds any corresponding period of any other year.

"The Prohibition law is being enforced in Atlanta. The blind tiger, where whiskey is being illegally sold, is hard to find, and I believe the number of them is decreasing. The arrest of 354 blind tigers attests the fact that the law is being enforced.

"As to the statement frequently made that the Prohibition law can not be enforced where public sentiment is against it, I desire to say that in my opinion, an honest and courageous police judge, backed by a mayor of the same kind and by superior court judges who also believe in the enforcement of the law, will, in cities of 100,000 to 200,000 inhabitants, very soon create public sentiment which will stop the illegal sale of whisky or reduce it to a minimum. A study of the arrests shows that the drunks are far behind the times of the whisky saloon.

"A great deal of whisky is being legally shipped into the city from other States . . . and many cases of drunkenness may be attributed to this source of supply."

Not the Hotel Man Exactly BUT YOU.

If every citizen would remember that he is a partner in the business and that it is allowed to exist because he allows it by his vote there would be a little more conscience regarding the matter. We adopt the language of one of the foremost leaders of Reform on the continent, when he says:

"Does someone say, 'What can I do to hasten this glad day?' Do what you can and do not underestimate the power of little influences. 'Shamgar, what is that in thy hand?' 'Only an ox-goad.' 'Come, dedicate it to God and go slay the Philistines.' 'David, what is in thy hand?' 'Only a sling and a small pebble.' 'Come, dedicate them to God and go slay that giant?' 'My little lad, what is that in thy hand?' 'Only five loaves and two little fishes.' 'Come, dedicate them to God; they will feed thousands and have basketfuls left.' 'My brother, what is that in thy hand?' 'Only a little ballot.' 'Come, dedicate it to God and go cast it for the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and may God bless it to the overthrow of all that is wrong and the triumph of all that is right!'"

Put It Away

I have no harsh word to speak of any. The liquor traffic is the awful heritage of a less wise, less kind, and less enlightened past. For its existence in this gentler age we are all more or less responsible. Let us combine to put it away, "with malice toward none, with charity for all."—Frances E. Willard.

FREE KIDNEY CURE

Free to all the sick—Write for it

Any reader of this paper who suffers from any form of kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism can get free treatment by writing to the celebrated specialists Dr. Lyons of Chicago. Neither the rich nor the poor will be charged. He has sent thousands free treatments, and though cured in their own homes they were asked for no money. All he wants is that you tell your friends about it. If you or any member of your family, or any friend suffers from a kidney complaint like too frequent desire to urinate, prostatic trouble, pain in the back, inflammation of the bladder, backache, or any of the different kinds of rheumatism, write the doctor a letter describing how you suffer and he will send you a free treatment at his expense; also a letter of medical advice and a big illustrated medical book describing these diseases. Write today. Dr. J. Pierce Lyons, 1, 51 Medical Bldg., Chicago.

REBUILDING THE WHOLE BODY

That Is the Constant Business of the Blood.

And That Is Why a Blood Making Tonic Will Make the Body Well and Keep It So.

Pure, red blood is the vital principal of life, for upon it the tissues of the body live. It goes practically to every part of the body, carrying nourishment and oxygen, taking up the wastes and so changing them that they can be cast out of the body. As our every act results in the breaking down of some of the tissues and the formation of waste materials, the body is in a constant state of change. To maintain health strength and life the blood must be pure in order to replace these tissues with plenty of fresh nourishment and rid the body of its waste material.

Men and women who are run down will find Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best tonic for their condition because these Pills are a certain blood-builder and purifier. They enable the blood to meet the unusual demands of the body and give perfect health We offer the case of Mrs. John Harman, of Welland, Ont., as a proof of the great power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over disease, Mrs. Harman says: "For several years I lived a life of pain and misery, and even now as I recall that illness it seems awful to contemplate. The trouble began with weakness and loss of appetite. This was followed by headaches and emaciation. At times I had violent palpitation of the heart and shortness of breath, finally I was completely prostrated I was so haggard that my friends hardly knew me, and I often thought my last hour had come. My sufferings would follow me into the region of dreams with such distinctness that often times I would awaken shivering and shaking with sobs, and scarcely able to realize that I had ben but dreaming. The best efforts of three doctors at different times failed to help me. Then I was urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Within one month I felt a distinct improvement, and after using eleven boxes I was again in full possession of health and strength. Several years have now elapsed since this illness and as I have constantly enjoyed the best of health I am warranted in saying that the cure is permanent."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be used in all diseases caused by thin, watery or impure blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, stomach trouble, the after effects of lagrippe and fevers, neuralgia, headaches and the various ailments common to women and growing girls. These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

GENERALLY SPEAKING

The football match on Thanksgiving Day between the Peterborough Juniors and the Lindsay team was a really fine exhibition. It was one of the finest games that has been witnessed in Peterborough for many a long day. It manifested clearly that we have material in this city that at no distant date will render a good account of itself with whatever team it may be pitted against. The team is especially fortunate in having as its adviser Dr. McPherson, than whom there is possibly no better qualified to officiate as a coach. His methods are clearly evidenced in the work that the Juniors have so far accomplished. They have a hard task before them in the match at Lindsay to-day but, given a fair field, there is no reason why they should not duplicate their victory of Monday last.

The Examiner Road Race, which took place on Monday over the usual course from Lakefield to Peterborough was a great success and no small amount of the credit is due to the police who took care that the crowding in of the spectators at the finish which has been so regrettable a feature of former contests should have no place in this year's race. The race itself resulted in a contest between two runners, Smoke and Thorpe, and contrary to general expectation the Indian won. He deserved his victory, for no cleaner race was ever run over the course. It was a wise policy of the management to open the event to the neighbouring counties as it certainly added interest to the contest, besides making the race wider known.

A gentleman named Robinson has been giving an address in Hamilton to a certain society and took occasion in the course of his remarks to inveigh against "Athletic Sports." He asked, "Can an athlete be clean" and gave as the answer, "No." If ever there was balderdash uttered it is to be found in such an assertion as this. It goes without saying that there are many athletes, who are not clean livers, but there are many people living in this vale of tears who are not athletes who are not clean livers, either, and for a man to calmly go to work and condemn all athletes on account of the backslidings of the comparatively few is nothing more nor less than consummate impertinence. Either the writer does not know what he is talking about or he is trying to gain a little cheap notoriety by giving vent to a startling statement. Such a man needs sitting on badly. There is no safer outlet for the effervescence of youth than in the innocent sports and diversions of amateur athletics. The great educationists of all ages have recognized this fact. Certain elements have undoubtedly crept in in modern days that have to an appreciable extent tended to demoralize the weaker votaries of sport. Amongst these the gambling craze may be easily accorded first place. But what has this to do with the character of sport itself? It is merely the barnacle on the ship.

Mr. Robinson says that he believes in the Physical Culture Courses of the Y.M.C.A., but he draws the line there. He forgets that the Association, in any important branch, generally has a very flourishing department for athletes! We could cite instances of many men eminent in all walks of life who distinctly trace their success in the world to the steadfastness of purpose and determination which they acquired on the playing field and in athletics. There are limits certainly to the extent to which sport should enter into our existence. Like everything else it can easily be overdone. But taken in moderation it is the most helpful aid to a manly and purposeful career. Mr Robinson should talk on a subject that he knows something of — he evidently knows nothing about athletics or athletes.

There was some talk some time ago of the appointment of an official to make known the advantages of Peterborough abroad as a promising place for the establishment of factories and all sorts of industries. There does not seem to be an overweening desire on the part of any of the aldermen to bring forward the matter at the present time. Why is this? If the thing is worth doing it is worth doing at once. There is nothing to be gained by a shilly-shallying policy.

We have, most of us, at odd times come across one of those unsuccessful, harmless creatures whom the world at large dignifies by the name of a genius and generally he is a man who has been remarkable for nothing beyond devotion to some fad from which after a long term of years he has been unable to extract anything in the way of profit. The question has often been asked, "What is genius and wherein does it differ from talent?" The question has never been settled. No definitions have compassed it. But the old idea that genius is a gift of the gods, an inspiration, a demoniac possession, and talent mere human energy and application might be exemplified by a whole army of citations from the most ancient of poets to the last critical review. Dryden said "genius must be born and never can be taught." Owen Meredith said "Genius does what it must, and talent does what it can." Dr. Johnson defined it as "a mind of large general powers accidentally determined to some particular direction" and Buffon characterized it as "only the supreme capacity for taking pains." Matthew Arnold termed it "mainly an affair of energy." Men of great minds have always been supposed to be close to the border line that divides sense from idiocy and Dryden has embalmed this belief in the well known couplet,

"Great wits to madness sure are near allied
And thin partitions do their bounds divide."

This thought is very ancient and widespread and classical literature abounds with expressions that tend to assimilate the man of genius to a madman. Lack of space precludes any quotations, however. The best we can do is to point to the history of men eminent in all walks of life whose conduct in their private life gives colour to this statement.

Respected reader, we may thank our stars that most of us, belong to the class which is aiming to do the best it can and not what by force of genius it is compelled to do. It is a distinctly safe condition to be in. What a terrible world this would be if it were peopled with geniuses!

CHIVALRY AND THE BUSINESS WOMAN

The equality of the sexes is more clearly recognized in practice in the United States than in any other country in the world. Wherever she goest," the American woman says to the male of her species. "I go;" and in effect she does. No avenues are closed to her on the ground of sex; she may hustle with the men in almost any sphere of activity, except politics, which oddly enough she hardly touches. In business she has a fair field, and she pushes her way in everywhere, from the clerk's desk to the general manager's office, often thrusting out her masculine competitors in the process; and in the struggle for success she is just as energetic and just as remorseless as they are and quite as formidably egotistical.

Confronted with this side of the feminine character, man is apt to exhibit the angles of his own. He finds it hard to be deferential and respectful towards a being who is neither his charmer nor his helpmate, but his assiduous rival, busily seeking an opportunity to push him from his stool if she wishes to occupy it herself. He can hardly be expected to keep the goddess on her pedestal when she is so actively engaged in knocking him off his own. The participation of the two sexes in commerce, industry and financial enterprise may lead to rough camaraderie but hardly to a protective chivalry. Men treat women as they treat one another, and see no reason why they should make social concessions to persons apparently so well able to take care of themselves. But women are still feminine enough to be inconsistent; and so while demanding and obtaining all the rights of equality they expect to receive those attentions which derive their whole meaning from a condition of inequality.

If there is no stronger sex and no weaker a generous forbearance seems out of place on either side. The store clerk who has just lost his post because a woman has got it may well feel unwilling to surrender his seat in the tramcar to one of his merciless successful rivals. In the universal struggle and drive of American life, men and women scrambling together in the dust for what they can get, the fine flowers of urbanity and cultured politness do not come to blossom.—London Outlook.

MAKES HAIR GROW

Wm. Madill Has an Invigorator That Makes Hair Grow in Abundantly or Money Back.

If your hair is thinning out gradually it won't be long before the bald spot appears.

The time to take care of the hair is when you have hair to take care of.

For thin falling hair the best remedy known to mankind is Parisian Sage. It is compounded on scientific principles and furnishes to the hair root a nourishment that acts quickly and promptly and causes the hair to grow.

But remember this: It kills the dandruff germ, the pest that appropriates all the natural nourishment that should go to the hair root.

Parisian Sage is sold by Wm. Madill, under a positive guarantee to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It gives to woman's hair a lustre and radiance that is most fascinating and causes it to grow abundantly.

Parisian Sage is now sold in every first-class town in Canada. A large, generous bottle costs 50 cents, and the girl with Auburn hair is on every bottle.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Sir,—J. M. Robinson, of Hamilton, should study Sir Frederick Leighton's work "An Athlete Wrestling with a Python." To generalise is wicked, and when you can't prove, like Mr. Burnham's recent action, slander. If one was to say all the churches or public institutions—but I must not say further. If Robinson, of Hamilton is condemning the promoters of athletic meets who are simply after what they can make out of it, I agree. Long ago I gave up clubs and participation in all public affairs, but tempted again, I am more disgusted than ever. W. A. BAILEY.

The Optimist.

Gunner—You look worried to death, old man.

Guyer—Can't help it. My wife is up to her neck in debt.

Gunner—Oh, cheer up! It might be worse.

Guyer—How could it be?

Gunner—Why, if she is only up to her neck in debt that means she has settled for her summer hat, and that means a great deal these days.—Chicago News.

Apples at $10 Apiece.

Never in the history of fruit growing has ten dollars been paid for a single specimen apple of a standard variety. Four or five dollars a barrel is considered a good price for a barrel of Spys. Yet when you figure up the cost of a barrel of Spys at ten dollars each the price will be over $1,000. This price, which will be paid right here in Ontario is quite unusual. In Oregon they sometimes receive as high as ten dollars a box for Winter Bananna apples, but even that price only figures out at thirty dollars a barrel. Even the choicest Canadian apples that are exported to Great Britain, and sometimes sold wholesale at three to four dollars a barrel, sell retail sometimes at five cents each in the fruit shops in London this would make an average of just over ten dollars a barrel. The fact that ten dollars is being offered for the best single specimen apple of Baldwin, Greening, Spy, King or McIntosh, and that five dollars is offered for the second best of the same varieties, or seventy-five dollars in all for the lot of ten apples is making the fruit growers in Ontario very keen over the Exhibition.

This amount of money is being offered by the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition, Toronto, where the apples will be on exhibition from Nov. 9th to 13th, 1909. Fruit growers who have some extra good specimens of any of these varieties should send their apples for competition. There are rules and conditions to govern the competition, which will be furnished by the Secretary, P. W. Hodgetts, Toronto. Last year this Exhibition was visited by persons from distant parts of Canada and the United States, and even England sent her expert apple man to see the largest Horticultural Exhibition ever held in Canada.

In addition to apples there will be one of the finest displays of prize fruits, vegetables and flowers ever shown, making a splendid advertisement of Canada's products.

From present indications this year's Exhibition will in many ways eclipse last year's splendid success. The railway companies, recognizing the importance of the Exhibition, have decided to give special rates. Local railway agents can supply the information.

Mrs. Catt Not a Man Hater.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt no doubt is justified in her indignation at the wicked report she had called men "lobsters" and "shrimps." She affirms she never stooped to such odious terms and that, on the contrary, she has no hostility toward men. Mrs. Catt does not blame the poor masculine animal for women not having the ballot in this year of grace. She traces the evil back many generations and says that instead of wasting time criticising men she is bending every effort to hasten the day of equal suffrage.

WHAT IS THE OBJECT?

The Simultaneous Mission and What It Means---Begins To-morrow---What It Will Aim at Accomplishing---Support of the People Is Necessary.

In view of the evangelistic services which begin in our city on Sunday, the following article from the pen of a distinguished Presbyterian minister in Chicago, Rev. A. Z. Conrad, D.D., on what the Simultaneous Mission stands for and what may be expected from it, merits the careful consideration of all. Dr. Conrad says:

"To be definite, what is the object of the Simultaneous Evangelistic campaign, and what may it be expected to do?

To arrest attention. To stop the absorbing rush for pleasure and temporal gratification, and fix the thought upon things permanent. To impress the thoughtless and indifferent with the realities and finalities of religion. Then as the great vital fundamental and controlling purpose of the campaign, to get men to commit themselves to Jesus Christ as their Saviour and Lord. To cause people to see the folly of depending on anything other than Jesus Christ for salvation from the guilt of sin and the love of sinning. To reclaim lost men and women and create in the heart new hope, and in the life, the lost image of the Master. To revitalize the church, making its pulse beat more rhythmic with the heart of God and more harmonious with the Divine will. To elevate the whole ethical tone of society, making things odious which are wrong and creating a public opinion which will brand as infamous much that now goes unchallenged. To create such a sense of justice and honour as will improve the business ethics of the whole city. To make righteousness and virtue attractive and worth fighting for everywhere and at all times. To lessen the difficulties of living virtuously, honourably and devoutly. To double the delights of life under all circumstances, and increase daily enjoyment and zest in all of life's honourable pursuits. To decrease and so far as possible eradicate selfishness and self-seeking, by emphasizing the sacrifice of Jesus. To develop a sense of brotherhood which does not exist or subsist merely by the fact of God as Creator, but which results from a sense of the Brotherhood of God realized only in the Saviourhood of Jesus Christ. To sweeten and sanctify home life by producing mutual love and fidelity. To create a new sense of civic honour so that all the duties of citizenship will be performed from higher motives and in greater loyalty to our country. To unite sects and denominations so fully that lines of demarcation will be scarcely distinguishable, so that the absorbing passion will be to make Jesus Christ a reality in daily life and practice.

To gain a new appraisement of the values of things with which we have to do, thus centring the energy of men and women on things that are worth while.

To develop a true national philanthropy which will sympathize without patronizing and contribute without impoverishing.

To increase happiness, lessen misery, awaken hope and destroy despair develop faith and make the beginnings of Heavenly felicity a reality right here and now. Are these worthy of effort? If they are, then it is our privilege to help on every one of these things by promoting, supporting, sustaining the simultaneous and other wisely conducted revival movements.

SPLENDID CONCERT GIVEN BY BAND OF THE 57th REGIMENT

Promenade in the Armouries Last Night Was a Great Success—Fine Programme and Large Crowds.

MANY NEW NUMBERS

The first of a series of promenade concerts to be given by the 57th Regimental Band under the direction of Mr. Gliddon attracted a big crowd to the Armouries last night and the concerts if they continue to be as meritorious as was last night's affair promise to be most popular. The Armouries proved an ideal place for an entertainment of such a character although the acoustic properties might be improved if the echo could be done away with.

It was the first opportunity the citizens of Peterborough have had of hearing the band in concert since the summer and it was in the nature of a welcome home to Band Sergeant Walter Hughes who has just returned to the city from the west. These two features seemed to blend to make the concert a most enjoyable event. The band was in rare form and their programme was a well chosen and varied one that was full of merit.

The programme included two marches by Mr. Gliddon the talented director of the 57th, numbers that demonstrated in no uncertain manner that Mr. Gliddon is as successful a composer as he is a leader. The opening number "The 57th Regiment," composed by Mr. Gliddon and dedicated to the officers of the Regiment was played for the first time in public last night and its swinging martial melody was thoroughly appreciated by the audience. It is a number that is full of vim and dash and Mr. Gliddon is to be congratulated upon his success in this as well as in the "Vanguard March, which headed the second part of the programme. Another interesting number was Auber's grand overture "Masaniello" played here by the band of the 19th Regiment of St. Catharines on their visit on July 1st and presented to the 57th Regiment by Bandmaster Peel and his men as a mark of thanks for the manner in which they were entertained by the local musicians. The overture contains some very fine passages especially for reed work, and the band in its rendition of the number last night, took full advantage of the openings given them ,especially in the most effective finale.

Kappey's Fantasia "Under the British Flag" in which are interwoven the characteristic songs and dances of Great Britain and her colonies, was another big offering that was charmingly played and received with every mark of apreciation.

A feature of the programme was the cornet solo by Sergeant Hughes in which his clean cut work won him the marked approval of the audience.

Mr. W. McIlroy the well known local baritone, made a most favourable impression in his vocal solo "Killarney" with band accompaniment and had to respond to an enthusiastic encore.

Mr. Jos. Halpany made a big hit in his comic song 'Hey, Mr. Joshua" and in response to the applause gave a recitation "The Statue of Liberty." The programme was as follows:—

PART ONE.

March—"57th Regiment'- ..Gliddon
(Dedicated to Lieutenant Colonel Stevenson and Officers of the Regiment.)
Overture—"Masaniello" ..... Auber
Cornet Solo—Selected .....
Sergeant Hughes.
Mazurka—"Boulognaine" ..... Matt

NO ENTRANCE FOR GRAIN ROUTE WITHIN SEVERAL MILES OF CITY

Selection Will be Either Junction at Kendry, Havelock or the Proposed Route Through West End of Peterborough — The Engineer's Report.

THOROUGHLY SURVEYED

There seems to be no hope of securing an entrance for the grain route of the C. P. R. to the city except that already proposed. The only other alternatives, according to the statements of the representatives of the company is the route to Havelock or the junction at Kendry Siding, the surveying of which is not yet completed. At the Board of Works meeting last night Engineer Hay gave a report of his trip with Mr. H. M. Gillaley, of the C. P. R., through Monaghee and Smith to the western boundaries. The ground has been well covered and no feasible plan could be secured. If the junction is to be made in the immediate vicinity, it therefore seems that the proposed route through the west end will have to be followed. Nothing definite has yet been determined, pending the survey near Kendry, but it has already been stated that the extra five miles from Kendry to Peterborough is a weighty disadvantage. Summing everything up it looks like the line through the west end of the city or the more direct route to Havelock. Just what will be decided upon remains to be seen, but it is understood that the Company is losing no time in their work, and it is expected that the city will soon have to decide what their wishes are in the matter.

You won't be disappointed if you get the genuine "D. & L." Menthol Plasters for stiffness, etc. Successful remedies are imitated, look out for the original "D. & L.", made by Davis & Lawrence Co.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRANCIS YOUNG.

The death occurred to-day of Mrs. Francis Young who passed away after a year's illness at her late home in Ennismore. The deceased was 59 years of age and had been a resident of the County of Peterborough all her life. Her maiden name was Catharine Crough. She was married to her still surviving husband thirty-two years ago. For eight years after their marriage they resided in the township of Smith. They had lived in Ennismore for the past twenty-four year. She was a woman of many estimable qualities and won the respect of all who knew her. Her husband, four brothers and one sister are left to mourn her loss. The brothers are Messrs. Philip, William, Patrick and Michael Crough, of Ennismore and John, of Alberta. The sister is Mrs. Robt. Donoghue, of Ennismore.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at half past two from the family residence, lot 6, con 9, to St. Martin's church and thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

Would Not Sanction Use Of Old London Street Bridge

Board of Works Decided It Was Too Unsafe—People Use it at Their Peril—Two Weeks Holidays for Street Commissioner —Refund Money for Flushing Sewer.

RATHER BUSY MEETING

A meeting of the Board of Works was held last night with Ald. Phelan in the chair and Mayor Rush, Ald. Gillespie, Bradburn, Duncan, Duffus, Buller and Morgan present. P. Thompson, plumbing inspector, appeared before the committee in regard to certain complaints that had been made to members of the Council. The matter was satisfactorily disposed of. Benson street was again in the limelight, but it was not a question of sidewalks or tree lines. Some time ago there was a motion passed accepting the offer of Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, of $500, for a strip of his property 10 feet wide from Smith St., nearly to Manning Ave. At the Manning Ave end the street is 66 feet wide, and the purchase of the strip will make the entire block the same width. It was moved by Ald. Bradburn and Gillespie the matter be carried out and the strip bought at once. Mr. Fitzgerald to move back the fence, according to his expressed desire.

Refund the Money.

Previous to a week ago the sewer connection to the New Oxford Hotel on Simcoe street was four inches lower at the point where it entered the building than the main sewer on the street. The result was that trouble was caused in the cellar and in the past the blame was laid upon the sewer being blocked. It was opened recently and the true condition exposed, and the sewer relaid. Mrs. Bowman had paid $7.50 for flushing it, and asked for the refund of the money. On motion it was decided to accede to her request.

A Matter of Carting.

White Bros. considered that they were not receiving fair treatment in the shoring of the municipal carting. Ald. Phelan explained the circumstances. He had asked Mr. Hay who was carting the pipes from the Peterborough Hardware Co., for use on the streets, and learned that White Bros. had been doing the work. The Chairman of the Board of Works thought that the work should be shared up, and said he had ordered the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co. to get the carting of the next load. Ald. Duncan suggested that the work be divided among all the carters in the city as much as possible. It was decided to leave the matter to Ald. Phelan, who remarked that he had given the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co. the work in order that it might be shared up. He stated that in future he would distribute it even more widely.

Two Weeks' Holidays.

Street Commissioner Harry Evans was granted two weeks leave of absence to commence as soon as the sidewalk work was completed, which it is understood, will be to-night. On motion of Ald. Duncan and Gillespie, a petition for a sewer on Waterford street was granted.

The engineer reported that no change could be made to the fountain on Hunter street east. Ald Morgan had requested that something be done to keep the water running throughout the entire year. The report stated that nothing could be done with the present fountain. Ald. Buller said he would like to see more than the solitary drinking place at the police station during the winter months. He suggested that a number of them should be placed in different parts of the city and steps be taken to keep them free of ice.

Fire Stands.

Nothing was done in the matter of providing fire engine stands at the east end of Lake street, at the Quaker Oats Company's mill, and at the Auburn Mill. The cost of the first is estimated at $220. The second will be difficult to be built, and will cost $185, while the Engineer did not select a location at Auburn. One he mentioned, is at the foot of Moore street and is on private property. It would be of service to the neighbouring houses. The other is on the mill property. The banks are steep in that vicinity and some difficulty is presented. It was suggested to erect one at the end of Simcoe street for use at the Quaker Oats mill and the Engineer was asked to report in regard to it.

London Street Bridge.

Mr. William Irwin wrote asking that since the Smith Street bridge is closed to traffic, the old bridge at London street be replanked for the accommodation of the people of the northern part of the East ward and of Auburn.

It was stated that the bridge was not in good condition, not only in the planking, but in the supports, and nothing was done regarding the request.

Ald Morgan presented Mr. J. B. O'Dette's request for permission to cross Crescent street to run a sewer into the lake. The Medical Health Officer had given his sanction, for the sewer to be used until a main sewer is constructed along that street.

Request for Sewer.

Mr. Switzer, representing the Toronto Loan and Savings Co., asked for a sewer connection with a residence erected on Wolseley street. It is within 73 feet from Benson street, along Wolseley St. The terminus of the sewer is on Benson street at the intersection of the two streets. Wolseley street forms the city boundary at that point. The house is in Smith. On the city side of Wolseley street there are two residences which will also use the sewer, thus making three services. Mr. Switzer stated that the Company was anxious to sell the house, and the average buyer desires complete modern conveniences. On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Duncan it was decided to receive a report from the City Engineer and City Solicitor, regarding the matter. It was stated that graning Mr. Switzer's request establishes a precedent, and the Board concluded to go into the particulars carefully.

HOW CROUP IS DREADED

If there is any warning use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and prevent the terrible struggle of the little one for breath. If you know nothing of it till the struggle comes, cause the child to vomit and then use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine frequently in small doses to prevent repeated attacks. This great medicine is wonderfully effective in curing croup and bronchitis.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

SCARCITY OF LABOURERS AS A RESULT OF CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS

Judging from remarks passed during the meting of the Board of Works last night labourers are rather scarce. Ald. Duncan had asked why the sewer construction was not pushed forward more rapidly. The men are now on eidR street. Ald. Phelan and the Engineer stated that it was next to impossible to get labourers. The building of the new dam and the Smith street bridge has provided work for a large number of labourers. The sidewalk gang will be given work on the sewer as soon as they are through. Ald. Duncan said they might as well hurry the work now and as soon as the men are available this will be done. The Examiner has asked several contractors if they have had difficulty in getting men, and while they admitted that men were scarce they had as many as they needed and had probably exhausted the supply.

Remembered The Church Of Scotland When Making Will

The late Andrew Tully, who passed away a few weks ago, and had been a resident of Smith for many years, in his last will and testament bequeathed a large sum of money to the Church of Scotland in Canada. The deceased resided on a farm in the above mentioned township. He was an unmarried man and some years ago when making his will made over the greater portion of his wealth to the church of Scotland. He did not state any church in particular, but the money left includes every Presbyterian church in the Dominion. It will have to be equally divided.

Mr. Tully was a member of St. Andrew's church and was one of its faithful adherents.

LOCAL NEWSPAPER'S COMMENTS ARE TRENCHANTLY CRITICIZED

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The editor of the Peterborough Review seems to have a grudge against Christianity and Christians in general. In an editorial on Oct. 28th, he accuses Christians of cringing to the questionable rich, of being very inconsistent, of being one thing and persistently doing another. "Let any man," he says, "in his right mind, sit down and think out what it means to found the success of the Lord's teaching upon the ill-gotten gains of stock-gamblers and the like."

The honourable gentleman who occupies the position of editor of that paper, has of late made many accusations he was unable to prove, and is, therefore a more or less discredited member of the community. Being a much-disappointed man, he wishes to vent his spleen upon somebody, and with his usual bad judgment, is now attacking Christianity and Christians. He should be the last man in this city to talk about questionable money matters. Has he forgotten the Gates episode in the recent unsuccessful election trial and the disreputable money transactions connected therewith? Let Mr. Burnham, if he be in his right mind, sit down and think things out just to see if he himself has not been and is not now very inconsistent and irredeemably stupid.

That man is certainly irredeemably stupid who accuses all Christians of cringing for favours from the questionably rich, because this statement, as every man on the street knows, is absolutely false. It is a calumny and a slander as well as an insult to the people of this Christian city. It is preposterous to judge from the conduct of few to that of many. Just as it is unfair to condemn the whole Conservative body of this riding on account of the rascally conduct of a few of its members.

This angel of light is irredeemably stupid when sifting facts and drawing conclusions from them. He possesses neither learning nor common sense, and his judgment is not reliable. Here is how he judges morality. Not long ago Mr. Burnham delivered in several places a lecture on Indian women. From what he said one would conclude that he believed Indian women occupied a sort of ideal state in life. He expatiated on their freedom of life and the high place of honour they held among the people of their tribe. In proof of this high honour he adduced the fact that Indians trace their descent of all rank, titles and possessions, not through the father, but through the mother. Francis Parkman, in his works (Frontenac Edition, Vol. III., pp. 41,42) mentions this fact, but draws therefrom a very different conclusion. His words are "This rule of descent was noticed by Champlain, among the Hurons, 1615. That excellent observer refers it to an origin which is doubtless the true one. The child may not be the son of his reputed father, but must be the son of his mother,—a consideration of more than ordinary force in an Indian community." Either one of two conclusions is evident, namely, that Mr. Burnham believes that there are holier and more honourable alliances without the marriage bond than within it, or that he is irredeemably stupid in his deductions.

Now, as Mr. Burnham's ideas do not harmonize with those of this great country with its high civilizaton, true liberty and progress, all of which are due to its Christian principles and influence, we would advise him to seek a new field of operations. We suggest that he try Turkey or Central Africa or the society of those pagan Indians of America to whom Christian ideas are as yet unknown. Among any of these he will no doubt find congenial surroundings the honourable ideals he so ardently advocates and a habitation where he will be sufficiently removed from the stupid society of wicked Christians.

Yours truly,
W. J. McCOLL.

FIRE IN COLDWATER

Destroyed Fine House Belonging to Mrs. Denison's Brother.

"It never rains but it pours" is a saying that might well be applied in the case of Mr. Denison's loss at the Hotel National. In a disastrous fire that visited Coldwater a few days ago, Mrs. Denison's brother, Mr. Borland, of that place, had a valuable house destroyed. The conflagration started in the stables and sheds of St. Matthias church and Mr. Borland's house being in the near vicinity the flames spread to it. The loss was heavy.

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.

ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.

OTHERS admired the tone of the Evans Bros.' Piano.

AND SOME others preferred the Sherlock-Manning—each and every produce perfect tones but of different qualities.

WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

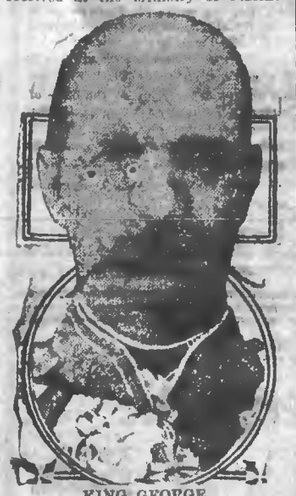
GREEKS MUTINY.

Destroyers Attack Ironclads But Are Repulsed.

Athens, Oct. 30.—Athens was startled at 4.35 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the sound of a vigorous bombardment, which lasted about a quarter of an hour and then ceased completely. It is stated on good authority that Lieut. Tibaldos, leader of the naval mutineers, who quitted the capital on Wednesday, and who yesterday seized the marine arsenal at Lyons on the famous "Sea-born Salamis," attacked three ironclads with a flotilla of torpedo-boat destroyers, that the attack failed, and that one of the destroyers had been badly damaged by a shell and driven ashore. The destroyers after the engagement withdrew into the harbor at Salamis, according to the information received at the Ministry of Marine.



KING GEORGE,
Who Is Anxious to Resign the Greek Crown.

The casualties of the loyal fleet in the engagement were two men wounded. The losses of the mutineers are not known, but of their three destroyers one was disabled and another took to flight in the direction of Elegsis and disappeared in the darkness. The third succeeded in reaching the Poros Naval Station, where, however, it met a hostile reception and was compelled to put to sea again. The loyal fleet is cruising off the Piraeus to-day, in order to prevent any attempt at landing or any attack of the town, and also with the object of closing the Straits of Salamis. No torpedoes were discharged during the fight.

SENTENCED TO 28 YEARS

Jurymen at Sudbury Acquit Farmer of Charge of Slaying Children—Robinson Pleads Guilty to Other Crimes and Judge Magee Imposes Fourteen and Fourteen Years for Incest—No Defence.

Sudbury, Oct. 30.—James Robinson was yesterday afternoon acquitted of the charge of murder, in having assisted in the killing a child born to him by a young daughter, but was sentenced to twenty-eight years imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary on other charges to which he had pleaded guilty, while the jury were deliberating on the capital crime.

Justice Magee, in imposing sentence, said: "You appear before me confessing guilt of the most horrible crimes conceivable in a Christian country, and you have shown a nature so entirely devoid of any sense of morality or right, or care of your offspring and the decency of Christian society, that it is difficult for me to say anything to you. I hope it will never again be paralleled in Canada."

His lordship then sentenced Robinson to twenty-eight years, divided, fourteen years for incest against Ellen, his daughter; fourteen years for incest against his daughter Jessie, to begin at conclusion of first sentence, and twenty-eight years for rape of his daughter Maggie, to run concurrently with other sentences.

As Robinson is a man of fifty, the sentence is virtually a life sentence. He listened to the judge, with bowed head and sank back to his seat dazed, burying his face in his hands.

On the murder charge, the jury were out two hours. At first, three of the jury were willing to convict. Justice Magee, in his charge, explained that there was only the direct evidence of Mrs. Robinson against him, and her evidence, as that of an accomplice should be carefully weighed, as the experience of law was that corroboration was needful.

The evidence of Mrs. Robinson yesterday morning was admitted by Justice Magee after granting to the defence a reserve for appeal purposes. Justice Magee did not warn her that she could decline to testify against her husband, saying he would leave that to herself. She wept at intervals. She said it was after conversation with her husband that the babe had been smothered between mattresses. There were no witnesses for the defence.

NOT FOR MONEY SAYS MR. QUIRK

Would Be be Without Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They Cured His Lumbago of Twenty Years Standing, and Made Him Feel Twenty Years Younger.

Fortune Harbour, Nfld., Oct. 29. (Special)).—Sixty years of age but hale and hearty and with all the vigour of a young man, Mr. Richard Quirk well known and highly respected here, gives all the credit for his good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I suffered for over twenty years from Lumbago and Kidney Disease," Mr. Quirk says, "and after consulting doctors and taking their medicines, made up my mind I was incurable. I was unable to work when I was persuaded to buy a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. To my great and happy surprise I had not taken half a box when I experienced great relief. Seven boxes cured me. That was in 1900 and I am still cured. I would not be without Dodd's Kidney Pills for any money. I am twenty years younger than before I took them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. Healthy Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. That's why they cure Rheumatism, Sciatica and other diseases caused by the presence of uric acid in the blood.

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 30.—W. S. Dinnick of Toronto, and a couple of New York capitalists who are behind the projected line from Brantford through to London, were in the city yesterday looking over the local line. They said that now the financial outlook has brightened, immediate steps would be taken to build the connecting links between Brantford and Woodstock nd Ingersoll to London, making an unbroken line from London to Hamilton. Considerable money will also be spent on improving the line between this city and Ingersoll.

Course in Harbor Engineering.

Montreal, Oct. 30.—McGill University has decided to establish a course in harbor engineering. This is as an immediate effect of the decision of the Government to create a Canadian navy and of the general harbor improvement tendency of the times. The course is to be twenty-five lectures open to all students of the fourth year in the science faculty. F. W. Cowie, the engineer of the port, will give the lectures.

Cleveland Store Burned.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 30.—The S. S. Kresage & Co. five and ten-cent store on Ontario street, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss will approximate $40,000. No one was injured. In a fire in the same block on July 3, 1908, six girls were burned to death.

NEED NAVAL DOCKS FIRST

Announcement is Made That Docking Facilities and Repairing Stations Will First Be Installed on the Atlantic Coast and Later on the Pacific—No Connection With Commercial Scheme.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—The part that the Canadian Government means to play in the scheme of Imperial naval defence was officially outlined yesterday evening.

It will be seen that Canada's portion of the great program, which has stirred the British Empire from end to end, is one which will early prove of value to the British navy.

The question of prompt assistance to Britain is to-day, broadly speaking, the only point of difference between Canadians. In the hope of rendering speedy aid, some are arguing for a direct contribution to Britain, believing that if Canadian aid is confined to the establishment of a Canadian navy, it will not be effective until years after a crisis may have been reached, with Canada a helpless spectator.

The expedient which the Government has hit upon to meet this consideration is the early establishment of docking facilities and repairing plants. It is understood that the Imperial authorities have stated that facilities of this kind will be of greater practical value than the early establishment of a naval force.

Accordingly, the Canadian Government has taken steps to bring about the erection, as soon as possible, of dry docks and repairing plants on the Atlantic coast, in the first place. Afterwards the same policy will be pursued on the Pacific coast.

These, then, will be pushed forward as soon as a definite understanding has been reached between the Government and the leading British firms with which negotiations are now proceeding.

The scheme must not be confounded with the proposition laid before the Government a few days ago by a delegation representing all the shipping interests in Canada, who asked for assistance for a scheme to build a dry dock at St. John, N.B., and a dry dock and repairing plant at Levis, Que. This was entirely a commercial undertaking, and the subsidy, which is likely to be granted, will be in the same category as subsidies to railways, or iron and steel bounties.

The arrangements which are being made with British firms will, when completed, be the concern of the Public Works Department.

The shipbuilding firms, which are now negotiating are Harland and Wolff of Belfast, along with Allans, Swan and Hunter of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Vickers & Son, and Maxim.

There are three distinct proposals. One is to erect dry docks and repairing plants for battleships on the Atlantic coast only, which proposal Harland and Wolff favor, the second is to build a dry dock at Montreal and a repairing plant on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, or at Halifax, which is put forward by Swan & Hunter, and the third is to build dry docks and repairing plants on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Vickers, Son & Maxim favor this idea.

While it is impossible to forecast accurately what the Canadian Government do eventually, it is probable that an arrangement will be made with all, and not one of the British firms, that a dry dock will be built at St. John, N.B., there being one at Halifax already, and that repairing plants will be laid down at both Halifax and St. John.

R. L. Borden, Conservative leader, when questioned this morning as to what attitude the opposition will be on the Governments' naval proposals when they are introduced in the House, said:

"So far as the Conservative party is concerned, the question of Canada's participation in the organization and maintenance of Imperial naval defence rests to-day exactly where it did when the unanimous resolution of Parliament was passed on March 29 last.

"That resolution was so modified as to permit of a special contribution in time of emergency. Whether such emergency existed then or is imminent to-day is within the knowledge of the British Government.

"The report of the proceedings and conclusions of the recent Imperial Defence Conference, when laid before our Parliament, will doubtless throw some light on the subject.

"Canada should take no action which does not receive the unqualified approval of the British naval experts."

Goes on Military Mission.

Mexico, Oct. 30.—As a result of a series of interviews which Gen. Reyes had with President Diaz at Chapultepec, it was determined that Reyes should go to Europe on a military mission. He will leave Monterey within the next eight days. Gen. Reyes is expected to return to Mexico after the Presidential election next year.

Diplomat's Body Arrived.

New York, Oct. 30.—The body of Wm. L. Buchanan of Buffalo, the American diplomat who died suddenly in London, reached here yesterday on the steamer Mauretania from Liverpool.

TO SUCCEED EARL GREY

Present Colonial Secretary in British Cabinet is Thought to Be the Man Referred to In Despatches as Possible Governor-General for Canada—Is a Wealthy Man and Very Versatile.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—The cabled announcement from London that Canada's next Governor-General is likely to be a member of the Asquith Cabinet, is taken in well-informed circles here to refer to the present Colonial Secretary, Earl Crewe. It is believed here that he would be the most likely first choice of the Imperial Government, as successor to Earl Grey, if he desires the position. Earl Crewe is a son-in-law of Lord Rosebery, and even if the Unionist party should come into power next year in Great Britain, the Colonial Secretary would probably still be a not improbable choice for the Canadian Governorship. His appointment or that of Lord Morley, who is also mentioned

The Earl of Crewe is a man of many parts. In addition to being a statesman of note, he is an art connoisseur, a bibliophile, a writer of verse and a keen sportsman. Lord Crewe entered political life twenty-six years ago as assistant private secretary to Earl Granville in the Foreign Office, and has never been long out of the struggle since that time. He was Lord-in-waiting to Queen Victoria in 1886, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland from 1892 to 1895, and Lord President of the Council from December, 1905, until he became Colonial Secretary in April last. He holds, in addition, the offices of Lord Privy Seal and Government leader in the House of Lords. His lordship is the son of Baron Houghton, who is better known, perhaps, as Monkton-Milnes, the writer, conversationalist and kindly patron of literary men. He is a man of great wealth, owning some 25,000 acres of land, including rich mineral areas in Yorkshire and Staffordshire. Besides, he is allied with some of the wealthiest and most distinguished families in the United Kingdom through his wife.

IMPORTANT FACTS

"A quart of milk is practically equal to a pound of beef in food value."

Prof. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College: "The composition of wheat is higher in protein and heat of combustion than any other cereal for human food."

Results of analysis by Bureau of Chemistry by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture:

ORANGE MEAT is simply the whole wheat berry, steam cooked, mixed with salt, flaked and toasted. This process develops in each wheat berry the highest percentage of grape sugars. It converts the starches into a form most easily digested and assimilated. ORANGE MEAT and milk is a perfect food

Montreal, Oct. 30.—The boiler of a Grand Trunk freight train exploded fifteen miles west of Cote Junction yesterday morning. The injured are: James Bradley, Montreal, brakeman, is badly burned, will probably die. Walter Munro, fireman, Braeside, is badly scalded; Arthur Bramley, 36 years, engineer, Bowmanville, Ont., is badly scalded and bruised; Bradley was hurled out of the cab of the engine and thrown fifty feet into a field.

Large Schooner Ashore.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 30.—A telephone message to A. J. Legere, agent of the Marine and Fisheries Department, at 10 o'clock, states that a large schooner is ashore near Quaco, in the Bay of Fundy, and that another schooner is reported a short distance off flying signals of distress. The Government steamer Lansdowne has been ordered to the scene of the wreck. A heavy sea is running and the wind is blowing hard.

Vital statistics for the first six months of the present year show an excess of deaths over births in France of 26,208. In 1908 the excess of deaths was 10,508.

News has reached Ottawa of the accidental drowning of Thomas G. Weir, son of Wm. E. Weir, 58 Waller street, and an employe of the Ottawa Electric office. Weir was away on a hunting trip.

Two persons were killed and nine injured in Denver, Col., yesterday when a Seventeenth avenue car with fifty passengers jumped the tracks, plunged down a steep hill, struck a telephone pole and turned over.

Thomas Stevenson of Campbellcroft, was brutally assaulted near the Campbellcroft station Thursday evening by another resident of the village, who was arrested at Bewdley. Stevenson's face was smashed to a pulp.

Has Three Wives.

London, Ont., Oct. 30.—William G. Thompson, arrested Wednesday for non-support, sprung a sensation in court yesterday morning when he pleaded guilty to bigamy and admitted that he had married three women. He stated that he was married at Ailsa Craig in 1893 to Miss Alice Disham by Rev. Mr. Ayers. He told her his name was Cornelius Bloomfield. In 1895 he was married in St. Andrew's Church, and in August last he was married here to Miss Ellen Raney. In the last two marriages he took the name of Thompson. He says he was born in Markham, and is 47 years of age.

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN.

Mothers should never give their little ones a medicine that they do not know to be absolutely safe and harmless. The so-called soothing medicines contain opiates that stupefy the child without curing its ailments. An over dose of these medicines may kill the child. Baby's Own Tablets is the only child's medicine that gives the mother the guarantee of a government analyst that it contains no poisonous opiate or harmful drug. The Tablets cure constipation, indigestion, wind colic, diarrhoea, destroy worms, break up colds and make teething easy. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Royal Swindler at Work.

Paris, Oct. 30.—A man about 2 years of age, who says he is called Count Cubata, but who is really Archduke Karl Heinrich, son of Archduke Otho, and a woman aged 50 years, who has a certificate showing she was married to Count Cubata in 1906, have been arrested on the charge of swindling tradesmen. The couple occupied a handsome apartment on the Avenue Kleber. The woman says she was born in New York. She was formerly the wife of an American, named Beck or Peck, who is now dead. She and Count Cubata took the apartment in the Avenue Kleber a month ago. They had little baggage, but were accompanied by seven children. The principal charge against them is that they procured 200,000 francs worth of jewels without paying for them. Half of the jewelry was found in their possession.

War on Rats.

Kansas City, Oct. 30.—"On and after Nov. 1 all lady clerks and employes must discontinue the wearing of 'rats' in their hair dress. Please govern yourself accordingly.

"A. B. Richards, District Supt."

This order, issued from the office of the superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Co. here, has become a matter of grave concern to the women clerks and operators in the employ of that company in this city.

They declare that not only will the order compel them to appear out of date, but that the modest feminine hats cannot be worn without the universal "rat."

The general opinion among the women affected, is that Mr. Richards will find it difficult to enforce the ruling.

Drank From Wrong Bottle.

Cobourg, Oct. 30.—Andrew Hyde, when returning from Colborne to his home two miles east of that place, had with him among other things two bottles, one said to contain medicine to be taken inwardly, another containing carbolic acid to be used as a wash for blood-poisoning. Without examining the label, he drank from the wrong bottle and ran into a neighbor's yard, saying he had taken by mistake carbolic acid. He died shortly afterward.

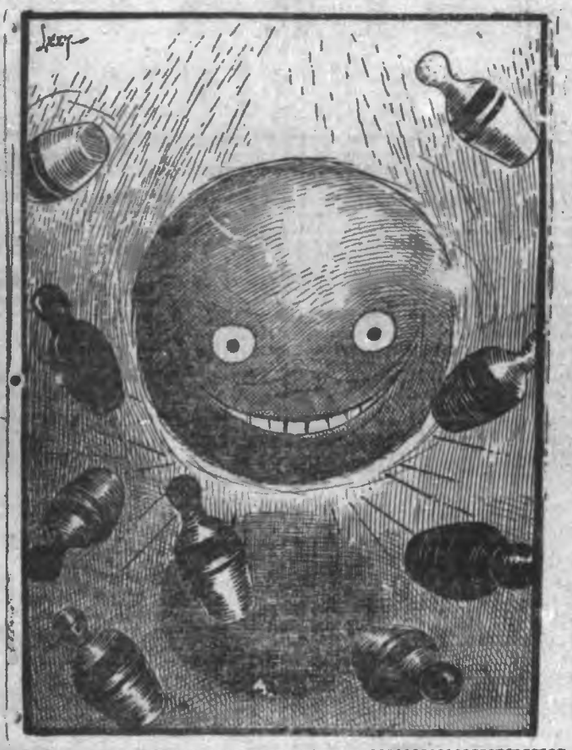
"GOOD EVENING"



HOW LUCK FIGURED IN GREAT AMERICAN COLLEGE RUGBY GAME

Luck figures largely in most athletic sports and Hans Wagner might have broadened his statement to that effect not referring solely to baseball.

Herewith is the report of the Princeton-Fordham rugby game in which the Tigers (Princton) lost by 0-0 by a kick being interrupted just before full time, when neither team had scored. The kick would surely have resulted in a goal but on being blocked the Fordham player grabbed it and ran the whole length of the field for a try, thereby winning a tablet in his college halls. The story of the last few minutes is as follows:

After the brilliant exhibition of defence on the part of the whole Lafayette team McCaa punted out of danger, and then Cunningham, the great Princeton dropkicker, who had been sent into the game a few minutes before for this very purpose, made a brilliant try for field goal from the 45-yard line. The ball got off beautifully, sailed high and struck the very tip of the left hand post and fell off to the left.

Thus a field goal missed by inches followed in quick succession a touchdown missed by inches.

But Princeton was not disheartened. Lafayette rushed from her 25-yard line and was penalized 15 yards. McCaa punted and Bergin of Princeton made a fair catch of the centre of the field. But the ball was called back by the officials and given to Princeton inside the 10-yard line. There was less than a minute left to play as the great Cunningham again stood poised only seventeen yards from the posts waiting for the pass from centre and ready to perform his usual feat of saving the day for Princeton. Just then occurred the great event of the day. Princeton's kicking formation has been found vulnerable before, but never with such disastrous consequences.

The veteran McCaa, who wah captaining the Lafayette backfield defence, noticed Cunningham's protection was all on his left. Comprehending the situation like a flash he called Irmechlar, the right halfback, over to the left flank of Lafayette's line and as the pass went back to Cunningham McCaa and Irmschler both dove into McCrohan and Irmschler got through with a clean shot at Cunningham. Meanwhile the ball had left Cunningham's toe. It his Irmschler on the knee, caromed off his his chest and curved back over the Princeton kicker's head, falling again into the widely outstretched arms of the Lafayette man as his impetus carried him ahead.

It was all over in half a second. Down the field raced the gigantic figure of the Lafayette halfback, the ball in his arms, a clear field in front of him and two yards behind him Cunningham in desperate pursuit. It was the work of a few tense seconds for Irmschler to distance his pursuer, run the length of the field and cross the Princeton goal line. And then pandemonium broke loose. The goal was kicked, time was called and theLafayette contingent swept down off the bleachers and carried the players in triumph off the field.

JEFFRIES AND JOHNSON AGREE TO FIGHT FOR FATTEST PURSE

New York, Oct. 30.—Jack Johnson and James J. Jeffries—for the negro insisted to-day as present champion his name should go first—signed articles in New York late yesterday afternoon binding them to fight forty-five or more rounds to a finish, not later than July 5, 1910, before the club offering the best financial inducement, the winner to take a side bet of $10,000 and 75 per cent. of the purse; the loser to take 25 per cent.

The preliminary discussion was scheduled for 3 o'clock in the banquet hall of the Hotel Albany. Jeffries and his manager were punctual to the minute, but Johnson elbowed his way through the crowd ten minutes later. At the table as the men took their places, sat Jeffries, with Bob Vernon at his right; Johnson, Geo. Considine, Honest John Kelly, Sam Harris, Sam Nelson, Bob Murphy and other well-known sporting men.

Jeffries eyed the negro curiously, but did not meet his glance. Johnson was affable, but showed his nervousness by his frequent grins and his constant clicking of two red dice, which he carried half concealed in the palm of his hand.

Meaning Of The Word "Amateur"

New York, Oct. 28.—What is an amateur:

All depends on what sport you are engaged in.

If a college athlete, you are not supposed to have ever contested for money, not even for a nickel offering by your grandpa when you were a kiddie of five.

If a trapshooter, you can compete for money, but you must never have sold powder or guns or had any firm pay your expenses to a tournament.

If a golfer, you are barred if you have ever competed for money, made golf clubs for a living or acted as a professional instructor for a club, but you can play tournaments with professionals.

In every sport there is a different idea of just what an amateur sportsman is.

To say the least, it is confusing.

The colleges are supposed to be the most strict, but even there some professionalism is allowed to creep in in a roundabout way.

A college athlete may work all summer in a harvest field and return a clean amateur, but if he plays one game of baseball and takes a cent he is barred from amateur circles.

That is, if they can prove it on him.

Over in England they have been calling 'Simon pure' amateur the man who played for pure love of the sport and who did not work for a living.

We do not go that far in America. If we did, Harry Payne Whitney and young Jay Gould would be about the only amateur sports on the job.

Iron in the blood is necessary. Miller's Compound Iron Pills contain that element in the most assimilable form.—Wm. Madill, Druggist.

HAVELOCK ARE THE CHAMPIONS

Havelock, Oct. 20.—Havelock are champions in the final home and home games of the Intermediate Football Association of Ontario. The first game was played in Brussels and resulted in a lead for the home team of one goal. The play yesterday was strong and at half time seemed a forlorn hope for Havelock, Brussels having a lead of one goal, and neither side seemed able to score. The opportunity came in the last half hour, our veteran centre, Lancaster, receiving the ball from right side, dodged the full-back and scored on a straight kick. This evend the round and Havelock went wild. At full time the score remained the same, leaving the round a tie. Brussels refused to continue the play to a finish, as provided for in the rules, and Referee Fitzgerald awarded the round to Havelock.

How to buy an EDISON Phonograph

Do not buy an Edison Phonograph until you are convinced that you want one.

Hear it at the dealer's first.

Hear it play a number of pieces. Hear it play the kind of music that you like—music that you have heard people sing and play—so that you can know how well it does it. Hear it play Amberol as well as Standard Records.

You will decide that the Edison Phonograph is the best.

Then remember that it takes only a small amount of money to buy it. You can get a perfect Edison Phonograph at your own price, whether it is $16.50 or any price up to $162.50—one that will last a life-time, that will give pleasure every day, that will help you to educate your family, that will entertain your friends, and that will while away many hours that might otherwise be misspent.

WEDDING BELLS

GREENE—MELDRUM.

One of the prettiest of October weddings took place at 2 o'clock this Saturday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Meldrum, Fairview, Peterborough, when their only daughter, Mary Harriet (Mollie) Meldrum was united in marriage to Ernest Alexander Greene, eldest son of the Rev. Canon Grene, St. James church, Orillia.

The ceremony was perofrmed by the Rev Canon Greene, father of the groom, assided by the bride's pastor, the Rev. Dr. Pogue, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterborough.

The drawing room was beautifully banked with palms, ferns, chrysanthemums and pink roses.

Miss Marjorie Brodie, of Toronto, presided at the piano, playing the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches, and the music from Valykrie.

Miss Lillian Shannon sang very sweetly, "Beloved it is Morn," "O Fair, O Sweet and Holy."

At precisely half past two o'clock pretty little Margery Boulter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Boulter, Toronto, as flower girl, dressed in a Kate Greenaway costume with a basket of flowers, headed the bridal procersion, entered the drawing room scattering rose leaves, followed by the two bridesmaids, Miss Margery Greene, of Orilia, sister of the groom and Miss Margurite Boulter, of Toronto, cousin of the bride. Both looked enchanting, being handsomely gowned alike in pink marquisette with short veils of tulle and carrying large sheafs of pink roses

Lastly, with her father, came the bride in all the beauty and brightness of her young girlhood, wearing a graceful gown of white Duchess satin made en traine with handsome Bertha of Duchess and rose pink lace caught with cabouchons of pearls. Over this was arranged a filmy veil caught with a chaplet of orange blossoms.

The groom was supported by Mr. F. B. McQuesten, of Hamilton, as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held, many relatives and friends from Guelph, Chatham, Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto, being present, as well as a host of friends in her native city. Mrs. Meldrum received with Mrs. Louis B. Stewart, of Toronto, sister of the groom, both being becomingly gowned and carrying American beauty roses. The large number of presents to the bride wer both beautiful and expensive and spoke volumes for the popularity of the young bride. After congratulations had ben showered upon the bride and groom, dejeuner was served in the large dining room.

The Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's church, proposed the health of the bride. After the cutting of the cake the bride slipped away, changing her bridal dress for a travelling suit of caramel brown broadcloth with hat to match, with mink furs.

Amongst a shower of confetti Mr. and Mrs. Greene drove away to catch the 4.38 train en route to New York. On their return they will take up their residence at 133 Yorkville avenue, Toronto.

Man In Dynamite Case.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 30.—A report that Mrs. Mary Rumble, accused of dynamiting her husband's home, had confessed, is false. On the contrary, she has retained O. L. Lewis, K.C., and W. G. Richards to defend her and will fight to the limit.

It is believed that there is a man in the case. The night the explosion occurred a man was seen driving toward the Rumble house. He had a companion, but whether man or woman, could not be ascertained. The horse had a white face. The same horse was seen at the time the Rumbles were burned out of house and home a number of years ago.

Negroes Missing After Murder.

Meridian, Miss., Oct. 30.—W. H. Palmer, a Kemper County farmer, who came to Meridian on Thursday, reported that four negroes probably had been lynched in Kemper County, Missouri, last Tuesday, as a result of the murder of a peddler named Kahn. Kahn's head was cut off with an axe, and after his money and goods were stolen, the body was placed in his cart and the horse started down the road. White farmers who found the horse, cart and body, also discovered some of the stolen goods in a negro cabin. Four negroes were charged with the crime, and one is said to have confessed, implicating the other three. Palmer declares all four negroes have disappeared.

McLaughlin Will Run.

London, Ont., Oct. 30.—Robert McLaughlin, the tall Scotch farmer who pulled down W. S. Calvert's majority from over 200 to 12 in the last election, was the choice of West Middlesex Conservatives at Mount Brydges yesterday afternoon as a candidate for the bye-election.

"If you will all stand at my back and work with me, I will win you West Middlesex," he said.

His nomination was moved by ex-Mayor Cameron of Strathroy, and Isaac Walker, Strathroy. Richard Dunlop of Napier presided. Joseph Armstrong, M.P., Dr. Rome, ex-M.P., and Major Beattie, M.P., were among the speakers.

Woman and Babes Perish.

Cambridge, Ont., Oct. 30.—Fire was discovered this morning shortly after midnight in the residence of A. McLaughlin, who is bookkeeper with Alexander and McPhail, such headway had been gained that no one could enter the building, and Mrs. McLaughlin and her two youngest children were burned to death. Mr McLaughlin, who was up with a sick child, escaped with it.

Turned Hose on Suffragette.

London, Oct. 30.—Home Secretary Gladstone admitted in the House of Commons that the fire hose had been played on a suffragette prisoner in the Strangeways Jail, Manchester. In this case the hose was brought to a window of the cell and directed at the suffragette, who had persistently refused to open the door. On learning the facts he ordered the release of the prisoner.

Nearly 28,000 Killed In Railways.

Washington, Oct. 30.—During the year ended June 30, 2,791 persons were killed and 63,920 were injured on railroads, as against 3,764 killed and 68,889 injured during the previous year. The total number of collisions and derailments during the second quarter of 1909, was 3,100, and the damage to cars, engines and roadways was $1,703,642.

Twenty Miners Perish.

London, Oct. 30.—A score of miners were killed by an explosion in the Rhymney Co.'s colliery at Glamorganshire, the most southeasterly county of Wales, yesterday. Manager Bowen and two companions who attempted a rescue were themselves overcome by the afterdamp and perished.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 30.—The judicial committee of the Douma yesterday accepted in principle a bill to abolish the practice of exiling prisoners to European Russia and Siberia.

This practice, it is argued, has had a demoralising effect upon the settlers there.

Guggenheims In Big Deal.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 30.—Guggenheim interests are said to have obtained control of the Western Fuel Co., which owns 42,000 acres of coal and timber lands near Nanaimo, on Vancouver Island. The deal, which was for two millions, includes the mine at Nanaimo.

Asselin May Run.

Montreal, Oct. 30.—It does not look at present as if Bourassa would be able to induce Mr. Lafiame, K. C. to accept a nomination against the Government candidate in St. James and it seems as if Oliver Asselin, the former editor of Le Nationaliste, will be chosen.

To Go Into Halibut Fishing.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 30.—The British Columbia Packers' Association which operates a majority of the Fraser River salmon canneries, sent one of their steamer captains to England yesterday to purchase a steamer for the halibut trade in British Columbia.

Bible Reading In Schools.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 30.—At the afternoon session of the Dominion W.C.T.U. convention, Mrs. Ada Gordon, in presenting the report of the evangelistic department, urged that petitions should be circulated in favor of legislation looking to reading of a portion of the scripture in public schools, and reciting of the Lord's prayer.

Carriage Merger Officials.

Montreal, Oct. 30.—At a meeting yesterday J. B. Tudhope of Orillia was elected president of the new big Canadian carriage merger. T. J. Storey of Brockville, and H. Munro of Alexandria, were elected vice-presidents.

Regular Habits

An Absolute Necessity For Good Health

You might as well expect to find a man or woman healthy with constipated bowels as to find a city healthy when its sewers are blocked with refuse.

Nature demands that the indigestible food and waste matter which collects in the lower bowels shall be got rid of at least once in twenty-four hours. If this is not done it decomposes, filling the bowels with poison, which is taken up into the blood and carried all through the body.

Naturally, this poison affects the work of every organ. The liver is deranged, digestion is upset, and biliousness, headaches, lassitude and dizzy spells follow.

Literally millions of people suffer these results of constipation without realizing the cause, or doing anything to remove it. Yet it can be removed, easily and with certainty, by using Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Take, for example, the case of Mr. George Andrews, Halifax, N.S., as he himself describes it:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic constipation. This ailment never comes single handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken to order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. At last I read about these Indian Root Pills. That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed by the statements contained therein that I determined to give them a fair trial. They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation and claim they have no equal as a medicine."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were first taken to cure constipation nearly a hundred years ago, and during the last half century they have been very extensively and very successfully used throughout the world. They are entirely vegetable in composition and do not sicken, weaken or gripe like mineral purgatives.

SCHOLARLY PAPER ON LIFE OF SAMUEL de CHAMPLAIN

Interesting Programme at Meeting of Ladies Literary Society of St. Peters T. A. S.—Miss Agnes Holland Read Paper.—Musical Programme.

The ladies branch of St. Peter's T. A.S. held the second literary of the season last night, at which a splendidly written paper on the life, work and virtues of Samuel de Champlain, read by Miss Agnes Holland, was much enjoyed. A musical programme including a selection by the Mandolin Club, a vocal duet by Misses Alice Milloy and Gertie Clancy and an instrumental duet by Miss C. Delaire and Miss B. Malane, added much to the pleasure of the evening. Space does not permit the publication of Miss Holland's entire essay, but the synopsis given below will go to show its excellence.

Samuel de Champlain.

In the summer of 1908 there was held at Quebec the greatest celebration this country has ever known. It was the occasion of the three-hundredth anniversay of the founding of this, the oldest city in Canada. At this time great honour was paid by the various nations of the world not only to the present possessors of this land, but in an especial manner to that great colonizer and explorer who has been deservedly called the "Father of New France." It is but fitting then, that the members of this society should not let this occasion pass from their memories without recalling something of the life and virtues of this great and notable character.

Samuel de Champlain was born at Brouage, a small village in the Province of Saintange in France, in 1570. While still young he was placed in charge of the parish priest, who gave him the elements of an education, and instilled into his heart the highest religious principles. The boy's youth passed quietly away, spent for the most part in his home or in voyaging with his father. Later in life Champlain spent some time in the army, but a military career did not appeal to him as did that of a mariner. On March 15, 1608, he set out on his first voyage to Canada, in the interests of De Chastes, and on May 24 the ships reached Tadousac. Here the explorer met with about one hundred Huron Indians rejoicing over their recent victory over the Iroquois. From what he saw of them Champlain thought that in spite of their superstitions, these Indians would be easily converted to Christianity, but as time showed, the difficulties which the missionaries had to encounter in this project, exceeded his least hopeful anticipation.

After doing some exploring work on the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, staying at Quebec for a short time, Champlain returned to France, where he received a great blow in hearing of the death of De Chastes, who Champlain believed had seriously intended to bring settlers to Canada. With the death of De Chastes, the project of colonization would undoubtedly have fallen through but for the untiring zeal of Champlain, who after many different ties, including an unsuccessful attempt to found a colony at the mouth of the St. Croix River, established a colony at Port Royal in the province of Nova Scotia. The next three years was spent by Champlain in exploring the American coast as far south as Plymouth, after which Champlain returned again to France.

In 1608 Champlain came to Canada at the head of an expedition to the St. Lawrence and after many and untold difficulties and personal danger he succeeded in founding a colony at Quebec. Many Indians encamped in the vicinity and proved very troublesome neighbours as they were constantly visiting the fort either to beg food or to express fear of an invisible foe. Champlain treated them with kindness, however, hoping to win them to Christianity and also desiring to have them as friends to aid in his future explorations and struggles against the hostile Iroquois. Champlain aided the Hurons in their struggles against the Iroquois and after much valuable exploration work returned to France in 1610, shortly after which he was betrothed to HeleneBoulle. He returned to New France, however, and in 1615 brought to this country four missionaries of the Recollect Order, to try to effect the conversion of the the Indians.

During all these years there had been going on in Canada a profitable trade in furs with the Indians and the greater part of the population of Quebec was composed of clerks and other officials of the fur companies. For selfish reasons these companies were opposed to the colonization of the country and were a source of much trouble to Champlain.

Even when Canada became a British possession Champlain was not idle and endeavoured to have it restored to France, and in 1632 he had the satisfaction of seeing his mother country again in possession of his beloved New France. From 1632 until his death in 1635 Champlain continued to do his utmost for the colonization of New France. His life was an example of virtue to the inhabitants and when he died he had the consolation of leaving behind him a moral, honest and virtuous people. A chapel was erected on the spot beneath which he was buried but this was destroyed in the great conflagration of 1640.

Those who have carefully studied the life of this thoroughly unselfish man have been impressed by the many brilliant qualities which Champlain possessed. Some have praised his energy, his courage, his loyalty, and his disinterestedness, while others have been more impressed by his charity, his zeal his practical faith and exalted ideals and his perseverance. The fact is that in Champlain all these qualities are to be found in a remarkable degree.

The city of Quebec is justly proud of her noble founder and it is with a feeling of justifiable pride that the inhabitants point to the stately monument erected upon the spot, consecrated by his noble life and death. But in the hearts of the people of Canada Champlain has a still more precious monument and we may truthfully say that the flourishing condition of our Dominion to day may be credited to a blessing on his trials and labours. The salvation of a single soul meant more to him than the conquest of an empire, and there can be no doubt that the memory of such self-sacrificing devotedness as Champlain displayed for this purpose, will never be obliterated from the memory of Canadians.

Something Better Now

There was a time when people were satisfied with any glasses with which they could read regardless of whether they were using one eye more than the other, knowing nothing of how the eyes were strained by wrong lens powers, and careless of the frame fitting the face. All this is changing now, a thorough examination by experienced men, lenses specially ground for each eye, and the neatest, most becoming mountings are now required by discriminating people who realize that nothing is too good for the eyes.

We make appointment for eye examination by our phones, Bell 1221, Mach. 7. It saves waiting your turn

WINTER TERM OPENS MONDAY, JAN. 3rd, 1910

GEO. SPOTTON, PRESIDENT J. A. McKONE, PRINCIPAL

WILL AVOID TARIFF WAR

According to Advices From Washington the Tariff Commission Has Been Instructed to Dodge Trouble With the States' Best Single Customer—Retaliation Would Do More Harm Than Good.

Detroit, Nov. 1.—A special from Washington last night says: The Administration is not going to have a tariff war with Canada. This fact has not yet been officially announced, and it will not be until after the President returns to Washington, but it is a fact, nevertheless. It has required but a brief scrutiny of the possiblities of such a war to scare the Administration. Canada, as the very best single customer (population considered) which the exporters of the United States have, would be in a position to make so much trouble in such an event that it would have a disastrous effect on any party in the United States fostering the war.

This has become plain, and therefore the Tariff Commission has been instructed to find a way to obviate trouble. It is understood that it has done so, and that it will report to the President in due time that Canada does not discriminate against the United States in a manner that calls for the imposition of maximum rates on imports from the Dominion.

Of course, it is a fact that Canada does discriminate against the United States to a certain extent; and that the new tariff law was drawn in a way to enable the United States to hand out punishment for it. In fact it looks as if the law amounted to a mandatory order to do so.

But it appears that the Administration is to take advantage of the fact that the President is really the sole judge of what is discrimination, and where it will cause trouble to judge in a certain way he can obviate it by simply judging in the other way. In doing so he can take glory, if there is any, while the Tariff Commission can take the blame, if there is any.

It is declared that it "will work fine," which is doubtless true. At any rate it will save the Administration from having to meet a charge of having crippled the trade of the country with Canada, a charge which might lose the Republicans the House at the next election if the crippling proved to be severe.

Suffragettes Bother Suffragists.

London, Nov. 1.—Lady McLaren inaugurated the Government hospitalities of the winter season by a large reception to the Prime Minister on Friday.

Lady McLaren, who, though an ardent suffragist, is strongly opposed to "suffragettes," was horrified during the coarse of the evening to see that two of the militant ones had gained admission to the drawing-room and were forcing conversation upon the defenceless Asquith, who, being without his usual guard of detectives, was obliged to listen to their harangues.

As Asquith did not reply both suffragettes turned their attention to Lewis Harcourt and Winston Churchill before they finally were asked to leave the house.

Abdul Hamid Tries to Escape.

Belgrade, Nov. 1.—The ex-Sultan, Abdul Hamid, has again attempted to escape from the Villa Allatini.

A communication from Salonika states that the ex-Sultan, wishing to have his bedstead repaired, had a workman brought into his house. Abdul Hamid ordered him to take a bath before proceeding with his task.

While the man was in the bathroom his clothes were brought to the ex-Sultan, who at once donned them, and thus disguised passed through the garden and into the street. At this point he was recognized by one of the guards, stopped, and sent back.

ALMOST SEVERED POLICEMAN'S HAND AND MADE HIS ESCAPE

Bob Cook, General Bad Man, Returned to Native Town, Created Trouble and Resisted Arrest—Is Now at Liberty With Reward Offered for His Capture.

Orangeville, Nov. 1.—A terrible affair took place here Saturday night about 10 o'clock in the store of Hughes & Norris, merchant tailors, West Broadway, in which Bob Cook, a notorious desperado, figured. On Saturday morning Cook returned to town from the west, where he went with his young bride two years ago, and going to the home of his mother-in-law, an old widow lady named Mrs. Thomas Reid, on Church street, inquired for his wife, who left him some time ago. Not receiving a satisfactory answer he proceeded to smash the dishes and doors.

About 10 o'clock Officers Speers and Halbert saw Cook in the store mentioned; he had a jack-knife out whittling a stick. Cook, on the entry of the police, resisted arrest.

The desperado slashed at the constable with the knife, terribly injuring Halbert, whose right wrist was half severed, while the thumb hung useless. Cook then seized the officer's baton dashed through the door, defied the crowd had made his escape. [illegible] for prompt medical attendance.

About two years ago Cook was arrested at Grand Valley, near here, broke jail, and defied the local authorities. In an attempt to arrest Cook here Halbert, on that occasion had his left hand cut to the bone by Cook with a band knife. On that occasion Cook escaped. Returning, County Constable William Marshall attempted to arrest him in a downtown hotel. He, however, whipped out two revolvers and swaggered around town like a hero. On this visit he got married to Miss Florence Reid, a handsome and very estimable young lady of this town, and went west again. He was apprehended by the Northwest Mounted Police from Regina at Oxbow, Man., taken to the former place on the old charge, and released, as this town did not want him back, hoping to have seen the last of the man.

A substantial reward has been offered by the town for Cook's arrest.

THREE PERSONS NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH IN SUNDAY NIGHT FIRE

Toronto, Nov. 1.—Through the presence of mind of the police and the firemen of the College street fire station, three lives were saved from possible injury or death by fire which broke out last night at 462 1-2 College street. By influencing Henry Dewdney, his wife and daughter, who occupied the second and top flat, to remain at the windows until the arrival of the Portland street ladder truck, they were taken safely to the ground.

The ground floor of the building was occupied by Townley, a confectioner, who suffered about $100 loss. Dewdney's loss was $50, while the damage to the building, which is owned by Dr. Elias Clouse, is about $3,000.

While the firemen were fighting the flames someone called out that two other ladies were on the back roof and it was not till after the firemen had fought their way through the first floor to the rear windows that they discovered the ladies, who are said to have been "fresh air fiends," had got in through a window of the next building.

Henry Dewdney formerly lived in North Toronto, where he was burned out two years ago.

The fire started in W. L. Cheeseworth's tailoring establishment in rear of the first floor of the building. A.W. Miles' ambulance was summoned, but fortunately no one was injured.

Winnipeg, Nov. 1.—On Saturday the five-storey brick and stone building of C. H. Newton caught fire, the three upper storeys being gutted and the goods on the lower floors ruined by water. A stock of sample oils on the fourth floor exploded, blowing out the windows and driving the flames into every corner. The firemen were greatly hampered by myriads of wires, most of them high voltage feeders of the electric railway. Another drawback was the number of stones in the high pressure system, which choked the nozzles. The principal losses are: Buildings, C. H. Newton, value $70,000, loss $18,000; insurance, $32,000; first floor, Newton, Davidson & Cherry, official assignees; second floor, Warehousing and Financing Co., $8,000, insurance $4,000; third floor, Hyndman Commission Co., loss slight, fully insured; James Stewart Manufacturing Co. of Woodstock, Ont., stoves, loss $10,000, insurance $7,000; fourth storey, A. E. Roy, commission agents, oils, teas, and essences, loss $5,000; Gourock Rope Works of Scotland, loss $18,000; fifth floor, Winnipeg Envelope Co., loss $9,000, insurance $5,400.

Nine Dead in This Fire.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Nov. 1.—Nine lives are known to have been lost in the fire that practically destroyed the Citizens' Savings Block here early on Saturday. Two persons were killed by falling from the upper windows of the burning building, while seven others were buried in the ruins. Four injured were taken to the hospital, two of whom are not expected to live. The property loss is $50,000.

Girls Fatally Burned.

Kansas City, Nov. 1.—During a hallowe'en entertainment at Loretto Academy, a Catholic boarding school for girls, here Friday night, Miss Virginia Owen and Miss Mamie Tiernan, student actors, were so severely burned that they died yesterday. Miss Mary Maley was severely burned while endeavoring to save her schoolmates. A panic was averted by the coolness of the mother superior and several sisters.

All the girl actors wore Esquimaux costumes, covered with cotton representing snow, while the stage had been set with much cotton tinsel to portray the discovery of the North Pole. Miss Owen tripped over a jack o'lantern, and in a second the flames had communicated to the other girls and decorations.

IT'S ALL OVER NOW.

So Say Greek Authorities Concerning Their Mutiny.

Athens, Nov. 1.—Tibaldos' miniature rebellion has been suppressed according to official announcement of the Government yesterday. Nevertheless, a danger of the revolt breaking out in new places will exist so long as the mutinous lieutenant remains at large.

The torpedo boat destroyer Velos with her rebel crew is also roaming in unknown seas.

Three of the revolters were killed and several wounded when a shell struck the mutinous torpedo boat Sephendona during the engagement on Saturday.

The rebellious force at the arsenal on the Island of Salamis, surrendered yesterday. All of the vessels of which Tibaldos took possession have returned home with the exception of the Velos.

It is stated that the Military League has sentenced Tibaldos to death. He is said to have deceived the sailors by saying he had orders for his action from the league.

In the Chamber Saturday night a deputy suggested that the leaders of the mutiny be shot, whereupon two other members of the House shouted that the leaders of the former movement should also be shot. The Military League subsequently demanded leave to arrest these two deputies, but the Chamber refused. This attitude of the House is taken as an indication that the power of the league is waning.

Allan Line Story Again.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—The Allan line sale rumor to the C.P.R. will not down. Greater credence is placed in the present report in view of the fact that letters patent were granted, under seal of the Secretary of State of Canada, on Oct. 12, incorporating Sir Hugh Montague Allan, Hugh C. Allan, Andrew Alexander Allan, Gordon Walter MacDougall, all of Montreal, and Bryce James Allan, of Boston, for the following purposes: "To build, purchase, and sell shares in acquire, lease, hire, charter and employ, own, navigate, manage, hold, operate, and maintain any ships, vessels, lighters or other craft together with all necessary engines, furniture, tackle, equipment, and stores.

Power is given the company to purchase all real or personal property which may be necessary to the carrying on of the business, and to amalgamate with any other company, having objects similar to those enumerated in their charter.

Success, Not Failure Wanted!

London, Eng., Nov. 1.—Herbert Gladstone, Lord Pentland, who is Lord Aberdeen's son-in-law, and Lord Beauchamp, are three members of the Ministry named in political gossip in connection with the approaching vacancies in the governorships of India, South Africa and Canada.

The Times, while refraining from mentioning names, devotes an editorial of grave warning against the appointment of failures or nonenties, rather than successes in the Cabinet to the highest imperial positions that the crown has to bestow. The Times adds:

"The day has gone by forever when blunders or jobs in regard to these appointments can be perpetrated with even relative impunity. The political education of the Dominion is now in many respects equal, and in some respects superior, to our own."

The Barton Murder.

Hamilton, Nov. 1.—There is a suspicion that Fred Gebhardt, alias Otto Mueller, who has confessed to the murder of a young woman at Islip, may be the Barton murderer. The crimes bear a close resemblance, as both women were shot in a bush and attempts made to burn their bodies. The New York police believe Gebhardt to be a modern Bluebeard. People who saw the man walking with the woman whose body was found in a bush in Barton Township, back of the mountain, when shown a picture of Gebhardt, said that they could not be sure that he was the man they saw, as it is now about four years since the crime was committed. Chief Smith said he would probably make enquiries.

Looking for Signs.

Belleville, Nov. 1.—None of those Grand Trunk Railway men from East Toronto, who the company said would be moved to Belleville following the abandonment of Little York as a switching point, have yet arrived, although local officials of the company affirm that several have enquired about houses here. It is now two months since the company announced the transfer of the East Toronto switching to Belleville and Mimico, and the boom in population and business which was expected to descend on the favored points is still unrealized so far as Belleville is concerned.

Exploration Company Wound Up.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—An order for the winding-up of the estate of the Transcontinental Exploration Syndicate was given Saturday morning on request of the estate of the late Sir Adolphe Caron, who was a creditor to the extent of $3,215. The liabilities, it is said, will be about $35,000, but the assets are expected to even this up.

The syndicate, of which Sir Frederick Borden is president, has coal mines in British Columbia, and other interests.

Russia's Proposal.

Pekin, Nov. 1.—As a result of the visit of M. Kokovtseff, Russian Minister of Finance, to Harbin, Russia has proposed to the powers the creation of a small international settlement outside of the city of Harbin. Diplomatic opinion here is that acceptance would be tantamount to an agreement that China be deprived of all sovereignty over leased railway territory.

THE DAY OF ALL SAINTS

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON ANCIENT HOLIDAY.

Text, "Both He That Sanctifieth and They That Are Sanctified Are All of One: For Which Cause He Is Not Ashamed to Call Them Brethren" (Hebrews ii, 11)—Number of Saints Not Restricted.

Sunday, October 31.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached today from the text, "Both he that sanctifieth and they that are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren" (Hebrews ii, 11). He said in part:

To-morrow will be observed by our friends of the Catholic, Lutheran and Episcopal churches as "All Saints' Day." At an early date after the death of the apostles, probably in the third century, the custom crept into the Church of invoking the blessing of the saints. Some held in remembrance a patron saint, whose influence and memory were of a merely local character, and a certain day in the year was set apart as a memorial and for invoking his influence in the heavenly courts. When subsequently papacy was organized, gradually the majority of the Christian congregations acceded to papacy's claims that its bishop is the special vicar of Christ, reigning in his stead and exercising his authority. Many submitted themselves to this rule and thus were absorbed into that great system which still holds sway in the world. It was papacy that established "All Saints' Day" as a holy day for the invocation of all saints not otherwise particularly provided for by separate days of invocation.

Although saints admittedly are rare—few in comparison to professed Christians—nevertheless it seems there were enough so considered in the time of Gregory IV. to appropriate nearly all the days of the year. In other words, there were about 365 recognized in Gregory's time—after Christianity had been in operation for 800 years. Hence to-morrow will be the day for invoking the blessing of all the saints of the past one thousand years. But just how many or how few they are, according to the records of the celebrating churches, we do not surely know. If the records of the first eight centuries were correct, in the same proportion we should not expect that the total number of saints recognized would be above one thousand. One sad thought connected with the celebration to-morrow must present itself to all thinking minds amongst the celebrants; that is, that only the saintly do they acknowledge as of holy character, fit for heaven, because the unsaintly, the unholy, would certainly be unfit. The teaching of papacy is that since only the saintly can be ushered into heaven at the time of their death, all the unsaintly, the undeveloped, they hold, must first experience awful tortures in Purgatory—to purify them, to make them ready for heaven.

Protestants on the contrary have discarded Purgatory, claiming that it is an unscriptural doctrine. They do not, however, claim that any but the saintly are prepared for heaven at death, nor that God has promised heaven to the untaught or undeveloped in Christian character. Hence in some respects the Protestant theory is still more grievous, more terrible, more awful, for the bereaved than the Catholic view, in that it offers no hope for all eternity to any unsaintly. Prayers to the saints, we believe to be unscriptural and unreasonable. Nowhere in the Bible are we authorized to pray to the dead—either saints or sinners. On the contrary the Scriptures set forth our Heavenly Father as the supreme object of worship, though they do intimate the propriety of praying to our Lord Jesus also. As we read, "All men should honor the Son even as they honor the Father" (John v, 23). But prayers to the dead are unreasonable, according to the Bible, which teaches that "the dead know not anything" (Ecclesiastes ix, 5); that "their sons come to honor and they know it not—to dishonor and they perceive it not of them" (Job xiv, 21); and that "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecclesiastes ix, 10).

The Scriptures do recognize the difference between the saints, the Lord's holy ones, and the remainder of mankind. And it is assuredly true that the great masses of humanity are totally unfit for the glories and perfections of the heavenly state. It is true that the Church is called upon to develop the fruits and graces of the holy Spirit and is assured, as St. Peter declares, that if we do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (II Peter i, 11).

But we hold that it is not only unscriptural, but irrational, to believe that all mankind except the saintly deserve centuries of torment in Purgatory or an eternity of torture in a worse and hopeless place. Let us take the Scriptural proposition, the only consistent one, the one which agrees with our five senses and with the Bible—that the dead are dead, and that resurrection from death is what they need and what our Lord's death will secure for every member of our race. Let us accept this statement of the Bible, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the First Resurrection, on such the Second Death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years" (Revelation xx, 6). Let us accept the Scriptural explanation of that thousand years, that Millennial reign of Messiah—that it will be a time of blessing, of uplifting mankind, and that therein the elect saints of this age will be privileged to cooperate with their glorified Redeemer in bringing about the uplift, the resurrection, the restitution of all who will then prove willing and obedient.

The term "saint" is not a sectarian one. It occurs over one hundred times in the Bible, mostly in the plural form, "saints." Our text speaks of a saintly, or sanctified class, and declares our Redeemer to be one of these—their Head, their Lord. He declares that all the sanctified of this Gospel Age are one—of one spirit and figuratively of one Body. As for instance, the House of Lords is one body under a chairman, and the House of Commons is another body. The United States Senate is another; and the House of Representatives is another. So the Church is the Body of Christ over which he is the Head, the Presiding Officer and Member. But the point specially to be noticed is that all who will belong ultimately to this Church class which the Lord is now calling and drawing from amongst men will (every one of them) be saints, every one of them be sanctified.

The word "sanctified" signifies to be set apart to holy usage or services, as distinct and separate from any earthly ambition, calling or business. Nevertheless these sanctified ones are not merely the clergy or those without earthly responsibilities. While our heavenly Father is a great King, the King of the Universe, he nevertheless has made a plan which enables even the humblest of his creatures to approach him through the merit of the blood of Jesus, and by faith and obedience to the extent of his ability in sacrifice, to become a joint-heir with his Redeemer in the heavenly Kingdom. Thus the present call is confined to a call to sanctification. As St. Paul declares, "This is the will of God (concerning you), even your sanctification" (I Thessalonians iv, 3).

The word "saint" signifies "holy one," "sanctified one," "set apart"; or, taken as a whole, it signifies one set apart to holy usages, services, etc. We are quite ready to admit that these are a comparatively small number at the present time; as the Scriptures declare, "a little flock"; and again, "not many"; and again, "few there be that find it."

When we say that God is now selecting a special class to be joint-heirs with Christ and that he has determined that this special class shall consist exclusively of the sanctified, let us not be misunderstood to mean by this that in the next age God will accept to his favor the unsanctified, the wicked. The conditions during the Millennial Age will be much easier for mankind than are present conditions of the Church, the elect, the saints. Now we must walk by faith; then we will walk by sight, because Satan and sin and darkness will have passed away, and the light of Truth will flood and cover the whole earth, so that, as the prophet says, "They shall teach no more every man his neighbor, saying, know the Lord; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord" (Jeremiah xxxi, 34). The rewards for obedience to the Divine requirements in the Millennium will be the earthly rewards, eternal life or the earthly restitution plane. The reward proffered to those who now walk the narrow way by self-sacrifice is a spiritual one, glory, honor and immortality on the spirit plane, like unto the holy angels—and higher than this; like unto our Lord Jesus in his glorified state; as seen by the Apostle, "Shining above the brightness of the sun at noonday" (Acts xxvi, 13).

We must guard also against the thought that the total number of God's elect would be as small a number as the calendar of the saints recognized by some of our Christian friends might imply. We hold that none is able to judge definitely on this subject, except the Master. He has given us general intimations of the lines of his decision, but he has not permitted us to determine the matter, saying, "Judge nothing before the time." We are to content ourselves, therefore, with the thought that "the Lord knoweth them that are his," and that he will accept no one who in any degree is disloyal in heart, and that he will overlook and neglect no one who is of the proper attitude of heart. We understand, too, that our Lord is no respector of denominational lines, but that, in every sect, he who loves God, and who accepts the merit of Christ by faith, and who presents his body a living sacrifice daily unto death in the Lord's service—all such are his disciples and, as stated in our text, "He will not be ashamed to call them brethren." But all of this, be it noted, is based, not upon their earthly Church relationship, but upon their sanctification of heart, their relationship to their Redeemer and Head, Jesus. Not only may these be found by the Lord in various denominations, but of various ages, of various colors, of various nationalities, of either sex, and on various levels. One may be a washerwoman, another a farmer, another exercising his talent in business directions, another giving his time as a pastor, priest or teacher of spiritual things. "The Lord knoweth them that are his" (II Timothy ii, 19).

Seeing that the sanctified are comparatively few, and that evidently few can properly direct the way toward a condition which they have not themselves attained, it behooves us to look carefully to the instructions given us by our Lord Jesus directly and through his apostles. St. Paul, who wrote, "This is the will of God, even your sanctification," also wrote, "We are bound to give thanks always to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the spirit and belief of the Truth; whereunto he called you by our Gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ" (II Thessalonians ii, 13,14). Note from these words that the call of the Church is the special feature of this present Gospel Age and its message. Note also that our call is not to sectarianism, but to a heart relationship with the Lord through a belief of the Truth and a proportionate getting rid of error. And this enlightenment through the Truth progresses in proportion to our sanctification of spirit—of thought, of word, of deed.

Note again the same Apostle's explanation of the matter. He says that he addresses them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus (who were) called to be saints, and he explains that while they had been sinners, "children of wrath, even as others," they had been cleansed by faith through acceptance of the finished work of Christ on our behalf. "Ye are washed, ye are sanctified, ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God" (I Corinthians vi, 11). The same St. Paul, addressing the Ephesian brethren, says, "I commend you to God, and to the Word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them that are sanctified" (Acts xx, 32). Note here that it is only the sanctified of the present age that are to get the inheritance with our Lord Jesus, a share with him in his heavenly Kingdom. Note also how the Apostle here again lays emphasis upon the Scriptures as containing the power which not only leads us to consecration and setting apart to the Lord's service, but which will strengthen us in thought and word and deed to do his good pleasure, to maintain our sanctified relationship with him through our Lord Jesus Christ.

St. Peter (I Peter i, 2) explains to us that God's election of the members of the Church from amongst the world during the present age is along the line of sanctification. He elects that all those who shall accept his favor to the extent of sanctification in the trying conditions of the present time shall be joint-heirs with our Lord and Redeemer in his Millennial Kingdom. The Apostle's words are, "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ" (I Peter i, 2). Here we have the matter succinctly stated—faith in the blood of Jesus is essential as the first step in the way to God. "No man cometh unto the Father but by me," said our Lord. Then our way must be through sanctification of the Spirit, of the will, the setting apart of our hearts from earthly ambitions and pleasures to heavenly ones—deadness to the world and a liveness toward God. This work of grace must progress day by day.

Our sanctification is not merely for the beginning of our Christian experience, but to be the very essence of our lives hereafter. The trials and testings of life from the world, the flesh and the devil will serve to demonstrate the thoroughness of our sanctification. God, however, is not seeking to prove whether or not we are perfect in the flesh, for he knows and informs us that we are imperfect. He does, however, desire to prove that our consecration, our sanctification, our setting apart of ourselves to be faithful to the Lord at any and every cost is not merely a passing whim or fancy, but by continual instructions of his Word by the inspirations of his Promises. By the testings of his disciplines he would fix indelibly, unalterably, this decision of ours to be entirely his in thought, in word, in deed—even unto death.

St. Paul, consistently with his statements already quoted, wrote to the Christians at Rome respecting God's foreknowledge and predestination of the Elect Church, saying, "Whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to conformed to the image of his son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren" (Romans viii, 29). Our Heavenly Father decreed that no one might be a member of this elect Church except sanctified ones. And these must be tested before final approval. Their Lord, their Redeemer, having been a saint fully consecrated to the Father's will, these called, chosen and faithful followers will likewise be saints and, in this respect, the Apostle declares, they will be copies of their Redeemer, and he will be an Elder Brother amongst them, when they shall share his glory in his Kingdom.

Notice the harmony of all this with our text, "Both he that sanctifieth (our Lord Jesus) and they that are sanctified (his elect Church) are all of one (of one spirit of loyalty to the Father and his righteousness—and baptized by the one spirit into the one Body, of which Christ is the Head). For this cause he (the glorified Redeemer) is not ashamed to call these sanctified ones, finally tested, his brethren on the highest plane of nature—his own the Divine nature, in glory, honor and immortality, far above that of angels.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles, and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—LENA V. HENRY, R.F.D. 3.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

Admirals All."

Admiral Sir Edward Seymour, who, as special representative of the King, was in New York in command of the British squadron invited to take part in the Hudson-Fulton centenary celebrations, comes of a family whose motto might be "Admirals All." He is first cousin of Admiral Sir Michael Culme-Seymour, the head of the house. Their uncle, Sir Michael G.C.B., was another admiral, and son of yet a third Sir Michael, the first baronet — and an admiral too—who won fame by his capture, in 1808, of the French frigate Thetis, after a terrific fight. Sir Edward's services date back as far as the Crimea, where he took part in the bombardment of Sebastopol. He has also been in four Chinese campaigns, and in the last one, the Boxer rising of 1900, led the allied forces in their unfortunate and unsuccessful endeavor to reach Pekin in time to relieve the Legations.

THERE'S HOPE AHEAD.

New Scheme For Making Homely Women Handsome.

A man of science has arisen to announce a discovery which if confirmed by experiment will place him among the multimillionaires and great benefactors of the race, says the New York Sun. He has discovered a bacillus which injected under the skin is guaranteed to make the most homely woman beautiful in a few hours, even in a few minutes, under favorable circumstances. After this we trust that no carping critics will throw bricks at science or say it is not highly utilitarian and sociological.

The process is simple. A woman notes that her complexion is bad; that wrinkles are appearing; that she looks "perfectly awful." Instead of bursting into tears and lamenting the fact that she is not a Venus she rises from the dressing table, goes to the expert and has a hypodermic injection under the shoulder blade. Her first dose will be 125,000,000 staphylococci and 5,000,000 acne bacilli. It seems like a large order; but, in fact, they are all contained in a few drops of liquid. The bacilli start to work at once on the phagocytes of the blood or some of those billions of miserable whelps in the midst of us, and pretty soon the blush of innocence mounts the cheek, wrinkles disappear, beauty has come, happiness reigns and life is worth living.

All this sounds very simple. We have it only at second hand as reported in the London newspapers, where the most glowing accounts are given. We are willing to believe it all principally because we wish to believe it. It seems entirely too good to be true, but if it is the case what a boon for men! You, we mean men, of course it will make the women happy, and that is just the point. When the man comes home tired from his office he will not have to listen to his wife complain that she is getting old and ugly and that she must have money for clothes and unguents to destroy the ravages of time. Not at all. The honest workman will only need to carry home a few billion staphylococci and a hypodermic syringe, jab the wife of his bosom in the back, and, presto, love and quietness reign in the family circle.

We regret to state that we are not personally acquainted with staphylococcus and his works, but we think highly of him on his reputation. We are surprised that he hasn't reached this country, but when he comes he will receive a warm welcome. Incidentally a high tariff ought to be put on him for revenue purposes. Here is where the government can get a large income without complaint. Any woman will pay any sum that she has or that she hasn't for enough of the beasts to clear the complexion. And no corporation tax will be necessary.

A SPINSTER TEA.

Bachelor Maids Give Party For a Bride to Be.

Several bachelor maids gave a unique little entertainment recently as a farewell to one of their number who was about to relinquish her freedom for a husband and home of her own. The festivity contained so many novel features that it may prove of interest to other bachelor maids who wish for some novel way in which to entertain their girl friends. The invitations requested each girl to bring with her to the party the picture of some man whom she was supposed to have refused, and after luncheon each photo was the object of a story, which its owner told with as many embellishments as she saw fit. Favors consisting of tiny teakettles filled with bachelor buttons were placed at each girl's place, and the luncheon table was decorated with the same blossoms.

A guessing contest followed, which provoked much mirth. The girls were provided with slips of paper and pencils and asked to guess the meaning of a number of objects which were brought in for their inspection.

The objects and their interpretations were as follows: Cup and saucer, always in pairs; sugar kisses, sadly missed; a bowl of mush with teaspoon courtship; spiced tongue, a cause of woe; a candy heart, a leftover; several little dolls dressed as boys, would they were here; objects of envy, preserved pears; a bottle of ginger ale, warranted to pop; a box of tea, a solace; a charlotte russe, a popular maiden.

A woolly cat made after the fashion of a Teddy bear was given to the girl who guessed the greater number of objects, and the girls finished the afternoon by taking out their thimbles and getting to work at several useful articles which the hostess was preparing for the new menage of the bride to be Wise Girl.

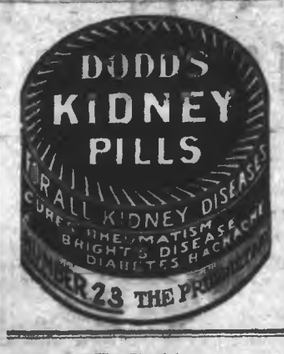
"What? You're going to marry Tom Speed? Why, he's awful."

"What makes you think so?"

"I hear he's been blackballed by every club in town."

"Yes, I heard so too. That sort of husband won't have much excuse for staying out nights, will he?"



The Physician.

Dr. Cathelin of Paris declares that no person who does not possess certain "six moral senses" should attempt to enter the medical profession—viz. the sense of duty, the sense of responsibility, the sense of kindness, the sense of manual skill (which he subdivides into the sense of boldness and the sense of prudence), the sense of beauty and the social role. "The sense of duty toward the patient," so he is quoted by the Boston Globe, "is the very first requisite in a physician. It can only arise from a positive and innate altruism or love of one's fellow creatures—a quality similar to that which moves the hospital nurse to the care of the stricken. There can be no personal sensitiveness nor lack of interest in details, as against an absorbing curiosity that complicated cases arouse, and yet, with all this sense of duty, which calls for extreme goodness and sensitiveness of heart, he must not show a trace of emotion when his duty calls him to operate on a McKinley, a Carnot or a Frederick II."

A Truthful Description.

In an illustrated description of the game of tennis Simplicissimus says: "Like all good things, lawn tennis is of English origin. Marie Stuart while a prisoner was compelled to beat carpets which were hung over a rail. Not contented with this humiliation, her sister, Queen Elizabeth, once threw a dead mouse at the unfortunate Marie while the latter was beating carpets. The little defunct rodent was caught on Marie's flail and sent back over the rail and was returned to her by means of a flail in the hands of Elizabeth, and thus the game of tennis originated." Further on in the same description it is said, "Two sets are formed, and while these flirt at the edge of the court others stand near the net and make efforts to speak English."

Travel in 1760.

In these days of rapid transit a paragraph from a Yorkshire paper of 1760 is interesting. It is an account of a London merchant's journey from London to Dublin and back. Leaving London on Monday evening, the traveler reached Liverpool on Wednesday morning, in time to catch the packet for Dublin, which city he reached on Thursday. During that day he transacted his business in the capital, and next morning sailed for Liverpool, arriving there on Saturday. Monday saw him back in London, and his journey was complete, having taken only eight days! "And," concludes the writer, "there is every reason to believe that it will be possible to beat even this performance in the near future."—London Family Journal.

A Kitchen Martyr.

Even the kitchen can boast its martyrs. Chief among these was Vatel, the chief cook of Conde, who ran himself through the heart with a sword because the fish had not arrived in time for a banquet which his master was giving Louis XIV. Vatel's panegyric is to be found in the concluding volume of the "Almanach des Gourmands:" "So noble a death insures you, venerable shade, the most glorious immortality! You have proved that the fanaticism of honor can exist in the kitchen as well as in the camp, and that the spit and the saucepan have also their Catos and their Deciuses."

Thought Aster Was Crazy.

People said John Jacob Astor was crazy because he paid $1,000 an acre when he bought the estate of Aaron Burr about a hundred years ago. It was a farm of 120 acres, located about where Twenty-first street is now in Manhattan. In ten years he commenced to sell lots at $5,000 an acre; but, fortunately, he did not sell much at that price. What it is worth today is hard to compute in millions.—Cost Per Cent.

VISITING LADIES' MAID.

How a Girl Made Her College Expenses.

"Visiting lady's maid is my way of tiding over the summer, and I find it very satisfactory," declared a young woman who is paying her way through an eastern college. "In the winter months I am studying for an A. M. degree, while during the summer I polish nails, manicure feet, shampoo hair, clean gloves, sew rosettes on slippers and keep my patrons' wardrobes in order generally.

"It pays me enough to keep me comfortably the following winter, which is more than tutoring or some other literary vocation would accomplish—that is, of course, unless I got pupils who could afford to pay an unusual price for my services.

"My patrons are the boarders in the hotels—women, young and old, who are there for a good time and want to look their best and also save their strength. You have no idea how the life in a hotel at a fashionable summer resort uses up one's time, strength and clothes. It is a wonder to me that women don't break down oftener than they do. As a rule, they have clothes enough to stock a small shop, and to show them all they are kept continually changing and going the rounds.

"It is these clothes, packing and unpacking them, putting in a stitch here and wiping off a spot there, that supply the chief part of my work. If a woman can't afford to have her personal maid with her during the summer and yet longs to have her wardrobe and herself always in perfect condition the visiting maid is really a very desirable person to have around. When I started out I took a room in an inexpensive boarding house at a fashionable summer resort, and by watching the register of the most popular hotels I was able to learn which women were without maids. I would then send up my cards, stating that my services were at their disposal.

"The second week I had all I could do and on very liberal terms. Toward the close of that season I was one day asked to step into the private office of the manager of the hotel. The manager began by asking if I would mind telling him just how much I made a week, how much I paid for my board, etc.

"I told the truth in fear and trembling, fancying he was about to charge me for the privilege of working in the hotel. Imagine my surprise when he told me that his object was to engage me to work exclusively for the patrons of his house during the coming season. They had received so many calls for my services in the office at times when I was engaged elsewhere that they had decided to get me or some equally proficient woman to fill these orders.

"It goes without saying that I snapped at the offer. He offered me room and board free, with the privilege of setting my own price for my work and controlling my own hours."

HOUSEKEEPING HELPS.

A cloth moistened with alcohol will clean piano keys.

Clean linoleum with warm water and polish it with milk.

No soap on window panes! Rub them with either alcohol or ammonia to make them shine.

Decorated china plates should be put away with round pieces of canton flannel between them.

Apply the white of an egg with a camel's hair brush to fly specks on gilt frames and they will disappear.

Soft soap made from half a pound of shaved down hard soap and two quarts of water will save the soap bill at cleaning time.

Cover plaster of paris figures with a thick coating of starch and water, let it dry on the surface and the dirt will brush off with the dry powder.

To clean old glass pour strong ammonia on it, scrub well with a brush and rinse in clean water. Dry and polish, and it will then appear as new.

If your cook persists in washing the dishes in the pantry while the family is still at dessert, insist upon her placing the dishes to drain upon a heavy Turkish towel. It will lessen much of the clatter.

To keep sponges white and soft wash them in warm water to which a little tartaric acid has been added (quarter of a teaspoonful to half a gallon of water), then rinse thoroughly in plenty of cold water.

Saving the Gown.

"Each gown for its own occasion" is the motto that should hang in every woman's dressing room. The woman of taste will sometimes know about clothes what the woman of common sense has learned by experience. But both will at once agree that it is a breach of good taste to wear a fluffy gown upon a city street and that, furthermore, a gown worn out of its proper place will last but one-half as long.

Both of these women know, too, that a cloth or linen street suit should never be worn in the house. It is not comfortable looking, and it will soon become kneed and wrinkled.

It is intended that in the house one should be dainty and feminine, while on the street it is desirable that one should look dignified, neat and stylish. These are matters that admit of no argument—they are!

A Good Entertainment.

A most happy entertainment both for a lawn or piazza is a fortune telling tea. A tent can be set on a lawn or the piazza may be arranged with cushions and bright calico. A friend is invited to come dressed as a gypsy and tell fortunes.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and feel it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and, prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

A Million for a New Stomach

It is said that Mr. Rockefeller, one of the world's richest men, offered one million dollars to any physician who would make his stomach strong enough to digest an ordinary meal. With all his money, this multimillionaire is compelled to live on milk and crackers.

What a warning this is to men and women who are beginning to realise that "they have a stomach"!

Slight attacks of indigestion soon develop into acute attacks. The weakened stomach quickly becomes weaker under the continued strain of digesting unsuitable food. Chronic Dyspepsia makes a strict diet imperative, and life miserable.

Yet how unnecessary all this suffering is! "Fruit-a-tives" — that splendid stomach tonic—will give you what millionaires cannot buy, a clean, sweet, healthy stomach which will be capable of digesting any reasonable meal.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, acts directly on the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices and corrects the faults of digestion.

"Fruit-a-tives" or "Fruit Liver Tablets" is not only a positive and speedy cure for all these troubles. It also acts as a general tonic, building up and strengthening the entire system. Frequently those, who have been cured of Stomach and Bowel Troubles, write to the Company, stating that they are enjoying better health than ever before.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c.—or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Visiting With Johnny.

"I think the mother of a six-year-old boy should have a pension to make up to her for the mental agony she suffers," said just such a mother. "I took Johnny to his paternal grandfather's last week and believe he has cut us out of grandfather's will. Of course we send him to Sunday school, and we both attend church, but we do not ask a blessing at the table, nor do we have family prayers. Grandfather does, and it happened that the morning after we arrived Johnny was excused from the table and went out in the yard to play. Grandfather led the way into the sitting room, and we all knelt down in prayer. Imagine my horror to see Johnny's little face peering curiously through the blinds and hear him sing out: 'Hey, in there! What kind of a game is that you're playing? Ain't you the rotten bunch not to let me in on it?' I arose and softly whispered to him to run on and play, and he sang out: 'You're it, mamma; you're it! Make a home run.' Now, what can you do with a small boy, anyway? I can never explain matters to his grandfather."—New York Times.

The Panacea of Nature.

Every great and commanding moment in the annals of the world is the triumph of some enthusiasm. The victories of the Arabs after Mohammed, who in a few years from a small and mean beginning established a larger empire than that of Rome, is an example. But there will dawn ere long on our politics, on our modes of living, a nobler morning than that Arabian faith in the sentiment of love.

This is the one remedy for all ills, the panacea of nature. We must be lovers, and at once the impossible becomes possible. Our age and history for these thousand years have not been the history of kindness, but of selfishness. Our distrust is very expensive. The money we spend for courts and prisons is very ill laid out. We make by distrust the thief and burglar and incendiary, and by our court and jail we keep him so. An acceptance of the sentiment of love throughout Christendom for a season would bring the felon and the outcast to our side in tears, with the devotion of his faculties to our service.—Emerson.

The Evil of It.

Dumbleton—Fritter's chief fault is that his temper occasionally gets the best of him. Flasher—Very true, and that wouldn't be so bad if it didn't reveal the worst of him.

How soon patience with the faults of those we dislike ceases to be a virtue!—Atchison Globe.

The tortures of Eczema can scarcely be described.

And words fail to express the gratitude which very many people feel toward Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment because it has cured them of this annoying ailment. The itching, stinging, burning which brings discomfort by day and makes sleep impossible by night, soon disappears when is applied. With patient treatment it is only a matter of time until the sores are healed and new, smooth, natural skin formed.

Success in the cure of this worst form of itching, skin disease has made Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment known and recognized throughout the world as the standard ointment.

It is wonderfully soothing and healing and you can depend on it absolutely to bring relief quickly from itching and irritation and to thoroughly heal the skin.

A PAGE for MISSES

STRIPED AND PLAIN SERGE AND CLOTH WINTER GOWNS

THE American woman is famous the world over for the smartness of her street attire. In her well cut tailor dress and becoming walking hat she excels more completely than in any other costume. Good taste is the practical rule in every detail of her costume, from her simple thread veil to her pretty laced boots, and even her Parisian sister has much to learn ere she can surpass in this field and way. And already the American girl is commencing to be heard from in this field, and mothers of other countries are already imitating the severely simple yet essentially smart outdoor dress of the American school girl.

There are, of course, many essentials besides the actual clothes themselves which must be considered if one would look her best in street dress. The walk and the poise when standing are of tremendous importance, and an erect carriage of the head is obligatory to carry off well a plain coat and skirt costume. A certain trimness and very severe neatness, especially with the hat and the arrangement of the veil, are all important characteristics of the tailor made girl. Needless to state, the figure must be good, but long slender lines are almost universal characteristics of the present generation of American school girls, while the importance of good corsets is now almost as well understood in this country as in Paris, where even the poorest little dressmaker's apprentice is remarkable for her trim, prettily corseted figure, and, in consequence, the extraordinarily good fit of her home made frock. To look well, therefore, in a tailor costume is not the accomplishment of a day, but rather the result of long training. No sooner are the little wash dresses laid aside for school wear than future years must be thought of, stays must be donned and a pretty cloth street costume of coat and skirt worn. Care must be taken to find a hat that is suitable with the dress, the hair must be neatly tied back and the ribbon always trimly knotted.

Until true stays are worn a girl should not put on a severe style of tailor suit, but should keep to the suspender and strap dresses or any simple model of a dress throughout, to be worn beneath a long half fitted coat or ulster. A white waist or even a silk bodice with a separate skirt is never pretty if there is no foundation to keep the waist down snugly in back and on the sides and the skirt from slipping out of place. None of the tailor models is really tight fitting this year, so that many much the same style of street dress is worn by school girls and grown ups alike. All side gores and elaboration on the coat are, of course, to be avoided for young girls and the very long jackets are a mistake, but by this last is not meant the separate coats or ulsters reaching nearly to the hem of the dress, which are seen in all the smartest outfits for quite young girls.

NOW that plaited skirts are again in vogue, strict attention must be afforded the underskirt, for upon its flare and hang depend much of the effect of the entire costume. For city wear a silk petticoat is infinitely preferable to a white wash skirt, which can never retain its freshness and starch for more than a few hours at most. The advantage in a black silk skirt is, of course, that it can be made to serve with any dress desired, but, on the other hand, a petticoat of the shade of the skirt with which it is to be worn is more attractive and always more youthful. This skirt should have a gored poke at the top, so that the overskirt will fit neatly. A petticoat gathered into a ribbon or tape string tied about the waist is as great a detriment to a handsome dress as an unbecoming veil on a pretty hat. Even the smallest girl should have her underskirt well fitted and carefully made. For economy's sake there should be an underflounce of muslin or percaline beneath the deep silk ruffle to keep the skirt from wearing out in the distressingly short time that a silk skirt usually does go to pieces. Really, the importance of a good underskirt cannot be too strongly emphasized, for without it the most expensive dress will hang but poorly, and nothing is so unattractive as an ill hanging short dress.

Shawl collars or else unusually wide revers are seen on the majority of tailor coats for young girls, and with the small sleeve now fashionable a wide rever is essential to give breadth across the shoulder line. These revers may be of corded silk, of moire, of panne velvet or of the material itself with soutache braiding or rows of stitching. On many of the newest coats the silk or whatever material is used for the revers they are carried down as a facing the full length of the coat. The sleeves may be finished as the regulation coat sleeve, with a few bands of stitching and two or three cloth buttons, or if preferred may be adorned with two inch cuffs of the same material as the collar and revers. Rounded and cutaway effects are still occasionally seen, but the long straight coat front is evidently more popular at present. Often the turned down collar is of the cloth itself, while revers and facing are of silk the shade of the material. Dark linings, very nearly the color of the coats on which they are placed, are fast displacing the white satin that remained in favor for so many years.

Not only must the street walking dresses be smart and carefully chosen, the evening wraps must also be accorded due consideration and thought. A pretty evening cloak is every bit as important in these days as the dainty frock which it protects. White cloth, with wide collar and cuffs of soft white fox or lynx, makes an adorable cloak for a young girl not yet out, while if it is desired to wear the wrap occasionally during the day time on the way to dancing school or afternoon party a darker shade, deep rose, Japanese blue or perhaps bright scarlet, would be a better investment. This cloak, if to be worn perhaps in a public conveyance, should be half fitted with long, rather full, coat sleeves and reach quite to the end of the dress. If, however, a girl is so fortunate as to have a carriage always at her disposal a looser wrap would be perhaps smarter.

SLEEVELESS capes make delightful wraps for every time of year save midwinter, but a cape must be heavily interlined, if possible lined with fur, for it is never so warm as a cloak. This year, however, the cape is much in demand, and, with a high fur collar is extremely pretty for a young girl. Chiffon, silk and velvet cloaks are, needless to state, always charming, and this year seem even more alluringly fascinating than ever, but even for the débutante of next year this style of wrap is unsuitable, a long white cloak being in every respect preferable.

White coney skin makes a charming evening or afternoon wrap for a young girl and has the great advantage of being equally smart for either time of day. A white fur coat of this description is really excellent in a young girl's winter outfit, for, apart from being intensely becoming, there is nothing so delightfully warm and hence so good to wear over a trim party frock.

In this climate furs are every bit as necessary as in Russia for and a fur coat will do much to insure health in this temperate zone which we inhabit. For a school girl brown fur is more suitable than black, although the near seal is rapidly taking the place of brown caracul and pony skin. It is unnecessary or even sensible to buy expensive furs for a young girl, for the styles of fur that are to be had now at such remarkably low prices will stand wear the sort of wear which she will give a coat. The only thing to guard against is not to purchase too heavy a garment, the difficulty with the majority of inexpensive fur coats.

For stole and muff sets silky and pointed fox are the favorite for this winter, while fox and lynx are exceptionally in favor for young girls, for all brown furs are also fashionable, black lynx and, in fact, all black furs being reserved for later on in life.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

THAT "good manners" are nothing in the world but a certain form of unselfishness and thoughtfulness for others is a new idea to many girls, but what a very true thing it is! The executive rude man who does not rise to offer his seat in a street car to a tired woman standing in front of him is simply the selfish man who prefers to be comfortable himself than give the opportunity of rest to another. The girl who does not take the trouble to stand when an older woman enters the room simply shows that she is too lazy to please by even so small a mark of respect for the older person. Again, the girl who does not bother to wish a cheery "Good morning" to her family, her teachers or her school shows only that she is absorbed in herself and does not think of others sufficiently to even make the attempt of gladdening the moment with a bright smile and a solicitous good wish.

In themselves they may not amount to so very much, the little "convenances" of life, and many a scullery maid is at heart a perfect little lady; but if gentle birth cannot bring with it good breeding what good is it after all? The girl with a bright smile and a cheerful nod of good fellowship and good will to all who cross her path has never yet failed to win love from all with whom she chances to come in contact, while no little mark of respect or smallest politeness done to an older person passes unappreciated.

All that is necessary to acquire good manners in the broad, right sense of the term is the power to put one's self in another's place and think what they would like—the chair, perhaps, that you are sitting in, the cup of tea passed to them first before you yourself are waited upon, strict attention given while they talk of matters which perhaps are not of vital interest to you, but in which surely something of interest can be found. It is the girl who carries out all this that is said to have such "charming manners," and what does she do, after all, but get out of herself sufficiently to think quickly what might please those about her, and then to act out that thought? Surely when once it is realized that bad manners and selfishness are but co-ordinate terms no girl could wilfully allow herself to be dubbed ill mannered.

Satchel Powder Puff.

A LITTLE bag to carry talcum powder is a great addition to one's comfort when travelling or on a motoring trip. The powder is most refreshing after being long in the wind or after washing one's face. Although it can, of course, be carried in the tin box in which it is bought, that does not provide a place for the powder puff, and by far the best way to carry it for temporary use is in a little silk bag lined with chamois skin.

The bag is made like a work bag, but much smaller. Cut out first a circle of heavy cardboard three and a half inches in diameter. Cover this on the inside with chamois and on the outside with silk, a broad flowered or brocaded ribbon being the best thing to use. Sew around this a piece of the chamois just long enough to fit smoothly around the bottom. This piece of chamois must be cut four inches wide. Outside of it is sewed a piece of the ribbon twenty-one inches long, which will give it considerable fullness. The ribbon should be four and three-quarter inches wide, the extra width making a little frill above the chamois.

Next sew the outside and the lining together at the top of the chamois skin and again half an inch below to make a place for the drawing strings. Through this run two pieces of narrow ribbon, one coming out of a slit at each side, and buttonhole closely around the slits. Tie each drawing string in a bow and the bag itself is finished. It must be supplied with a powder puff small enough to fit comfortably inside and when it is to be used a thick coating of powder is put on the bottom. Do not put in too much powder at once if the bag is to be carried in a satchel, for the puff will hold a small amount of it in place and, when the bag is drawn up tight the powder will not roam out, even if it is turned upside down, but if there is too large a quantity of powder it may spill at first.

Carved Gold Umbrella Handles.

REALLY valuable umbrella handles, such as are bought separate from the umbrellas, are now principally to be noticed in two styles. One of these is quite deep and round or octagonal, small where it is to be fastened to the ferrule of the umbrella and widening toward the top. These handles are of gold, engraved by hand or carved. Ivory handles also come in this shape, and these are also carved. Mother of pearl is used with gold for some of the handles. With these handles there are gold points to be used for the finishing of the umbrella.

Round flat handles are also fashionable. These are about as large as a silver dollar in circumference, with a two or three inch ferrule. They are engraved or carved, and many of them are set with stones, but for young girls the engraved ones are considered in better style.

White Moire Photograph Frame.

WHITE moire is at the moment a favorite fabric for photograph frames, upholstered boxes, letter cases, &c. The decorations used on this fabric are in ribbon work and chenille, in pink, pale blue, green and lavender, in Pompadour combinations. The chenille and ribbon employed are all very narrow, and the designs are extremely delicate. Paillettes in gold and silver and crystal beads are also used for delicate supplementary designs.

Popular Embroidery in Relief.

EMBROIDERY in relief is now interesting a large number of girls who are fond of fine needlework. The work is called petaline, because the petals stand out from the body of the work. This high relief effect is obtained by the use of wire around the edge of the petal and by having these petals cut from separate pieces of material. The use of the wire is a Japanese idea and although relief may be done without it, it adds much to the character of the work.

The main part of the design is worked in the ordinary fashion. Vines, leaves, &c., are usually worked flat, although padding is sometimes used under the leaves. The flower, if it be double, has the outer leaves worked flat and only the inner leaves worked in relief.

The petals which are to be so worked are stamped upon a separate piece of material and the wire is buttonholed down to the outer rim of the petal. Then the petal is filled in in the usual fashion. It is then sewed down to its place on the flower by means of the flower centres.

Brooches of Colored Enamel.

AMONG the new brooches affected by young girls are those of enamel in designs of butterflies and birds. The fashionable shops show a great variety of them and attractive designs in these brooches. There are charming colors—pale green, vivid blue, shaded pink, &c., and both the designs and colors are particularly suited to use in the ordinary everyday neckwear of the schoolgirl.

Ribbons for Feminine Handiwork

NEVER were there more fascinating ribbons than are now to be seen in the shops. They are of gauze, velvet, satin and moire, with pompadour designs, raised flowers, gold and silver embroideries, paillettes, &c. The gold and silver gauze ribbons with colored flowers are wonderfully handsome. There are also satin ribbons with raised velvet designs in contrasting tints, and heavy satin ribbons with designs in gold thread. Old fashioned scalloped ribbons have been revived. They are three or four inches wide and very heavy, even stiff in texture. They are covered with flowers, usually in two shades of the same color, and some of them have also gold thread worked into the design.

To girls who like to make bags and boxes for boudoir and drawing rooms these ribbons are very tempting. They make up most charmingly and, used with plain satin or chiffon, are ideal for handkerchief cases, work bags, &c.

Small pincushions are made in circular shape with a piece of flowered ribbon for the centre and a frill of plain satin caught in at intervals to make petals. For handkerchiefs there are large heart shaped cases made of two pieces of broad ribbon, padded and lined with plain silk or satin and caught together at the points with small bows of narrow ribbon. Corset cases are made of two long pieces of ribbon with a double frill of plain satin all around. A very useful affair is a roll on which broad ribbons used for the hair, for belts, sashes, &c., may be rolled so as to be kept smooth. These are simply straight rolls with a wooden bar as a centre, around which is wound cotton padding which has sachet powder between its layers. This roll is covered with the flowered silk, and at each end there are puffs or small bows of plain satin.

Small round bags for pieces, work bags, &c., have a stiff circular base about three inches in height, a bag being attached to the upper edge of this. The stiff circular part is covered with brocade ribbon of the proper width, and the upper part, which is an ordinary circular bag, is of soft silk or satin, harmonizing in color. Another attractive bag is made of two stiff side ovals sewed on a stiff bottom piece. The side ovals are covered with the flowered ribbon. Inside there is a soft bag in plain silk, attached to the sides at the bottom, but quite free from them at the top. This little bag sets nicely on the table and looks like a brocaded basket, with a bag inside.

Pillows are also made of the new ribbons, and there are many most attractive ones constructed in this manner. A plain pillow of silk or satin may have corners of the flowered ribbon or the ribbon may be used for a strip down one side. In round cushions the ribbon may form a circular centre, with soft full silk shirred around it. These cushions are most attractive. They are prettier when quite small.

To Re-cover Old Work Boxes.

THE kind of work with which all are familiar under the name of "decorative art" is far easier than might at first be imagined. The chief difficulty in the making of chintz or brocade covered picture frames, desk outfits, hairpin boxes, &c., is in procuring the pasteboard frame or box that is to be adorned. In any large city it is always possible to have such boxes and frames made to order of required size, but if a stationer cannot be found capable of making up this line of articles it is easily possible for a girl to turn out almost anything of the sort herself. A sharp scissors and knife, a ruler and various grades of cardboard, both thick and thin, are all the implements required, with, of course, the necessary glue.

The best way of learning how to make and cover a hatpin case, for example, or any sort of frame is to take apart and examine carefully some article of the sort. While it might be difficult to turn out a wholly original piece of work, it should not be hard to re-cover, copying exactly, a box or frame that was once new and is now too faded and worn for further use. It is an excellent plan, by the way, at this time of year for a girl to collect all the old work boxes, book covers, pin cushions, frames, &c., that have been discarded by different members of the family as too faded after a summer of hard usage and to re-cover them in brocade and silk for Christmas gifts. Whether or not the old frame or work box is recognized in its new form makes no difference. The recipient will be only too glad to have back again once more a pretty and attractive something that has perhaps been sorely missed.

In taking to pieces the pin tray, box or frame, or whatever it may be, each section should be carefully studied so that a duplicate can easily be made of the original piece made to look just as it did before. Surely what has been done once can be accomplished a second time, whether that thing happens to be a trip to the North Pole or simply the remaking of an intricate piece of decorative art work. Nor need both undertakings be accomplished by the same person.

Quite an astonishing amount of money, too, can be saved by making use of what things are already at hand, for even the pasteboard back of a picture frame costs something, while any kind of box or tray will be found quite expensive if a number are to be bought.

Trimmed Bags and Cases.

IT is now very fashionable to use lace trimmed with gold thread for the decoration of bags, handkerchief cases and other small articles that are so attractive and so necessary in the boudoir. The work of embroidering the lace with gold is most fascinating and not so difficult as many kinds of needlework. Lace of various sorts is used for this purpose, that having a fine net and figures not too close together being most attractive. Fine figured net of ivory tint is also used to trim these articles and is edged with gold lace and embroidered not only with fine thread but with an appliqué of fine cord as well. Small gold flowers are superimposed upon the flowers in the lace. These may be bought ready made and appliqué, or they may be formed of cloth of gold, of gold cord or thread.

For the tops of bags this lace is especially attractive. It is also most charmingly used as a flounce for flat cases of brocade, satin, &c. The lace is also cut apart and used in squares or circles and in separate motifs for the decoration of bags and cases. Silver and gold paillettes, steel, jet and crystal beads and colored beads and paillettes are also sewed on the lace that is to be used as trimming. Some of the small bags are entirely covered with lace or net which has been decorated in this fashion. Ribbon work and chenille are sometimes used in place of the gold thread and most attractive effects result.

In all cases where there is a decided design in the lace this is accentuated and supplemented by the trimming. Whatever trimming is used, in other words, is never allowed to interfere with the design of the lace, but rather to improve it, to give it color and richness. When net instead of lace is the background the imagination of the embroiderer need not be so limited. Any design desired may be stamped on the lace and either outlined with the gold thread or cord, or with paillettes or beads. If the gold thread is used it is customary to set in heavier bits of design at intervals, such as leaves or flowers of cloth of gold or of gold ribbon, appliqué after the manner of ribbon work.

Leather Lined Motor Wraps.

ALTHOUGH not so comfortable or soft to wear, leather as a protection from cold and wind is even more effective as fur, while a combination of the two makes a motor wrap that cannot be surpassed for late autumn and early winter touring.

Many of the new rough ulsters and blanket coats are lined with leather, either a soft suède or even the harder skins, but an excellent plan for a coat for this time of year, with the occasional warm days of Indian summer followed by spells of biting winds, is to have the leather lining a coat itself made to button in to the other wrap when desired. The majority of English motor coats are now made in this way, and for both plan and for the idea works out splendidly.

Neither cloth, fur nor leather can ever make satisfactory raincoats, and no motor trip should be undertaken without a waterproof wrap sufficiently large to be slipped on over this thickest garment and sufficiently long to completely protect all that is worn underneath. It is a good plan, too, to take on a trip a rainproof hood either of rubber, gloria or some such lightweight rubber material, which can be slipped on over the head should a sudden shower arise.

Embroidered Waists Should Not Be Discarded

AN embroidered waist or gown should never be discarded simply because it has been outgrown or the material apparently worn out, for hand embroidery can always be transferred to new lawn or batiste and made up into quite beautiful pillow covers, underverts or even new shirt waists. With a little practice the entire design of a waist can be appliqué upon another bodice and, save on close examination, it will be impossible to discern the joining.

As most lingerie bodices are of such sheer material that once it has commenced to tear and show signs of wear the entire waist will soon go to pieces, it is well not to attempt to use the embroidery for another bodice, but to place it upon a sofa cushion, pin cushion, jabot, table cover or some such article which does not have the constant hard use of a shirt waist.

Even if parts of the embroidery itself are worn there are generally a number of sprays or medallions that are still in perfect condition and can be placed in the centre of a pin cushion, small pillow case or handkerchief bag.

In transferring embroidery from one piece of material to another the design is first cut off carefully, a small margin of the lawn or batiste being left on either side, by which the design or piece of embroidery is then basted on to the new stuff. The raised work is then overhanded on all around with the finest possible stitches and the old material cut away, just close enough to the embroidery for it not to fray out.

Old night gowns, underwaists or chemises can all be utilized in this way, provided the embroidery is sufficiently heavy to stand being transferred. If there is real lace or even a good imitation in an especially pretty design on any waist or piece of lingerie this can easily be made up in another waist or undervest in an exact duplicate of the piece that has become worn out. The secret of economy is the knowing how to make use of odds and ends of things that the extravagant person will throw away as useless. From the lower part of an old sheer linen night dress, chemise or petticoat, of which the upper part has worn out, can be manufactured attractive covers for the indispensable "baby" pillow or any one of the numberless small things that go to make a girl's room attractive. A piece of lace insertion from some old dress can border the four sides of the pillow, joining the two pieces of material, and on one side can be appliqué some heavily raised roses or sprays of flowers taken from a bodice no longer fit to wear. With a lining of bright pink or blue satin or sateen the lace and embroidery will show up quite charmingly.

SCRAP BASKETS EASILY MADE.

A SCRAP basket should be a thing of beauty in a room, not a mere convenience. Fortunately, there is nothing easier to make than a pretty receptacle for waste paper and the various sorts of odds and ends to be thrown away. Among the new waste baskets there is one design which is extremely pretty and also extremely easy of construction. It is narrow so as to fit in the tiniest corner of a tiny room, but is higher than the ordinary size, so as to hold all that is necessary. A frame of this description can be bought in plain wicker and then gilded or enamelled as desired before its lining of china silk to match the hangings of the room is added.

To line this basket a cardboard disk is first cut of convenient size to fit inside the wicker frame and this disk is then covered with the silk. Next the height of the basket is measured and the silk cut to correspond, an extra inch or two being allowed to turn in at each end. The silk is then gathered on to the disk, stitched here and there to the frame, and then drawn up tightly and fastened to the top of the basket with a narrow ruche of the silk left on a finish. With pink, blue, pale green or any light pretty shade the gold of the frame makes a most attractive combination, and the basket, while costing ridiculously little, will be as effective as a far more expensive article.

With a coat of gilt any old scrap basket, no matter how shabby, can be made to look quite smart and fresh, while if a large satin or taffeta ribbon bowknot be tied on at one side the basket will be doubly effective.

Chints and cretonne baskets are still popular and these can be most easily made by covering five pieces of heavy cardboard cut the height of the four bottom and four sides. It is better to sew the lining and covering of the different pieces together at the sides than to attempt to put them together with glue or paste. The different parts are then held together by ribbon strings sewed at each corner and in the centre of each piece and tied to the corresponding string on the adjoining side.

Screens for Girls' Rooms.

CHARMING screens for girls' rooms are made of silk of a rather heavy texture in the Pompadour tones and pinks and trimmed with gold lace or gold beading. The screens are made of gilded wood and the silk is pulled on at the top and bottom. The trimming, in the shape of a shallow valance across the top of the screen, is of the silk trimmed with gold and edged with gold fringe.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

United States Congress will be asked at the next session to investigate the rottenness of the customs service in New York.

Isaac Taylor, watchman, aged 71, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the People's Theatre, Philadelphia, on Saturday. Loss, $60,000.

The Sterling Bank will open a branch in Winnipeg shortly. They have purchased a site on Portage avenue, as a cost of a quarter of a million dollars.

As a result of injuries received in a football game between Medico, Chicago, and the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy at the latter city, Michael Burke died yesterday morning.

Frederick Olsen, a carpenter working on a building on the corner of Main street and College avenue, Winnipeg, fell fifty feet from a scaffold Saturday afternoon and was instantly killed.

Twelve men were killed in the Cambria Steel Co.'s coal mine, two miles from Johnstown, Pa., last night, as the result of what is supposed to have been a dynamite explosion. All the dead are foreigners.

Must Protect Schools.

Paris, Nov. 1.—M. Briand, the Premier, in an eloquent discourse Saturday night, at the dedication of the home of the Educational League, at which President Fallieres and several of the Ministers were present, announced that one of the Government's principal pre-occupations would be the protection of the public schools, whose enemies were the real enemies of the republic.

He counselled the people to be calm under attacks, as he was convinced that the country's enemies were setting a trap and hoped to win over public opinion through excesses of passion and anger at the defenders of the public schools.

Pointing out that the last struggle was not with the church, but against those who pretended to direct the church, M. Briand declared that France will never obey orders from the outside, and that Catholic France, which does not view religion as the instrument of a political propaganda, never will permit the exercise of brutal force against public institutions to which the nation is dedicated.

"The public schools," he continued, "are the hope of the future security of France, and if their enemies succeed in undermining the schools, it is the republic itself which will be weakened. The Government will strive to secure adequate laws, but the support and defence of the people will be most efficacious."

National Bank for France.

Paris, Nov. 1.—A project which would make the French treasury a bank of deposit for anybody who desires to pay his bills through the medium of checks was submitted to the Chamber early the past week by M. Millerand, Minister of Public Works. It seems likely to be popular, at least at the beginning. It is pointed out that it will place many needed millions in the control of the Government because of the well-known frugality of the French people and will induce a great number of depositors to maintain balances of considerable amount in its hands, especially as it is proposed to allow them a moderate interest. On the other hand, the Government will exact from each depositor a fixed security fund of about $20, and a small tax on sums paid or transferred by order of the depositor.

Less Grain Handled.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—A tremendous falling off in the wheat receipts in Montreal is shown by the figures of the October report given out at the Lachine Canal office.

There is a difference of a million and a half bushels between the figures of October, 1908, and those of this year, and the reason is given that western farmers are holding their crops for a high market.

The big decrease does not mean that the American route is capturing the trade from Montreal, because an examination of Buffalo receipts shows the same falling off.

Aggregate receipts in Montreal, since grain moved eastwards, are very satisfactory, and the harbor commissioners believe that the full season's report will show an increase in the grain trade to Montreal.

Kitchener Says No.

London, Nov. 7.—A deadlock between the Colonial Office and War Office on the question of finances connected with Lord Kitchener's new post as commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean and Malta, has been further complicated by Lord Kitchener's flat refusal to go to Malta at all.

As president of the selection board Lord Kitchener could not possibly be of service to his country if he were kept at Malta. The selection board meets at the War Office in London, and that is where its president should be quartered.

Lembroso's Return in the Spirit.

Rome, Nov. 1.—The appearance of the ghost of the late Prof. Lembroso is being looked forward to with extraordinary interest by Italian spiritualists. Before his death, the professor announced that after his demise he would place himself in communication with the Milan Society for Psychical Research, of which he was a member. He declared that he would make use of the professional medium, Eusapia Palladino, who was formerly a nursemaid, and with whose aid he had conducted many experiments since 1895.

Brakeman Fatally Hurt.

Lindsay, Nov. 1.—"Barney" Wilson, a G.T.R. brakeman, died in Ross Hospital during the night from shock, following the amputation of his right arm and leg, which were mangled at Garden Hill Saturday afternoon. He was coupling cars when he fell and was crushed. He leaves a wife and child.

Net in Father's Camp.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—Politics, indeed, make strange bedfellows for such a mix up as is now seen here in the Montreal district has never before been equalled. Tancred Marcil, M.P.P., with the father of Hon. Jean Provost, M.P.P., for Terrebonne, constituted the two most pronounced Liberals ever known in this province. To-day their sons, whose liberalism cannot be questioned, are fighting the Quebec Government with all the energy at their command, and both are following the lead of Henri Bourassa, whose grandfather was Louis Joseph Papineau.

Reunion of Gompers Family.

New York, Nov. 1.—Two hundred members of the Gompers' family held a reunion in New York Saturday night, to do honor to Solomon Gompers, head of the family in America, and father of Samuel Gompers, the labor leader. The elder Gompers is nearly 80 years of age. Twelve great-grandaughters of Solomon Gompers, dressed in red, white and blue, were present. Before the reunion Samuel Gompers spoke on labor conditions before the Young Men's Hebrew Association. Incidentally he said that he was in favor of woman suffrage.

Constable Shoots Indian.

Brantford, Nov. 1.—While arresting three young Indians, who were disorderly at the pagan council house late Saturday night, near Oksweken, Dominion Constable David Carlow shot and injured Curtis Martin, an Indian, who, it is claimed, attacked him with a fence rail, endeavoring to prevent the arrest of his friends. Carlow had been called by Chief General to put a stop to the disturbance.

The constable was arrested here yesterday after he had delivered his prisoners at the local jail. He said he first shot into the ground, and when Martin approached closed, shot at his legs. One bullet took effect in the left ankle and the other in the right knee. He related the story of the shooting to the local authorities.

Carlow is a man of powerful physique, and his arrest is on the ground that the shooting was unnecessary.

Laflamme Will Run.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—Contrary to what was predicted here in political circles, N. K. Laflamme, K.C., who made a name for himself in connection with the investigation of the scandals at the City Hall, is out as the opposition candidate in St. James division, Ald. Robillard being the Government candidate.

It is the intention of the Nationalists to put up a campaign similar to the one which ended in Sir Lomar Gouin's defeat over a year since, and the triumph of Henri Bourassa, M.P.P. Mr. Laflamme is a splendid debater. Polling day is Nov. 12.

Got the Hook; Saved His Life.

New York, Nov. 1.—Checked in his fall through the air from a scaffolding, off which a fellow worker had just pitched to death on the stone abutment of the Williamsburg bridge, 150 feet bellow, James Donahue, a painter, on Saturday in the sight of thousands hung suspended from a grappling hook at the end of a long rope which had caught in his clothing as he fell.

Rescuers on the bridge structure above swung another rope to him. He grasped it and was drawn up to safety.

Russian Woman Suicided.

Hamilton, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Joseph Showvonski, a young Russian woman who lived at 197 North Caroline street, committed suicide Saturday night by drinking carbolic acid. She was found in her room by two of her young children. It is believed that she was mentally deranged. She had been known by the name of Clark.

Manuel's Trip to England.

Lisbon, Nov. 1.—King Manuel has recovered from his intestinal trouble, and will leave for England on November 7.

130,000 Send Petitions.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Peter Larmonth, corresponding secretary of the National Council of Women, and Mrs. Adam Shortt, vice-president for Ontario, laid before Hon. A. B. Aylesworth on Saturday, the appeals of the council for clemency in the case of Mrs. Robinson, of Sudbury, sentenced to death for the murder of her daughters' children.

It is estimated that over 130,000 letters and postcards have been received by the Justice Department appealing for clemency.

Lighting Pipe Causes Death.

Kingston, Nov. 1.—In a runaway accident on King street Saturday night, John McCall, coal driver, lost his life. He went to light his pipe and dropped his lines. The horse bolted and he was thrown off his cart and one wheel passed over his body, and he met almost instant death. McCall was an Englishman, 34 years of age, and served three years here in the artillery. He was unmarried.

Circus Treasurer Robbed.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 1.—Trainmen going through the circus train of Yankee Robinson's railroad show early Saturday morning found the treasurer of the circus bound and gagged in his private coach. As soon as he was released a search showed that $6,000 was missing, being the net receipts of two performances in Pine Bluff, Ark.

Suffocated by Gas Fumes.

Olean, N.Y., Nov. 1.—Yesterday morning the police broke open the door of George Russell's home and found him, his son William, and two dogs dead on the floor. Big fires were burning in the stoves. Death was due to gas fumes.

Robert Harris Is Dead.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—Robert Harris, who was so badly injured in the explosion at Parker's dye works Thursday last, died in the General Hospital at 12.45 Sunday morning.

Harris, who was the foreman at the dye works, was 55 years of age, married, and lived at 52 Hillsboro avenue. He was blown out of a window, by the force of the explosion.

Japan Withdrawing Troops.

Washington, Nov. 1.—That Japan intends to keep its pledge with China to remove its military forces from Chientao, a territory lying between Manchuria and Korea, which long has been in dispute, is indicated by the fact that by Nov. 2 next, all the Japanese troops now in that region will be entirely withdrawn.

Stops Executions.

Barcelona, Nov. 1.—Premier Monet yesterday telegraphed the authorities here to suspend the execution of all court-martial sentences until the cases could be examined by the Government.

Gen. Booth's Life Story.

London, Nov. 1.—Gen. Booth of the Salvation Army is writing his autobiography. He returned to public life last week after undergoing surgical treatment for a defect in his eyesight. During his hours of darkness he was busy dictating his life story.

G. T. R. BRAKESMAN SUCCUMBED TO INJURIES FROM ACCIDENT

Frightful Accident at Garden Hill---Burney Wilson Fell Off Drawbars Between Two Cars and Leg and Arm Were Mangled---Died From Shock.

Lindsay, Nov. 1st.—Burney Wilson, the unfortunate brakesman of the Port Hope mixed train passed away at the Ross Memorial Hospital on Saturday night at 10.30 o'clock, after suffering twelve hours from injuries received at Garden Hill in the morning. The train was switching at Garden Hill and Wilson wanted to climb to the opposite side of the track. The train was moving at the time and inclimbing over the drawbars his foot slipped and he fell across the track and under the wheels. The left arm and leg were frightfully mangled and bruised and injuries were received about the head and on the right arm. According to railway rules the train should be stopped if a brakesman wishes to climb through in this manner.

Wilson suffered great agony from the time of the accident until he was taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital at Lindsay. His left leg and arm were amputated and the shock proved too severe a tax on his vitality. Wilson was a popular man on the line and his death is deeply mourned by his former fellow workmen.

ADDRESS PRESENTED TO HIS LORDSHIP THE BISHOP OF TORONTO

People of All Saints Tendered a Reception to Bishop Sweeny on Saturday Evening---Musical Programme of Unusual Merit Was Given and the Occasion Was an Interesting One.

The congregation of All Saints' Church tendered a reception on Saturday evening to His Lordship Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto. The event proved very interesting. In addition to His Lordship Rev. Canon Greene, of Orillia, Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's, and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, were present. A short musical programme of unusual merit was followed by the reading of an address to His Lordship.

Bishop Sweeny in reply thanked the people of All Saints' and assured the congregation of his interest and his prayers in their behalf. He admonished them to bear in mind that the two marks of a strong church were love and faith. He hoped that the three Anglican congregations of the city would work in harmony and was pleased with the spirit of goodwill he found in All Saints towards the newly organized of St. Johns and St. Luke's, and its welcome to their rectors. He would be pleased if he learned that they reciprocated in the same manner towards All Saints. The Bishop asked for the prayers of the congregation for himself and the rector.

Parish Church of All Saints,
Peterborough, Ontario.
October 30th, 1909.

To the Right Reverend The Lord Bishop of Toronto:

My Lord Bishop:—

On this, your Lordship's first visit to our Parish Church of All Saints' to administer the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation, the parishioners of All Saints' wish to extend to you a hearty and loyal welcome to our midst.

May we first of all take this opportunity to offer to your Lordship the sincere congratulations of All Saints' Parish on your election to the high and honoured office of Bishop of this Diocese of Toronto. We pray God will give you every grace to meet its responsibilities and to uphold its dignity. We pray God will also make you a faithful Shepherd to the ingathering of the souls of men into the Fold of Christ, and to the upbuilding of the Church of Christ in this Diocese, that this portion of the Master's Vineyard may be prepared for the consummation of the Kingdom of God and the Master's promised return may be speedily accomplished.

We tender your Lordship the loyalty, obedience and support of this parish in all things pertaining to the welfare of the Church of England in this Diocese and throughout the world.

We trust you will take an especial and kindly interest in this the youngest parish of the City of Peterborough, and will be pleased to note its remarkable growth. Though it was constituted a self-supporting parish but seven years ago, we trust one of the earliest visits of your Lordship in the near future will be to open one of the largest and stateliest structures of the Diocese, now in course of construction to the Glory of God. We offer you will be patient and sympathetic in our efforts to bear as we have been called to do, with only the Divine Aid, the heavy burden thrust upon us for the upbuilding of the Church of England in this city.

We have noted with pride the success that has so far marked your Lordship's administration of and progress through the Diocese. We pray your devotion and zeal will meet with an adequate response from the laity and clergy throughout the Diocese, and with the seal of Divine blessing, may you long be spared to carry on the work to which you have been called.

Signed on behalf of the Parishioners of All Saints'.

W. B. TROMPOUR,
Rector.
W. G. HOWDEN,
Rector's Warden.

TWO AMERICAN COLLEGE RUGBY PLAYERS DIED FROM INJURIES

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Cadet Eugene Byrne, who was injured in the Harvard-Army game of football, died at 6.30 this morning. From the time he was taken from the field until his death the doctors kept the unfortunate cadet alive by artificial respiration. The injury has been diagnosed as a fracture of the second or third clavicle, and the respiratory nerves were completely paralysed. The cadet regained consciousness in the early hours of the morning, and asked for a drink, but soon relapsed into unconsciousness, from which he never rallied. The funeral will take place Tuesday at 10.30, and the interment will be at West Point.

The death of their fellow-student was announced to the corps of cadets at reveille, and as the cadet officer of the day, in a broken voice, read the sad tidings a quiver ran through the long line assembled in the area of the barracks, and with tears filling their eyes the stalwart young soldiers, unashamed of their great grief, silently broke ranks and returned to quarters. At the morning service in the chapel many of Byrne's comrades broke down and sobbed.

Byrne's injury was received in a play that has been worked perhaps thousands of times this year. It consisted of a mass play aimed at Byrne's position at left tackle. Byrne in trying to stop the play was forced underneath, and his head was twisted into a position where the weight of the oncoming rush snapped the vertebrae.

Another Saturay Fatality.

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—As a result of injuries received in a football game between Medico Chi and the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy at the P. R. R.-Y. M. C. A. grounds, Michael Burke died in the Presbyterian Hospital shortly before one o'clock this morning. Burke was playing tackle on the Medico Chi team, and he was thrown heavily to the ground. He was moved to the hospital where it was found that his skull was fractured.

Mr. Denison Grateful To Those Who Gave Assistance

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Through the medium of your paper I wish to tender my grateful heartfelt appreciation of the kindly assistance and sympathetic help I received at the hands of the citizens of Peterborough during the recent fire at the National Hotel. It is impossible to thank all individually so I am asking the people to accept this method of thanks for all their kindness.

I also desire to pay marked tribute to our city fire brigade who performed their duties in a masterful and efficient manner. Chief Howard never at any time lost the key to the situation and mainly through his skilful direction and generalship prevented the total destruction of the hotel.

Also permit me to convey thanks to Chief Rossel in so kindly placing his whole staff at my disposal, which contributed greatly to the reduction of my loss.

Yours, etc.,
D. B. DENISON.

GAVE AWAY HER BLOOD

Sister Allowed Her Blood to Pass Into Sister's Body in Vain Effort to Save Her Life —She Did Not Take Any Anaesthetic.

SECOND OPERATION FATAL

Kingston, Nov. 1.—In Montreal in the Royal Victoria Hospital Mrs. T. R. Carnovosky, of Kingston, gave a quart of her life blood to her sister, Mrs. Eli Williamson, of Lindsay, in the hope of prolonging her life after an operation.

She was laid on a table and had her radial artery opened and attached to a vein in her sister's right arm. For two hours less fifteen minutes she remained in that position, allowing her blood to pass to her sister. She did not take an anaesthetic.

The new blood resuscitated Mrs. Williamson to such an extent that she was able to undergo a second operation three days later, but although she came through the operation she died of shock the next day.

Even Better Than "The Bachelor"

Another of Clyde Fitch's Sparkling Comedies for Peterborough Theatre-Goers.

After 225 performances at Daly's Theatre, New York, the best comedy from the pen of Clyde Fitch, "Girls" will be presented at the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, Nov. 3, by Sam S. & Lee Shubert.

This is said to be the brightest of the fifty Clyde Fitch plays. It deals with the trials and tribulations of three girls, who have come to New York to earn their living. They swear by the most solemn oath, with crossed hat pins, never to have anything to do with the opposite sex. They live in a fourth floor studio, and are just preparing to retire for the night when a rude man, without leave or introduction, invades their apartments. After much argument he is expelled, via the window.

That the trio eventually capitulate to their avowed enemy, man, goes without saying, but the master hand of Clyde Fitch has introduced so many episodes and amusing complications that the entire play is one continual laugh.

Save some of the money that you save and put it into Irish Table Linens during the Big Sacrificing Fire Sale at Richard Hall & Son's. They all go on Sale next Wednesday morning at Fire Sale prices. 2d-101

NORMAL STUDENT'S SUDDEN DEATH

Passed Away in Nicholls Hospital on Friday Night—Home Was in Lindsay.

The citizens of Lindsay and vicinity were shocked this morning when the news spread around town of the sudden and untimely death of Annie M. A. Jackson, second daughter of Mr. Henry and Louisa Jackson, of North Ops.

The death occurred this morning in Nicholl's Hospital, Peterborough, at 4.30 o'clock, after an illness of only few days.

The deceased young lady was attending Normal School at Peterborough, and had spent Thanksgiving Day with her parents in North Ops, and was apparently in good health. The cause of her sudden death was due to heart failure.

The late Miss Jackson was in the very prime of life, 19 years of age, and was well and widely known in Lindsay and vicinity. She had been a student at the Lindsay Collegiate Institute for the past three years, and graduated last June. She was a clever and bright student with a disposition that made her popular, with all the students who will regret to hear of her untimely death.

She leaves to mourn her loss a loving father and mother, and one sister, Kate, all at home in North Ops. The remains will arrive in Lindsay to-night and the funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m. from the home of her parents, lot 28, con. 9, Ops, five miles north of Lindsay, on the Bobcaygeon road. Interment will take place at Riverside cemetery.

Mrs. Jackson, mother of the deceased, was at her daughter's bedside at the time of her death, having been sent for early on Friday morning. The loss of their daughter is a severe blow to Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, and the sympathy of the entire community is extended to them in the great loss they have sustained.—Lindsay Warder.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES ARE BEING HELD AT KNOX CHURCH

Reports of the opening of the Evangelistic Campaign will be found elsewhere in this issue. The services will be continued during this week and next and as full notice has already been made the programme is probably well known. Rev. A. Mitchell will be the speaker at the services, which will be held at Knox church. A large congregation heard Rev. J. D. Mororw last night and the campaign was instituted under most auspicious circumstances. Mr. Morrow has promised to return to Peterborough at the end of next week and hopes to find that the people of this city will have benefitted greatly from the two weks' campaign.

Evangelistic Sermons At St. Paul's Church Yesterday

Rev. R. G. Macbeth, M.A., of Paris, Was the Special Preacher at Both Services—Large Congregations Present.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M.A., of Paris, Ont., was the preacher at both services at St. Paul's church yesterday. He is one of the missioners for the simultaneous evangelistic campaign in the Presbytery of Peterborough, and is a pleasing and convincing speaker. He was heard by large congregations at St. Paul's, and his addresses made a deep impression. He bespoke the success of the campaign and urged all Christian men and women to pray for a great spiritual revival as a result of the meetings to be held.

At the evening service his text was St. John 12-32: "And I, if I be lifted up from earth, will draw all men unto me." In his introduction Mr. MacBeth dwelt upon the indestructibility of the Bible. Other books appealed to the passing fancy. They were soon laid away in the morgue of dead books and were forgotten. The Bible, however, remained throughout the ages and would last for all time. Standing in a valley of the Rocky mountains the speaker had often seen a storm passing overhead, moving towards one of the giant mountain peaks which for a time would be obliterated from view by the fast-moving clouds. In a few minutes it would be seen that the clouds had parted when they came against the mountain peak, which remained unchanged. It was just so in connection with the storms of infidelity and the clouds of controversy in connection with the Bible. The Good Book withstood them all and when they were over it remained unscathed and unchanged.

The speaker pictured the commanding qualities of the personality of Jesus Christ. Personality played a prominent part in the affairs of human life. We place our trust largely in persons. When on a ship when there is a storm at sea we depend upon the man at the wheel to bring the vessel through the danger safely. The personality of Jesus Christ was very strong and was emphasized in many portions of the Scriptures. Come unto ME and I will give you rest," the Lord had said. Jesus Christ was a real personality. It was that which made Him an outstanding figure in the history of the world.

Mr. MacBeth spoke of the power of Jesus Christ to save, to redeem, to regenerate. He was the great Physician, who was the healer of all sorrows. He was the great friend of mankind, with the power to wash away all guilt. Sin was a very real thing in the world at the present day, but with the help of God the battle for righteousness could be won.

The new Alexander revival hymns were used exclusively and were sung with heartiness by choir and congregation.

BREAD GOES DOWN

The Three Pound Standard Loaf Selling for 10 Cts, and the Pound-and-a-Half Loaf for Five Cents.

One of the firms of bread-makers of this city, Messrs. Lush & Sons, Dublin street, make the gratifying announcement to-day of a reduction in the price of bread. While almost every other of the staple articles of food is moving upwards, this news of bread going downwards will be welcomed by all housekeepers, especially those who have to scrutinize every cent carefully. Messrs. Lush & Sons are now selling the standard three-pound loaf for ten cents, and the half loaf for five cents. Bread has been selling in the city for eleven cents for a lighter weight than the standard loaf, and six cents for the half loaf. The three-pound loaf at ten cents, will, therefore, make a considerable saving to those who use large quantities of "the staff of life," and five cents for the pound-and-a-half loaf, a still greater saving.

POST CARD COLUMN

Sir,—Describing the tour of the Ontario M.P.'s through the north of the Province the Globe says:

Elk Lake is a community of athletes. Big Jack Munroe, the Mayor, is the man who once put one James Jeffries champion pugilist to sleep in four rounds. Mayor J. M. Laing, of Gowganda is a cricketer, whose bowling used once to work havoc on batting averages at Rosedale. City Solicitor W. J. Hanley was a one time hero of the lacrosse nets in Toronto During the afternoon the visitors witnessed the Elk Lake regatta, and the possibilities for aquatic prowess prompted the suggestion of Hon. Col. Hendrie that the legislators should donate a trophy for sculling competition.

On Saturday in your remarks "Meaning of the word "'amateur"' you make the frequent mistake. Over in England they have been calling 'Simon pure' amateur the man who played for pure love of the sport and who did not work for a living. If takin gthe Henley regatta rules is of any importance outside of a purely local social gathering, quite unrepresentative, I might as well speak of the quarrel over the north pole as typical of Canadian sport.

Webster's Dictionary:

Amateur, a lover of any art or science, though not a professor of it.

SUDDEN DEATH YESTERDAY

The death occurred at her home, 578 Division St., of Elizabeth Mary, beloved wife of W. A. Fife, after a short illness. Her death has cast a gloom over the community. She leaves to mourn her death a loving husband and three daughters her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fife, Smith township and four sisters and one brother, Mrs. P. Nicholls, Bridgenorth, L. G. Hamilton, Doud; Miss Myrtle and Izabella at home, and Victor A. Pasqua, Sask. She was 39 years of age and one who was loved by all who knew her.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday, at 2 o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery.

YORK LOAN SHAREHOLDERS GET 25 PER CENT. DIVIDEND TO-DAY

Checks Amounting to Six Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars Will be Mailed To-day — "Every Little Bit Helps."

CHEQUES NUMBER 98,000

Toronto, Nov 1st. — York Loan shareholders will to-day receive a twenty-five per cent. dividend on their investment. The liquidator, the National Trust Company, has issued about 98,000 cheques, dated November 1st, and aggregating about $650,000, which will be mailed at the Toronto General Postoffice to-day to claimants residing in all parts of the Dominion and in the United States, British Isles, France, South Africa, Australia, Sweden, China and Japan.

Covering ordinary claims the following percentages have been deducted from the total amount entered on the pass book in classes A. B, B2, D, E, H, and juvenile shares from the face value of the certificate in classes C and C2, and from the amount paid up on permanent capital stock and the shareholder placed on the list of ordinary claimants to rank for dividend on the balance:—Classes A, B, E, and H, 20 per cent.; Class B2 shares, 10 and 20 per cent.; Class D and Juvenile Shares, 5 per cent; Classes C and C2 stock, 6¼ per cent.; permanent stock fully paid, 10 per cent; permanent stock partly paid, 25 per cent. Arrears to November 27th, 1909, and share loans have been charged against the dividend.

In withdrawal claims where notice of withdrawal had expired prior to November 20th, 1909, the following percentages have been deducted from the total amount entered on the pass book in classes A, B, D, E, H and juvenile shares, and from the face value of the certificate in class C stock, and the shareholder placed on the list of claimants for the balance—Classes A, B, E, and H, 45 per cent.; Class D and juvenile shares, 30 per cent. Class C stock certificates 36 per cent. Share loans have been deducted from the cash balance due the shareholder.

STREET CAR WAS STRUCK

Collided With a Double-Header Freight Train at Charlotte Street Crossing Early This Morning —The Car Was Slightly Damaged.

NO ONE WAS HURT

The collision of a double header freight train and number fourteen street car at Charlotte St. crossing this morning resulted in the car being thrown off the track and the front vestibule being slightly damaged. The car also damaged the gates on the west side. Eight passengers on the car escaped without injury. Had the train been but six feet back, the street car would have been on the track and the engine would have struck it in the centre. Fortunately it crashed into the front of the car and the people, some of whom jumped out, received nothing more than a good shaking up and a few scratches. The motorman, Mr. Samuel Prophet, was cut about the face, but not seriously. The car was again on the track at twenty minutes to ten and was taken to the car barns under its own power.

The accident happened just at ten minutes to seven when people were hurrying to their work. Mr. Charles Noyes, the G.T.R. gateman at Charlotte St. stated to an Examiner reporter this morning that he let down the gates when he saw the train at Brock St. and the car then was opposite the Charlotte St. Methodist church. Mr. Noyes noticed that it was not coming to a full stop although the breaks were applied. The trouble was caused through the fallen leaves having been on the rails for some distance and as a result the wheels slid along the track and did not come to a full stop. It crashed into the gates and by this time the train was crossing the track. The front engine hit the car, knocking it off the track and turning it around till it faced directly south. No one was badly hurt, the motorman, Mr. Samuel Prophet, probably being the worst and he was only cut slightly about the face.

The car was in charge of motorman Joseph Thomas and Conductor Harry Smith, but Samuel Prophet, who is a spare motorman was running it at the time.

Mr. Noyes was standing alongside of the gates when it was struck. He was knocked down and is suffering from a sore back as the result.

The work of cleaning up the debris and getting the car on the track again was quickly begun and at twenty minutes to ten traffic was open. Mr. Noyes had to resort to the old custom of flagging the train until repairs were made to the gates.

YOUTH WAS FINED

For Shooting a Hen Not Belonging to Him.

A youth of ten years was fined two dollars for shooting a hen on the farm of Mr. G. Hatton, a few days ago. Three boys went out to shoot and one of them discharged the rifle on Mr. Hatton's farm. His Worship allowed two of them to go and the other one had to remain in jail until the fine was paid.

TO HAVE A BEAUTIFUL SKIN

About one sixth of all the waste matter discharged from the human body passes through the pores of the skin. If the skin is to be kept beautiful the pores must be kept in healthful condition by bathing and by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment which overcomes all chafing and irritation of the skin and cures pimples, eruptions and the many forms of eczema.

THE NEW JUDGE

Hon. R. F. Sutherland, Former Speaker of House of Commons, Sworn in This Morning.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 1—Hon. R. F. Sutherland, former speaker of house of Commons, was sworn in as judge of high court of justice o fOntario at Osgoode Hall this morning. Ceremony was performed privately in judge's room before Hon. John A. Boyd, Chancellor of Ontario and President of High Court for the Province. Mr. Justice Sutherland appeared this morning in his official capacity when divisional court opened, occupying a seat on the bench with Chief Justice Falconbridge and Mr. Justice Britton.

IS STILL AT LARGE

Cook, the Orangeville Desperado Who Slashed Constable, is Not Yet Captured.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Orangeville, Ont., Nov. 1.—Bob. Cook, the desperado, who escaped Saturday night after severely slashing Constable James Halbert with a knife is still at large and believed to be still hiding in town. Police are being criticised for their lack of energy in attempting Cook's re-capture.

GREAT PROGRAMME AT THE PRINCESS

One of the funniest comedy pictures that it has ever been the good fortune of Peterborough people to see is being shown to-day and to-morrow at the Princess, in "The Suitors' Competition," a very laughable French film story, that has a laugh every half minute. Another interesting film shows the arrival at New York of Commodore Peary on the Arctic steamer "Roosevelt," a very clear and life-like lotura. Miss Wenlock will sing the latest New York song hit "Gee, I've Got the Blues."

If Taken in Time "The D. & L." Emulsion will surely cure the most serious affections of the lungs. That "run down" condition, the after effects of a heavy cold, is quickly counteracted.

MADE A THREAT

Italian Threatened to Use the Knife

Joe Ronso appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning charged with threatening his fellow countryman, Nicola Grivoni by using the words, "I'll break your head with a knife." When the case came up this morning Chief Rossel intimated that the matter had been settled out of court. The complainant had to pay the costs, amounting to $1.60.

It apears that the trouble took place one night last week when the complainant made the above threat.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITY.

Yesterday witnessed a recrudescence of religious activity, several of the churches sharing in it. The Presbyterian churches entered upon a fortnight's campaign of special services inaugurated by special sermons by visiting ministers in three of the church pulpits of that denomination. Visiting ministers are available by division of effort. The evangelistic services are held in the northern part of the Presbytery of Peterborough first, the southern section, with Millbrook as the dividing line, to have its turn later. In St. John's Church, the day was made notable by the presence for the first time in the parish of the Lord Bishop of Toronto, to take part in the dedication festival of St. John's, which was reopened after its restoration on All Saints' Day, Nov. 1st, 1882, and the Opera House was thrown open in the afternoon to a semi-religious service and address. It seems that these special developments of religious activity are necessary, since congregations are composed of human beings, prone to lapse from the practice of high religious ideals, and in need of a little stimulating. This is no surprise, nor any reproach to the vitality of religion. We do not always keep standing at attention, and hence we drop into the habit of standing at ease—in Zion, as in other things. The world's business follows the same rule, almost strong enough to be called a law. Our merchants find the need of stimulating trade by some special effort; by means of some special sale. Rest and revival are the alternate law in the material world, the kingdom of matter. The vegetable kingdom has its periods of rest and almost death, but it also has its glorious resurrection in springtime. In the same way Christians get the habit of rest, and become spiritually dormant, and to all appearance dead. But a little unusual spiritual stimulus arouses them, and merely nominal Christians are wakened into ardent spirituality of sentiment and practice. It is not to be said that even a nominal Christian is to be excluded from the reckoning as a religious factor. The very fact that, though even formally and coldly he recognizes the claims of divine obligations is certainly something; and if an act of revival is necessary to bring him into the firing line in the front ranks, its justification is abundant.

WHY IS IT DONE?

Our citizens, our taxpayers, have perpetual reason of complaint in regard to the administration of their streets. The theory that streets are made for use and the more comfortable that use the better, is persistently ignored. The improper and perfunctory grading and surface treatment of the streets leads to undesirable enough conditions. But there is special complaint justified by the destruction of even imperfect street surfaces. Our street crossings are a necessary evil, and, necessarily, being above the ordinary street level, for a sort of obstruction and counsel slowing down by an approaching auto car or horse-drawn vehicle. But when to this bump is added an extra bump within a few feet a growl and protest are in order. On Charlotte street, just west of St. Thomas street, there is a crossing. Opposite this crossing and facing Frederick Avenue a new house is in course of building. A sewer service has been put in and from the sewer to the street line, a mound of earth, fully twelve to fifteen inches high was left. This mound is nearly parallel with the crossing, and eight or ten feet distant, so that, within a space of ten feet there are wo bumps for vehicles, one, the necessarily elevated crossing and the other, the unnecessary and villainous mound of earth left by the workmen of the Board of Works. Where the sewer trench passes through the lawn to the residence: the trench has been almost properly filled, the mound being only two or three inches above the surface. That is, to say, that where the mound from an improperly filled trench would make no difference, as far as vehicles are concerned, it is made nearly level, but in the street, where driving, the only reason for building a street, is obstructed and impeded, the mound is left high. Why is this done? Why not do our street business on business principles? The owner of the private property in question, had his trench properly filled, because he didn't want his lawn surface spoiled. He did not wish to subject himself to the inconvenience of waiting till spring, and spending money to have his lawn levelled. He, therefore, did the job in a workmanlike way, and when it was done properly it was done forever; and he did not have to contemplate an unsightly mound from his lawn from his windows. Why did not the street people do the same? With a little extra work and care the street could have been left in the condition it was in before it was broken. Then the job would have been done properly; there would have been no obstruction of travel, no shock and injury to vehicles using it. As things were done, as they were left, we shall have that double bump at the head of Frederick Avenue for years. Why are such things done? All over the city we have the same or similar conditions. The people pay their good money to have streets put into good driving condition; then the city comes along and spends the good money of the ratepayers in destroying the streets for comfortable driving purposes. Will one alderman or one member of the Board of Works have the effrontery to try to justify such work? If they can't do so then why do they do it? The people's money devoted to building streets is wasted when more of their money is spent to destroy streets built with their money. Why is it done?

BANKING FUNDS HELD ABROAD.

At the beginning of October, Canadian bank holdings of specie and legals were some $100,000 less than a month before. During September a year ago, they increased $3,500,000—marking a continuance of the gold inflow that was anautumn feature of 1908. Of late months gold imports have been comparatively unimportant. True, October has already brought three or four shipments, two of them for as much as $500,000 — and others may occur in the normal course of exchange operations. But any wholesale bringing over of actual metal is unlikely at present, owing to the ample margin already on hand over and above current demands. At the end of September vault holdings of cash and legals were $8,500,000 greater than a year ago.

One $500,000 shipment referred to resulted from an important transaction in transfer exchange by way of New York, due to flotation of Canadian securities in London. To have offered all at once on the Canadian market the large amount of exchange involved, would have meant a fall in price to below 5-64 discount on New York. And, as it happened, the funds were wanted some what promptly by the corporation interested. Accordingly it was arranged to ship actual gold, at a cost approximately of 5-64 per cent.

While such transactions are likely enough to occur from time to time any general inflow of gold is scarcely anticipated in the near future, even although Canada has now an unprecedented command over gold abroad

Gamblers Robbed by a Trick.

About twenty persons were gambling in a Budapest coffee house when the place was surrounded by eleven men, who entered the room with loaded revolvers. The leader shouted: "No one move! Hands up!" And he then informed the coffee house keeper that they were detectives and that all the money in the room would be confiscated. Two of the band then went around, took the names of the players and relieved them of the money in their pocketbooks as well as that on the table. Subsequently it turned out that the police knew nothing of the matter.—London Standard.

Plan to Divide Alaska.

Mass meetings held at Fairbanks, Juneau and other points in Alaska have passed resolutions asking congress to divide Alaska into three distinct territories, with three territorial seats of government, to be located at Juneau, Fairbanks and Nome. They contend that the extent of Alaska is so tremendous and distances so great that it would be next to impossible to maintain a government that would give satisfaction to the people, and the needs of the three sections are so different as to necessitate different legislation.—Spokane Sportsman-Review.

Our First Gold Pens.

The first gold pens made in this country were all manufactured by hand, the gold being cut from strips of the metal by scissors and every subsequent operation being performed by hand. These handmade gold pens cost from $5 to $20 and were far inferior to the machine made article of the present day.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Mary Nye of Columbus, Miss Bertha Salzberger of Bellaire and Mrs. Irvine C. Miller of Springfield, O., have been appointed deputy inspectors of workshops and factories.

Mrs. Eva Talbert of Cincinnati is said to be the only woman structural iron worker in the world. She helps her husband put up fire escapes, frequently working at dizzy heights on the tops of tall buildings.

Helen Mathers, well known as a writer in England, has decided to exchange the pen for the brush and will go into business as a decorator. This is said to be the first instance of a woman's exchanging a literary vocation for business.

Mrs. Asher Richardson of Ashertown, Tex., has been appointed assistant general superintendent of the Ashertown Gulf railroad. Thirty-two miles of the road have been completed, and it is now being extended sixty miles more. Mrs. Richardson has charge of the employment and work of a large body of men.

Miss N. Edwars of Coaley, Gloustershire, is said to be the highest authority in England on poultry. She has won over 1,000 prizes and exported poultry into every country. Beginning in a small way with only twenty fowls, her poultry farm is now one of the largest in England. She does not raise chickens for the general market, but sells eggs and stock birds.

College and School.

There are now in the schools of New York city nearly 26,000 more pupils than there were one year ago.

Fifty-nine more students were registered at Stanford university this year than last. The total number is 1,537, of whom 438 are in the freshman class.

Miss Mary Snow, an instructor in Pratt Institute, New York, has been called to Chicago to be supervisor of the household arts department in the public schools.

Miss Agnes Irwin, dean of Radcliffe college, resigned Sept. 1, and with her withdrawal one of the most prominent educators of the day ceases to take active part in school work.

Hawkshed Grammar school, near Ambleside, where Wordsworth was educated and which was founded in 1585 by Edwyne Sandys, archbishop of York, will shortly be closed.

PETERBOROUGH JUNIORS OUT OF THE RUNNING BEATEN 23 TO 11 IN RETURN GAME AT LINDSAY

Lindsay's Superior Weight Was Used to Advantage and Peterborough Were Too Light to Stop Their Line Plunging---Peterborough Fought Hard and the Play Was Even Except in the Third Quarter---Lose the Round by 28 Points to 20.

Lindsay turned the tables on the Peterborough junior O.R.F.U. team in the return game at Lindsay on Saturday, winning by 23 to 11 and as a result Peterborough have lost the round by 28 to 20 and are out of the runing for the championship.

The cause of Lindsay's victory can be summed up in three little words "Too much weight." In no other point were they the superiors of the Petes, who shaped up as a better trained, better scienced team than the winners, but who were handicapped by their lightness. Realizing their opportunity Lindsay took full advantage of their greater mass and did little else but buck all afternoon, McHugh and Murdie, their two heaviest wing men were entrusted with the task of carrying the ball, and with the assistance of their team mates they tore through Peterborough's featherweight line for big gains. The Petes fought gamely to stop these advances, throwing themselves beneath the feet of the big Lindsay men and in times they were successful in hurling back the plunge for a loss. On other occasions, however, when close to the line, and especially when playing down hill, the Lindsay attack was irresistible. All four of Lindsay's touch downs were scored in the same manner on line plunges, indicating that they were forced to depend upon their weight to carry them through.

When it came to open foot ball the Petes showed they had little to fear. Lindsay's attempts at end runs were for the most part nipped in the bud, while the Petes, on the other hand, gained frequently on runs by the halves. In kicking, following up tackling Peterborough were equal if not superior to Lindsay, and when the difference in weight is considered the hard game they gave the ultimate winners is remarkable.

The field was another great advantage in Lindsay's favour.

The game was played at the Agricultural grounds, where it is impossible to get a section of level ground large enough for a rugby field. The result was that the gridiron had to be marked out on the side of a hill, the position from the centre to the west goal being on a very pronounced slide. This sloping ground aided Lindsay's line plunging, while at the same time it made things very awkward for Peterborough's back division, who found it almost impossible to figure out just where a bounding ball was going to go. Lindsay won the game in the third quarter. They started off in the first quarter by scoring a try within two minutes of play, a feat that failed to scare the Petes, who gamely forced the play away from their own line and up the field until they were in scoring distance and then followed up a kick to the dead line by a drop goal from the field and the score was tied. Lindsay came back with a single and then in the second quarter scored a try which Green converted. Still undaunted, Peterborough went back at them hard and Geale got over for a try, leaving Peterborough two up on the round at half time. Lindsay's line bucking proved too much in the third quarter and gained them ten points, while Peterborough was unable to score, while in the last quarter each team scored a single.

Peterborough were at a disadvantage in that "Tick" Thornton, the heaviest man on the team, who would have been invaluable in stopping bucks, was unable to go and the services of Wood were unavailable. As Dennison was out of the game through injuries this made three vacancies on the line to fill. Every man on the line-up played splendid rugby, the individual honours perhaps going to Fortye and Geale, both of whom put up star games. The full back scored six of Peterborough's points on splendid kicking, dropping a goal from the field from Lindsay's thirty yard line and just missing another by inches. Geale put up a grand game at quarter, bucking and passing nicely, while his run for a try in the second quarter was one of the features. Richardson was handicapped early in the game by a severe injury to his shoulder, sustained in a mass play, but he finished out the game and did good work. The wings followed up fast and tackled well, and Lindsay had nothing on them in that respect.

For Lindsay the bucking of McHugh and Murdie, the tackling and following up of McGregor and Hall, the two outside wings, and the all round good playing behind the line of Byron Greene, were the features.

McDonald, Toronto Varsity outside wing, refereed the game and Dr. MacPherson was umpire. Both officials gave every satisfaction. Their duties were light as the teams played legitimate and clean rugby for the most part. The teams were as follows:—

Lindsay (23) — Back, Bigelow; halves, Green, Sylvester and Beecroft; quarter, Coulter; scrimmage, Mitchell, Simpson, Nesbitt; inside wings, Murdie and Carew; middle wings, Mackenzie and McHugh; outside wings, McGregor and Hall.

Peterborough (11)—Back, Fortye; halves, Burritt, Richardson and Gibson; quarter, Geale; scrimmage, Minorgan, Giroux, Dawe; inside wings, O'Brien Turner; middle wings, H. Quinlan, Mills; outside wings, Stannton, Conroy.

Lindsay won the toss and as they elected to kick with the wind and down hill in the first quarter Peterborough were placed at a disadvantage right at the beginning. O'Brien kicked off for Peterborough and Green catching the ball at his thirty-five yard line returned promptly and the pigskin bounded down the slope in an awkward manner that puzzled the Peterborough backs, but Gibson finally recovered on Peterborough's twenty-five yard line. Lindsay stole the ball on the second down and then the ferocious bombardment of Peterborough's line commenced. McHugh was given the ball for a buck and with the assistance of the back division was pushed through for a clear ten yards gain. Another play of the same kind sent the big wing man within five yards of the line and on the third down he was pushed over for a try, putting Lindsay one ahead on the round within two minutes of the commencement of the game. The attempt to convert had to be made at a difficult angle and Green was not equal to the task.

The start was enough to frighten a team of veterans let alone a bunch of youngsters, but the Petes were not in the least dismayed and fought right back at the enemy. O'Brien's kick off was fumbled and Peterborough assumed the aggressive in spite of the fact that they were working up grade and against the wind. Fast runs and bucks made short gains and then Burritt got around Lindsay's left end for a pretty run of twenty yards. He skirted the wing line cleverly and for a moment it looked as if he was clean away, but McHugh grassed him two yards out. Peterborough tried twice to buck but the Lindsay line held like a stone wall and both attempts were nailed On the third down Fortye hoisted one to the dead line and the score was Lindsay 2, Peterborough 1. Encouraged by the score Peterbrough fought all the harder. Lindsay were off-side in the kick off from quarter way and Peterborough were given possession of the oval on Lindsay's twenty-five yard line. On the first down Fortye standing on the thirty yard line dropped a beautiful goal from the field, tying the score. Peterborough's line gave him great protection on the play and not a Lindsay man got through until the ball was speeding like an arrow squarely between the up rights.

Lindsay's kick off from centre carried the play into Peterborough territory again. Just before quarter time was called Green kicked a low twisting punt that bounded over Peterborough's line with the Lindsay wings in full pursuit. Gibson, however, saved a possible try by booting the oval to the dead line, giving Lindsay a single First quarter score—Lindsay 6, Peterborough 5.

Peterborough had the advantage of kicking down hill in the second quarter, but it did not favour them as much as was expected Green ran back their punts well while Lindsay's bucking kept the play pretty even. Peterborough fought hard but short runs by Green, coupled with line plunges by McHugh and Murdie, carried the conflict into Peterborough territory. With the ball on Peterborough a five yard line Burritt was caught off-side and Lindsay thus gained ten yards. Two line plunges by McHugh carried the ball to within a yard of Peterborough's line and on the third down he went over for a try, which Green converted neatly. Score—Lindsay 12, Peterborough 5.

From the kick-off Peterborough carried the play into Lindsay's half of the field and they fought hard to pull down the lead. Finally getting possession of Lindsay's twenty-five yard line the signal was given for an attempt at a field goal by Fortye. Seeing the full back drop for the kick the Lindsay team realized what was going to be pulled off, but what happened next surprised them some. The ball did not come out of the scrimmage cleanly and Geale seeing that there would be no time for a pass back to Fortye plunged through a convenient hole in the line and before the Lindsay team had time to figure out what was going on he was sprinting for their line with but two men between him and the coveted goal. The quarter back shot past Bigelow like a flash, slipped through Green's arms and was behind the goal posts before half the Lindsay team realized what had happened. Richardson failed to convert and the half time score was Lindsay 12 Peterborough 10.

Peterborough's undoing came in the third period when once more they were called upon to attempt to solve the problem of how a light team was going to stop much heavier players on a slope that angled twenty-two and one-half degrees. Lindsay realizing that their much heavier weight was of immense value to them wisely adopted line plunging tactics, only kicking when it was necessary and succeeded in keping the play in Peterborough territory for the entire quarter. The Petes fought desperately, but could not work the ball away from their end of the field. For some time the play waged around midfield. Then Fortye was nailed at Peterborough's twenty-five yard line on a long punt by Green. Peterborough tried two unsuccessful end runs and then an onside kick was attempted. The halves however, did not get out far enough for the play and Richardson's kick went over Gibson's head and bounded outside at Peterborough's twenty-five. From that point Lindsay began their line hammering again and bucks by McHugh and Murdie made steady advances. Green assisted greatly once by picking up the oval when McHugh fumbled and plunged through for a seven yard gain. Lindsay were not to be denied and McHugh was shoved over for another try which Green failed to convert and the score was Lindsay 17 Peterborough 10. The play came back to Peterborough territory after the kick off and once more the youngsters were placed on the defensive with Lindsay adhering to their line plunges. Peterborough would buck or try end runs twice and then be forced to kick and as the Lindsay backs inevitably returned the ball was generally inside Peterborough's half. Finally on a series of bucks McHugh got over for another try which Gren did not convert. Score—Lindsay 22, Peterborough 10.

Green's kick off for Lindsay in the last quarter rolled over Peterborough's line and Fortye was forced to convert. From that period, however, until the end of the game, the play was all in Lindsay's territory, but try as they might Peterborough could not overcome the lead. They had Lindsay on the defensive all the way and several times looked certain to score but with the exception of a long kick by Fortye to the dead line they could not tally. Fortye tried to drop from quarter way which missed by inches, the ball passing under the cross bar and on another occasion his kick was blocked. Lindsay by their successful bucking managed to keep in possession of the ball for a great part of the time and only kicked when it was absolutely necessary. Their tactics were successful in keeping Peterborough from scoring and half time was called with the ball at Lindsay's twenty yard line, the score read Lindsay 23, Peterborough 11, and Peterborough's dream of a possible junior championship had vanished in thin air.

P. C. I. SECONDS WERE NOT IN SAME CLASS WITH T. C. S. TEAM

T. C. S. second team of Port Hope proved far too heavy and a little too fast for the P. C. I. seconds when they clashed in a friendly game on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park. The visitors had a formidable wing division and a fast half line and although the youngsters from the local hall of learning put up a game fight all the way they were unable to score on the lakeside boys, who notched 22 points during the four quarters. P. C. I. had the ball frequently behind T.C.S. 25 yard line but were unable to notch a point. When things looked dangerous the visitors let out a little and worked the ball down the field or booted it out of the danger zone. They faced each other as follows:—

P.C.I.—Perks, full back; Rankin Stevenson and K. Corkery, halves; Hugh Wallace, quarter; Ayres, Lang and Lewis, scrimmage; Harper and Lewis scrimmage; Harper and Rogers inside wings; Kelly and Hogan middle; Eastwood and McCabe, outside.

T. C. S.—Fiskin, bull back; Hanbury, Hinkley and Greey, halves; J. Coldwell (capt), quarter; McKendrick, Fitzgerald and Newburn scrimmage; Fisher and Bethune inside wings; Ings and G. Lumsden, middle; Greer and Dawson outside. Allan Campbell, referee, Harry Hall, umpire.

T. C. S. secured a try in the first quarter, a kick to the dead line, a touge, a goal from drop kick and a try, which was converted in the second, making the half time score 17-0. They went over for another try in the third, which finished the scoring. In the last quarter the P. C. I. had the most of the play. They got their yards frequently by bucks, Kelly and Hogan doing the brunt of the work, the former excelling. He played a fine game all the way, running for good gains and tackling well. Parks, at full, made a pretty tackle in the third quarter when Dawson got away from the field for what looked like another touch. Perks was the only man to pass and the youngster nailed his man hard and clean. Eastwood, at outside, tackled superbly and never let up. The halves played well, Stevenson doing the kicking. Rankin carried the ball for gains and tackled cleverly. T.C.S. kicks were long and the wings followed up fast. Coldwell, at quarter, played a heady game, passing cleanly and tearing off a number of long runs. The wings gave the backs every support and in fact the whole team had a decided advantage in weight.

T.A.A.C. BEAT PARKDALE TEAM IN HARD GAME ON SATURDAY

Toronto, Nov. 1.—That the best laid plans of mice and men frequently go to the bow-wows was demonstrated by the victory of T.A.A.C. over the doughty Parkdale fourteen in the senior O.R.F.U. game at Diamond Park Saturday afternoon. Ten to six was the final score, with the crimson in front from the start, but the Paddlers were only beaten after one of the hardest struggles in football history.

It was a huge surprise party. T.A.A.C. had a world of speed, and for three quarters of the contest fairly played the Paddlers off their feet, and but for the short distance between the goal line and dead line would have piled up a big score on their fast following up of McCrimmon's mammoth kicks. As it was, two tries, which were disallowed were secured in the first quarter, which ended 6 to 0 in the athletic club's favour. All the points were secured in singles, as were the three in the second period, the score at half time standing 7 to 0. In this half the play was practically altogether in Parkdale territory, the Canoeists only once having the pigskin in their possession past midfield. In the second half, although outplayed till the final quarter, on Holden's failure to give Cromar yards, and a muff by Meredith on T.A.A.C.'s twenty, Parkdale were enabled to almost tie up the count. When Meredith foozled, Addison gathered in the ball and ambled over the line and behind the posts. The try was not converted, but with the previous kick to the deadline by McKellar it brought the Paddlers' total to within one of their opponents' right off the reel. The Crimson then braced up, and long boots by McCrimmon and Meredith transferred the play to the other end of the field. Three more points were added on punts over, incidentally the last scoring of the third quarter and the game. In the final ten minutes of the fourth period the Crimson were all in. Parkdale pressed hard, and only the great catching of the T.A.A.C. halves saved the day for them. At full time the leather was in T.A.A.C.'s possession, but only five yards from their own line.

Though the Parkdale line proved several shades stronger than the Crimson, both in offensive and defensive work, the back division was far superior to that of the Athletic Club. The latter were also shy in condition, and team play, and had to be a better individual aggregation to win. They had a couple of weak places on the line, and through these the Paddlers frequently worked their tandem and triple bucks for substantial gains. Parkdale's line, on the other hand, was almost impregnable. The Paddlers' criss-crosses and end plays however, were rarely successful owing to the grand work of the Crimsons' outside wings, Burkart and McGilfin, whose tackling was, with the kicking and catching of the T.A.A.C. backs and Cromar's runs, the spectacular feature of the afternoon.

There will be a full practice of the Peterborough Rugby club this evening at 7.30 o'clock at Riverside Park in preparation for Saturday's game, with the Toronto Amateur Athletic Club, upon which depends the locals' chances whether they will have an opportunity for the championship or whether they will go down and out. Peterborough's team will be greatly strengthened for Saturday's game, which is to be played here, and the locals are confident of beating the visitors why, by beating Parkdale, on Saturday, gave the locals a chance for the championship. Every senior player is expected to be out to-night in uniform.

Stirring Sermon By Rev. J. D. Morrow Opened Campaign

Impressed Upon the Layman His Duties—Asked Christians to be Consistent and Pointed Out Their Great Duty—Lend Helping Hand to Those Who are Down.

APPEALED TO MEN

If any one of the large congregation that was present at Knox church last night had not previously realized what was the secret joy of the church, who did not comprehend what gives the church a real vitality, they were brought to a keen appreciation of it after Rev. J. D. Morrow had finished his sermon. It is not the grand choir, he said, nor the eloquence of the minister in his sermons, not the beautiful edifice nor the social standing of the members of the congregation, nor the church's wealth. It was none of these. They are for the most part material. The secret of a congregation's happiness is the saving of souls, the bringing in of the sinner, the man or woman who had erred. "I don't want a grand church," he said, "nor a salary of $50,000, but give me a congregation that is living for the souls of men, and I will be as happy as a king."

Rev. J. D. Morrow, of Dale Presbyterian church, instituted the Evangelistic campaign at Knox church, which is to continue during the next two weeks, and it is safe to say that a more stirring appeal has not been made since Knox church was opened. His words were straight from the shoulder, and it was to the individual member he spoke. "Are there not too many unsaved men and women in Peterborough for the number of churches it boasts?" Somebody has passed by the drunkard, the gambler, the young woman who is not living a proper life. Men are shirking their duty." We sing and pray, we worship regularly, but we have not come to the vital point. We are not holding out the helpful hand."

The main point of Rev. Mr. Morrow's sermon was emphasizing the duty of the individual Christian. He asked for consistency. It was the sinner the churches wanted. Win them over for God. Give them a helping hand, remain with them; strive to bring them back for Christ's sake, not for some particular church. He told the story of an old man who had been picked up and brought back to the church. He recalled the look on his face as he sat at the communion table. And beside him sat a man of wealth who turned and looked at him and then got up and left the church. "But he will not sit at the communion table up there," the speaker impressively remarked, as he raised his hand, pointing to the above. "No wonder God cannot work in some churches." "The best friend to the man that is down in the world is the truly sincere Christian," was one of the points which the speaker emphasized and dwelt upon. Jesus can save any man from the worst crimes. Mr. Morrow said that he related a story of how a doctor who had become addicted to morphine tnd cocaine, thereby wrecking his body, had been saved after a hard struggle and had become an earnest Christian. It is not enough to sit in the churches, he said. Get into the heart of the work. Don't play with religion.

Mr. Morrow's words were pointed to the layman. The success of the church depended upon them. The earnest Christian strives to help his fellow man, to cheer him if he is down, and to help him back to God and happiness. In strong words he spoke against the inconsistency of some people; people who make the way of the repentent sinner hard to bear by going to him and assisting him when the struggle is almost won. Rev. Mr. Morrow had no sympathy for those who would on account of his past, blackball a man that had been down and was trying to regain what he had lost without themselves having endeavoured to bring out of the man the best that was in him.

The church required the work of the laymen; a great field was open to them, and earnest Christians should realize their duty to those who are unfortunately lvin lives of sin. The impression Mr. Morrow made was manifested by the large number who resolved to give themselves hereafter to God.

SOME OF THE DUCKS HAVE ARRIVED

Two Hundred in a Flock Lured by Decoys.

Mr. W. L. Allen and Mr. Ted MacNachtan returned from Rack Island, Rice Lake, Saturday, where they bagged some ducks, among which were bluebills, black whistlers and Red Heads. They experienced weather so rough, that they were unable to take in their decoys Saturday night and the next morning their eyes were dazzled and pulses quickened by the sight of a flock of over 200 bluebills swimming around their decoys on the south point.—Cobourg World.

STOMACH DISTRESS SIMPLY VANISHES

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn, or Indigestion Five Minutes Later.

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now your stomach distress or Indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you eat seems to fill you or lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fulness, or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Deblilitating Headaches, Dizziness, or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drugstore waiting you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.

MR. D. McDONELL HOME FROM WEST

Had Month's Trip Through Canada and Western States.

Mr. Dan McDonell, Road Master on the C. P. R., has returned from a month's trip through the Western States and Canada. He went as far west as Calgary, afterwards going south into Minnesota. He visited four of his brothers, who are located at various points, and had a thoroughly enjoyable time. A feature of his trip was a duck hunt in one of the western provinces. The wild game are very plentiful and Mr. McDonnell had a day's rare sport shooting "at" the birds. Prosperity and building activity are noticeable throughout the western provinces, and the people generally are wearing an air of contentedness resulting from a good season.

LARGE NUMBER OF YOUNG PEOPLE CONFIRMED AT ALL SAINTS

Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., Bishop of Toronto, Administered Holy Rite Yesterday Morning—His Address to the Candidates.

RECEIVED COMMUNION

The impressive right of confirmation was administered to a number of young men and women at All Saints church yesterday morning by the Lord Bishop of Toronto, Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D. The edifice was filled with a large congregation and the service was a bright and inspiring one His Lordship in addressing the candidates, impressed upon them the important step in their religious lives that they were taking. They were ratifying and rededicating themselves to God and he urged them to stand steadfast in the Lord, in loyal and loving obedience to Him.

The candidates occupied the front pews. The rector, Rev. H. R. Trampour said morning prayer and read the preface to the confirmation service, after which the Bishop addressed those to be confirmed.

Address to Candidates.

His Lordship based his remarks on part of the epistle for the day, found in the sixth chapter of Ephesians, "Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day." In his introductory remarks, he pointed out that many of Christ's parables were from things he observed while here on earth. He had, from his surroundings, left the world many beautiful parables. St. Paul, too, was a keen and close observer and when a prisoner at Rome as he looked upon the Roman soldier, his guard, he thought of what a fine simile it was for what the Christian soldier ought to be. St. Paul divided the Christian soldier's armour into two classes, the defensive and the offensive. There was only one piece of it for the offensive, all the rest being for the defensive, namely, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of Peace, and above all the shield of faith.

There would be times in young people's lives, His Lordship continued, when the shafts and assaults of the devil would assail them, but in the strength of Jesus Christ they could win. In their confirmation they were giving themselves anew to Christ, to be His own, to fight for him to stand immovable. Their attitude, he said, must be both mental and spiritual. By mental he meant they must be alert and watchful. Their life must be one of prayer. When in doubt and despair, supplication to God and faith in Him would bring them joy and peace. Another mark of the true Christian soldier was his loyalty and loving obedience to Christ. He urged them to wear the Christian armour, in business, in society and all walks of life. After their confirmation they would receive the highest privilege of the Christian church, the mysteries of Christ's death and passion. He most earnestly wanted them to come to the Holy Communion and hoped that they would so live that they would finally receive the crown of life.

Then followed the ceremony of confirmation the Bishop laying his hands on the heads of the candidates and repeating a prayer as they knelt before him. After the service they partook of their first communion.

During the offertory Mr. Arnold Lee sang a solo in excellent voice.

Kidney Troubles Attack Peterborough Men and Women, Old and Young.

Kidney ills seize young and old. Come quickly with little warning. Children suffer in their early years.

Cure all forms of kidney suffering. Peterborough testimony proves it.

Mrs. A. Graham, of 547 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "My back was so weak and tender that I could not turn in bed. A heavy, dull pain had settled across the small of it, and caused me almost constant suffering. I became weak and languid. I was run down generally and had little ambition to move around. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes, and I would be unable to see. I had tried numerous remedies without getting results. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy, which I tried, and soon found relief. The kidneys were quickly regulated and each and every symptom of kidney trouble was quickly cured. I am glad to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills, as I believe them to be the best and most reliable of all kidney remedies.

ST. JOHN'S DEDICATION FESTIVAL DULY CELEBRATED YESTERDAY

The Bishop of Toronto Was the Preacher---Large Congregations at the Several Services of the Day---Salient Points of the Bishop's Sermon.

Yesterday was Dedication Festival at St. John's, the 27th anniversary of the reopening of the restored church, on all Saints Day, 1882. It was an anniversary both of the occasion and of the weather, which was almost as genial yesterday as it was on Nov. 1st, 1882, and there were large congregations at both Holy Communion services — at 8 and 12 o'clock, respectively.

In the evening the church was crowded with a very large congregation, necessitating the provision of supernumerary seats.

The service of Evensong was conducted by the Rector and Rev. E. Soward, the congregation heartily responsive.

The sermon was preached by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, Rt. Rev. F. J. Sweeny, D.D. He prefaced his address with an expression of his extreme pleasure and satisfaction in being with the congregation of St. John's on the 27th anniversary of their Dedication Festival. He noted with joy the evidences of the hand of God in blessing the work of both priest and people, both of whom he urged to increased effort and energy during the coming year.

Bishop Sweeny has a commanding personal presence, and is an effective and eloquent speaker. He took for his text the 8th verse of Psalm XXVI—"Lord, I have loved the habitations of thy house and the place where thine honour dwelleth.' The Psalter was described as the treasury of David, wherein every phase and mood of religious life, from exultation to humiliation found expression, as it was the treasure of every saint of God. The Psalms were written for the service of the Temple, which David wished to make orderly and seemly and great, an evidence of his interest in providing a suitable temple for Jehovah, for which he made elaborate preparation leaving the actual work to Solomon. David was an example to all Christians, in providing a temple worthy of God. Men of the church in later ages caught the spirit of David and hence we saw the magnificent cathedrals erected in Great Britain and Europe. Later, on this continent, Christian men caught the same spirit, and all over the land are reared splendid edifices dedicated to the worship of God. The same spirit had descended upon their forefathers.

The festival of All Saints had a suggestive character in recalling the relations of the present congregation with the saints, now in the paradise of God, who had worshipped and worked in St. John's—"Voices from the spirit would speak to us to-night—voices of those who laid the foundation and built broadly and strong; who came in and out and were part and parcel of the life of your city. These forms and faces, recalled to-day, bring to you a message. They say to men and women in the flesh, 'we leave to you the inheritance of the work we began.'" If they caught the spirit of the saints now at rest they would have a deeper, warmer love for the church and the spread of the Gospel by missions and otherwise and the hastening of the final triumph. The preacher closed an eloquent discourse by pointing out the joy of such a service as he exhorted them to render—a joy deep and lasting, that the world could not give, nor take away—the joy of service. They should strengthen, support, and stand by their rector, and such service effectively rendered would bring them the beginning of everlasting joy in the great day of accounting.

Of the music used in the Dedication services it may be very easily said that in the office any one could take part. Elaborte music, as such, was not in evidence, but effective, simple music ran all through the services. Woodward's setting of the Communion office, any village choir can sing, but the same cannot be said o fthe standard anthem "God shall wipe away all tears," rendered by the choir during the offertory. The same may be said of the service at 7 p.m. All the office was in chant form, and the hymns sung with great heartiness by the choir and congregation. But, during the offertory, Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" was splendidly sung by a choir numbering fifty voices ,accompanied by the organ and orchestra, the congregation remaining standing. The attack was good, a special feature being the clear bright tone of the boy soprano. In the Vestry Bishop Sweeny heartily thanked the choir for their splendid singing, and said that he heartily enjoyed every note. As the outgoing voluntary the organist played Rubenstein's "Melody in F," with Mr. George Howarth and Mr. Frank Halpany (violins) and Mr. Walter Hughes (cornet). The organist and choirmaster, Mr. R. J. Devey, has good reason to be proud of the splendid body of singers in St. John's choir.

WEDDING BELLS

McCOLL—THOMPSON.

Belesford, Oct. 28.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Thompson, "River View," South Monaghan, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 27th, when their eldest daughter, Nellie Valentine, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. David C. McColl, of Westwood.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Weatherill, of Fraserville, in the presence of about thirty of the young friends of the contracting parties. The bride looked charming in a gown of white silk striped voile, with torchon lace and insertion. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Elisa Thompson, who was dresed in cream voile trimmed with lace and insertion, while Mr. John W. McColl, nephew of the groom, also of Westwood, acted as best man. Mrs. McColl received some very handsome presents, among which was a beautiful gold watch and fob from the groom.

The bride's travelling suit was of navy blue ladies' cloth, with silk velvet hat to match.

After a sumptuous wedding feast was partaken of the rest of the evening was spent in games and music, until about 8.30 o'clock, when Mr. and Mrs. McColl left for their future home in Westwood, amid the cheers and best wishes of their many friends.

THE MERRY WIDOW AND THE DEVIL

Joe Weber's Famous Travesty Company Will Appear at the Grand on Friday Evening of This Week.

That famous organisation, the Joe Weber Travesty Company, direct from Mr. Weber's celebrated theatre on Broadway, New York City, will appear in Peterborough on Friday evening, Nov. 5th. The original cast will be presented and a company of sixty, including the great beauty chorus.

This year the Weber offering is "The Merry Widow and the Devil," a double travesty on two of the greatest successes of recent years in New York, "The Merry Widow," by Frans Lehar and "The Devil," by Ferenc Molnar. Both were produced by Henry W. Savage, and the Joe Weber Travesty Company is the only theatrical organization which has the authority from Mr. Savage to use the titles. All of the beautiful music of the world-famed Viennese operetta is preserved in the travesty and a deal of humour is supplied by George V. Hobert, the popular humorist, who wrote the book.

Mr. Weber's dual presentation was produced under the direction of Julian Mitchell, the foremost man in his line on this side of the Atlantic. Sam Collins, the well-known comedian, plays the droll part of Heinrich Disch, valet to Prince Dandilo, and Nina Collins is Fonia, "who wants to be a merry widow." Oscar Ragland is the unfortunate husband of the lady, the Baron Kaufman and Charles Stine is "the Devil," who calls himself De Jollidog, a wine agent. This part was created by the late Peter F. Dailey.

The scenic equipment is magnificent and the costumes are from the latest Parisian modes. A fortune has been spent on the gowns and hats, to say nothing of the lingerie.

Prepare for the Cold Weather by stocking up while Richard Hall & Son's Fire Sale is on. Bargains beckon you in Blankets, Bed Spreads, Comforters, Ladies' Coats, Suits, Underwear, Hosiery, Flannels, and all allied Goods. 2d-101

The Master Should Be Our Model In Daily Walks Of Life

Eloquent address by Rev. R. G. MacBeth at Mass Meeting at Grand Opera House Sunday Afternoon—Rev. J. D. Morrow Said Athlete Can be a Decent Man.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE

In spite of the beautiful weather and the beautiful autumn day outside, there was a very large attendance at the mass meeting at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon. A decided impetus was given to the missionary campaign which was instituted by the Presbyterian churches of the city yesterday by the interesting logical and convincing addresses given by Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M.A., of Paris, and Rev. J. D. Morrow, "the athlete pastor," of the Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto.

Rev. Mr .MacBeth spoke on "The Manliness of Jesus Christ." His discourse was marked by a powerful eloquence and at the same time was clear and carried conviction with it. It was listened to with great attention by the audience which was apparently greatly impressed by the interesting delivery of a message of vital importance.

Mr. Morrow stuck the keynote of the opinion of the vast majority of broad-minded Christians when he upheld the great value of clean and manly athletics and denounced in a vigorous manner the untimely attack of a recent speaker in addressing a Sunday School Convention. That speaker said "an athlete canot be a decent man," and from this statement and the tenor of his other remarks regarding athletics Mr. Morrow made a very positive and well-timed dissension.

Rev. J. G. Potter occupied the chair and several other local ministers were on the stage besides the choir for the occasion and the musicians, other than the pianist, which formed the orchestra that accompanied in the song praises. The different hymns were heartily taken up by the meeting.

Rev. W. C. Riddiford led in prayer and asked that the assistance of the divine grace might be given in the fight against the greatest monster of the age—the barroom. Mr. Downey sung with much acceptance, "Rock of Ages."

Rev. R. Pogue explained in a brief address that the meeting was being held in connection with the simultaneous evangelistic campaign which was opened yesterday morning in the three Presbyterian chuches in the city and among others in the district. It was the object to make the meetings as interdenominational as possible.

"THE MANLINESS OF JESUS"

The idea of Tom Hughes in his treatise on "The Manliness of Jesus." Mr. MacBeth explained he wished to make the topic of his address. Manliness included courage of all kinds.

Physical courage in a moderate sense at least. There was something higher than physical courage. It was moral courage. The bravery of facing things that could not be faced with mere physical courage was a mark of moral courage. Mr. MacBeth gave some striking examples of moral courage and dwelt on its superior quality and value.

The more we followed the life of the Master, who came to show how we should live and die, the more we were convinced that manhood like His was the kind to rule the world for the highest possible ends. The speaker believed that besides the highest moral courage Jesus possessed a physical body of great strength and beauty; that He was a manly man, capable of bearing great burdens and enduring great tests on his physical powers without faltering or giving evidence of distress.

In speaking of the immoral practices that wreck the body, Mr. MacBeth refered in strong terms of the malicious habit of smoking cigarettes and puffing away the lungs that God had given us to breath the air of life with.

The speaker had not come to speak much of the liquor traffic although he realized the great curse it was. Sir Frederick Treves, Sir Victor Horsley and nearly every other man of science labelled it a poison and it was our duty to put it away from our brother, who is too weak and childlike to act in his own interests.

Mr. MacBeth spoke of the regretful lack of chivalry among the men of to-day, of how women whose lives had been broken were thrown to one side and said more men were needed to wield the sword in life's battle for the cause of Jesus Christ.

A NARROW VIEW CRITICIZED

Rev. Mr. Morrow said the work of the campaign was one of inestimable importance. He stated he would only make a brief address.

Among other things Mr. Morrow, who is well known throughout the province as an athlete of ability and a staunch supporter of amateur sport criticised the making of such a remark as was recently given utterance to—"an athlete can't be a decent man." He didn't appreciate the reference until he knew of the remarks made by a speaker at a recent Sunday School convention.

Mr. Morrow said he was proud when the day had dawned when he put on an athlete shoe and of the work he had done on the track. Men running Marathons and leading lives of shame weren't athletes.

There was nothing like good, clean athletics for young men. Decent athletes weren't found on the street corners smoking cigarettes and staggering home drunk. They took a pride in their physical condition. The Y.M.C.A. with its gymnasium, and encouragement to athletes was doing the best work in the country for the young men and the churches were beginning to realise this and organize athletic clubs in connection with the churches to get the young men.

The call for men of clear mind and clear eye is demanded by the machinery of to-day. Take our educational and commercial world. They needed young men of pure body and minds. So did the churches and the world.

"We want the best men we can get to-day and we don't want dubs and putty heads," said Mr. Morrow with vehement emphasis.

The evangelistic campaign was to bring the men off the streets and make real men of them. Our street corners were crowded with the very best the country could give.

THE VALUE OF TIME.

Making Every Moment Count the Secret of a Successful Life.

The average woman does not appreciate the value of time.

She is rushed and heated and overworked because she does not make the spare moments count.

I have seen women sit a whole morning idle and then rush madly around all the afternoon, undoing all the good work of that rest.

When you sit down to chat with a friend, why don't you do some simple sewing, such as finishing seams, sewing on buttons or adjusting loose hooks?

You will need to do all these things later on, and probably they will come up at the very time when you have an engagement to keep. If you are late for that engagement it puts you back for the entire day.

Before you go to bed at night lay out your clothes for the next morning. See that you have clean shields in your waist, a fresh tie and collar and that your shoes are polished.

And don't throw your things around. You take more time hunting for them than you would take in putting them where they belong.

Don't waste your days with people that do you no good. Associate with those who stimulate you mentally or aid you to rise in the world. It isn't necessary to be a snob or a climber to do this. The idea is not to make companions of those inferior to you. That is a sheer waste of time that had better be spent at home resting.

When you work don't allow people to walk in on you and make you lose precious minutes. If you must meet them do so at certain hours. Keep the rest of the day to yourself in order that you may concentrate fully and in that way finish your work quicker with less labor on your part.

Learn to make time work for you and you will always accomplish everything you have to do.

The women who are the most rushed and flustered are not the hardest worked. They are the ones who waste the most minutes.

WHY THEY PREFER ENGLAND.

American Women Who Find Society There More Agreeable.

The London Daily Mail has been interviewing some American women-social leaders in New York—as to whether they prefer to live in England and if so why so. All agree that English society is far more agreeable.

"American society," said one, who stipulated that her name be withheld, "is a very badly ordered system. Indeed, it has ended in being no system at all. Every one is it is trying to get ahead of every one else. In England, on the other hand, social order is not questioned. This gives those living there a most restful feeling."

Still, this lover of English society sees "a certain restlessness" creeping into it, "due," she explains, "not to the influx of American millionaires, but to English parvenus of enormous wealth."

Another woman says that England is the best place for a mother with daughters to launch. "Presentation at court is such an excellent sendoff," she says. The English, too, are better mannered than Americans, and especially she likes their deference to older women.

Another reason for the liking wealthy Americans have for England is that most of them are brought up by English governesses, says the woman quoted. "English governesses are the best in the world and are to be found in all parts of the world," she said. "They are the greatest propagandists of English civilization."

Good Form at Summer Hotel.

Women who go year after year to the same hotel in summer grow to feel a proprietorship, such as they would at home, and can add to the pleasure of others who go for the first time. It is the simplest matter and perfectly good form for one woman to speak to another on a big piazza if they have been meeting face to face for several days. In that case they already know each other by sight, and it remains only to give their names, an act the woman speaking first should do immediately and in which the stranger should follow suit.

It is always good form for one woman to speak to another in the house of a friend, even though they may never have seen each other before and have not been introduced. In garden parties or big receptions it is kind for one who has many acquaintances present to notice for a moment the one who is obviously a stranger. There is no need of presenting the outsider, for she too has the same privilege of speaking, but the fact that she is an unknown many times renders her shy in drawing attention to herself.

For a Baby.

In these days when the baby is out of doors practically all the time his mother wants to be assured of his safety and comfort. One of the big shops is showing a canvas pen made with a strong framework of wood, with sides high enough to prevent the baby from climbing out unless he is particularly acrobatic.

The pen is so arranged with ropes at each corner that it may be raised off the floor of the porch or room to keep the baby entirely out of a draft. The canvas floor has enough spring to it to be entirely comfortable to sleep on, and is big enough to allow the baby plenty of room to creep about in.

Equipped with such an arrangement a mother would be spared many hours of fretting with a small child, not to speak of the unnecessary handling the baby would be spared.

Land Food Capacity.

As a general rule, two productive acres of land are required for the support of each inhabitant in a country, and where this ratio does not exist food must be imported.

THE OTHER FELLOW.

Think a Little of His Rights When You're Traveling.

The girl in the room had been telling how to secure personal comfort while traveling on a train. Then the man looked up, smiled a little shyly as he caught the maiden's eyes and said:

"I don't mean to be personal—of course not. But don't you think it is every traveler's duty to think a little about how to make other people comfortable?"

And then he told a story of a perfect girl traveler whose exquisite breeding while on the train had made an indelible impression on his mind.

To be remembered so sweetly by your accidental train neighbor that every thought of you is an ever fresh delight or to be recalled as the living type of feminine selfishness and bad taste is a question. Which shall you choose? For, alas, though often perfectly bred women are met with on railway trains, my sex is not always renowned for its thought of others when on voyage.

So let us start upon our summer vacation travels with the idea that we will think a little of "the other fellow's" comfort.

And now let me say a word or two to the girl traveling alone for the first time.

When you enter a crowded day coach look first for a seat next to somebody of your own sex. Maiden modesty requires this, and everybody in the car makes a note of any violation of the accepted rule. If you have the good luck to obtain a seat all to yourself put your wraps and packages in the coat rack above you, for as you have not paid for the vacant seat beside you it is an act of selfishness to make use of it for your traps. It is your duty to look up pleasantly at the first person who inquires if the seat is taken and say no.

It is always well for girls traveling alone to take a parlor car when possible, as the continual presence of the porter is in itself a protection. Of course the porter will expect a tip for his services, but if a girl makes no great demands upon his time he is happy to get the usual dime or quarter.

Generally it is sheer carelessness or the sudden sense of unaccustomed freedom which impel girls alone to behave indecorously when traveling. But the actual train nuisance is a vigorous species, and whether it is child or maid, man or woman, incessantly chattering pair behind, the result is the same, says a writer. Some unoffending somebody is annoyed or shocked and the train trip made an affliction.

The remedy is in the hands of the individual. So if each one of us behaves our very best on the train matters may be mended after awhile and everybody be made comfortable.

HOUSEHOLD JOTTINGS.

Never put thin glassware into hot water bottom first, as it is apt to crack from sudden expansion. Slip it in edgewise.

Do not wash colored clothes in the same water with all white ones. This especially holds good if one happens to have table linen with colored borders.

Have you ever tried adding a teaspoonful of paraffin to every gallon of water when boiling white clothes? It is said to be excellent for removing stains.

Remember, good tools make rapid work. If you do not own a good knife sharpener which you can use to improve your steel blades, not ruin them, as is the usual amateur sharpener's method, make arrangements for your knives to be sharpened by a professional every two weeks.

Dishcloths cannot be kept clean without daily boiling. They should not only be washed out thoroughly after each meal and hung in the sun to dry, but once a day, or without fail every other day, should be boiled in water to which has been added washing soda or a tablespoonful of borax.

Phoney Mistake.

"The mistakes that occur through and by the telephone are numerous," said the lady who had one in her house, "and some of them are as amusing as the others are annoying. The last one I had happen to me was rather curious. My sister-in-law is named Drake, and I called her up at her house. The maid told me she had left word to call her up at a certain number, which I thought I had right. I called it and asked for Drake. They said there was no such person there. Then I wanted to know what place it was. The man at the other end said it was a poultry store, and he didn't laugh when he said it. It struck me as so funny that I laughed right out, and the man asked me what I was laughing at. He hadn't seen the point, and I rang off without enlightening him."

Watermelon Booth For a Summer Fair.

The feature which scored the greatest success at a summer resort fair was a watermelon booth, the bright invention of an artist sojourning at one of the hotels.

The booth was hung with festoons of red and green tissue paper and decorated with pickaninny heads cut from black paper, with features painted in water color.

Big slices of watermelon at 10 cents a slice were served by one of the ladies interested, blacked and bandanaed to represent a portly southern mammy. The "watermillion," owing to the warm weather and the novelty of it, took like the proverbial hot cakes.

THE GUEST'S COMFORT.

Modern Hostesses Strive For Best Conditions In a Visitor's Room.

Going visiting in her own guest rooms is one means the modern hostess takes of finding out if she makes her guests comfortable. By sleeping in the beds she provides for the friends within her gates she learns just what sort of nights her friends pass with her. And mattresses that aren't perfect and coverings that are too heavy can be detected and cast out. One hostess who made a belated trial of this plan discovered to her horror that she had been torturing her guests for a summer with a broken spring which she had not suspected until she passed a night on it.

Blinds that let in light on the sleeper's eyes, curtains or screens that are badly adjusted, loose shingles that rattle just outside the window and twigs that tap against the pane—these are annoyances that may cause a guest infinite discomfort, and only by sleeping in the room can the hostess discover them.

The woman who wants to be a good hostess—and what woman doesn't?—looks after little things as well as big ones. No smallest detail in the guest room is missing. A charming peignoir hangs in the closet, with slippers to match, ready for the visitor. This is becoming quite a usual custom, for a peignoir is such a cumbersome thing in a small trunk that it is a nuisance to take one when going to a friend's house. The perfect guest room includes a well appointed writing table, with plenty of stamps, paper, envelopes and postcards, a good, deep inkstand with enough ink in it, some fresh blotting paper and pens with nibs both thick and thin.

On the dressing table there should be a pretty pincushion, with black and white pins and some fancy veil pins, and hanging on the mirror a case containing needles, thread, thimble, scissors and darning silk. Then there must be a little alcohol hair curling lamp and, to prevent accident, a small tile to set it on.

A framed card hanging in the room with the times for meals, the hour when the dressing bell rings for dinner, when the mail comes, hours of church service and the railway time table saves the guest the necessity of asking questions about these details.

Bowls and vases of flowers should always adorn the guest room when some one is expected. The guest's appetite should be remembered, too, and a little silver box of biscuits placed ready for her use. At night her favorite bedtime drink should be waiting for her. Some like cocoa, some hot milk and some lemonade. It is for the hostess to discover her guest's taste. The morning tea or coffee, which many people take in their rooms now, is carried to the guest in a small tea set on a basket tray, with a pot of boiling water to weaken the beverage if the guest desires.

Gave Quart of Blood.

Kingston, Nov. 1.—In Montreal in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Mrs. T. R. Carnovosky of Kingston gave a quart of her life blood to her sister, Mrs. Eli Williamson of Lindsay, in hope of prolonging her life, after an operation.

She was laid on a table and had her radial artery opened and attached to a vein in her sister's right arm. For two hours, less fifteen minutes she remained in that position allowing her blood to pass to her sister. She did not take an anesthetic.

The new blood resuscitated Mrs. Williamson to such an extent that she was able to undergo a second operation three days later, but although she came through the operation, she died of shock next day.

Turkish Ballot Box.

At a Turkish election the ballot box is carried about on a triumphal car and is guarded by little girls dressed in white. On great occasions it is perched on the hump of a camel.

Dog Sacrifices.

Numerous accounts have been given, both in ancient and modern times, of the sacrificing of dogs for religious purposes. They were immolated at certain periods by the Greeks and Romans to almost all their deities, particularly to Mars, Pluto, Minerva and Proserpine; also they were offered to the moon, because the dog by his barking disturbs all charms and spells and frightens away spectres and apparitions.

LOOKS LIKE J. W. GAYNOR

Tammany Candidate is the Choice of Betting Fraternity at Two to One—Hearst and Bannard Are Looking For a Landslide That Will Overthrow the Tiger — Has Been a Very Hot Fight.

New York, Nov. 2.—New York's triangular political campaign ended last night. William J. Gaynor, the Democratic candidate for the mayoralty, made his final speech in Harlem. Otto T. Bannard, the Republican-Fusion candidate, closed his campaign with a noon-day address on the waterfront and a brief talk to negro voters at a downtown Baptist church in the evening. W. R. Hearst, the Independent candidate, had wound up his formal speech-making Sunday night at Madison Square Garden, but some of the lesser lights of the Independent campaign burned red fire and espoused his cause with a final burst of oratory at open-air meetings in the four corners of Manhattan last night, while many of the minor candidates on both the Democratic and Republican tickets had meetings of their own in the doubtful districts.

In each of the rival camps complete confidence in the result was expressed. Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, said: "Gaynor will receive more votes than both of the others for mayor."

Herbert Parsons, the Republican leader, said: "Our fight against Tammany misrule has won. Reports from every Assembly district in the greater city show that Bannard will be elected by 50,000 plurality."

Charles G. Gehring, for the Hearst forces, said: "Hearst will get more than 300,000 plurality over the Tammany candidate. I look for a landslide."

About $125,000 was wagered on the result of the mayoralty contest in New York yesterday in the financial district, the prevailing odds favoring Gaynor by about 2 to 1. Bannard, in his closing appeal to the voters at his noon meeting yesterday, said: "I have fought this campaign against Tammany Hall, against corruption, waste, graft, and improper contracts. Public improvements must be solely for the public good and not for plunder. Party graft must be stamped out. I have favored as liberal a personal liberty as is consistent with law and order. I believe that I can serve you well, and that to-morrow you will choose a business man, a man who will attend to the duties of the office to which he is elected."

Big Fire at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 2.—Fire last night completely destroyed the lake and canal warehouse of the Western Transit Co., on Buffalo Creek, and the warehouse of the Knowlton Warehouse Co., and damaged the elevator of the City Elevator Co. The total loss is estimated at $350,000.

Shot at Train.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—G.T.R. Brakeman John McLaren narrowly escaped being shot through the chest as the Parry Sound train approached Ottawa. A man fired a 22-calibre rifle shot through the rear car, grazing McLaren's chest and passing up the aisle to the wall of the smoker.

BUDGET IS APPROVED

In Amazing Article Which Stead Declares Is a Bona Fide Chat With Gladstone Through a Medium the Great Statesman Says That Now Is the Time For the Liberals to Go In and Win.

London, Eng., Nov. 2.—A stenographic report of the amazing interview with the spirit of the late William E. Gladstone, which was gained at a seance arraigned by William T. Stead is printed in full in yesterday's Telegraph.

According to this stenographic report, the test was most successful, and a definite statement from the "Grand Old Man of England" was secured. The seance occurred Saturday at Mowbray House, with a medium, a stenographer and Mr. Stead among the mortals present, while the disincarnate personalities taking part included Julia, Cardinal Manning, W. Stead, jr., and W. E. Gladstone.

The seance opened with prayer and a hymn, and then the clairvoyant reported that on the previous evening she had received a message from Gladstone — long, involved and with even more than the usual Gladstonian peri-phrases, wherein Gladstone expressed a considerable disinclination to return "to the limited and melancholy arena of party politics," as "from my present outlook, where a country counts little more than a moment, a paragraph on the printed page of time, the ebb and flow of mundane events from day to day matters little."

After discussing how the mind is occupied in the manifestations of the Divine omnipresence, Gladstone confessed:

"An immense current of reiterated and ever reiterated vibration is drawing me toward another centre of energy. I seem for a moment to hear the roar of distant thunder and feel a consciousness of suspense, anticipation, turmoil and strife and of ignoble party warfare."

Finally Gladstone agreed to speak, but before he had the opportunity Cardinal Manning intervened with a blessing, saying:

"I am pleased to be with you for a few moments. You have got here an atmosphere of the religious world. I am delighted to feel the vibrations of praise and thankfulness ascending from your circle. I understand Gladstone is about to come into contact with you. I hope the church atmosphere will be of service in linking him with you."

Then spoke Gladstone:

"A spirit named Julia has told me that some one desires to come in touch with me concerning the present position of my old party, and also the state of English politics generally. The arena of the political world is distasteful to me; nay, it was always distasteful to me."

Gladstone was induced to express his views on the budget, and said:

"In my opinion, the Upper Chamber will act most unadvisedly if they reject this financial measure. I can well understand there will be much in its provisions to which the Lords will distinctly object. Nevertheless, it would be wise policy for them to pass this measure. In agreement with the principles embodied in the bill the land proposals obtain my support, but with the licensing clauses I am only partly in sympathy. This section of the bill should not be too rigidly insisted upon, as some of the clauses are too crudely constructed and will tend to produce much friction and confusion in their application."

Gladstone, when pressed, gave this battle cry:

"Away with that inert mass of unrepresentative opinion. The time is now pressing for a distinct and clear issue on which to fight. Let my people, let my old warriors appeal to the country on this definite issue. This is a war cry which will rally them to many of the forces, many of the units which at the present moment are in the balance. Let the cry be definite, clear, precise. It would not be advisable for a dissolution of Parliament to occur immediately. A compromise by the Government is advisable, but when the issue has been narrowed, when the die is cast and the step taken—then definite, clear, united action must be taken quickly and at once."

"That means 'Down with the House of Lords altogether!'" said one of those present.

"No," retorted Gladstone, "only with the Lords as at present constituted. I am distinctly in favor of a second chamber."

"Do you keep in touch with the people at Westminster."

Gladstone answered: "I occasionally come in contact with them. The energies liberated through this bureau have more strongly linked me with the political sphere, and I shall endeavor as far as possible to throw myself into the conflict, inspiring and encouraging those whom I can affect to carry onward and forward the grand old banner of Liberalism. Yes, I will do this. We are going on to victory. Notwithstanding the forces of self-interest and obscuration, we shall win. The struggle will be severe, as many subtle as well as open foes have to be overcome. This is one of the most critical periods in the history of the British race, and upon the result will depend the advancement or retardation of the nation. Let the nation not be narcotized by the nostrums of tariff reform. Purging itself of selfish heresies; let it turn its attention not only to the understanding of its real prosperity, but to the comprehension of the vital factors in the health of its national life."

KEYNOTE OF UNITY

In Address at Toronto Conservative Chief Says Any Dissension at Time When Aid to Britain Was Decided Upon Would Have Been a Great Pity—A Unique State of Affairs In British Empire.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—To the Centre and South Toronto Conservative Club, Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition in the Dominion Parliament, gave a lucid exposition of the attitude of the Conservative party towards the general question of Canada's co-operation in an imperial defence scheme from a naval standpoint.

Mr. Borden alluded to the situation in Canada as unique. Here was a self-governing colony with power to levy customs charges against the goods of the Mother Country, and foreign nations could not understand how the Empire could hold together under such conditions.

The Empire, declared Mr. Borden, was bound together by principles of self-government and liberty. The integrity of the Empire in the future must be maintained, and that was only possible by co-operation. When this co-operation was realized the greatest nation or the greatest co-operation of nations in the world would hesitate to attack.

In introducing Mr. Borden, the president of the club, Arthur Vankoughnet, referred to the loyalty of the leader of the Opposition, whom, he said, rose above party.

Mr. Borden, on rising, was greeted with cheers. He apologized for his visits to Toronto being scarce, but excused himself by saying that there were other parts of the Dominion which were more in need of missionary work than Toronto. During his term of leadership he had endeavored to uphold the best traditions of the party, and honor the great men who had gone before.

In speaking on the question of Canada's contribution for imperial naval defence, Mr. Borden referred to the various resolutions which had been discussed in the House of Commons last session. To Hon. Geo. E. Foster he gave the honor of introducing the matter, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier regarded Mr. Foster's resolution as being "so indefinite that he deemed it his duty to introduce a resolution" which was more specific. After several amendments the resolution passed unanimously, empowering the Government in times of peril or emergency, to make a grant to Great Britain for the purpose of Imperial Defence. It would have been unfortunate, thought Mr. Borden, when great national and imperial considerations were involved and the condition was portrayed by the statesmen of Great Britain in anxious terms, that the resolution which was moved by the Prime Minister of Canada should have been opposed by the Conservative party, and any amendment they suggested voted down by a solid phalanx of Government followers.

Societies News of Church Services.

New York, Nov. 2.—The Herald yesterday said editorially that it "proposes to give its readers every Monday something about the personal or society aspect of the Sunday services to the most fashionable or notable churches. These reports should prove at once entertaining and edifying and will show the unitiated that men and women whose names they constantly read in lists of those attending the opera or some fashionable function do not devote all their time to the frivolities or galeties of life."

Hotel Fire at Simcoe.

Simcoe, Nov. 2.—Fire yesterday morning about three o'clock gutted the large block containing the Norfolk House Hotel, the Opera House, Hurey's Theatorium and Gambe cigar store and pool-room. About thirty boarders and the hotel staff escaped safely, some by ladders.

The four-storey block was erected in 1866, and was owned by Mrs. Ben Cammell of Buffalo. It was valued at $25,000; insurance $10,000. Ira Whitehead, proprietor of the hotel, loses on furnishings.

Carpenter Killed by Fall.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—In a 50-foot fall from the top of a ladder which was against the roof of E. Till's house at 118 Beaconsfield avenue yesterday, Duncan Stewart, a carpenter, aged 60, of 68 Elm street, broke his neck and expired a few minutes after being taken into the Western Hospital.

Stewart was for the past twelve years in the employ of Wm. Menton, contractor, of 19 D'Arcy street. He was unmarried.

Washington Authorities Scent Fraud.

Windsor, Nov. 2.—A fraud order has been issued in Washington against the Guarantee Securities Co., of which J. Bryan Sloane, formerly of Leamington, is president. This concern is located in Los Angeles, and is alleged to be in the stock purchasing business. Sloane was charged in February of last year, with selling worthless mining stock in Detroit, but the prosecution was dropped.

Rebels Fight With Dynamite.

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 2.—The Government has begun active operations against the rebels. The latter have abandoned one of their positions, leaving it mined with dynamite. The Government forces were forewarned, which probably warned the vanguard of the army from destruction.

York Loan Liquidators Pay Off Twenty-Five Per Cent.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Ninety-eight thousand citizens of Canada are rejoicing to-day over the receipt of checks from the liquidators of the defunct York Loan & Savings Co. The paper was sent out yesterday by A. E. Herington, who is attending to the financial end of the business for the National Trust Co., the assignees.

The checks sent out amount to over half a million, or approximately $650,000. The dividend declared is 25 per cent.

There are 114,000 shareholders, 10,000 of whom have not submitted their passbooks and certificates. The other 4,000 were either in arrears or had borrowed from the company. Their arrears and share loans exceed this dividend.

It is expected that the next dividend will amount to 25 per cent. It will be declared when the rest of the property of the company is disposed of. The company owned 52,000 feet of frontage of Toronto, half of which has been sold. If land values increase before the rest is sold the other dividend will be proportionately larger.

T. P. O'Conner Cannot Come.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Rev. Dr. Burke, editor of The Catholic Register and Canadian Extension, has received a letter from T. P. O'Connor, the distinguished Irish Nationalist, to the effect that he will not be able to visit Canada on his present trip. He says: "I love Canada, its beautiful soil, its kindly people, and its atmosphere of comfort, liberty and order. The future belongs to it, as Laurier put it, 'The twentieth century is the century of Canada.' I may not be able to visit Canada this trip, but I shall visit it again whenever I get the opportunity. I send through you my greetings and handshake to the many good friends I have there; notably your great Prime Minister, who is in agreement with the views of my party; to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who has added so much honor to his race; to D'Arcy Scott, my good friend and host; to M. J. Haney, also my friend and host; and above all the others Edward Blake, Canada's finest mind and one of the world's noblest characters."

TO MAKE SECRET WRITING.

Two Methods by Which Only Those Who Know May Read.

Professor Gross of Germany has discovered and made public a simple method of invisible writing which has been used extensively by prisoners for communicating with their friends without the knowledge of the authorities. The information is of interest and value. You simply take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, moisten it well, lay it flat on a piece of glass or other very hard and smooth surface, lay a dry sheet of paper over it and then write your message on the dry sheet with a hard pencil.

Then destroy the dry sheet and let the moist paper dry in the free air (not heated) and you will not notice anything has ever been written on it. On moistening this sheet again, however, the writing shows very plainly in white, and the operation can be repeated any number of times. The explanation is that the pressure of the pencil on the damp paper makes it more compact, so that when wet the writing becomes translucent.

Another simple kind of secret writing can be done with ordinary lemon juice. Merely write with a clean pen, using lemon juice instead of ink, and when it is dry it will be invisible. When you hold the writing over a lamp, however, it quickly develops so you can read it. Children can have a good deal of fun making such experiments as these, which are very helpful in getting them interested in scientific and other practical matters.—The Pathfinder.

THE GLOWWORM.

Curious Insect That Exists in Faraway New Zealand.

In New Zealand there is a very curious glowworm. The first idea about this insect was that it turned into a kind of beetle. Afterward it proved to be the larva, or grub, of a fly. Its light is seemingly given it to attract small insects, which are its food, and these are secured by means of a web.

This web is placed in a niche among rocks or trees and has a central thread, from which run smaller threads to the sides of the opening.

Upon several of the lower threads there are usually a number of globules that resemble tiny silver beads, but what is the use of these is uncertain. Upon the middle thread the grub sits. If startled it glides away into a hole it has for a hiding place. The light comes from the hinder part of the body, and the grub can display or darken this as it chooses.

On damp, warm nights it is brightest, and it is not visible when the weather is cold nor, of course, during the day.

Having reached its full size, the grub becomes a chrysalis, being fastened firmly to its web. A faint light comes from the chrysalis now and then. When the fly comes out, that also has a faint light, only half as bright as that of the grub. What it feeds upon is unknown.

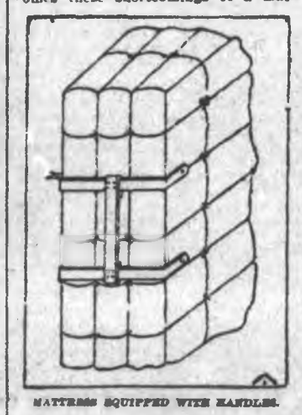
HANDLE FOR MATTRESSES.

Simple Methods by Which They Can Be Easily Moved.

When the housewife essays to rearrange the mattress on the bed she knows that she has a big job on her hands. A mattress is not heavy; but, as everybody knows, it is exceedingly cumbersome and difficult to handle, being too thick to grasp in the hands and has no projecting edge by which it can be grasped. An Ohio man overcomes these shortcomings of a mattress by the simple addition of small handles near the corners. He thinks so well of the idea that he has had it patented. A glance at the accompanying illustration will show the reader how readily a mattress equipped with such handles can be handled.



MATTRESS EQUIPPED WITH HANDLES.

By grasping one of these handles the mattress can be pulled around the room or to any place desired with practically no effort. In fact, a handle at each corner is not essential. One handle would be sufficient for all purposes.

TAFT HOME AT BEVERLY.

Massachusetts Estate Where President's Wife Is Regaining Health.

Entering the Taft house on the Beverly side, says the National Magazine, the large living room on the left is lighted by long French windows opening on the veranda facing the ocean and by four stained glass windows over the landing on the main staircase. The sycamore paneling and wide staircase leading to the upper story and surrounding balcony both strongly suggest a typical old English country seat, as does a cozy fireplace, over which is a mirror, where lady visitors take sly peeps to see if their hats are "on straight." Opening off the balcony and reached by the staircase from the living room are six bedchambers, while the third story contains additional rooms which may be used for guests.

In Mrs. Taft's home one naturally expects to find a music room, and, sure enough, here it is to the right of the living room. On the left is the beautiful library, equipped with telephone and telegraph service, by which routine and cipher messages are sent out over the country. Beyond the living room on the left the long dining room commands views of the ever restless surf and the historic Marblehead shore with its stirring memories of privateer days. This room, handsomely paneled in English oak to the height of four feet, is decorated with tapestry paper surmounted by a heavy white cornice. The solid mahogany dining table, Chippendale buffet and colonial chairs assure solid comfort as well as suitable effects, and the great fireplace foretells that many cozy chats around the blazing logs are in store for the Taft family when the autumn days tinge the foliage of the north shore and President Taft leads with increasing ardor his cohort of golfers. The Myopia golf links are some distance from the house, but that is a small matter when there is an automobile always ready to dash over the dusty thoroughfare carrying the president and his friends to the scene of the contest.

When you've done what you could to be proper,
No matter what fad came along,
And, though scared, never once called out, "Stop 'er!"
When the bicycle seemed to go wrong;
When roller skates brought consternation
And motorcars made your flesh creep,
Along comes the weird information
That flying machines will be cheap!

Must we leave Mother Earth far behind us
And join an ethereal crowd
Where some wandering comet may blind us
Or we'll skid on a vaporous cloud?
Oh, say it was only a fiction
Or the dream of a comfortless sleep!
Pray, spare us the fearful prediction
That flying machines will be cheap!

An Expert Opinion.

Washee—Melican man's cigalette no good!

Accommodating.

An American was showing some artist friends from Munich the sights of New York. As they stood in front of the Shakespeare statue in Central park discussion arose whether the figure was resting upon its right or its left leg.

"Er steht auf dem rechten bein."

"Nein," retorted another, "er sten auf dem linken bein."

"Auf dem rechten," argued several.

"Auf dem linken," retorted the other faction.

An American gentleman, overhearing the dispute, came over and politely tipped his hat. "Excuse me, gentlemen," he said, "but this isn't Lincoln. This is Shakespeare."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Conscience.

"On what grounds do you desire to withdraw the plea of 'not guilty?'"

"On the simple ground that we are guilty. However, we must call the attention of your honor to the regrettable fact that the statute of limitations lets us out. Too bad we were not asked about this matter earlier."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Another Gibe.

"Ah, there is nothing like being an actor," said the great tragedian with the two weeks' growth of beard. "Think of the free life in the summer."

"Yes," chuckled the fat comedian with the crimson beak, "and the free lunch in the winter."—Pittsburg Press.

HE WAS GUILTY.

Under the Circumstances, However There Was Only One Thing to Do.

"I was in a North Dakota village," said the Chicago drummer, "when I was drawn on a jury before a justice of the peace. I told them I was not a resident, but they insisted. It was a case of sheep stealing, and all the evidence went to convict the prisoner. They even found the pelts of the sheep he had stolen and killed. He made little or no defense, and I had my mind made up to a verdict of guilty before the jury went out to debate. My surprise was therefore great when on the first vote all the others voted for acquittal.

"'But he is surely guilty,' I said to one of the jurymen.

"'Oh, of course,' was the reply.

"'Then why acquit him?'

"'Because he is the son-in-law of the justice, and it wouldn't be good manners to bring him in guilty.'

"I saw the other five looking at me in a doubtful way," concluded the drummer, "and as I wanted them to understand that I knew what good manners were as well as they did I put in my vote for acquittal, and the prisoner was discharged."—Baltimore American.

Just a Reminder.

The young man who graduated some weeks ago had secured a situation in the great business emporium and was there to tell them how to run the business.

"You seem to know a great deal, young man," said the senior partner.

"Do I?" boasted the recent graduate, his chest swelling with pride. "Ah, sir, some day I expect to wake up and find myself famous."

The senior member silently opened a drawer in his desk and took out a package.

"Here you are, young man. Take this home with you with my compliments."

"What is that?"

"An alarm clock. It will help you to wake up."—Pittsburg Press.

A Catechism.

"Why do we send missionaries to the savages?"

"To civilize them."

"What good does that do them?"

"It educates them out of habits of idleness."

"And what then?"

"They go to work."

"What do they work for?"

"To become prosperous and rich."

"What good does prosperity do them?"

"It procures them leisure and comfort."

"Which was what they had before you started stirring them up. What's the use?"—Cleveland Leader.

The Help Problem Solved.

"Some of the servants in your majesty's household are spies."

"Good!" answered the oriental monarch. "Cut down their wages and tell them we're going to take a house in the country. If they are on the enemy's payroll they will have to stay with us."—Washington Star.

Foiled Again.

He—If something would only happen to the boat whereby I might rescue you!

She—And after you had rescued me and borne me bravely to shore and I opened my eyes then what?

He—Then I'd get my name in the papers.—Boston Herald.

Had an Excuse.

"Why did you parade the board walk in men's clothes?"

"Your honor," sobbed the fair prisoner, "there's so much fun made of women's fashions this year."

So the court dismissed her with a reprimand.—Philadelphia Ledger.

LUCY'S BRAVERY.

An Awakening of Love and a Race Through a Storm.

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Lucy Hamilton, with Arthur Shaw standing by her side, watched John Strong as he waved his hand and shot out into the lake in his swift motor-boat. When Strong was well out in the lake he stood up in the boat and threw a kiss to Lucy.

The girl turned to Shaw with a little laugh. There was heightened color in her cheeks.

"He's always doing something foolish like that," she exclaimed.

Shaw scowled a little as he looked after the retreating boat. He turned to Lucy suddenly.

"I believe you're in love with Strong," he declared.

Lucy exclaimed indignantly at this.

"How many times have I told you," she cried, "that I'm not in love with any man? I think both you and Mr. Strong are fine, splendid young fellows, and I like you both immensely, but as for being in love—pshaw, that's another matter entirely!"

"I'm infernally jealous," Shaw replied, with relief in his tone, "and I know that I haven't any right to be. But I'm head over heels in love with you, Lucy, and I hate to think of any other man winning you."

They had turned and were walking toward the hotel, which stood a short distance back on the bluff overlooking the lake. Surely, Lucy thought, nothing could be franker than Shaw's avowal, and yet the avowal did not particularly thrill her. Instinctively she felt that she would have been more thrilled if Strong had talked to her in this manner.

From this point Lucy firmly guided Shaw's conversation into other channels. They reached the hotel veranda. Almost immediately Shaw was called by business into the hotel, and Lucy was left alone. Half abstractedly she watched the clouds forming in the west for a storm. Her thoughts were on the two men. She did not realize how long she had been sitting there until, with a start, she was brought to a sense of the situation by the sudden spasmodic falling of rain.

Lucy jumped to her feet. It became pitch dark with surprising suddenness. As she prepared to race for the hotel entrance the sound of some one talking in the hotel near the open window by which she was standing caught her attention.

"You're sure there's no one out there—hadn't we better put down the window?" came a voice—that of Shaw.

"No," said another man; "the storm has driven every one in, and it's stifling here as it is."

"All right then," said the other. "My man on the other side of the lake will see to it that no boats are in condition to cross the lake tonight, and telephonic communication is cut. Consequently Strong can't return—he can't vote his proxies at the directors' meeting tonight, and we have everything our own way. Gad, but I'll be glad to crush him!"

Lucy, shivering in the rain that dashed in upon her, caught the conversation before the resounding thunder peals made it impossible for her to hear everything above the storm. In a flash she understood that Shaw, the man whom she had thought she might love, was planning—had planned—to injure Strong. Evidently it was imperative for Strong to attend a directors' meeting in that hotel that night if he wished to save himself, and Shaw had seemingly made it impossible for him to be there.

In a moment Lucy's mind was made up as to her course of action. Heedless of her unprotected condition, she ran, guided by lightning flashes, down the wooden steps from the hotel to the landing pier. Here her own launch was moored. She cranked it quickly. The sound of some one tearing down the steps toward her made her work the faster. As she cast off she saw by a flash that the person was Shaw. He cried to her frantically:

"Don't go! Don't go!"

But Lucy merely smiled. In a few minutes she was out in the wave tossed lake. She did not fear pursuit. No other launch on that side of the lake was as big as hers, and none, she knew, could possibly overtake her. She revolved the situation in her mind. Evidently Shaw had glanced out of the hotel window at a time when the landscape was illumined by lightning, had seen her making for the boat-house, had surmised that she had overheard the conversation and then attempted to stop her.

Lucy turned on the electric searchlight. Powerful as it was, it pierced only a short distance through the gloom. By a little pocket compass she guided her course for the opposite landing. The waves buffeted her frightfully, the wind and rain tore her and lashed her cheeks, but still she kept on.

When about halfway across she began to ring the submarine signaling bell attached to the boat. Almost instantly she received an answer from the landing for which she was making. A few signals showed her that it was Strong and that he understood the situation. Then monotonously he began repeating three words—"I love you; I love you."

Even in the frightful gloom in the heart of the storm Lucy felt the blood course into her cheeks. Never before had Strong said these words to her.

"Stop! You must not say it," Lucy signaled.

"I will say it," came the answer, "I love you; I love you."

In a few moments Strong's signal changed.

"I can see your searchlight," he signaled. "Go slow."

Soon Lucy was able to make out the lights on the landing. A few moments more and she was almost up to the boathouse. She saw Strong standing on the extreme edge of the pier. Three husky men were standing idly near him in attitudes which presaged action. Frantically Strong waved at her. Lucy understood him and, instead of making for the landing, threw the steering wheel swiftly over. It was evident that should she make a landing the three men would not allow the boat to leave.

When the boat presented a broadside to the landing Strong suddenly leaped into the water. The men ran for him, but they were too late. He swam sturdily to Lucy and in a moment climbed over the side. Lucy set the nose of the boat for the home shore, and the little vessel forged into the darkness.

Strong held out his arms to Lucy.

"Dear heart!" he said.

"Don't; there's no time!" cried Lucy. "We must work if we are to get back. The wind's changed. It's dead against us. The waves are higher."

Even as she spoke the gasoline engine missed fire several times. Strong devoted his attention to it, while Lucy was kept busy at the wheel. For an eternity, it seemed to Lucy, they battled with the elements. Then dimly she saw the lights of the hotel.

"Put out your searchlight," said Strong, "and make a landing down there on the beach about 300 yards from the hotel. They'll be waiting for us at the dock."

Lucy obeyed him. At length they came near enough to the shore to drop anchor. Strong climbed over the side of the boat and, carrying Lucy, waded to the shore. In silence they toiled up the hill to the hotel and made their entrance unobserved through a side door.

Lucy ran to her room to secure warm, dry clothes, while Strong, wet and dishevelled as he was, went straight to the room where the directors were meeting.

An hour or so later, after the storm had subsided and the meeting was over, Strong and Lucy met on the veranda. No one was near them.

"You brought me back just in time," said Strong. Then he stretched out his arms. "I love you," he said.

"And I love you," replied Lucy as she resigned herself to his embrace.

Toole's Tears.

Sallies of almost childlike high spirits endeared the late J. L. Toole, the lifelong friend of Henry Irving, to all who knew him. On one occasion when the author of "Some Eminent Victorians" was spending a day in the innocent adventures which Toole was a genius in originating they went to the Tower, where they found themselves among a party of eager sightseers in the chamber where the crown jewels are disposed.

It was a woman who was explaining to the eager throng the history of the articles displayed. At the end of a long catalogue she said:

"And this is Anne Boleyn's crown."

Toole, apparently suddenly overcome, burst into a flood of tears and leaned against the wall in seemingly uncontrollable grief.

"Oh, sir," inquired the poor woman, in distress, "what is the matter?"

"Nothing! Nothing!" replied Toole in broken accents. "Don't mind me, but the fact is I have known the family so long."

No Time to Read Them.

Two men sat beside each other in a railway train. One of them, putting down a magazine, remarked:

"That series of articles, 'Books That Have Helped Me,' has engaged the attention of some of the leading literary men of the country."

"So I've heard," the other man replied.

"Have you read any of the articles?"

"No."

"But you have often thought of books that have helped you, I dare say?"

"No, I don't read books and am therefore not helped by them. I read the titles of books, but never turn the leaves."

"You must be a busy man?"

"I am," said the man who only glanced at the titles, "I am a book reviewer."—London Mail.

Descendants of David.

The history of the Sassoons is one of the most dramatic in the very dramatic story of the Hebrew race. The original Sassoon was a Bombay merchant, but the family is descended from a group known as Ibn Shoshan, who at one time held the position of nasi of Toledo. The name Shoshan, which signifies "lily" in Hebrew, was gradually transformed into Sassoon, signifying "gladness." The family claim Davidic descent, and Abraham Sassoon, who flourished in the seventeenth century, stated that he was a direct descendant of Shephatiah, the fifth son of David. Not only are there many references to the name in Hebrew mediaeval literature, but mention of it is made in the Talmud.—London M. A. P.

Three Tightwads.

Speaking of tightwads, a Texas paper says: It is reported that three of the stingiest men in the state were in town yesterday. One of them will not drink as much water as he wants unless it is from another man's well. The second forbids any of his family from writing anything but a small hand, as it is a waste of ink to make large letters. The third stops his clock at night in order to save wear and tear on the machinery. All of them decline to take their county paper on the ground that it is a terrible strain on their spectacles to read newspapers even in the daytime.

Food Scares.

"This circular describing the Mountingue says you can sit at the dinner table and see the beautiful mountain peaks," said the man who contemplated going.

"That is true," replied the one who had been, "and that's just about all you can see."

He Wouldn't Die.

Mrs. Peachblow—Why does your husband carry such a tremendous amount of life insurance when he's in such perfect health? Mrs. Flicker—Oh, just to tantalize me. Men are naturally cruel. —Life.

Not Unanimous.

She—There's Mrs. Toole. She seems quite reconciled to the death of her first husband. He—Yes, but I'm afraid her second never will be.

A MATTER OF FIGURES

Natalie's Mistake and the Explanation That Came Later.

By MATHILDA HENDERSON WHEELOCK.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

"Natalie!"

"Yes, auntie." Natalie stood in the doorway.

"That letter to Anne Whitmore in regard to those purchases for Coralie's trousseau with which she is to be commissioned—can't you attend to it for me, please? Coralie ought to be here to attend to her shopping in person. You'll find the list with her letter there on your desk. Write in your own person so as not to disturb me for the signature. You know what I wish you to say. I went over it with you this morning. Don't forget the outside limit—$1,200. George would utterly spoil Coralie if I permitted it, and Anne Whitmore would abet him."

Natalie turned at once to her task. Coralie's letter with its dazzling list lay at hand. Such beautiful things! But Natalie felt no envy of this favored cousin, whose rich bachelor uncle made it his chief pleasure to indulge. Her own life as housekeeper for dear

NATALIE SAT WHITE FACED AND STUNNED.

Uncle Joshua, who was a widower, childless and far from rich, was as happy as it was busy.

Envy Coralie? Natalie envied no one, particularly now, when Ted Markham was coming to Forestville to spend his vacation. She had met him last winter during a visit to Cousin Adaline. Ted was paying teller in the same bank where Cousin Adaline's husband was bookkeeper, and his calls at the pretty flat had been frequent during the three weeks of Natalie's visit. Then all the spring there had been his letters.

And only yesterday had come a box of roses. Her note of acknowledgment should go by this mail, but Aunt Esther's letter must be first. She wrote this conscientiously, then looked at the tiny clock as she signed her name. She had time for Ted's note yet if she hurried.

The postman's whistle broke into the signature as she finished, and, hastily thrusting the letters into their respective envelopes, already stamped and addressed, she sealed them and, going to the open window, laughingly threw them on the gravel at the feet of the carrier, who was just turning away.

Four days later Ted's answer came. Natalie flew with it to her own room, while Aunt Esther seated herself on the piazza with the letter brought her by the same mail.

"Natalie!"

The call came sharply up to where Natalie sat, white faced and stunned, with Ted Markham's letter before her.

"I have thought best to change my plans," she had read. "Some fellows are going camping and have asked me to go with them. We shall be somewhere in the Maine woods, not, I imagine, in very close proximity to a postoffice, so that you will probably not hear from me while I am away."

That was the gist of the letter. The rest didn't matter.

"Natalie!"

"Yes, auntie."

"I wish you'd hear this, please!" whereupon Natalie descended.

When she had reseated herself Mrs. Eldred read:

"My Dear Esther—Your habit of delegating your letter writing to whosoever will relieve you of the duty has in this instance resulted in the inclosed jumble, from which I am unable to extract anything that will serve me as a working hypothesis.

"With much love and some pardonable curiosity. ANNE WHITMORE."

Natalie glanced at the inclosure which her aunt handed her, her face paling and flushing by turns—the first page of her letter to Mrs. Whitmore and her note of acknowledgment to Ted! For a moment she sat staring; then her overwrought nerves gave way, and she fled upstairs to her room. There, later, with head bowed on her crossed arms, her aunt found her.

"Why, don't take it like that, child! The mistake can be easily rectified."

"He isn't—isn't coming!" she managed at length to sob out.

"Isn't coming?" Mrs. Eldred adjusted her glasses. "Natalie, let me see that young man's letter, please."

Natalie obediently passed it over. Mrs. Eldred was puzzled.

"He should at least have your note of thanks for the roses. You will send him that, of course."

"He doesn't expect me to write him again. He—he doesn't want me to!"

Mrs. Eldred reread the letter. It did seem as if the young man were slowing down the correspondence, and, with a sigh, she laid the missive down at Natalie's elbow and softly withdrew.

The matter troubled her for days, however. Meanwhile she did some thinking, the final result of which was that on the very day but one before his vacation ended Ted Markham was handed the following letter, forwarded from his bank to the little postoffice, seven miles from the camp where he had spent a restless and thoroughly unsettled twelve days:

"My Dear Mr. Markham—I have reason to believe my niece, Natalie Dare, sent you, instead of the inclosed note, a list of materials my friend, Mrs. Whitmore, was to select for the trousseau of my daughter, who is to marry Mr. Harry Graston, bookkeeper in the First National bank of our town. My brother, with whom Coralie and I live and who is very wealthy, spoils my daughter dreadfully, as the list will show. Will you kindly mail the letter to me, at your earliest convenience? Yours very truly,

ESTHER ELDRED.

Mr. Markham had just time for the 10:18 for New York. It would land him in New York in time to catch a train for Forestville, which would give him just four hours of his precious vacation with Natalie.

Once settled on the train, he took a worn envelope from his pocket, extracted a letter—more properly speaking, part of a letter—and read:

Aunt Esther insists that the inclosed list must come within an expenditure of $1,200. Kind considers this quite sufficient for a girl who is to marry a bank clerk, even though a fond uncle is willing to indulge her extravagantly. Very sincerely, your NATALIE DARE.

It was Natalie herself who the next evening answered Ted's ring at the door and who listened to the explanation he lost no time in making.

"I've been a fool, Natalie," he wound up. "But those figures! Twelve hundred dollars—why, they simply floored me! That was almost the extent of my salary for a year, and if that was what you were accustomed to and what you considered a reasonable and even an economical outlay for clothes at one clip—well, girlie, there seemed but one thing for me to do, and that was to forget what I had hoped for."

"But the things were for a trousseau," began Natalie.

"There wasn't a word about a trousseau in my part of the letter! I'm glad there wasn't. That would have put a quietus on my hopes with a vengeance, Natalie."

"But I said the girl was to marry a bank clerk," Natalie hurried on indignantly. "How, then, could you suppose"—

Ted's arms shot out and took her into a swift embrace.

"How could I suppose anything else? To me there was only one girl in the world—and one bank clerk who loved her. It was unwarrantable presumption on my part, Natalie, but can't you see? And won't you forgive?"

And Natalie both saw and forgave.

Pussy on the Ocean.

The great stage scene of the piece was a shipwreck, and after the vessel had gone down only the comic man and the heroine were to be seen tossing on a frail raft on the boundless ocean.

The comedy merchant had expected that his woebegone appearance would raise a laugh, but even he was astonished at the roar which went up when they saw him.

At last he was able to get a hearing.

"I wish," he said to the heroine, "that we could get out and walk home, but it's so jolly wet."

The audience was too exhausted to laugh any more, and the voice of the man in the gallery sounded painfully clear:

"If I was you," he said, "I should do it. There's a cat been bopping about on the waves for the last five minutes, and she don't seem to 'ave suffered much."—London Answers.

What a Dollar Dog Can Do.

A man in a nearby city bought for his wife and child a year ago a dog, for which he paid a dollar. It was obviously nothing wonderful in the canine way—merely a mongrel, with the bulldog strain predominant. The owner was a man in humble circumstances, and the dog in his modest dwelling was the principal asset aside from a few sticks of furniture. The other night Tom was tied to a leg of the kitchen sink, as usual, and the family went to bed. They were awakened by the dog at midnight scratching at his master's door. When his master came out to see what was the matter the dog, with a remnant of chewed rope hanging from his collar, whined and ran to the head of the stairway. The house was on fire, and shortly after woman and child and man and dog made their escape their poor dwelling was a mass of glowing embers. The owner of the dog has been urged to part with him for a large cash consideration; but, though he is penniless, he will not part with the four footed savior of his family. Neither has the dog at any time had thoughts of leaving them for luxurious kennels.—New York Times.

Slaves to the Servants.

"I am very tired," said the fashionably dressed woman. "I have been working dreadfully hard all day. Doing what? Why, seeing to my servants—working for them. Didn't you know that the more servants you have the harder you must work? Certainly I have to do all the shopping for my servants. I have to buy their uniforms, the caps and aprons of the maids, the clothing of the housekeeper, and have to see to the marketing, too—yes, and very often, in spite of the fact that I have a housekeeper. I must, or they will form a combine to rob me of everything I have. The housekeeper will get a rakeoff that will enable her to retire in a few years. Then perhaps it is I who must hunt a place as housekeeper for some one else. Oh, yes, if you want to keep your position as mistress of a household of servants you must keep hustling! You can't afford to let the grass grow under your feet to any great extent."—New York Press.

He Got a Hundred.

Sammy's mother talked to him long and earnestly about the poor marks he had been getting in his work at school. She painted in alluring colors the career of the little boy who studies his lessons and gains the love and respect of his teachers. She went even farther. She promised him that if he got good marks she would give him a whole dime all for his own. Sammy seemed impressed.

That afternoon he returned from school fairly dancing with joy.

"Oh, mother," he shouted, "I got a hundred!"

"Sammy!" cried his delighted mother. She hugged him and kissed him and petted him and—gave him the dime.

"And what did you get a hundred in?" she finally asked.

"In two things," replied Sammy without hesitation. "I got forty in readin' and sixty in spellin'."—Everybody's Magazine.

Trapping the Parson.

William Morris did not always get his jokes right end first. In a biography of her husband, Mrs. Edward Burne-Jones tells of the ease with which he reversed them.

A dinner gathering had all been asking conundrums.

"Who killed his brother Cain?" asked Burne-Jones.

Morris fell into the trap at once. "Abel!" he shouted.

Later in the day he came in laughing.

"I trapped the parson, by Jove!" he exclaimed. "I asked him, 'Who killed his brother Abel?'

"'Cain,' he said at once.

"'Ha!' I said. 'I knew you'd say that. Every one does.' I came away and left him puzzled enough, and I doubt if he's found out yet what the joke was."

Not Qualified.

Two men were getting warm over a simple difference of opinion.

They turned to the third man.

"Isn't a homemade strawberry shortcake better than a cherry pie?" demanded one of them.

"Isn't a homemade cherry pie better than any shortcake?" inquired the other.

The third man shook his head.

"I don't know," he said. "I board."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Marriages in Spain.

Though marriages in Spain are often arranged without the consent of the bride elect, law or custom gives the Spanish woman the power of appealing to a magistrate if she wishes to escape from a union which is distasteful to her, and the magistrate may take her from her father's house until she is of age and her own mistress, while if she determines to marry a man of whom her parents disapprove she may also place herself under the protection of the law, and she cannot be deprived of her share of the family estates. On reaching her majority she enjoys the same privileges as her brother with regard to property. She may inherit, will, buy and sell. But when she marries she again reverts to the position of a minor, and her husband has entire control of her possessions, which he can squander without rendering any account to her, though she cannot spend a penny of her own money without his consent. He may desert her and her children without incurring any punishment or much public condemnation. A Spanish lady confers on her husband the titles of nobility and any privilege connected therewith she may possess at the time of her marriage.—London Queen.

Early Prejudice Against Potatoes.

The way of the potato was said to have been barred by the prejudice that it was never mentioned in the Bible. In the Lothians it came in about 1740, the year of the famine, from Ireland, but was confined to gardens till about 1754, when it was planted in fields about Aberlady. By the close of the century it was a general article of diet. Ramsay says that George Henderson went about 1750 for a bag of potatoes to Kilsyth, where the Irish method of field culture had lately been tried, and introduced the potato into Mentieth, where a few had been known, but only in kale yards. The old folks, however, did not take kindly to the new food. Old George Bachop, one of the Ochtertyre tenants, when told by his wife that she had potatoes for supper said: "Tatties! Tatties! I never supped on them a' my days and winna the nicht. Gie them to the herd and get me sowens." It is significant that Burns, who sings the praises of kale and porridge and haggis, should have nothing to say of the potato.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Convert.

An old Cambridge friend of mine who had a good deal of the wisdom of the serpent in him had a farmer in his parish in Norfolk whom he could not get to church. Whenever he pressed upon him his neglect or his bad example he was always met with the same excuse. "You be too young and do not know enough to teach such as I." At last he gave up the farmer in despair. But one day he happened to pass by the farm while his parishioner was engaged in killing a fine pig. My friend said: "What a pig! Why, he weighs thirty-four stone!" "What dost thou know of pigs?" replied the farmer. "I only wish he weighed as much." When they next met the farmer, to his surprise, told my friend that the pig had been found to weigh just thirty-four stone. He added, much to my friend's gratification, "And thou wilt see me at church next Sunday, parson."—London Globe.

A Problem in Mathematics.

The town of Sturgis, in Mississippi, is the only round square town in existence. By legal enactment the circle has been squared, and the mathematician may now proceed to calculate the area of a square circle. In the laws of Mississippi for the year 1886, on page 682, is found the following:

"An act to incorporate the town of Sturgis, in Oktibbeha county, Mississippi.

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Mississippi that the town of Sturgis, in the county of Oktibbeha, is hereby incorporated and that the corporate limits of said town shall be as follows: Beginning at the quarter stake in front of Caleb Hannah's residence and running 600 yards in every direction, making said corporate limits 1,200 yards square."

Thus the circle is squared by the solemn declaration of the law.—Youth's Companion.

Turks and Animals.

In the matter of kindness to animals it is said that the Turk cannot be surpassed. Thus at Stamboul the wandering dogs are treated with great gentleness, and when puppies come into the world they are lodged with their mother at the side of the street in improvised kennels made out of old boxes lined with straw and bits of carpet. And frequently when a young Turk happens to be flush of money he goes to the nearest baker's shop and buys a quantity of bread, which he distributes among the dogs of the quarter, who testify their gratitude by jumping up at him with muddy paws and sniffing muzzles.

His Bald Spot.

Little Margie's father had a bald spot. While kissing him at bedtime one evening she said:

"Stoop down, papa. I want to kiss you on the head where the lining shows."

The greatest of all faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Carlyle.

Made Sure of the Pie.

A young girl who carried her dinner was observed to eat her pie first. When asked why, she replied, "Well, if there's anything left it won't be the pie, will it, now?"

A Great Walker.

On July 12, 1809, the Newmarket bells rang a peal in honor of Captain Barclay's completed walk of a mile in each of 1,000 successive hours. In his first week of it he had averaged less than fifteen minutes for each mile and in the last week more than twenty-one, and his weight had gone down from thirteen stone four pounds to eleven stone. But on July 17 he joined the Walcheren expedition in perfect health as aid-de-camp to the Marquis of Huntly. Captain Barclay, who was a Barclay of Ury and unsuccessfully claimed three Scottish earldoms, had performed wonderful feats before the Newmarket walk. In 1801 he walked 110 miles in nineteen hours in a muddy park. In 1808 he rose one morning at 5, walked thirty miles grouse shooting, dined at 5 p. m., walked sixty miles to his house at Ury in eleven hours, did some business and walked sixteen miles to dance at a ball, walked home by 7 a. m. and spent the day partridge shooting—in all 130 miles without sleep for two nights and three days. At twenty he could lift half a ton.—St. James' Gazette.

Not Afraid.

Personal courage invests its owner with a protection beyond that afforded by outside forces. An illustration of this is recorded by General William F. Draper in his "Recollections of a Varied Career," where he gives this incident:

In 1864 Colonel Daniels of the Seventh Rhode Island became unpopular with some of his command, and a rumor spread that he would be shot at the next engagement. He heard of it. It was customary when guns had been loaded for some time to have them discharged into some convenient bank, and Colonel Daniels took advantage of this. Marching his regiment out with loaded rifles, he faced them toward a suitable elevation, and, taking position on the top of it and in front of them as at dress parade, he gave the commands, "Ready!" "Aim!" "Fire!" and the pieces were discharged.

Needless to say, any man could have shot him with little danger of discovery, and, needless to say, also, none of them did. There were no more threats of that kind in his regiment.

Europe's Dirtiest Town.

All travelers should shun Borysław, in Galicia—"the back of Europe"—truthfully called the dirtiest place in Europe. It is the oil trade center and is decidedly not beautiful. In the main street all the houses have been built on mine refuse, and most of them have sunk below the level of the street. In fact, there is not a solid brick or stone building in the whole of the town, and many of the houses are in a state of partial or entire collapse. Unrefined petroleum is everywhere. It gets into everything—food and clothing—and the atmosphere reeks of it. Along one side of the main street is a raised wooden pavement, and beneath it is an oily ditch. Borysław's main waterway is a narrow, sluggish, oily stream. On its banks the town's refuse is cast, and the market booths are erected alongside, while the local washerwomen—though from external appearances one would judge that laundresses did not exist there at all—do their washing in its oily depths.

Got Too Familiar.

A story told of Justice Brewer concerns a trip he made to his old home in Kansas, accompanied by Mrs. Brewer. In Washington a justice of the supreme court is spoken of as "Mr. Justice," and that is the title Mrs. Brewer always has heard. When they reached Chicago, however, the "Mr." was dropped and the jurist was referred to as "Justice Brewer." At Omaha some old friends called him "David J.," and when they crossed the Kansas line some former neighbors referred to him as "David."

"Let's go home," suggested Mrs. Brewer.

"Why?" asked the justice.

"Because, dear," Mrs. Brewer replied, "I am afraid if we go any farther they will be calling you 'Davie.'"—Cleveland Leader.

The Art of Saving.

I believe that if somebody could invent unique ways of saving money the public would have an assured future. Men, women and children would regard saving as a game and play it with all their heart. There are penny savings banks where newsboys and bootblacks carry their tiny savings, but other children regard their penny bank at home with unfriendly eyes. There are working girls who put away their five cent pieces and fatten their small bank accounts by walking instead of riding and making other petty sacrifices. But the majority of working girls spend as fast as they can earn and declare that they cannot help it.

One reads of a man who began his career by regarding every dollar as a worker and getting all the profit he could. With that quaint conceit in his head saving became a pleasure, and he won riches without realizing that it was a struggle. I know of more than one woman who receives each night from her husband every dime he has received in change through the day, for he is careful to avoid spending such a piece of money. These, with her own savings in the same direction, make a respectable weekly showing.—Kansas City Journal.

Only Seeking Information.

The average New York boy is not a wonder of wit and wisdom, but most of them know a good thing when they see it. Also the contrary. Not long ago one of them saw a sign in front of a Sixth avenue place, "Boy Wanted." He was looking for something of that kind and walked in. There was nobody in sight, and he stood gazing. Presently the proprietor, a most grouchy person, appeared.

"What do you want here?" he inquired with scant courtesy.

"Well," replied the boy, disturbed by the man's manner and hesitating, "do you want a boy here?"

"That's what the sign says, don't it?" snapped the man.

"Yep," responded the boy, getting his second wind.

"Then we want a boy."

"Aw right," grinned the boy, backing away. "You git one. You can't have me," and he wiggled his fingers at the man and went out quickly.—New York Herald.

Tire Themselves Getting Ready.

Washington Irving tells a story of a man who tried to jump over a hill. He went back so far to get his start for the great leap and ran so hard that he was completely exhausted when he came to the hill and had to lie down and rest. Then he got up and walked over the hill. A great many people exhaust themselves getting ready to do their work. They are always preparing. They spend their lives getting ready to do something which they never do. It is an excellent thing to keep improving oneself, to keep growing, but there must be a time to begin the great work of life. I know a man who is almost forty years old who has not yet decided what he is going to do. He has graduated from college and taken a number of postgraduate courses, but all along general lines. He has not yet begun to specialize. This man fully believes he is going to do great things yet. I hope he may.—Success Magazine.

The Paper They Were Written On.

The average author would probably laugh at the statement that at one time in the world's history manuscripts, simply as such, irrespective of the nature of the text, were immensely valuable. In ancient times manuscripts were important articles from a commercial point of view. They were excessively scarce and were preserved with the utmost care. Even the usurers were glad to lend money on them when the owners were obliged to offer them in pawn. It is related in an ancient tome that a student of Pavia, who was reduced by his debaucheries, raised a new fortune by leaving in pawn a manuscript of a body of law, and a grammarian who was ruined by a fire rebuilt his house with two small volumes of Cicero through the ready aid of the pawnbroker.

Highest Cross in the World.

The highest cross in the world is said to be that which caps the loftiest peak of the Hars mountains. The cross is in reality a tower, and it commands a magnificent view of the country around. The height of the tower is 120 feet, and it stands on a mountain 1,731 feet above the sea level. A stair of 200 steps leads to the top of the cross, but there is an elevator of which people may avail themselves who for any reason wish to avoid the long climb.

Grateful.

Young Lady—Give me one yard of —why, haven't I seen you before? Draper's Assistant—Oh, Maud, have you forgotten me? I saved your life at the seaside last summer. Young Lady (warmly)—Why, of course you did. Then you may give me two yards of the ribbon, please.—Illustrated Bits.

A Witty Widow.

A widow of the name of Rugg, having taken Sir Charles Price for her second husband, was asked by a friend how she liked the change.

"Oh," she replied, "I parted with my old Rugg for a good Price."

IS WORTH FOUR TIMES AS MUCH AS A HALF PAGE AD.

According to "Advertising Arithmectic"

There are Stores in this City that would be Greater Stores---Hustling, Bustling Successes

If They Were Only Advertised Just Twice as Much As They Are Now

If any one of these Stores were to begin at once to Double its Advertising, or to use the Newspapers as a Medium for Advertising their goods, it would more rapidly increase their business than they ever dream of

Two Columns

of Space in a live Newspaper is worth more than TWICE as much as ONE COLUMN in Store Advertising.

A Full Page is worth FOUR TIMES as much as a Half Page, but of course is not charged for on that basis.

Moral :

It is important for you to find out whether YOUR Store may not be one of those that ought to be advertising just twice as much as at present.

IF SO, TEST THESE STATEMENTS IN THE EXAMINER

We would like an opportunity of discussing the Publicity Problem with every Advertiser and Non-Advertiser in this city and district.

The Non-Advertiser has a business that has not reached its limit. His name is not a household word, and his trade is more liable to be stampeded than the user of Printers' Ink.

Intelligent use of Newspaper Publicity, backed up by quality is the only safe way of creating a name and a sale for your goods.

Lavergne's Challenge.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—Armand Lavergne, M.P.P., has issued an open letter to Sir Lomer Gouin, in which he demands why nothing has been done in answer to the charges he made against Adelard Turgeon. He places his seat at stake and reiterates the charges. He asks Gouin to investigate, or to have him arrested for libel.

Guelph Pockets $5,000.

Guelph, Nov. 2.—The City of Guelph gets a profit of about $5,000 from the municipally-owned street railway, after paying all expenses, and deducting $3,000 to build a new bridge over the river on the line to the Ontario Agricultural College.

Warships as Scrap Iron.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Iron and steel manufacturers have received requests from the Turkish Government to submit offers on five battleships, to be sold as scrap iron. A new navy is being organized by British officers.

Six men will be sentenced by the U. S. Supreme Court for contempt in connection with the lynching of a negro in Tennessee.

The Stratford Ministerial Association put itself on record yesterday by drafting a resolution protesting against Sunday funerals.

Eighteen bodies have been recovered from the lost steamer Hestia. The four officers were buried in one grave and the fourteen seamen in another.

The Tarent Coal pit, at Ystalyfera, Glamorganshire, Wales, was flooded last evening. Four men were drowned, while about 450 other made escapes or were rescued.

When Mrs. Maurice Owens of Brockville went to call her husband for breakfast yesterday morning, she found him dead. He was a church sexton and an old resident.

Yesterday 385,000 bushels of wheat arrived at Kingston from Fort William for the Montreal Transportation Co.'s elevator at Kingston. During the month of October 2,518,475 bushels were received.

Burns White, 24 years old, an employe of the J. M. Dutch Co., was killed yesterday morning at Hornell, N.Y., by being whirled around a shaft. His body tore a hole in the ceiling before an arm was wrenched off, allowing it to fall.

A Scandalous Appeal.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Chief Justice Fuller yesterday created a mild sensation in the Supreme Court of the United States by announcing that the papers in the case of the Yellow Poplar Lumber Co. v. S. F. Chapman would be stricken from the records of the court because of their scandalous nature.

The controversy involves a contract by Chapman to deliver to the company 50,000,000 feet of lumber in Virginia. The Court of Appeals decided in favor of Chapman, and in its position the company asks a review on various grounds, one stated as follows:

"The opinion of the Court of Appeals is so grotesque in its conclusions of law, and prepared with so little care and study as to be almost unintelligible, even gramatically, not to say legally."

The chief justice said the papers were "so impertinent and improper that they would be stricken from the docket in order to protect the records of the court from scandal."

Confesses to Hold-Up.

Truro, N.S., Nov. 2.—The mystery of the hold-up in the express office at Truro last spring is cleared up. The prisoner, Burgess, arrested in Vancouver, has made a full confession. Part of the funds have been recovered, and the superintendent of the Canadian Express Co., and a detective went west after $10,000 yesterday afternoon. Half a dozen persons, it is said, are implicated. A detective, in the guise of a friend, has been chumming with the prisoner for several months and secured the whole inside of the case.

Burgess was cross-eyed when he left Truro, but had them successfully operated on in the United States, and it was not till this was done that he ventured to cash any of the travelers' checks.

Carnegie Not Alarmed.

New York, Nov. 2.—Andrew Carnegie, multi-millionaire and peace advocate, arriving from a trip to Europe, said to an interviewer:

"What are the chances of war between England and Germany? England is in a state of frenzy wholly uncalled for. Germany has no idea of any contest except the competition of commerce."

"Doesn't that often lead to war?"

"It seldom does," declared Mr. Carnegie.

He was sure the budget which is agitating rich Britishers would pass.

Constable Sent For Trial.

Brantford, Nov. 2.—Constable David Garlow, charged with shooting C. Martin, on the Indian Reserve, with intent to injure, is committed for trial under bail of $200. Two of the Indians Garlow had under arrest were convicted. Sam Turkey was fined $20 and H. Jamieson $16 for being drunk. Garlow's presence at the log-house meeting was to help stamp out the liquor traffic on the reserve.

Killed by Airship.

Rome, Nov. 2.—As the dirigible balloon One Bis was making a landing here, Pietro Rovetti, lieutenant of engineers, in keeping the crowd back, stepped too near the whirling propeller of the dirigible and was instantly killed, half of his head being torn away.

Fear Caused Her Death.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Believing the automobile in which she was riding yesterday with her husband and baby boy, was about to collide with a rapidly moving taxicab, Mrs. Mary Blakeley jumped out and was run over and killed by the taxicab.

No More Level Crossing.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Chairman Mabee of the Railway Commission yesterday refused to allow the application of the C.N.R. to enter this city from Montreal over level crossings, though the City Council had conceded that privilege.

Lodging House Fire Fatalities.

Bellingham, Wash., Nov. 2.—Two lives were lost, one woman was fatally injured and a dozen other persons seriously hurt in a fire that destroyed three three-storey lodging house here yesterday.

TWO FRIENDS RESCUED BY GIN PILLS

The Kidney and Bladder Remedy

Mr. Herbert Bauer, of Davisville, says he owes Gin Pills a debt of gratitude which he can never repay. He suffered for years with Bladder Trouble, and could not pass urine except by much straining which caused great pain.

Mr. Bauer sent for a free sample of Gin Pills. The first dose did him so much good that he ordered six boxes and began to take them regularly. A month's treatment completely cured him.

In high glee he called on his friend, Mr. Simpson, to tell the latter about his recovery and what a wonderful remedy Gin Pills proved to be. Mr. Simpson, at that time, was suffering intensely with his Kidneys. Gin Pills were promptly recommended and taken—with the gratifying result that both these good friends are well and happy men today.

Gin Pills are a special remedy for three special diseases—Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Troubles. For these, Gin Pills are sold with an absolute guarantee of prompt relief or money refunded. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Write National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. B. Toronto, for free sample. 9

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, receipts last week were 3560 cattle, 3525 sheep and lambs, 2275 hogs and 1075 calves, while the supply on the market for local consumption to-day amounted to 2500 cattle, 1100 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 200 calves.

The offerings of cattle this morning were the largest of the season to date, but prices show an advance of ¼c per lb., due to improved quality and good demand from local and outside buyers, and the favorable weather for keeping stock. A large proportion of the cattle consisted of cows and bulls for canning purposes, for which the demand was active. Toronto packers bought quite a few carloads. Bulls sold at 2½c to 2c, and cows at 1¾c to 1¾c per lb. Choice steers, 5c to 5¼c; good, 4½c to 4¾c; fair, 4c to 4½c; medium, 3½c to 3¾c, and good to choice bulls, 3¾c to 4c per lb. Supplies of sheep and lambs were large again. Lambs sold at 5½c to 6c, and sheep at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. A good many grass-fed calves are coming forward, prices ranging at from $3 to $10 each. Hog supplies were ample, with fair demand, and sales of selected lots from west of Toronto were made at $7.75, and from east of Toronto at $7.90 to $8.00, weighed off cars.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for last week were 3704 cattle for export account, and 2300 cattle, 1150 sheep and lambs, 1400 pigs and 900 calves for consumption. The supply this morning consisted of 1000 cattle, 800 sheep, 600 lambs, 300 hogs and 180 calves.

Succumbs to Whooping Cough.

New York, Nov. 2.—John S. Kennedy, well-known as financier and philanthropist, died at his home, 6 West Fifth street, of whooping cough, he developed two weeks ago. Kennedy would have celebrated his 80th birthday next January. He was a Scotchman and was closely associated with James J. Hill in the northwestern railroad development of three decades ago, and was a member of the syndicate that contracted with the Canadian Government to build the Canadian Pacific Railway. He was a multi-millionaire.

Montreal Harbor Improvements.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—A report recommending the expenditure of approximately fifteen million dollars on the Montreal harbor works will be made by the board of seven engineers who have been preparing plans. It is proposed to spend it on the basis of $1,500,000 yearly. The scheme is to extend the harbor eastward, enlarge present docks and build new ones, double the elevator capacity, deepen the channel and effect minor improvements.

Cariboo Stage Held Up.

Vancouver, Nov. 2.—For the first time in fifteen years a hold-up has occurred on the Cariboo stage line, 137 miles north of Ashcroft, by two masked men. The express packages were removed and each ransacked. The total amount secured was $5,000.

The Cariboo stage line from Ashcroft on the C.P.R. north to Barkerville is the longest in the world. The road was built in the time of the great rush to the Cariboo gold diggings.

New York Building Condemned.

New York, Nov. 2.—The Criminal Courts' building, which was erected eighteen years ago, at a cost of $2,000,000, was yesterday declared unsafe by the engineers of the bureau of buildings. The structure, which has been the scene of the Thaw, Molineaux and other noted criminal trials, will be officially condemned. Built on marshy ground, the big eight-storey brick structure is cracked from basement to dome.

Old Sewers Undermine Paris.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The sewers of Paris to-day threaten to destroy practically every house in the Montmartre quarter. The population is terrified by the decision of engineers that there are a number of underminings, similar to that which on Saturday formed a cave large enough to swallow a six-storey apartment house when it fell in. One woman is still in the ruins.

Girl Signed Five Times.

Port Hope, Nov. 2.—The local option promoters were given a set-back at the meeting of the Town Council last evening. A deputation asked that the bylaw be given its first and second readings, and Town Clerk Sanders reported that the petition contained a sufficient number of names. H. A. Ward claimed the petition had not the requisite number of names, and produced an affidavit from a 13-year-old girl who had signed five names to the petition without permission.

The council decided to defer the matter for one week, and in the meantime a committee of the council, with the solicitor for the local option promoters, and the anti-optionists, will go over the petition and report at next meeting.

Wrote to Dead Brother.

Kingston, Nov. 2.—For their brother to be dead four months while they thought him to be alive and well, was the experience of G. S. and F. W. Wakefield, formerly of Battersea, now of Hamilton. Early last summer they received a letter from their brother, W. M. Wakefield, aged 56, from Wilmington, Del., saying that he had been ill, but that he had practically recovered. A few days ago G. S. Wakefield addressed a letter to him at Wilmington and received a letter stating that his brother died July 7, and had been buried under Masonic rites. The remains will be re-interred here.

Peary Proves His Claim.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 2.—Commander Robert E. Peary practically was endorsed as a discoverer of the North Pole by the National Geographic Society yesterday, when the explorer was invited to deliver the first of his public lectures before the society here Nov. 12th.

A public statement of the findings of the society will probably be forthcoming on Wednesday.

Not an Umpire.

A clergyman startled his drowsy congregation the other day as follows: "My dearly beloved friends, permit me to remind you that I come here to preach, not to act as umpire in a snoring match."

The Explanation.

Fred—There seems to be a lot more fuss made of Miss A.'s singing than Miss K.'s, and I am sure Miss K. has by far the richer voice. Jack—Ah, yes, but Miss A. has by far the richer father.

Cure For Disconsolate Lovers.

Somebody has dug out of an old book of the time of Queen Elizabeth the following advice to a slighted and despondent lover:

Tye one end of a rope right ore a beame
And make a slippe noose at the other extreame.
Just under the beame lett a buckliet be sett;
On it lett the lovier most manfullie gett.
Right over his heade be lett the thicket be gott
And under his care well fastened the knott.
The buckett kicked cleare, lett him take a full swinge
And leave alle the reste of the worke to the stringe!

THE WHISTLE NUISANCE

Council Took up the Problem Last Night But Will Consult Railway People Before Taking Any Action Regarding the Matter.

'RED TAPE,' SAYS ALDERMAN

The Committee of the Whole Council dealt with the nuisance of unnecessary tooting of locomotive whistles within the city limits at a meeting held before the Council meeting last night. Mr. N. T. Laplante was responsible for the discussion over the subject. He was present on another matter, and before leaving he asked and was given permission to speak about the train whistles.

"It's abominable," he said, "down near where I live, the trains stop for the semaphore and they whistle sometimes for a whole minute. It would not be so bad if one engine of a double-header was to whistle, but I have noticed frequently that both engines keep up the whistling."

Ald. Duncan agreed with Mr. Laplante, that the matter should be attended to and moved that a by-law be prepared to prevent whistling within the city limits.

Ald. Buller and Ald. Phelan suggested that before taking any action the Council should endeavour to consult the railway people about the matter, pointing out that it was better not to antagonise them by such measures.

City Solicitor Hall stated that the Municipal Act permitted such a by-law being passed, and that similar measures were in force in other places. He pointed out that the railway companies wanted a by-law passed because it relieved them of the liability they would otherwise be under for neglecting to whistle for crossings. The Act provided that where such a by-law was in force the railway companies were not liable as long as they rang their bell. The city would not be liable in the case of any accident on account of the by-law.

Ald. Buller and Phelan however thought it better to have the consultation before taking any action.

"If we pass that by-law and there is an accident," said Ald. Buller, "the city would be blamed even if they were not liable if anyone was killed."

"If you kill them with the whistle, what?" asked Mr. Laplante.

"Manslaughter," suggested Ald. Duffus.

The matter was allowed to stand over until the railway authorities are communicated with.

"It's a matter of red tape for nothing," remarked Ald. Duncan, as the incident was closed.

FUNERAL HELD ON SATURDAY

Late Geo. Griffiths Laid to Rest in Little Lake Cemetery.

The remains of the late George Griffiths were laid to rest in Little Lake cemetery on Saturday afternoon, the funeral leaving his late boarding house, the residence of Miss Sabin, 498 Chamberlain St. at 3 o'clock. Many sorrowing friends turned out to pay their last token of respect to the memory of the deceased. Forty men, some employees of the same department at the C.G.E. works as the late Mr. Griffiths, and other friends, headed by Mr. J. McKenzie (foreman) and Mr. W. Swanzer, walked in a body.

The service for the burial of the dead was said by Rev. H. R. Trumpor, rector of All Saints' church. At the house he referred in eulogistic terms to the life of the deceased, to the sorrowful aspect of his death, dying in a country far distant from those to whom he was dearest. Many beautiful floral tributes were received, one in particular being an anchor, representative of the British navy, with which the late Mr. Griffiths was identified at the time prior to coming to this country.

The pall bearers were Messrs. F. Smith, Ed. Davis, W. Greenwood, E. Jones, W. McLeod, G. Phillips.

A MUSICAL TREAT

Peterborough's music lovers are assured of a real treat to-morrow evening at the Conservatory of Music Hall, when the Royal Welsh Ladies Choir from Cardiff, Wales, will be the attraction. Since they landed at Montreal about two weeks ago they have been accorded splendid receptions by the critical audiences in Montreal, Ottawa, and Kingston The Montreal Herald, in its report says: "To hear this choir is at once a musical education and a delight. To miss hearing it would be a misfortune."

DO THE CITIZENS DESIRE A RETURN TO WARD SYSTEM?

They Will Have a Chance to say at the January Election as to Desirability of Such a Change, as Ald. Morgan's By-law Was Passed by the Council Last Night.

The people of Peterborough will have anopportunity at the elections in January to say whether or not they want a return of the ward system of electing aldermen.

Ald. Morgan's campaigning in the interest of the ward system was crowned with success last night, when the Council passed the by-law on its first and second readings, and the ratepayers will now have a chance to say what they think of the measure.

Ald. Phelan objected to the by-law being passed until there was a full meeting of the Council, and moved that it be given a three months' hoist.

Ald. Duffus, in seconding the motion, thought that the Council should consider whether or not a return to the ward system was detrimental to the interests of the people or not. The ratepayers, he thought, were just as liable to make a mistake as the Council. Ald. Morgan remarked that the people should got a chance to say what they thought even if the "cabinet did not want to give them the opportunity."

"I want you to understand," remarked the Mayor, "that I know of no cabinet in connection with this council."

Ald. Morgan's motion that the by-law be read was carried, and the ratepayers will vote on the measure.

At last night's meeting Ald. Buller introduced the by-law providing for the extending of the time for polling until 7 o'clock on the evening of election day and as a result of the passing of this by-law the measure will go into force in January next.

Protest Against Dime Novel In Print Or In Moving Picture

Dear Sir,—I trust it is generally conceded by all thoughtful people that it is exceedingly harmful for young persons to read such literature as the ordinary "Dime Novel." Thousands of men and women to-day can look back perhaps twenty years or more and behold the mental searing effect of even a short course in such reading. The word pictures of subtle crime and its detection were so vividly portrayed the young reader lived the scenes. They burned deep and the unreal life tainted the real for ever after.

Criminology shows that many of the greatest crimes of the century were indirectly caused by the dime novel. Many a convict has confessed his downfall due to such reading.

Then, if this be so, what do you consider the probable outcome of the dime novel illustrated, enacted in moving pictures?

During the past week in one of our local picture theatres I beheld crime and bloodshed in all its horrible phases, made ten times more real than words could possibly make it. The dime novel seems but a shadow in comparison.

I know not how often such scenes are enacted. But if they are common here in Peterborough surely the proper authorities will soon realize the necessity for action. We have stringent laws relative to the display of posters, etc., in which scenes of weapons and firearms are prominent.

To youthful minds no greater educative power exists than the motion pictures. Yet, the good and the evil therein have equal chances. Surely over such there should be some supervision. Or is the evil to be allowed to prey unmolested upon the innocent minds of the children?

We frequently hear expressions of regret that youthful offenders of the law are sentenced to association with hardened criminals. Their education is then soon completed. Yet, here in our midst we have lessons in darkest crime given our children for a mere nickel! No details are omitted. In fifteen minutes the child's mind is burned deep with a never-to-be-erased picture-process of murder, of brutal treatment of women and children and a general disregard for law and morality. Then what are we to expect as a result? Can a child look upon such and not in some measure, obeying the great human law, imitate in a measure at least? Undeniably. What is the remedy for this?

HERBERT B. COLLIER.

Stone Thrown Through Window Just Missed Children Asleep

The small boy was in a quandry this year as to when he should celebrate Hallowe'en, as it happened to fall on Sunday. However, to make sure of their annual fun night they turned out on Saturday and Monday with last night the more disastrous. Missing verandah chairs, gates; fences torn down, wagons spirited away, and many other evidences of the work of the younger generation reminded residents this morning of the eve they thought was to pass quietly. Generally speaking, no great damage was reported, and the gangs of young hoodlums of by-gone days are but seldom met nowadays.

Some boy in the south end of the city has an opinion of fun that will bring him into difficulty before he is many years older. He threw a stone through a bed-room window in the residence of Mr. May, Jackson avenue, narrowly missing two children, who were asleep. The broken glass was thrown around the room and the children were frightened by the racket and the noise of the boulder bounding back from the wall to the floor. Abusing privileges in this way is the reason for the enlarging the police staff on Hallowe'en and results in a close surveillance over the youth on that night as they are all regarded with suspicion.

Board Of Health's Report On Work Of Dr. McPherson, M.H.O.

The following report of a committee of the Board of Health regarding the smallpox epidemic this summer was presented to the Council last night recommending that Dr. McPherson's remuneration be $1,000. It was referred to the Finance committee:

The committee appointed by the Board of Health to submit to the Council a recommendation in regard to the remuneration that should be tendered Dr. McPherson for his work in connection with the recent smallpox epidemic begs to present the following report.

In all these were 39 cases of smallpoy, 38 of which were looked after by Dr. McPherson, the time extending from June 12th to Oct. 6th. During this period a great deal of the doctor's time was taken up each day in attending to the manifold requirements and details that the sudden and widespread appearance of the disease gave rise to. From Sept. 16 to Oct. 6 no nurse was on duty at the camp, all the professional attention being supplied by Dr. McPherson, which included a personal supervision of the disinfection of the patients and their clothing. So well was this done in every instance that not one single "return case" developed. One of the standing objections to Isolation hospitals is the fact that, very frequently on the discharge of a patient a number of new cases of the disease develop in the home or neighbourhood of the discharged case, thus giving in to what is known as "return case," and in fact producing a continuous epidemic. No such cases developed in Peterborough, proving that the disinfection was thoroughly and scientifically carried out.

At one time there were 14 houses under quarantine, which required daily visits to each for a period of two weeks. Subsequently six of the house were under quarantine, each requiring a like number of visits. These houses were all carefully disinfected, in some cases by the doctor himself.

In all 80 persons were vaccinated by Dr. McPherson, chiefly in the families where the disease appeared.

The arrangements at the camp were all that could be desired, and the placing of the patients in quarantine was in every case most expeditiously carried out, and in general, the control of the epidemic was due in a large measure to the personal supervision of all the details by the health officer. In addition the doctor's practice during all this time was greatly attenuated by the public knowledge of his association with the smallpox cases, and in view of all the facts above noted, the committee recommends that a grant of $1,000 be made to Dr. McPherson.—Signed,

F. P. McNULTY, (Chairman.)

ASSAULTED AND ROBBED

Wm. P. Whitney of Cavanville Swore That Angus McDonald Knocked Him Unconscious and Then Took His Gold Watch and Chain and $38.

CASE IN COURT TO-DAY

Angus McDonald appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning charged with the theft of a gold watch and chain and thirty-eight dollars on Thanksgiving night from Mr. Wm. P. Whitney, of Cavanville. When he came up last week he pleaded not guilty and elected summary trial. This morning Mr. R. M. Ruddy appeared for the accused and made application to His Worship to withdraw the election made, but the magistrate stated that it had been noted and refused to allow it to be withdrawn. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood prosecuted. The evidence for the prosecution was proceeded with. Several witnesses were heard when one o'clock came, and an adjournment was made to 3 o'clock.

Knocked Unconscious.

Wm. P. Whitney, of Cavanville, called, stated that he was in town on Thanksgiving Day. He stopped at the Palace hotel. He had been in the bar. No one drank with him there, but at City Hotel he treated a man about seven o'clock. After having had a drink he went out to the rear of the City Hotel. He went out alone but the man who drank with him followed him out. He came behind the witness and struck him twice on the head, the second blow knocking him unconscious. He then took about forty-two dollars, his gold watch and chain, his knife and a bunch of keys on a ring from his pocket. He identified the prisoner as the one who drank with him. His hat, his glasses and the bar of his watch chain were brought up to him at the hotel when he recovered. An old leather purse and a return ticket were taken also. There was no one else in the yard. He saw the prisoner after he struck him the first time and before he was struck the second time.

Four other witnesses were heard for the prosecution.

FIRST SOD OF THE NEW C. N. R.

Special to The Examiner.

Bowmanville, Ont., Nov. 2.—The first sod of the new Canadian Northern Railway in Durham county, was turned this morning at Starkville, Clark Township, by Miss Agnes Ferguson, daughter of Robert Ferguson, a prominent Clarke farmer. Reeve John Hughes, Councillor Stewart, Contractor Stubbs, and others, made addresses, and the event closed with cheers for Wm. Mackensie & Mann, and the local contractors.

MADE PRESENTATION

To Mr. G. Telford Who Left To-day for Orillia.

Last evening, shortly before six o'clock the members of the office staff of the Canadian Express Co., and G. N. W. Telegraph Co., made a presentation to Mr. G. Telford, who left this morning for Orillia, where he will be assistant to the manager of the Company's office there. On behalf of the staff, Mr. W. F. Skitch presented him a handsome suit case. In a few well-chosen words he expressed the regret felt by them at Mr. Telford's departure. He had been in the local office since entering the employ of the Company, and had always been most capable and efficient. They all joined in wishing him every success in the future.

Mr. Telford replying, expressed his appreciation of the kind words and splendid gift of his fellow employees.

A LARGE CLOTHING PURCHASE

There are times when other people's misfortunes are appreciated by us.

In this case it is the large wholesale clothier who had the misfortune to have several orders on his books of retailers who during the quiet summer have failed and left him with their orders in the process of manufacture. In order to right himself at once he is compelled to make radical reductions in these lines.

At this particular time Lang & Maher were on the spot and picked out what they wanted of the lines which suited their trade at their own price, and are preparing to give the citizens the benefit of their large purchase. The goods will be placed in stock and all marked for Saturday, Nov. 6th, expect bargains.

THE POULTRY ASSOCIATION WANTS A BIGGER GRANT

Asked for $75 at the Regular Meeting of the Council Last Night---Street Extension By-law Was Passed Despite Opposition From Ald. Buller.

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council was held last night with only seven of the twelve aldermen present. Those on hand for the meeting were Mayor Rush, Ald. Phelan, Metheral Gillespie, Buller, Duffus, Morgan, and Duncan.

A number of communications were dealt with, among the letters being one from the Union of Canadian municipalities asking the city to co-operate in the action the Union is about to undertake in connection with the recent cement merger. The Union proposes to lay the matter before the Government, feeling that it is a subject of vital importance to the municipalities of Canada. In this connection Ald. Buller and Morgan moved that the city clerk write the Union approving of their action. The motion was carried.

Messrs. Bickle and Kelly were delegation from the Peterborough Poultry Association in regard to a grant towards the expenses of the annual poultry show, which will be held early in January. Mr. Bickle pointed out that the Association had been given $50 last year and asked the Council to increase this amount to $75 this year.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

City Clerk Armstrong read the notice that has been advertised in connection with the extension of Aylmer street, south. Ald. Buller suggested that the Council would be making a mistake if they expropriate the property without endeavouring to come to an understanding with Mr. Henry Best. The latter, he did not think, was asking too much for his land, and, as he had been a good servant of the city, Ald. Buller thought that an effort should be made to settle the matter.

Later in the evening, however, the by-law was passed.

EVANGELISTICAL SERVICES IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHE

The text taken in St. Paul's last night by Rev. Mr. MacBeth was Hosea 10: 12. "Break up your fallow ground and the Lord will rain righteousness upon you."

Mr. MacBeth said that he did not know any community anywhere which would not be the better of a genuine revival of religious zeal and enthusiasm for the cause of Christ. A revival was primarily a re-awakening and a quickening of the Christian people. From them thus rekindled the sacred fire would spread till people without would be affected and sin hide its face in the presence of the flashing light of the new life. God is asking us if we would like to see a real revival, and if we are willing to help in bringing it about. It must begin with ourselves. Is each one of us willing to pray: "Lord send us a revival and begin with me." God would ask us when we thus pray whether we ar willing to put away everything that would hinder a revival—are we willing to get rid of prejudices and pride and our little misunderstandings with people and give ourselves to the great work that God calls us to do? No one would say "No," to God in answer to this questioning. It is an awful responsibility to block a revival when God is willing and ready to send it with its showers of blessing. If we ask as Christians, what shall we do? the answer comes from the Scripture in the word, "Break up your fallow ground." Ground once cultivated and fruitful is alowed to become fallow and unproductive—so is the ground of our hearts when we are not enthusiastic about Christ's work.

The causes of this fallowness of heart may be many and amongst them Mr. MacBeth said might be such things as neglect of the house of God with its services and meetings for prayer. Here the speaker said that Christians should not speak lightly of the church or allow others to do so without protest. By the church he meant the organisation of Christian people in the world. It was founded by Christ. He bought it with His own blood and called it to His work. Even people who are not Christians are forced to acknowledge the social and economical value of the church in a community and take good care to live with their families where the church exists. Town lands were not very high priced in Sodom and Gomorrah, where the storm was shattering them for their sins. Christians should take an interest in the extension of the church of God in Missionary zeal. This was the commission of Christ and we neglected it, our hearts and churches would be fallow ground. Mr MacBeth in conclusion expressed himself as much pleased with the large congregation that had assembled for a Monday night, after the anny services on Sunday and the busy work day. He felt that the people were in earnest and that God would do great things in these days.

The after-meeting of personal workers was attended by double the number of the night before, and the Missioner and the pastor, Mr. Pogue thanked those present for their encouraging loyalty.

Rev. A. E. Mitchell, of Hamilton, commenced his work in Knox church last night under favourable conditions. There was a fair congregation, including an encouraging number of men. The choir led in the singing of special hymns. A number of young men were busy looking after the welfare of the people. A male quartette sang "The King's Business" as an introduction to the speaker. Mr. Mitchell's first address treated of some of the unfailing characteristics of sin. He used as his text Proverbs 14:19, "Fools make a mock at sin." He is a vigorous, attractive speaker and soon had the confidence of his hearers. He pointed to the unquestionable indications of sin's existence, as verified in our personal experience. He also illustrated this point from history and natural science. Literature also recognized sin as a fact. The speaker passed from this to a consideration of sin in its deceptiveness, its blinding power and its degredation. He then turned to the only and unfailing remedy found in the mission of Jesus. Those present were deeply touched by Mr. Mitchell's appeal in prayer.

His subject to-night is "The blood was and the blood bond," and many will desire to know what this means. The meetings are open to all and a large attendance is looked for.

Light Their Pipes In A Gas Shelter And Man Will Die

Special to The Examiner.

Chatham, Nov. 2. — Wm. McMull and an English immigrant named Green on their way from work in Wallaceburg stoped into a shed sheltering the natural gas controller to light their pipes. Their matches ignited the stagnant gas and they were surrounded by a small lake of fire, receiving terrible burns, from which McMull will die.

Toronto Suicide May Have Been A Peterborough Man

Seated against a building between Front street and the Esplanade, the body of an unknown man was found by P. C. McKee at 11.35 last night. A bullet-hole in his head and a revolver lying on the ground beside him told their story. The weapon had been placed so close to his head that the flesh was burned. The man was wearing a gray sweater, and had no overcoat. He appears to have been about 28 years of age. In his pocket was a card bearing the name of George J. Guerin. The body was taken to the morgue, where it still awaits identification.—Torpnto News.

The body of the man who shot himself at St. Lawrence Market Sunday night is still at the Morgue awaiting identification. The card found on the dead man bearing the name of George J. Guerin, was the basis of inquiries by the police yesterday, but nothing was learned that would throw any light on the dead man's identity. The only clue the police have to work on no wis the fact that the hat found on the suicide was bought at the store of Loch & Sons, Peterborough.

Enquiring this afternoon did not bring out any information in regard to the man who it is believed may belong to Peterborough.

DESPERADO IS CHASED

Cook Appeared on Main Street at Orangeville at Noon To-day and Was Pursued by a Posse.

BROTHER WITH HIM

Special to The Examiner.

Orangeville, Nov. 2.—Just before noon to-day those walking on Broadway were startled to hear that Bob Cook, the desperado who is so badly wanted for stabbing Constable Halbert was coming down the street. A team of black horses driven rapidly by two men passed up the street and was immediately pursued by Chief Speers and six special constables, variously armed with revolvers, shotguns and rifles. The men were said to be both Cook and his brother William and there were thought to have taken the road to their father's home at Caledon.

AT BROCK STREET RINK

Prof. Vernon Delighted Large Crowd Last Night.

Prof. E. F. Vernon in his sensational and world famous auto act, made a big hit at the Brock street Roleir Rink last night. There was a large crowd present and the professor was warmly applauded. He has automobile skates and when he goes on the floor all the light are turned out, and he becomes illuminated and does his stunt with light provided by a battery concealed on his person. Prof. Vernon will appear again to-night and on Wednesday night.

24 POUND TURNIP

Taken From Field in Smith—is a Record Size.

W. A. Stabler is the authority for the statemnet that Mr. T. H. Northey of the 15th con. of Smith, took in a Swede turnip yesterday weighing 24 lbs. Three of them were placed on the scales and tipped the beam at 47½ lbs. All of them are of extraordinary size and the crop throughout the country is a heavy one.

CHIVALRY KEPT HIM UNMARRIED

Man Who Liked Women Too Well to Marry One is Dead.

Cincinnati, Nov. 1.—Julius Lambert, who died at the age of eighty-one, a bachelor, was buried to-day from the home of Frank Stubenrauch,, with whose family he boarded for thirty-five years, thus establishing a double record as a star boarder and the oldest bachelor in Cincinnati. He was a bachelor from choice, and not a woman hater.

"I think so well of womankind that I wouldn't dare ask a woman to marry me, because I believe I could not support a wife as one should be supported," was the reason for his bachelorhood.

Yet Lambert was well to do, and for the last fifteen years lived without working. He could have supported a family in comfort, but he was of a chivalrous nature.

"He was an ideal boarder," said Stubenrauch to-day, "but we never considered him a boarder. He never complained, and all our efforts were directed toward making him happy. But he was by nature a happy man.

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE
My face was paralyzed, I could not speak; five doctors failed to help me and I was in despair when housing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used this wonderful restorative treatment and became well and strong in every way. I would not go back to my former condition for all the gold in the country," writes Mr. Wm. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont.

GOT 15 DAYS

Had no Money to Pay the Fine and Had He go to Jail.

Aza Reid was fined $5.75 at the police court this morning for being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty but did not have the money to pay the fine. He was sent to gaol for fifteen days.

WHAT'S THE USE.

The Toronto Star makes this pertinent inquiry:

Of what use is it to drill a boy in writing, arithmetic and bookkeeping if he is allowed to retain a rudeness of manner and a slovenliness of person that causes a prospective employer to reject him, or an actual employer to dispense with his services as soon as possible?

This opens out a broad field of consideration—the full function of our schools and educational institutions. Are our children being educated or merely stuffed with facts that will stay in place long enough to pass the ordeal of examinations? Is the mind being developed and are the faculties of the child being trained in the directions to meet the requirements of life in the practical activities of the world? Do our schools teach politeness, refinement of speech, respect for the feelings and rights of others, the graces of deportment, the love of the beautiful and other things of cognate character, that combine to contribute to the greatest success in achieving the ideal manhood or womanhood, and the greatest success in any domain of life in which man or woman at his or her best is a factor?

The other day two Normal School students, accompanied by an elderly gentleman, were walking in the park. The party halted to admire a copper beech, and one of the girls proposed plucking a few leaves—"for nature study." The gentleman at once pointed out the obvious gross impropriety of such an action—the wrongfulness—not of the mere act itself—but of the principle it involved. The beech was planted for the pleasure of everybody; if one girl plucked a few leaves each of the one hundred and fifty students at the school might, with as good right, do the same. The result would be the death of the tree, and an invasion of the rights of others and a practical indulgence of selfish, individual interest at the expense of the many. If this young lady, who doubtless acted from mere thoughtlessness, had been schooled from her earliest days in the cardinal principles of religion and civilisation, respect for the rights and interests of others, she would not for a moment have proposed outraging the principle. Disregard of it is responsible for the destruction in a great part of the beauty of the city. One girl plucking a leaf or two from a copper beech in a public park would not be a very serious matter, but a thousand with equal rights, doing the same would bring ruin. One person walking across the green sward of a park would do little damage, but a thousand doing the same or "cutting corners" on a street boulevard, or an unfenced lawn, would and do create disfigurement that destroys in that respect the beauty of our streets and he tidiness of our boulevards and lawns. These things are done in thoughtlessness many times, simply because the offenders have not been taught. If our schools taught the principles of beauty, of respect for the rights of others and of the greatest good to the greatest number the principle would become inground and become a part of the character.

But these things are not taught, either by example or precept, and our school children are allowed to grow up without the ethical training fitting them to become the best members of society.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sherry gets a government job in Ontario. Now, says the Lethbridge Herald, watch the temperance people get after Whitney for playing a liquor favourite.

Premier Whitney the other day declared himself anxious to promote the interests of temeprance. His three-fifths clause enacted in that interest did not seem to bring satisfactory results in the opinion of those having a real moral and not political interest in temperance reform.

It is asserted that a majority of the Conservatives are averse to a bye-election contest in West Middlesex. The demands of party, however, outweigh local sentiment. There does not seem to be any policy of principle behind, a contest brought on by outside influences, except the glory of a party gain. Of course the Conservatives are within their right in making a contest, but not so much so if the local members of the party are opposed to it. Mr. Borden seems to be willing to lend himself to machine rule in bringing on a contest against the wishes of the local members of his party. He must have been consulted; but if he were not consulted, the machine is superior to the leader; the tail wags the tog.

REGULATION NOT PROHIBITION

(Ottawa Free Press.)

This is Canada's era of mergers and rumors of mergers. The cement merger, the carriage merger, the rubber merger, the machinery merger—all have been consummated within the past few months. And now, to cap the climax, there comes to those who have an ear to the ground in the financial world, the faint rumbling from afar of a more gigantic merger than has been in this Dominion, a merger of the leading Canadian steel and coal enterprises with a capital of upwards of one hundred million dollars.

Concurrently with these announcements, of course, come shrieks from several Canadian newspapers who propound the usual anti-trust doctrines.

Some time ago the Ottawa Journal said its say about the cement merger. Around the same time the Kingston Standard screamed in denunciation of "the cement trust." Where is this thing going to stop? asked the Standard. Is Canada going to permit these great insatiable monsters to feed and wax fat upon her entrails?

In their hysteria such newspapers do not for a moment entertain the idea that they are possibly arguing against themselves.

Consider the cement merger for example. Why was this merger company formed? It was formed, it is asserted, as a result of cut-throat competition which, arose from the excess of supply over demand, and which forced down the market price below the cost of manufacture.

Had the merger not been effected, what would have been the result? Ere long all but the strongest and best cement concerns would, in all probability have been frozen out of business by the fierce competition, the supply would thereby have become equalized to or even less than the demand, and the market price would have gone up to its normal level; indeed, it would probably go to a higher level in the reaction following the slump.

The newspapers which are horrified at the merger company's increase of the market price of cement, therefore, seem to be complaining about something which would have come about, to even a greater degree, had no one ever dreamed of a merger.

In either event, the weakest cement plants would have had to cease operations; it is beyond the power of the most powerful merger imaginable to thrust upon the consumer more of a certain commodity than he requires.

In this age of keen competion the knife frequently cuts too deeply, thereby creating a cycle of high and low prices and wages, and the maximum and minimum of unemployment. This cycle plays no small part in the larger cycle of depression and over-prosperity.

Any agency, therefore, which tends to prevent these extreme, to preserve the wholesome equilibrium in the worlds of industry, finance and labour, cannot be wholly bad.

Furthermore, the tendency of today is necessarily toward consolidation. This is a social and political as well as an economic tendency. We see it in such great movements as the laymen's missionary movement; we see it in the visit of Mrs. Pankhurst to America for the purpose of uniting the British and American branches of the suffragette movement; we see it in international alliances, in trade unionism, and in a score of other examples of amalgamation. "In union is strength," is true as never before in this age in which strength is an essential of success, and it is especially true in the great world of commerce and industry.

Statesmen have learned that it is useless to try to combat a natural economic tendency. Tariffs, anti-trust laws and all legislation concerning commerce and industry must work along with, rather than counter to, such tendencies. Roosevelt's "big stick" failed to stem the tide of trusts in the United States, the birthplace, and home of he trusts.

The merger has its evils, but it is not an unmitigated evil. Rather it is to be classed among the necessary economic evils of to-day. This is the conclusion arrived at by such men as Prof. Ripley, of Harvard, and Prof. Jenks, who have made a thorough study of the trust problem in all its phases in the United States, the breeding-place of trusts.

It is not for Canadian legislators to essay the impossible by attempting to prevent trusts from coming into existence; secret pools and amalgamations are five times more pernicious in their effects, more cunning in their machinations, and more difficult to get at legally than the merger companes which are organised openly and in accordance with Canadian corporation laws.

But it is for Canadian legislators to see to it that the barriers between the trusts and the power of an absolute monarch over the consuming power are not demolished, as many of them have been in the case of Standard Oil.

Careful and judicious regulation, not prohibition or abolition of the trusts is the solution of the trust problem in Canada.

WEST MIDDLESEX.

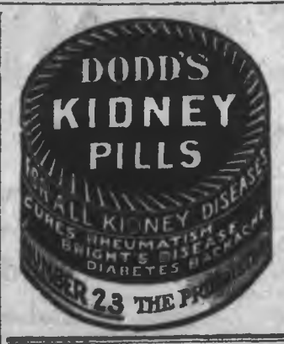
(London Advertiser.)

Probably nine out of ten West Middlesex Conservatives want no bye-election contest. No intelligent Conservative thinks that Mr. McLaughlin has a chance of success. Even Mr. McLaughlin's nominator admitted there was a feeling in the party in favour of allowing Mr. Ross to be returned by acclamation. This feeling was attested by the meagre attendance.

A contest has been forced by outside influences. Pressure was applied from headquarters. The official party organizer, and a number of party managers from London and Lambton, went to the convention to whip reluctant delegates into line.

The leaders at Ottawa consider it advisable to make a show of fight for the moral effect upon the country. This would be excusable if there were any policy, or issue, or principle, to justify over-riding local sentiment. It has been suggested that the by-election should be made a test of public opinion upon the naval question. The Liberals would have no objection, but Mr. McLauchlin cannot raise the issue because he has invited Mr. Borden to speak in the riding; and Mr. Borden supports the course taken by the Government.

Judging by Mr. Armstrong's speech and by the local party organ, Mr. McLaughlin will rely upon a sectional campaign — by trying to array the country against the town. He is to pose as a farmer's candidate and raise the anti-lawyer cry on the side-lines and concessions. It is an old game, but it has been tried before and in vain among the intelligent farmers of West Middlesex. The riding has a distinguished political tradition, and will not be led astray by paltry appeals to prejudice. It has a habit of scrutinizing candidates and policies.



DIRTY KIDNEYS ARE CAUSE OF BACKACHE

A Few Doses Will Clean and Regulate the Kidneys and Make You Feel Fine.

If you take several doses of Pape's Diuretic, all backache and distress from out-of-order kidneys or bladder trouble will vanish, and you will feel fine.

Lame back, painful stitches, rheumatism, nervous headache, dizziness, irritability, sleeplessness, inflamed, or swollen eyelids, worn-out, sick feeling and other symptoms of sluggish, inactive kidneys disappear.

Uncontrollable, smarting, frequent urination (especially at night) and all bladder misery ends.

This unusual preparation goes at once to the disordered kidneys, bladder and urinary system and distributes its healing, cleansing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realise it.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder or feel rheumatism pains, begin taking this harmless medicine with the knowledge that there is no other remedy at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will affect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment means clean, active, healthy, kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and no backache.

LEAVES FIRED BY BOYS CAUSED REID STREET BLAZE

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Pogue from the lawn of St. Paul's manse, at the head of Simcoe St., saw the drift of leaves against the fence and sheds of Mr. Hazen Ritchie, on the Reid street side, ablase, the leaves having been fired by boys. She sent in an alarm and but for the prompt arrival of the brigade a lively blaze would have followed, for the fire had mounted to, and was eating into the roof of the shed. Trifling damage was done. The happening was a lesson to those who permit leaves to lie against their fences. A carelessly dropped lighted match might, especially at night, causes serious damage.

THE NOX TASTELESS LIQUOR DRUG AND TOBACCO CURE.

We have yet to hear of one failure to cure where a fair trial has been given. Can be given without the person knowing it, is harmless and absolutely without taste. HALLOWE'EN PRANKS

Boys Were Placed in Custody for Being Troublesome.

A number of young lads made themselves troublesome last night in East City by destroying property. They were caught and placed in a cell at the police station where they were kept for several hours. The fence from the corner of Robinson street to the Scott and Hogg's coal yard was torn down by these youths, the bell of St. Luke's church was rung and afterwards the rope was cut. Somebody's gate was also carried on to the church roof.

Gordon's Proposal

It Only Came After He Recovered From His Bashfulness

By CLARA E. HOLMES

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"That Gordon McFarland," remarked Davy Moulton, "is the limit. He hasn't courage enough to propose."

"Huh! Do you want to marry him that you are so anxious about it?"

"No; I haven't cherry lips and dimples"—

"Never mind the inventory, Brother Davy," she replied.

"All right, sis, but it'll never happen unless you propose. In the presence of his divinity—meaning you—he is reduced to a pulp."

The sting to this teasing was in its truth. Gordon was devotion itself, yet it was a silent adoration. He seemed unable to utter a word in her presence. She had given him many opportunities in that unexplainable way a woman has, and once or twice he had floundered and stammered with effort until in vexation she had retorted so whimsically that she had silenced him completely.

"Oh, he's just too ridiculous, a great big thing like him, stammering and blushing like a schoolboy. It fairly makes me ashamed," she grumbled.

A woman's motives are difficult to fathom. Bess, in an unusual fit of graciousness, had allowed Gordon to escort her to a ball. She was justly vain of her escort's appearance as she snuggled beside him in the depths of the carriage. But by the time they had arrived her manner had changed visibly, so much so that she almost ignored him after the conventional first dance. He had tangled his feet hopelessly in her train and missed step until she was nearly beside herself with mortification.

There was ample excuse for his bewilderment. She was intoxicatingly lovely, with her draperies floating, cloudlike, about her bare shoulders, and the flush of exercise tinting her face like a rose. Davy's comment was, "Gordon looks as if he would like to eat her."

Bess was so provoked at this that she intended to punish Gordon by flirting outrageously. "Besides, if I could make him cross, he might pluck up a fraction of courage," she thought. It vexed her still more because she felt that he understood her motive. So did Davy, and he would not fail to tease her on the morrow.

Carelessly tossing Gordon her bouquet in passing, she walked off with Gerald Stone for an ice.

"Queer duck, that Gordon. Doesn't appear to have much to say," remarked Gerald insinuatingly.

Here the eternal feminine came to the surface. "Oh, I don't know!" Her tone was resentful in the extreme. The next instant she said sweetly, "Here's just the nook for a quiet chat. Let us sit here awhile. The ice can wait; so can Gordon. He'd hold my bouquet all night," laughingly.

An hour later Gordon sat abstractedly pulling at the petals of the roses. He had hoped that the flowers might convey to her that which he found so difficult to say.

In upon his musing dribbled the conversation of two acquaintances.

"So Gerald Stone has won Bessie Moulton? I thought Gordon was to be the man, but he lacked courage. He deserves to lose her. He should know a woman despises a timid heart," said a voice he knew.

"I wonder how she would like it if she knew that Gerald boasted to me of his conquest? He told as a great joke that she had left Gordon to moon over her bouquet. Said they were going to slip away and let him hunt for her when he had tired of the flowers. Seemed to think it mighty funny," answered the speaker's companion.

"It's contemptible. I wouldn't have thought it of Bessie Moulton!" was the reply as they sauntered down the room.

The sturdy independence of Gordon's Scotch ancestry rose within him. He attached his card to the flowers and left them in the cloakroom; then, with a determined step, he left the house.

Bess loitered in her frivolous chat with the man she detested, dawdled over her ice and finally sauntered back to the dancing hall, apparently oblivious to the fact that she had promised this twostep to Gordon. She expected him to be waiting for her. When he was not to be seen she was perturbed.

"Come on, let's take this twostep," said Gerald, with great familiarity.

"No, thanks," hotly resenting his tone. "You have had more than enough of my company for one evening," she added lightly lest she betray her annoyance as to Gordon.

An hour or so later she called Gerald to her side. "I claim a woman's prerogative—I have changed my mind. You may take me home."

As he bowed his thanks he thought of his boast to Van Anytime and smiled. "I suspect it was he who tattled."

Bess kept up a running fire of nonsense all the way home, effectually excluding sentiment.

Gordon waited in the shadow of the trees until they arrived. He meant to assure himself that he was not being misled and that he was doing her no injustice.

"Not dignified, this, but I must make sure. I do not blame her for it, but she might have been more kind about it. I certainly subjected her to ridicule; and then, when she showed me her favor so plainly and I was such a tongue tied fool that I couldn't take advantage of it, she must have thought—oh, I do not know what she could think but that I was a fool!" he muttered bitterly.

He watched Gerald assist her from the carriage with what looked to his jealous eyes like an embrace, and as she turned to enter the house he gave her the flowers. She tossed them into the shrubbery disdainfully. "I don't want the withered things," she said.

Gordon gathered one rose from the apparently despised bouquet and placed it in a book, as if he had need of a token by which to remember this one night.

In the meantime Bess, in her room, was pressing his card to her lips with tears and inarticulate murmurings.

* * * * * * *

Two years later Gordon McFarland sat in his office writing. It was after business hours, but he had remained to think out certain points in quiet and solitude.

Turning in his chair, he picked up the telephone receiver.

"I will call Jones and find out what he knows about this business," he soliloquized. He was on the point of calling "Hello, central!" when the sound of his own name arrested his attention. "That's the nuisance of a party line," he muttered. He had no intention of listening, but how could he help it when he heard his own name in that well remembered voice?

"Oh, Gordon McFarland? Well, if you'll never, never breathe it I'll tell you. He took me to a ball, and, yes, Grace, he left me to get home as best I could.

"No; certainly I don't think he was to blame. It must have been some of Davy's mischief.

"Yes, of course Davy denied it, but I know it was. Gordon would not have done it unless he thought he was justified.

"What's that? Did I really care? Well, yes, I did, and I don't care if you do know it.

"No, no; we weren't engaged. He was so bashful.

"What's that? Encourage him? I—I did. I tried to make him jealous of that abominable Gerald Stone, and—and I succeeded. That's how it all happened.

"Yes, that's so. It isn't the thing to talk secrets over a phone. Those horrid operators always do listen. Well, goodby! Come over in the morning—324 Fourth street, you remember. Good night!"

Gordon called in hurriedly before she could hang up. "Hello, Bessie!"

"Well, what is it, Grace?"

"This is not Grace, Bessie."

"Gordon McFarland!" The exclamation was one of dismayed surprise.

"Yes. I have recovered from my bashfulness. Will you marry me now, Bessie?"

"Indeed I will not! You're just too awful! You listened!"

"I couldn't help it, and I'm glad I didn't try. Don't you hang up that receiver or I'll be there within ten minutes," he threatened.

"Then I'll hang it up. If you want an answer to that question come and get it." And he heard the receiver clang as it reached the hook.

The Deer's Eyes.

A Canadian hunter tells this incident of how he once came face to face with his quarry and hadn't the heart to fire: "It wasn't a case of 'buck fever,' such as a novice might experience, for I had been a hunter for many years and had killed a good many deer. This was a particularly fine buck that I had followed for three days. A strong man can run any deer to earth in time, and at last I had my prey tired out. From the top of a hill I sighted him a few miles away. He had given up the fight and had stretched himself out on the snow. As I stalked him he changed his position and took shelter behind a bowlder, and, using the same bowlder for a shelter, I came suddenly face to face with him. He didn't attempt to run away, but stood there looking at me with the most piteous pair of eyes I ever saw.

"Shoot? I could have no more shot him than I could have shot a child. Had the chance come from a distance of a hundred yards I would have shot him down and carried his antlers home in triumph, but once having looked into those eyes it would have been nothing less than murder. I have hunted deer since then, but I find the sport affords me little pleasure. Whenever I draw a bead the picture of those mute, appealing eyes comes before me, and, though it has not prevented me from pulling the trigger, I have always felt glad somehow when my bullet failed to find its mark."

Hair Sense.

A Scottish lad had his leg injured at a factory and was treated for some time by the doctor without favorable results.

His mother had great faith in a local bone setter and wanted her son to go to him, but the boy objected, preferring, as he said, the "regular factory."

Finally, however, he yielded to his mother's persuasions and was taken to the famous bone setter. The leg was duly examined, and it was found necessary to pull it very severely in order "to get the bone in," as the bone setter expressed it.

The patient howled in agony, but at last the bone was "got in," and he was bidden to go home—in a few days he would be all right and could resume work.

"Didn't he do it well?" said the joyous old lady as they started homeward.

"Yes, he did, mother," said the lad. "He pulled it well, but ye ken I was na sic a fool as to gie him the bad leg."—London Tatler.

A Witty Comment.

None of Dickens' children inherited his genius, but Charles Dickens, Jr., had some of his father's humor. When in Boston a number of years ago he was the guest at a dinner given by a club whose membership included many admirers of his father. The presiding officer in an endeavor to emphasize this circumstance as particularly grateful to the guest by an unfortunate slip of the tongue declared that the hosts were delighted to welcome Charles Dickens the younger not only on his own account, but for his father's. Mr. Dickens in response said that he cordially concurred in the estimate of his father as his superior and always appreciated manly candor combined with critical acumen. The situation was saved by a wit calling out, "Long live Charles the second, who never lost his head!"—Boston Transcript.

Historical Divisions of Time.

For convenience time is by historians usually divided into three great eras—ancient, mediaeval (or middle) and modern. The ancient period is considered to extend from the earliest times down to the fall of the Roman empire in the west in A. D. 476, the mediaeval from that date to the discovery of America by Columbus in 1492 and the modern from that time to the present. Some historians prefer to put the end of the mediaeval period at the capture of Constantinople by the Turks, about forty years earlier than the Columbus event. The dark ages are often held to be coeval with the mediaeval era, but some authorities think that the term should be applied only to the part of the era extending from the downfall of the empire of Charlemagne, in the ninth century, onward.

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!"

How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his vital forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies—and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed receive in Shakespeare's phrase, "a second life."

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to be had for the asking by means of that which has been aptly described by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vitol—meaning life "health-producer"—has been given.

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if persevered in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vitol in increasing quantities The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vitol as after wasting illness and as a restorer of health, not only in nervous diseases (with their innumerable symptoms of discomfort and distress including loss of memory, insomnia, irresolution, weakness of the will &c.), but also in anaemia, digestive disturbances and consumption.

At Two-Bar Ranch

The Manager Got His Instructions and Obeyed Them

By DONALD ALLEN

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

A manager, a housekeeper, a cook and twenty-six cowboys made up the complement at the Two-Bar ranch, and every one except the manager was laboring under suppressed excitement. No orders had been promulgated, but the Saturday afternoon had been devoted by unanimous consent toward washing up, combing hair and bringing out white shirts and red neckties. Two weeks previously old Jim Bradshaw, foreman, who was supposed to be deep in the confidence of the manager, had said to the storekeeper on Lame Calf creek:

"Tom, old Two-Bar is coming right to the front in a business way."

"As to how?"

"Going to have a telephone line over to the railroad."

"That ain't so much."

"Going to fit up an office for the manager with desks and chairs, same as a New York broker's office."

"Nothing to brag of."

"Going to have a typewriting machine."

"Lots of folks got 'em."

"And now hold your breath, you old swindler, while I tell you the rest. We're going to have a girl to run the machine."

"No-o-o!"

"It's a fact. Coming from Chicago. Smarter'n chain lightning. She's going to be stenographer and typewriter. Yes, sir, she is, and no other biamed ranch for a hundred miles around has got one. Old Two-Bar is ahead on the game."

"Well?" queried the storekeeper after a long pause.

"Well, I'm here to give you a tip. If you haven't got two dozen white shirts in stock, send for them quicker than lightning. Send for red neckties. Send for silk handkerchiefs. Send for real cloth collars, and send for perfumery and toilet soap."

"Why?"

"Why, you galoot? Because every man on our ranch is going to come loping over here and inquire for these very things and isn't going to worry about prices either. Because why? Because every man is going to fall in love with that girl before she gets within a mile of the ranch and is going to dress up and let her see what a Jim dandy he is. There can't but one man marry her, and the rest of the gang will shoot him."

It was a tip. The shirts and other things were sent for, and the boys loped over. Forty-nine cent white shirts went for a dollar and a half and no questions asked. Perfumery and hair oil met with a firm market. Red neckties were in great demand.

And now the great day had finally arrived. Old Tom had been sent over to the railroad with the buckboard to bring back the young woman and her trunk. Every man had volunteered to make the trip, and when Old Tom had been selected the gang gathered around him, and his spokesman said:

"There's got to be a square deal or bloodshed—no flirting or soft talk to get ahead of the rest of us. You've got an old woman down on the Brazos, Tom, and if you don't own up to that girl that you have off comes your scalp."

Four hours later the buckboard was sighted with a fieldglass. Fifteen minutes after the announcement it could be made out with the naked eye. While it was still a mile away the cowboys formed in double line along the road to the house. At half a mile they removed their hats and puffed out their chests, at seventy rods their red neckties blushed furiously. And now Old Tom, having the dignity of a Roman senator, drove the vehicle between the lines, and the veiled lady bowed right and left as every man bent his head and scraped his right foot. Nothing further could have been desired by the most critical.

"And what does she look like?" was demanded of Old Tom as he reached the stables, where they waited for him.

"Boys, she's cute. She's a looker. She's going to set hearts afire and cause forty different murders. You might just as well go into convention and resolve that every galoot of you is going to fall head over heels in love with her at first sight."

Old Tom's prediction was fulfilled. Every man as he got sight of Miss Glazier fell in love with her or thought he did. In a week discipline was lax in a fortnight there was none at all. Every cowboy on the ranch wanted to sit around looking pretty, and the Chinese cook didn't have time to wash half the white shirts awaiting him. Old Tom stormed and the manager complained, but things continued at sixes and sevens. Few of the men could make an errand at the office. It was only while the typist was walking out that they had sight of her. Three or four got up the nerve to approach her, and the bearing and language of all of them were alike. They bowed and scraped and cleared their throats and said:

"Good evening, marm. I'm hoping I see you well, marm. I'm hoping this country appeals to you. I'm hoping you won't mind the galoots a-peeping at you from behind the bunkhouse and the stables and showing what their bringing up has been. I'm hoping that you may decide to consider to settle down among us after finding a devoted husband—one perfectly willing to die for you any time of day or night."

And Miss Glazier would smile and blush and reply that she liked the country and the people and the cattle and the wolves and jack rabbits, and the man would back away bowing to the ground to assert to his comrades in waiting that he had made an impression and to be called a liar for the statement.

Cowboys came from other ranches, but were run off as fast as they appeared. Travelers rode out of their way, but were discouraged. At the end of three months the Two-Bar ranch had the reputation of being at those ends, and the manager's quarterly report elicited the following reply from eastern stockholders:

"Not at all satisfactory. What is the matter out there?"

"I have a stenographer and typist," was telegraphed back.

"Then discharge or marry her," were the instructions.

The manager was a man of action. He had never discharged a stenographer from his employ, and he was not going to begin then—not if Miss Glazier would accept him and the other alternative. She blushed and said she would, but wanted to go back to Chicago for a couple of weeks to see her mother.

The men got hold of the news an hour later—that is, Old Tom told them separately and collectively that any of them who wanted to bid the angel goodby would find her in the office awaiting them. It was white shirts and red neckties again; it was more hair oil and perfumery. They said nothing to each other, but they read each other's thoughts. If a husband could keep that poor girl at Two-Bar she should have one. It was Old Tom who lined them up and sent in the first man. The first man had his speech all ready. So did the second, the third and down to the last, and those speeches were all alike. They began with a bow and a kick and a lump in the throat and proceeded:

"I hears, marm—I hears that you are going away for to dwell in our midst no more."

"Yes, I am going back to Chicago."

"During your stay here, marm, you may have observed—you may have taken notice that I have cast my eyes on you as often as possible, and that with the greatest possible respect. It has been a case of love on my part, and I am now here to offer you my hand and heart and promise to do everything in my power to make you happy. I'm rough, but I'm tender. I ain't educated, but I'll never ask for a divorce."

And the reply each one received was the same:

"I feel honored, but must tell you that I am to marry the manager on my return."

And when the last had filed in and filed out Old Tom suddenly broke forth:

"Now, you cross-eyed, lop shouldered, knock-kneed gang of galoots, the turtle-doves have got through cooing. Cupid's got a hustle on him, and if you don't hustle around and bring Two-Bar back to her pristine glory I'll turn loose and bury the whole of you in one grave!"

Know All Their Tricks.

"Gentlemen," said Frederick the Great, "I am entirely dissatisfied with the cavalry. The regiments are completely out of hand; there is no accuracy, no order; the men ride like sailors. I beg that this may not occur again and that each of you will pay more attention to his duty, but I know how things go on. You think I am not up to your dodges, but I know them all and will recapitulate them.

"When the season for riding drill comes on the captain sends for the sergeant major and says: 'I have an appointment this morning at ——. Tell the first lieutenant to take the rides.' So the sergeant major goes to the senior subaltern and gives him the message, and the latter says: 'What! The captain will be away? Then I am off hunting. Tell the second lieutenant to take the men.' And the second lieutenant, who is probably still in bed, says: 'What, both of them away? Then I will stay where I am. I was up till 3 this morning at a dance. Tell the corpet I am ill and he must take the rides.' Finally the corpet remarks: 'Look here, sergeant major, what is the good of my standing out there in the cold? You know all about it much better than I do. You go and take them.' And so it goes, and what must be the end of it all? What can I hope to do with such cavalry before the enemy?"—"History of Frederick the Great."

His Head For Trifles.

They were sitting in the gloaming, planning the home to be—at least, she was planning. George merely listened, pondered, listened and sighed.

"And we'll have one of those lovely velvety Turkey carpets for the dining room, George!" she cooed.

"Oh, my pet," he lilted, "what a trouble the crumbs and cigarette ashes would be on a Turkey carpet. I can't bear the thought of my sweetheart brushing and brushing, and making those dear, sweet little hands rough like the hands of any common housemaid!"

"What a head you have for trifles, dear!" she lowed softly.

"Tell you what we'll do, dear!" cackled George. "We'll toss for it! Tails for the Turkey carpet, heads for linoleum!"

Clink! And the linoleum had it.

"How lucky!" murmured George as he picked up the double headed penny. "How lucky it is to have a head for trifles—two heads, in fact!"—London Tit-Bits.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews, perhaps Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

ONE WOMAN'S STATEMENT

Tells Her Suffering Sisters to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They Proved a Blessing to Her When Her Pains and Weakness Were Almost More Than She Could Bear

St. George, Man., Nov. 1—Special—Hoping to save her sister women in the West from pains and aches which come at the critical times in a woman's life, Mrs. Arsene Vinet of this place, has given the following statement for publication:

"I have brought up a large family and have always enjoyed good health until the last two years. I am fifty-four years of age and at the critical time of life that comes to every woman, I had pains in my right hip and shoulder. I could not lie down two minutes at a time without suffering the greatest agony. Sometimes I awakened with a feeling as if some one had laid a piece of ice on my head. Another time it would be a burning pain under the left shoulder.

"I took many medicines but could get no relief, till reading of cures of similar cases to my own by Dodd's Kidney Pills, led me to try them. They did wonders for me.

"I want all women to know what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. The woman who has sound Kidneys is safeguarded against nine-tenths of the suffering that makes life a burden to the women of Canada.

MAN BLAMED FOR A DOZEN FIRES

Robert Gowling of Cobourg on Trial for Incendiarism.

Cobourg, Nov. 2.—Robert Gowling will be placed on trial here to-morrow on a charge of incendiarism. Crown Attorney Kerr will question him if he goes on the stand to defend himself as to his knowledge of a dozen other fires occurring here recently, which have done damage of $50,000.

He is twenty-seven years old, unmarried, and but three years out from England. All the fires took place within a short distance of the place where he boards. He was arrested last night after a fire had broken out in the stable of Mr. Robert Cockburn, with whom he boarded.

The townsfolk are keenly interested in the trial.

ARRESTED ON A TRUMPED-UP CHARGE

"The Lily and the Prince," the companion play to "When Knighthood Was in Flower," will be the offering at the Grand next Saturday, matinee and evening. The pretty love story has proven to be Frank Holland's greatest success, inasmuch as it contains all the charms of entertainment for young as well as the old. Its tale is of absorbing interest, centered around the lives of Angela di Savelli, her dear old father and also her lover Orsini. Her father is approached in the beginning of the play by a man of high rank who endeavours to secure his aid and assistance to overthrow the ruling power. Upon refusing to lend his assistance he is arrested on a trumped up charge and taken to prison. The girl in her sweet and loving innocence is thrown upon her own resources and the masterful manner in which she succeeds in pleading her cause for her father is of the greatest interest. The third act of the play depicts a scene all hung in black velvet, wherein her father is being tried before the councillors. Here she gains entrance and beseechingly implores the release of her father. Her pleading enrages the ruler of the council and she, recognizing the voice of the one who tried to bribe her father and who is the cause of her trials and tribulations turns upon him with all the strength of injured and enraged girlhood and denounces him before all, and succeeds in gaining the release of her father. She is the kind of girl we delight in holding before our children's eye as an ideal to follow and imitate.

BELMONT CLUB HELD A DANCE

An Enjoyable Event in Foresters' Hall Last Evening.

The dance given last evening in the Forester's hall, Simcoe street, for the members of the Belmont Club and their lady friends, was an enjoyable event, and about the first social function to be held this season. There were about thirty-five couples present, and the well-arranged programme was thoroughly delightful. Mr. Herbert Nicholl of the Crystal, presided at the piano and those present were greatly pleased with his musical selections. At midnight dainty refreshments were served, after which the dancing was kept up for an hour.

Reception To Bishop Sweeny By Congregation Of St. John's

Presented With an Address and Picture of St. John's Church---Formal Opening of New Rectory---A Delightful Evening Spent by a Large and Representative Gathering.

The new Rectory of St. John's last night had its "house-warming"—a more than figurative term expressing the warmly cordial character of the gathering assembled for the reception of Bishop Sweeny, and at the same time to give the congregation an opportunity ot take part in the formal opening of what the rector is good enough to regard as the parochal home.

The gathering was entirely informal, except that the guests were received by the Rector, assisted by the wives of the church wardens, Mesdames Coulthard and Mills, and presented to the Bishop, whose cordial and unaffected greeting and genial bearing gave tone to the spirit of the occasion, and contributed largely to the delightful success it was. The Halpany family orchestra, assisted by Mr. Roy Gowie, stationed in the hall, gave the charm of excellent music to the enjoyment of the evening. In the dining room Mrs. Harry Rush presided at the tea urn, and the young ladies of the congregation served light refreshments.

The entire house was thrown open to the guests who had an opportunity of seeing its commodious character and the tasteful style of architectural finish and adornment.

Rev. Mr. Davidson briefly addressed the company, extending a welcome on behalf of himself and Mrs. Davidson; not only for that occasion, but for the future. The congregation were to think themselves joint owners of the splendid and comfortable residence their liberality had provided, and furnished. He expressed his warmest thanks.

Mr. Jos. Mills, People's Warden, read the following address:

Right Reverend Sir,—As loyal churchmen and churchwomen, we desire to respectfully welcome you to this old parish of Peterborough, one of the few rectories originally set apart by the government to provide for the due observance of the Christian faith.

It is our pleasure to congratulate your lordship upon your elevation to the high office to which you have been called, feeling that as you are now in the prime of life the Diocese may confidently look forward to many years of progress under the policy which you have already inaugurated.

Although late in the history of the parish we have now provided for our rector a residence, which we trust is not only befitting the importance of his position, but also meets your approval; as this valuable property is vested in the same manner as the remainder of the church property it forms a substantial addition to the general assets of the Diocese.

At St. John's rectotry, Peterborough, All Saints' Day, 1909.

J. C. Davidson,
On behalf of the congregation.
A. E. COULTHARD,
Rector's Warden.
JOS. MILLS,
People's Warden.

Mr. A. E. Coulthard, Rector's Warden, on the same behalf, presented his Lordship with a large framed picture of St. John's church, as a memento of his first episcopal visit to Peterborough.

The Bishop, in a brief, but happy address, acknowledged the welcome sentiments of the address and referred in warm terms to the beautiful rectory, which was a contrast to his own "shack," in Toronto. He spoke of the liberality of the congregation in so handsomely furnishing the rectory, and so comfortably, as he could testify from his occupancy of the guest chamber, which appealed to him so strongly, that he felt tempted to remain in Peterborough as curate of St. John's. Referring to the Rector's invitation to his people to regard the rectory as their own his Lordship said that that indicated the true relation between pastor and people, reciprocal support and assistance. The Bishop concluded by saying how much he had enjoyed his first visit to Peterborough and St. John's parish.

This pleasure has been mutual; for the bishop, by his genial and simply unaffected manner, as well as by his public addresses won golden opinions. While recognizant of the dignity of his office, he is not all lawn sleeves and gaiters, but a man among men, a minister in divine things with an interest in his flock that is bound to react upon their mutual relations with beneficial effect.

General regret was felt that Mrs. Davidson was not able to be present, being in ill health at the parental home in Montreal. She was, however, not forgotten. Postcards containing a simple greeting, were signed one after another by the guests present, and posted to her Montreal address.

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.

ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.

OTHERS admired the tone of the Evans Bros.' Piano.

AND SOME others preferred the Sherlock-Manning—each and every produce perfect tones but of different qualities.

WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

FAILURE TO BUILD PAVEMENT CAUSES A SPAT IN COUNCIL

Ald. Morgan and Duncan Wanted Charlotte Street Pavement Constructed This Year---Board of Works Chairman Held That it Was Not Safe to Build Any More Sidewalks.

The fact that the city's sidewalk forces have quit work for the season without doing the pavement on Charlotte street, west of Park street, which had been promised for this year was the raison d'etre of a somewhat lively spat at last night's council meeting.

Ald. Morgan introduced the matter by inquiring why work had been stopped before the Charlotte street walk had been built. He pointed out that this was to have been done this year, and wanted to know why it was not carried out.

Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, stated that City Engineer Hey had reported against the wisdom of constructing any more pavements this year, because it was too late in the season, and frost might ruin the pavements. They had several narrow escapes in doing the Concession street walk, and the Engineer was against taking any more risks.

Ald. Morgan, however, wanted the work started at once, and made a motion to that effect, which was seconded by Ald. Duncan. It was pointed out by the mover and seconder, that the weather might permit of the work being done and that anyway a start should be made.

"I think this is an injustice to the Board of Works," remarked Ald. Phelan, "that this matter should be thrashed out here, and a motion like this sprung."

"Ald Phelan takes the whole responsibility on himself, "retorted Ald. Duncan. "He won't call a meeting of the Board of Works and it's all "I" with him. He goes up and down the streets swelling out until the bottom will fly off his vest some day."

"I don't consider those remarks called for," replied the Board of Works chairman.

"Well, I do," was Ald. Duncan's reply. "You have not consulted your committee enough."

"You are the only member of the committee who says so," replied Ald. Phelan.

"I'll leave it to Ald. Buller and Ald. Gillespie there, "said Ald. Duncan. "They have said that you have not called in your committee when you should have."

"They have not said anything to me about it," was Ald. Phelan's reply.

"Well, you have heard them say it," retorted Ald. Duncan.

Ald. Buller and Ald. Gillespie settled the matter by moving in amendment to Ald. Morgan's motion, that the question be referred to the Board of Works. The amendment was carried and the Board of Works will take up the matter at a meeting this afternoon.

COLD ON THE LUNGS

This letter gives some idea of the confidence placed in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine by people who know by experience of its exceptional merit. Mrs S. D. Turner, Broadview, N.W.T., writes:—"We have seven children and have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for them all when troubled with colds on the lungs. We buy four bottles at a time and always keep it in the house, believing there is nothing so good for coughs and colds."

BIGGEST POTATO OF ALL FROM SOUTH MONAGHAN

Mr. Abner Wood, of South Monaghan, has smashed the record by dropping upon it and upon the Examiner sanctum table at the same time, a potato weighing 2 pounds, 12 ounces. This is three ounces ahead of the McGregor-Apsley potato (2 pounds, 9 ounces) which has held the belt since the potato-lifting season opened. Mr. Woods' potato is of the "English Emigrant" variety, and for the present leads the procession of corpulent potatoes.

If you have a Cough do not neglect it; buy at once a bottle of Allen's Lung Balsam.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM FITZGERALD.

Word has been received in the city by Mrs. Thomas Desautel, George street, of the death of her brother, William Fitzgerald, at Black Creek, Wisconsin. The deceased left Peterborough forty-five years ago and in all that time was home once, the occasion being two years ago, when he paid a visit to his relatives in this city. Besides Mrs. Desautel he leaves one brother, M. Fitzgerald, of East City, and three sisters, Mrs. D. McGrath, of East City, Mrs. P. Heffernan, Indian River, and Miss Ellen Fitzgerald, of Peterborough. He was seventy-five years of age.

Peterborough Milk Report For October Is Satisfactory

Percentage of Butter Fat Considered Very Favourable — About Twenty-five Samples Were Tested---No Adulterations Found

OF STANDARD QUALITY

The results of the milk tests made during October have been secured from Market Clerk Ball and show a very satisfactory condition of affairs. Thirty-eight samples were obtained but a report was not received of all of them. The figures opposite each name in the list published herewith gives the percentage of butterfat. The report does not give an idea of the amount of water, chalk, etc., used but it is learned that Peterborough's milk is free from adulteration and it may be freely drunk with an assurance that it is not braced up with formaldehyde. The test was as follows:—

WANTED POLICE COURT FINES COUNCIL COULD NOT SEE IT

Unusual Request From Robert Redmond, Whose Plum Trees Had Been Robbed.

COMMITTEE REPORTED

Robert Redmond's somewhat unusual request that he be paid the amount of fines collected in the police court from a number of boys who had been found guilty of stealing plums did not meet with favourable consideration at the hands of the finance committee and in their report to the Council at the regular meeting last night they recommended that no action be taken. The city is evidently not anxious to go into the wireless telegraphy business either as the request of the Lepel Company in regard to installing their apparatus here was also turned down The report of the committee which was adopted last night, was as follows:—

Your Finance committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That no action be taken on the claims of F. L. Robinson for damages to a hack belonging to him.

2. That no action be taken on the application of R. Redmond asking that the amount of fines collected in the police court from boys stealing plums from his garden be paid to him.

3. That no action be taken on the letter of the Lepel Wireless Telegraph Company regarding the installation of their apparatus in Peterborough.

WEBER CHORUS OF FORTY HANDSOME YOUNG WOMEN

Joe Weber's big travesty Company will make their first appearance at the Grand on Friday, Nov. 5, in the burlesque of "The Merry Widow and the Devil." This performance has pleased patrons of Mr. Weber's Broadway Music Hall all last season, and it has been described by many as the most pretentious production Mr. Weber has ever attempted. While the original stories of both "The Merry Widow" and "The Devil" are kept constantly in mind, George V. Hobart, who wrote the book on the burlesque, has been given permission to poke as much fun and and satire at "The Merry Widow and The Devil' as he knew how. Most of the charming melodies by Franz Lehar have of course been retained. The cast contains such well known artists as Sam Collins, Nina Collins, Charles Stine, Oscar Ragland, Marcia Harris, Marie Naughton and Hazel Tupper. Of course the usual Weber chorus of forty handsome young women will be seen.

are here in great variety of form and diversity of skins. Some are rigidly plain and others highly ornamental. The most popular skins worn now are Black Fox and Mink, both of which make up into very handsome and dressy Stoles. They can be had singly or with Muffs to match. The workmanship matches the goods in quality, and the prices are confessedly moderate. We shall be glad to have you call and examine these goods.

SIMPSON AND SELLEN TO RUN ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Indian and Famous Little Englishman Will Hook Up in a Ten Mile Go at the Brock Street Rink---Should be a Great Race all the Way.

Peterborough is to have a taste of the professional running game this week, when Fred Simpson, the well-known Hiawatha Indian runner, will clash against Percy Sellen, the crack Toronto distance man, in a ten-mile race. The contest will be pulled off on Saturday night in the Brock Street Roller Rink and should prove a corker. The distance should be about right for both men. Simpson has been training faithfully down at Hiawatha, and says that he was never better in his life, while Sellen is also in good shape. With the perfect track that can be arranged in the rink the two should come pretty close to nipping off some records. At any event it will be a hot race and from here it looks like a hard task to attempt to pick the winner. There will no doubt be a large crowd present as the little Englishman next to Alfie Shrubb, is probably the best known English athlete on this side of the water and has many admirers here, while, of course, the great mass of Peterborough sport-lovers are pulling for Simpson to win.

PETERBOROUGH WILL HAVE THEIR STRONGEST TEAM FOR SATURDAY'S GAME WITH THE TORONTO A.A.C.

Undoubtedly, the hardest fought local rugby game of the season will be the senior O.R.F.U. game at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon when Peterborough's old time rivals, T.A.A.C. will clash with the local seniors By defeating the Parkdale team on Saturday T.A.A.C. kept themselves and Peterborough in the running and there will now be a merry race before the championship is decided. Of course T.A.A.C. expect to beat Peterborough here on Saturday and leave the issue to be fought out between Parkdale and themselves, but the locals have other ambitions and with the strongest lineup they have had this season on the Petes say that they have got to be figured on before the championship is decided.

The local team will be greatly changed around and strengthened for this game and some of the older players have consented to get out. With practically a junior team Peterborough held the T.A.A.C. down to a 6-4 score at half time in the game at Toronto and until the youngsters were worn out by the superior weight of the Athletic Club loked as if they had the Toronto team beaten. With a much heavier lineup on Saturday Peterborough will be in a position to give the T.A.A.C. the hardest game they have had this season. The memorable battle between the two team last year was one of the most exciting games ever seen in Peterborough. It will be remembered that the Petes after leading through the piece were beaten by a sensational fifty-yard run by Mara the T.A.A.C. middle-wing within thre minutes of full time, the Athletic Club winning out by 7 points to 6 T.A.A.C. have one of the strongest punters in Canada on their line-up in the person of McCrimmon of the McMaster University team. The game will be called at 2.30 o'clock sharp and should be the snappiest exhibition of the season.

Cashier Of Roller Rink Presented With A Ring

The employees of the Brock Street Roller Rink on Saturday evening, said farewell to Miss Jennie Titterson, who has been cashier of the place since the opening, and who left this morning for Ottawa, where her family will reside in future. At the conclusion of the skating they surprised Miss Titterson by gathering around her and after reading an address appreciative of her good qualities, as shown in her associations with her fellow employees, they presented her a handsome signet ring. The address was read by M. Kenneally, while D. Godfrey made the presentation. Prof. Genno, in a neat speech, also thanked Miss Titterson for her services and regretted her departure from Peterborough. Miss Titterson made a suitable reply of thanks.

UNABLE TO JOIN IN HUNT THIS YEAR

The Ketchecum Lake Hunting Party is without its oldest member at the anual hunt this year, in the person of Mr. H. C. Winch who has for forty-five years been going back into the wilds each year for a shot at the elusive deer. The unfortunate fire at the National Hotel was the cause of Mr. Winch's not being with his party as usual this year. He was all ready to go in fact some of his dunnage had gone and on Friday afternoon he was congratulating himself that he had his business affairs arranged that he would be able to start out for the north early next morning when the fire alarm broke in upon his reverie. It developed that the National was on fire and Mr Winch's plans for departure for the hunt went up in smoke at least temporarily. The blaze necessitated his presence in town until the insurance adjusters have finished their work and the Ketchecum party had to depart without their leader who however hopes to join them before the end of the hunt.

INJURED HIS SPINE

Mr. Patrick Cranley Met With Accident Last Night.

When returning to his home at 629 Roger St., East City, last evening, Mr. Patrick Cranley was somewhat badly hurt and had to be removed to St. Joseph's hospital this morning. He was walking past the small bridge on Rogers St., when he missed his footing and fell. He was taken to his home and on summonsing Dr. McGrath it was found that his spine was injured. He was removed to the hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance.

LARGE PHOTO ON VIEW

A photograph of unusual size on exhibition in Gainey Bros. window, George street, has attracted considerable attention. It was taken in Milwaukee and is a group of all the delegates to the International Barbers' Union. The picture is nearly six feet long and is nearly as wide as the window. Mr. Harry Gainey, secretary of the local union, who was one of the delegates, is conspicuous among the Canadian representatives.
